SALT

"Educate your customers in regard to quality."

This is especially true with regard to Salt. You want your customers to buy Salt that will bring them in a good return—by producing the finest butter and cheese. You likewise desire to sell Salt to housekeepers that will not set hard in the salt cellar or dredger, and that possesses the pure, sparkling, white color that first-class Salt alone can have.

Educate them thoroughly by advising them to buy Coleman's or Rice's Salt, and the results will give them confidence in your judgment forever after. These Salts are pure—they do not cake—certain to please.

Highest Quality !

So little are the words "highest quality" understood that they have lost their true value, especially as relating to the permanency of a grocer's trade. We use them ourselves advisedly, and not as words to be lightly trifled with. What we say we prove. What we prove you cannot gainsay. Let "highest quality" speak for itself in the four articles we name below in the increased permanent trade they bring to grocers who sell them. First

Stower's Lime Juice.

Have you put that sign up in the store yet: "Maypole Soap Dyes sold here"? It shows to economical women that are sold by you to help them to economize. Brilliant, fast, quick, safe, sure. They wash and dye at one operation. All colors—they dye to any shade.

It's a good thing to have the women "on your side," especially when you sell them table delicacies.

"Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies represent the highest quality of rich, clean, delicate Haddies, which are caught, cured and packed right at the water side at Little River, N.S.

Codou's Macaroni is made from Russian wheat, the only suitable wheat for fine Macaroni.

Codou's Fine Macaroni is white, delicate, tender. It represents the highest type of the art in Macaroni making.

FOOD FADS

The claims that these preparations are "the most natural food for mankind"—"the great nerve and muscle builder," are exaggerations, but we are so used to over-statements of facts in advertisements that probably no one is deceived by them.

This food claims to be "composed entirely of pure gluten, and is one of the healthiest foods known." This claim is false and should be criminal.

The above extracts are from a recent bulletin of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, of investigation of some of the food fads now on the market.

About Molina Rolled Wheat, we make a plain, simple statement. It is made from Wheat which has been thoroughly cleaned and scoured—it is dried by intense heat and makes a wholesome breakfast dish. Its reputation doesn't rest upon false claims. It is sold in barrels of 100 lbs. and in kegs of 50 lbs. It's a good thing for the grocer and still better for his customer.

NO. 27

AN ILLUSTRATION OF A PERSONAL THEORY OF ACCOUNTS.

BY JOSEPH HARDCASTLE, C. P. A.

THE purchase of a commercial business is a common operation; it is easier, more certain, and needs less knowledge than the purchase of a corporation.

Let us suppose that an old merchant, whose business is in full prosperity, wishes to retire from commercial affairs and that he sells it to a young capitalist. At the moment of transfer the seller has disposed of his mercantile effects, and the buyer has assumed the payment of the liabilities, paying for the equity of the old merchant, $16,000. The buyer purchases the goodwill for an additional $4,000, making in all $20,000.

The merchant desiring to withdraw from the business makes a fictitious liquidation, for, in spite of the transfer, the business continues its regular routine without interruption. By a fictitious operation we mean an operation destroyed the instant after by an opposed operation, the merchandise is theoretically delivered to a person, who will give it back again immediately after, but between these two instants there will be passed an important act: the business will have changed hands, and these two operations will have been made by different owners.

Let the old merchant draw up his balance sheet, which, on the personalistic theory, we will suppose contains the following elements, and it is in the following form:

FINAL BALANCE SHEET OF A BUSINESS SOLD.

ASSETS.
Cash, amount in bank and bills received.....	$ 4,600
Merchandise.....	19,400
Sundry debtors.....	21,000
	$45,000
LIABILITIES.
Capital.....	$16,000
Sundry creditors.....	28,000
Bills payable.....	3,000
	$45,000

In this balance sheet the assets and the liabilities, being equal, amount to $45,000; it is then easy to suppose that the old merchant sells his merchandise fictitiously, and that he causes to be paid by his debtors, banker, bills receivable, certain amounts to the purchaser, since he pays fictitiously his creditors and his bills payable; the rest, his merchandise, representing his investment, $16,000, is sold to his successor, who takes it fictitiously to himself, and gives a fictitious discharge to all his employees, keeping only in his possession his books.

The business is thus liquidated, all the debts are paid, the merchandise sold and taken away, the employees dismissed, there remains nothing, neither values active (assets), nor passive (liabilities), nor individuals—there is an entire void. But the business is not destroyed for all that; it is indeed reduced to a condition for which the purchaser pays, under the name of good-will, $4,000.

What does the capitalist then buy?

A legal right upon the effects, exists by an act;

A name advantageously known, a trademark, a sign;

An acquaintance with purchasers and sellers;

The secrets of the business;

An assemblage of tried employees, etc.;

Finally, the power of making money from the start. These are the advantages and these the rights, which do not exist, when one founds a business, for which the buyer pays $4,000, but which may be worth more or less.

Some define a business: A merchant surrounded by his effects, his merchandise, his employees, these forming an indivisible whole, an entity.

But then the buyer would buy the employees of his predecessors at the same time as the rights and merchandise. The unexpected consequence shows clearly that the point of view is inadmissible; the business capable of being bought and sold is a value transferable, which cannot include living persons. Empiricism creates a being of two different characters, which is opposed to reason. If the business represents the proprietor, how shall the relations between them be established? The capital enters into business at the same time as the merchant enters into his store. He cannot then deliver it, and to credit the capital does not represent any delivery; it is an empty amount, being neither an asset nor a liability, placed to bring about an equilibrium of the assets and liabilities.

From the definition arise some accounts, which are neither assets (active accounts) nor liabilities (passive accounts): some debtors who will never pay anything (expense account), some creditors who will never reclaim the amount to their credit (reserve account).

Separate, on the other hand, the proprietor from the business, shareholders from their company, leave to each the proper function, the proprietor has the exclusive right of purchasing and selling and possessing the effects of the business, and these effects are objects to which he bears relations, while other accounts not assets and liabilities merely record the condition and progress of the business. Under this view the proprietor becomes a manager, whose duty it is to receive and turn in the equivalent as regularly as an ordinary agent, and to pay out proper claims made against the business. With this view all the accounting becomes perfectly lucid, and all the deductions of the personal theory of accounts become mathematical varieties.

The business is represented by a manager carrying on the business, a superior employee, who has not an accounting existence, who does not possess any of the merchandise deposited in the storeroom, but who disposes of it, and the proprietor becomes a correspondent who delivers and receives as others do, and "Credit Capital" says that the proprietor, under the pseudonym of Mr. Capital, has delivered some values to the business; then all these accounts are an incumbent in flesh and blood, who can be designated by this name; all the debtors will pay, and all the accounts, without exception, become personal, for the proprietor formerly delivered into the business an amount called capital, which is still found in the assets, and has allowed sums called profits accumulating by the operations of business either to remain in the assets or has withdrawn them from the business for his own use and others of these profits he has allowed to remain in the assets under the name of reserves, for all of which he has taken credit.

Certain accountants say that a business under a proprietor and one under a manager differ. It is certain that a proprietor can add to his function, those of the manager who carries on the business, but of how little importance the business may be, the distinction is forcibly realized. A proprietor cannot do everything and be always present. He causes many things to be done by his principal employe, who becomes a sharer of his labors. If the proprietor is sick, travelling, detained by any cause whatever, the employe takes his place and becomes the manager of the business, for a business can not remain without a director. But the proprietor, although absent, conserves the ownership of the business, the right to the profits and losses, the right of giving orders to his manager, who is accountable for his acts, and the proprietor on his return resumes his functions which he had for a time abandoned.

In companies by shares, the separation of these powers is imposed; the shareholders, very numerous, cannot direct all of their enterprises themselves. They name a manager, but in their general meetings they exercise their right of ownership in confirming or replacing the manager; in approving or disapproving his acts, in impressing on the affairs a progress conformable to their wishes, or in repressing while there is still time, the vagaries of the manager who deviates from the way laid out in the by-laws, articles of association, and the statutes.

The entries by double entry separate always the business accounts, by some called nominal accounts; by some fictitious accounts; by some representative accounts, and by others economic accounts, from those of the proprietor, sometimes called assets and liabilities, active and passive accounts, real accounts, and specific accounts. If the accountant confounds them in his imagination he does not proceed in accord with the science, and further, does not comprehend it.

After this digression we return to the purchase.

The seller has liquidated his business, the purchaser recomposes it on the same basis.

The fictitious operations are annulled by the opposite operations, each debtor, each creditor, retakes his first position, and the new proprietor who has received the merchandise from his predecessor, contributes it as his capital in the business: all the employes refund their desks as if nothing had occurred, and the accounts retake their place by journal entry along with the good-will. The good-will is a merchandise, since it was bought, but a merchandise impalpable, immaterial, and nevertheless susceptible of being placed in an imaginary storage.

BALANCE SHEET OF NEW BUSINESS.

ASSETS.

Each of these accounts is open in the new ledger, the corresponding sums are carried to the debits or credits, as the case may be, and the journal and the ledger are ready to receive the entries of the business which may be transacted by the proprietor.

The empiric school defines the capital the excess of the assets over the liabilities (the balance of the situation). It attributes to this excess the power of distributing the debts and the credits, a power which it will not even be possible to practically confer on a man.

Is, then, the capital a liability? No. For we have seen that the assets and liabilities are proprietor's accounts, for the former show those values from outside of himself, due to him, or belonging to him, whether in his possession or not, and the latter the obligations under which he is placed to others. What is it, then? It is credited to him because it shows the proprietor delivered that value into the business, and it is entered among the accounts not only to show his contribution to the business, but to put the accounts in equilibrium.—Business, New York.

BOUGHT TOMATOES IN NEW YORK.

The following appeared in The Maritime Merchant of June 20:

To the Editor of The Maritime Merchant:

Sir,—In your issue of The Merchant of June 6, I read an interview with a gentleman from Barbadoes regarding the development of trade between the two countries. I notice he said that he found it impossible to obtain 200 cases of tomatoes from Toronto jobbers and as a consequence his order went to New York.

I think there surely must have been a misunderstanding, as immense stocks of tomatoes are held not only in Toronto, but in almost every jobbing centre in Canada at the present time, in fact, an article from The Monetary Times in the same number as contains your interview, proposes to remedy existing conditions by reducing the Canadian output.

We should certainly be able to sell the Barbadoes importer all the tomatoes he wants, and I hope our canners will look carefully into the prospects of the market.

Yours truly,
EXPORTER.

[NOTE.—The price of tomatoes in Halifax to-day is 87½c. to jobbers. Mr. McIvor purchased his at 65c., New York. Brokers here say that stocks in first hands are not excessive and that there is no intention on the part of the few who hold them to cut prices. To sell tomatoes and other canned goods in the West India Islands, Canadian packers must sell equal quality at the same price as New York. We are not surprised that Toronto jobbers were indisposed to do business with Mr. McIvor on the basis of his New York quotation; there wouldn't be much money in selling canned goods at 65c. delivered New York, when they were costing in the vicinity of 80c. from first hands Toronto.—Editor Maritime Merchant.]

THE QUALITY OF BREAKFAST FOODS.

A BULLETIN of the Maine agricultural experiment station at Orono, contributed by C. D. Woods and L. H. Merrill, gives interesting results of their exhaustive investigations into the food value of the principal cereal breakfast foods now on the market. The bulletin is in part as follows:

The general use at the present time, of cereals on the breakfast table is largely due to the improved condition in which these goods are now offered. Twenty years ago uncooked decorticated oats (sold under the name of oatmeal), graham flour, cornmeal and hominy, all of which required long cooking, made up nearly the entire list of breakfast cereals available to the average housekeeper. To day it is possible to purchase at a moderate price cereal foods which have been previously thoroughly cooked, and subsequently dried so that they will keep indefinitely. These are ready for the table without further cooking, or, if wanted hot, can be prepared in a few minutes' time. The process of manufacture is hygienic and cleanly and will bear the closest inspection. Starting from the elevator the foods are cleaned, milled, cooked, evaporated and packed by machinery. It is very gratifying to find that this class of goods is free from adulteration and careless preparation. The processes differ in different factories and many of them are covered by patents. Some goods may be better prepared than others, just as one flour is better than another; but there is no preparation on the market, so far as the writers know, but that is better prepared than anything known to the generation which preceded us.

CORN GOODS.

The average of nineteen samples of granular cornmeal as compiled in Bulletin 28 of the office of experiment stations shows that one pound contains .125 pound of water; .092 pound of protein; .019 pound of fat; .754 pound of carbohydrates and .01 pound of ash. The only claim that the manufacturers make concerning Crown Flakes, Hecker's Hominy and H.O. Company's Hominy is that they are carefully prepared from the best quality of corn and are thoroughly kiln-dried, so as to keep well. The low percentage of fat indicates that all of these goods were made from corn from which the germ was more or less removed. The Mazama people make an unwarranted claim on the package. They say a package "provides, when cooked and ready for the table, 23 pounds of unsurpassed food, sufficient to sustain in health and vigor a family of seven for twenty-four hours." Assuming that the family of seven consists of a man, his wife and five children, from two to ten years of age, they would require for their nourishment for one day $1\frac{1}{2}$ pounds protein and enough fats and carbohydrates to furnish altogether 17,000 calories. A package of Mazama carries a little more than .2 of a pound of protein, and has a fuel value of a little less than 4,500 calories.

PREPARED OATS.

Hecker's partly cooked oatmeal and Hecker's rolled white oats differ in price, and, so far as these two samples are concerned, in composition. The former carries a third more protein than the latter. Hornby's H.O. carries about the average percentage of protein, although on this package there is an analysis which claims 17.63 per cent. instead of 13.4 per cent. which the sample examined has. The same analysis gives all of the ash as phosphates ("brain and nerves"), which is of course not strictly in accord with fact. The American Cereal Co. puts its goods up under three names and in four forms. Quaker Oats are sold only in package, Buckeye Oats in package and barrel, and American Cereal Co's oats in bulk. The only apparent difference in the four kinds is the price. The Buckeye Oats in bulk retailed in Bangor at 3½c. per pound, the American Cereal Co.'s rolled oats in bulk at 4c. The Buckeye oats in package cost in Bangor 5.3c., and the Quaker Oats 6.9c. a pound. They are all good quality rolled oats, and there seems to be no reason why one should pay 6.9 a pound when apparently just as good goods, made by the same company, sell for less than half that price. All of the rolled oats are good goods from the chemical standpoint, and there are no greater differences in composition than one would expect. The goods of different companies differ no more than different samples from the same companies probably would.

PREPARATIONS OF WHEAT.

Judging from the protein contents of the different wheat preparations it would appear that they are nearly all made from the soft starch wheats. This is an excellent way to utilize wheat relatively low in gluten, which will, in consequence, not make strong flour. For bread flours no wheats are so good as the hard wheat of high gluten content. For one restricted to a diet of wheat products, the hard wheats are more desirable, but in a mixed diet there are other sources of protein, and the use of the softer wheat in mushes and the like is to be encouraged.

Fruen's wheat wafers at 6.9c. a pound and Fruen's rolled wheat at 4c. are apparently the same goods, one put up in paper, and the other in barrels. The claims that these preparations are "the most natural food for mankind," "the great nerve, brain and muscle food," etc., are exaggerations, but we are so used to overstatement of facts in advertisements that probably no one is deceived by such claims.

Foulds' wheat germ meal "is made from the glutinous portion of choice wheat." If this statement means (and it is evident that it was intended to convey this meaning) that in its manufacture the starchy part of wheat is excluded, it is not true. Although made by a patented process, the resulting preparation chemically resembles ordinary white-wheat preparations in starch and in protein content.

Ralston Breakfast Food, "a perfect food made from selected wheat rich in gluten," is also apparently made from a soft winter wheat. The sample examined carries 10.7 per cent. of protein, and hence could not have been made from a "wheat rich in gluten." It is a well-made preparation, but its cost of 8c. a pound is too high.

There is probably no other cereal food on the market so widely and extensively advertised as Shredded Wheat Biscuit. For the most part its advertising matter is free from exaggerated statements. Its chemical composition is that of a good-quality winter wheat. It is the highest in price of all the wheat preparations, costing nearly 15c. a pound.

Grape Nuts, manufactured by the Postum Cereal Co., is "made by special treatment of entire wheat and barley." These goods have nearly the same proximate composition as the wheat foods. Part of the starch has been changed into dextrine and grape sugar. The claims of the makers are preposterous. Grape nuts "are a condensed food." "Four heaping teaspoons grape nuts are sufficient for the average meal." "The system will absorb a greater amount of nourishment from one pound of grape nuts than from ten pounds of meat, wheat, oats or bread." A man at moderate work needs per day about .28 pound of protein and sufficient fats and carbohydrates in addition to make the potential energy of the day's food 3,500 calories. Four heaping teaspoonfuls of grape nuts weigh about one ounce. The protein and energy needed for one meal (one-third of one day) and that furnished by four heaping teas-

A Striking Sentence.

"Coal in truth stands not beside but entirely above all other commodities. It is the material energy of the country—the universal aid—the factor in everything we do. With coal almost any feat is possible or easy; without it we are thrown back into the laborious poverty of early times."
—Jevons.

A Striking Parallel.

What coal is to the material world advertising is to the commercial world—the universal aid—the factor in everything we do.

With both the great object is to produce the greatest result with the least outlay. In advertising this is accomplished by the use of good trade newspapers.

The trade press offers a field which is absolutely unrivalled for the obtaining of results by the expenditure of a comparatively small amount of money.

We would like to give you some facts about advertising your products in The Canadian Grocer—it is one of the good trade papers referred to.

poonfuls of grape nuts are compared in the following table :

	Protein, lb.	Fuel value, calories.
Needed for one-third day by man at moderate work090	1,175
Furnished by four heaping teaspoonfuls, 1 oz., of grape nuts...	.077	117

It would require .77 pound of grape nuts (three fourths of a package) to furnish one-third of a protein needed for one day for a man at moderate work ; the energy needed would be afforded by .63 pounds.

The nutrients of beef are more completely digested and absorbed than those of vegetable foods. There is no reason for thinking grape nuts would be more completely digested than rolled oats, wheat flour or wheat bread. About 85 per cent. of the protein and of fuel value of vegetable foods is digested and rendered available to the body. While there is no question that grape nuts is a good cereal food, it is difficult to understand why the manufacturers should make claims so absurd and contrary to fact.—The Roller Mill.

LOCAL MARKET DAYS.

THE retail trade of Canada did not take long to recognize in the departmental stores, with their extensive newspaper and catalogue advertising, their cash system of business and their numerous "bargain" days, a new competitive force which was bound to cause a revolution in business, or drive dozens, if not hundreds, of merchants out of business.

But, though the trade was quick to realize the danger, they were slow in meeting it. At first there was but an outcry against the power of the young giant, then time, thought, energy and influence were spent in endeavoring to cripple him or at least lessen his power by means of the excitement of public prejudices and by legislative enactment.

Every trick of business, no matter how dishonorable, was ascribed to the departmental; cunningly devised laws were prepared and introduced to compel it to pay special taxes because of its very size and strength; and in various ways it was sought to prevent further encroachments on the fields of the "natural distributors," the local retailers.

The direct results of this agitating and legislating have been small, for the departmentals seem to be flourishing to day "like a green bay tree"; but the indirect results have been good, for the average buyer has received an education in the selection of goods, while everywhere throughout the country merchants have realized that the best way to meet the departmental is to beat him at his own game—to buy closely, so as to be able to sell at the smallest margin possible; to make the store attractive, and, at the same time, keep the expense account down to the lowest possible figure; and to sell so carefully that the loss from "bad debts" shall not necessitate an addition to the general selling price. It is safe to say that there is a greater proportion of close buyers, more attractive stores and more cautious sellers now than at any time in the history of Canadian retailing.

Of late, retail merchants throughout the country have awakened to the fact that by uniting their energies in certain directions they are able to meet their big competitor in the open market, and buy just as cheaply, do business just as economically and to sell as cheaply and, at the same time, give better results to customers than can the departmental.

Last month the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association united to make a purchase of paper bags. By buying 300,000 bags they secured a discount of 50 and 3 per cent., whereas the discount on 20,000 or less was but 40 and 3 per cent. Other purchases of a similar nature will probably be made.

Now the proposal is made in some quarters that the old-fashioned, time-honored market day be revived under new century conditions. It is suggested that the merchants in a municipality agree to recognize one day each week or each fortnight as a special market day; that the early part of the day be devoted to a short programme of amusement that will interest and attract buyers and that the afternoon and evening be devoted to business, or, as an alternative, that the day be devoted to business and the evening to pleasure.

This proposition seems entirely practical. Many towns have already market days, cheese board days, live stock delivery days, etc. These, or such of them as are possible, might be combined, care being taken to secure the presence of buyers of standing for the different lines. Few towns have local wheat markets where the farmer could depend on competition securing to him the highest price for his product. But, if such a market is feasible in the large cities every business day the year round, it should be possible once every week or two in towns surrounded by good farming land. Unity on the part of merchants in any up-to-date town situated in the agricultural sections of Canada should be able to make a weekly or fortnightly market day a practical and profitable business institution. Here is a suggestion for local boards of trade.

A BUSINESS MAN SHOULD BE APPOINTED.

THE death of Senator J. Villeneuve removes a shrewd business man from our upper federal chamber. It is, then, to be hoped, that when the Governor-in-Council is choosing an occupant for the position that he will let a business man have first call.

The Senate should essentially be a body composed of business men, tried, tested and found successful, men who have stamina, who are of a sound and trained mind. It is a checking body, and who is more fit to be a member of it than an experienced business man? Unfortunately, the number of such in the Senate is too small.

And now that we have lost a man of this class the Government should see to it that his place is taken by one of the same class. Le Journal, of Montreal, has announced the following likely ones for the position: Thos. Brossoit, C. R. de Beauharnois, Dr. Lachapelle, M. R. Prefontaine, M. Wilfrid Mercier and L. E. Geoffrion, president of the Chambre de Commerce and manager of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie; four lawyers, one doctor and one business man. It is to be hoped that the odds against the business man getting the position are not what they seem—5 to 1.

It would seem very fitting that Mr. Geoffrion should get the position, if he could be induced to accept it, for a wholesale grocer would then be succeeded by a wholesale grocer.

CANADA MISSES A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

ONE of the defects of party Government as it is constituted to-day is its lack of practical business instinct. No matter which party is in power this defect is in evidence. In a business sense, the Government in power is repeatedly doing those things what it ought not to do and leaving the things undone that it should do.

It is generally admitted that the Government of Sir Mackenzie Bowell made a big mistake from a commercial standpoint when it rejected the terms upon which Newfoundland was willing to enter Confederation. One of the best proofs of the mistake is the unlikelihood of anything like as favorable terms again being offered. Newfoundland, at that time, was financially weak, while now she is in a prosperous condition and the richness of her natural resources have come into greater prominence.

The present Government did a good stroke of business for Canada when it gave a preference to British products. But it has made several blunders, commercially speaking, since then. And now to its others must be added the Australian Commonwealth blunder, for which there can be no possible excuse.

The proceedings there at the opening of the first Parliament of the Australian Commonwealth were such as were never experienced before and are never likely to be experienced again for bringing the Dominion of Canada into prominence before the people of the sister colony that was following in the footsteps that Canada made thirty-four years ago. But the opportunity was not grasped.

When Canada was invited to participate in the auspicious ceremonies a unanimous demand went up that this country should be represented in a manner becoming to its importance. It was held, and properly so, that there was no man in the Dominion, on account of his striking personality and eloquence of speech, that was so well qualified to represent this country at the inaugural proceedings, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, for we all had in mind his extraordinary success in this respect at the Diamond Jubilee celebration in London in 1897. But he ignored the wishes of the people.

Hon. Wm. Mulock, who was sent to represent the Dominion, is one of the best Departmental administrators in the Laurier Cabinet. And his administration of the Post Office Department has been attended with signal success. He has been progressive, as the business men of this country are aware. But he is lacking in the qualities which are essential to the proper representation of the Dominion of Canada at such a function as that of launching a new Commonwealth on its Parliamentary career.

Even, however, had he been a Sir Wilfrid Laurier in striking personality and in gift of speech, he would have been placed at a great disadvantage on account of the way in which he was sent forth. Had he been the representative of a commercial concern he scarcely could have gone forth in a more penurious manner.

Canada is a democratic country, and we have not much sympathy with fuss and feathers, but a small body of men representative of the various arms of the Canadian militia should have accompanied him, not for the mere purpose of show, but for the purpose of giving Canada due prominence in the proceedings at Melbourne. It was business common sense that demanded it; it was lack of business common sense that denied it.

Eight years ago the Dominion Government voted a subsidy for a steamship line between Canada and Australia. While the trade between the two countries has increased since 1893, yet it is still small and disappointing, for during the last five years our export trade with the Antipodes in home products has been practically at a standstill. The first steamer running between Canada and Australia arrived at Vancouver on June 8, 1893. In that year the exports of Canadian products were $250,061. Last year they were $1,648,926. But when it is remembered that the figures during the past four years have remained almost stationary, as will be seen from a glance at the following table, the satisfaction that is engendered from a comparison of the figures of 1893 and 1900 is somewhat diminished:

1898	1,644,506
1899	1,520,016
1900	1,648,926

The amount of the steamship subsidy paid last year was $121,666.

Lost — At the inauguration of the Australian Parliament, through the lack of business foresight, a golden opportunity of attracting the attention of the new Commonwealth toward the Dominion of Canada. No reward is offered, for, like yesterday, it is irrecoverable.

The Government was awake at the Diamond Jubilee; why was it asleep at the birth of the Australian Parliament?

LEMONS ARE ADVANCING.

The extreme heat of the past fortnight, but particularly of the past week, has given an astonishing impetus to the demand for lemons. In fact, sales have been so great that, though stocks at the beginning of the season were almost, if not entirely, as large as customary, there are not now much more than one-quarter as many as were held at this time last year.

This is true, too, in spite of the great popularity of other drinks, particularly ice cream soda, this summer. The demand for lemons has been general throughout Ontario, where the heat wave has been most depressive, and prices have been forced up fully $1 per box, the range now being $4 to $4 50. A continuance of hot weather for another week will result, wholesale dealers assert, in a further advance of at least 50c. per box.

THE NEW FRUIT ACT.

THE fruit trade, from the grower to the retail distributor, should become thoroughly acquainted with the Fruit Marks Act passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, and which went into force on Monday. The intention of the Act is to prevent the dishonest packing and marking, which has done so much injury to the Canadian, and especially the Ontario, fruit industry in the past year.

Section 4 provides: "That all such packages must be plainly marked: (a) With the initials of the Christian names and the full surname and address of the packer; (b) with the name of the variety or varieties; and (c) with a designation of the grade of the fruit."

But responsibility does not end with the packer, for section 5 enacts: "No person shall sell or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package intended for sale, unless such package is marked as required by the next preceding section."

Section 6 reads: "No person shall sell, or offer, expose, or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of finest, best, or extra good quality, unless such fruit consists of well-grown specimens of one variety, sound, or nearly uniform size, of good color for the variety, or normal shape, and not less than 90 per cent. free from scab, worm holes, bruises, and other defects, and properly packed."

"Section 7 enacts: "No person shall sell, or offer, or expose, or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in any package in which the faced or shown surface gives a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than 15 per cent.

of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than, or inferior in grade to, or different in variety from, the faced or shown surface of such package."

The retail trade are made, by these provisions, equally responsible with the packer, for any false packing or marking in fruit offered for sale by them. It should be remembered, furthermore, that this enactment does not merely apply to large fruits, such as apples, peaches, etc., but is equally directed to such fruits as strawberries, raspberries, etc.

THE COFFEE ESSAY CONTEST.

THE CONDITIONS.

1. No essay shall exceed 2,500 nor be less than 1,500 words.
2. Each essay must be signed by a nom de plume. Both the proper name and nom de plume of the writer must be written on a sheet of paper and placed in a sealed envelope across which must be written the nom de plume. This envelope, which will not be opened until the judges have made their award, can be placed within the envelope containing the essay or in another envelope and addressed to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front street east, Toronto.
3. The judges will be disinterested merchants.
4. Competition shall close on July 20, by which date all manuscripts must be in this office.
5. There must be two or more essays sent in by different competitors or no prize will be given; three or more essays or no second prize; four or more or no third prize.
6. The envelope in which each essay is mailed should have written across the corner the words, "Essay Competition."
7. All prize essays shall be the property of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The subject, it will be remembered, is "The Buying, Handling and Selling of Coffees." The 1st prize will be $15; 2nd, $10 and 3rd $5. Besides this, to each of the five essayists whose productions rank next to those winning the cash prizes will be awarded a copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER for one year.

ADULTERATED EXTRACTS.

Dealers sometimes adulterate their fruit extracts and essences with fixed oils, alcohol or turpentine. Adulteration by fixed oils is detected by pouring a few drops of the essence on a sheet of paper and heating it. Upon the evaporation of the essence a greasy spot will remain. Alcohol is detected by pouring a few drops of the essence into a glass tube in which a small quantity of chloride of lime has been dissolved. The tube is then heated and well shaken, and, upon its being allowed to settle, the essence will float on the denser liquid. To detect turpentine, pour a few drops of the essence on writing paper, and a strong smell of turpentine will remain after the essence has evaporated. The essence of sour orange, mixed with the essence of lemon, produces an aroma similar to that of the essence of bergamot; the latter is much used by confectioners.—World.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Milton Carr, general storekeeper, Powassan, and Liberal candidate for the Legislature to represent Parry Sound district, was in Toronto a few days ago.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

MAIL advices from London reporting on Valencia raisins state: "Advices are highly satisfactory, the vines never appearing in a more healthy condition, and in the Petregues districts, which usually produce the finest fruit, the prospects of an abundant yield were never better. This state of affairs is causing holders to be more anxious to dispose of their old fruit and quarter boxes of good selected quality are offering at 24s., showing a decline of several shillings. Very little definite information has been received as to the coming crop of Sultanias and latest news points to a much smaller yield than for many years."

CANNED GOODS IN BALTIMORE.

Reporting on canned goods, Thos. J. Meehan & Co., Baltimore, have the following: "There is very little that is new to report about the Baltimore canned goods market this week. Business was active only in spots, the principal activity being in tomatoes, for both spot and future deliveries, and they show strong signs of improving prices. Corn and new string beans were in fair demand, and they are cheap enough to justify liberal purchases. The packing of peas is about ended in this section. The pack is light, comparatively, but the quality is very much above the average. Some attractive lots are offered at lower prices than prevailed last week, and they are worth attention. The demand for all grades of pineapples, berries and cherries was satisfactory, and the orders came from all sections. Raspberries and strawberries are quite strong and look like advancing."

LEMONS HIGHER IN NEW YORK.

Referring to the situation in lemons, a dealer said to day: "Notwithstanding last week's auction sales aggregated 80,700 boxes, the market at the close showed a material advance over that ruling the week previous. The same has been directly attributable to the hot weather which has increased the consuming outlet.

"Quite a few Verdelli lemons are now arriving on this market. This fruit is hard, long-keeping and will stand shipment a long distance. The Verdelli lemons are practically all 300s. The quantity of 360s of this variety arriving is infinitesimally small and they are taken at high prices.

"As Thursday is July 4 it is probable we shall not have any further sales. Should the hot wave continue, however, it is possible that the importers will put in another boat on Friday. Owing to the fact that up to the present time we have had very little hot weather it is natural to expect a continuation of the present warm spell, and should this be the case, we are bound to see a continued heavy demand for fruit, with probably some increase in prices."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, July 2.

CURRENTS IN NEW YORK.

At the moment we report no important change in the currant situation. Orders for small parcels are being filled from time to time on the quoted basis. From some interior markets there are noted inquiries for several round lots. Sales aggregating about two carloads were reported on the basis of quotations for Amalias. It is expected if the further business pending goes through the spot market will be advanced in some quarters. So far as can be learned no stock is now offering ex Pocahontas. We learn that several small lots may be shipped from Greece by way of the Continent on purchases made subsequent to the sailing of the last direct steamer. The outlook for the growing crop is reported in late advices to be favorable, and estimates up to 135,000 tons have been made.—New York Journal of Commerce.

ALEX. HILL GOING HOME.

Alex. Hill, who has for the past twenty years or so represented John Sloan & Co., Toronto, in part of Middlesex and Waterloo counties leaves on Thursday for a trip to his birthplace, near Belfast, Ireland, where his mother and other relatives are still living.

On Saturday last in the offices of the company Mr. Hill was made aware of the appreciation and good-will felt towards him by his employers and fellow employees, when he was presented with a gold locket and travelling grip, after A. H. Lawson had in a brief speech expressed the sincere good-wishes of all toward him, and their regret at his retirement, after thirty-three years on the road, of which fully a score had been spent with John Sloan & Co.

Mr. Hill intends, while away, to keep in close touch with what is going on in the trade in Canada, so has requested that his copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER be sent to his home in Ireland while he is there. "If I read it," declared he, "I'll keep posted on what's going on all right."

WANTS TO ACT AS AGENT.

The travelling representative in Scotland of a Liverpool grocery house writes THE GROCER that he would like to act as agent for some firm of Canadian confectioners or others in the grocery line. His firm writes THE GROCER recommending him. He has had a long experience and has a large connection all over Scotland, and thinks he would have no difficulty in doing a good business for a good house. Any Canadians, merchants or manufacturers, who would like to extend their business in Scotland can be put in touch with this gentleman by addressing the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

HOW DO I MANAGE MY BUSINESS?

From The Scottish Trader.

AFTER 25 years' commercial experience—buying and selling—one may surely venture to offer a few suggestions to young men beginning business. While the older merchants may think that such hints are somewhat crude and superfluous, I have a conviction, founded on experience, that no more important question can be asked than—"How do I manage my business?" The answer is of supreme importance to the wholesale merchant, as well as to the members of the allied trades. For more money has been lost, and good names blasted from mismanagement than from any other cause.

There was a book which had a large circulation in the last generation, to whose precepts many of our present-day merchants attribute their success. They acted upon its precepts, and followed them out to their natural conclusion, which was final success. The book referred to was entitled, "Samuel Budget, the Successful Merchant."

Business life is governed by laws as rigid and unbending as any of the laws which govern the science of mathematics. Don't tell me your business is too small, for I have observed that it is the small businesses which suffer most from remissness or forgetfulness. In every shop there should be a substantial writing desk, carefully and conveniently fitted up, a good ink bottle with a cover, which the boy must keep clean without fail, and the blotting pad of the finest blotting paper. Oh! it is disgusting to see a man use the blot leaf of a pass book, or worse still, a "pickle o' sawdust," to dry a receipt, when it could be so easily avoided by a little good management. A large, substantial diary, which shall lie open on the desk for memoranda of the most common-place nature, is also a valuable auxiliary. "It will take up too much time" you say. Nothing is further from the truth; it will save you a very great deal of precious time, as well as give you a great deal of pleasure, and save you any amount of money. The pencil jottings in this diary must be of the very simplest kind. It is not for a moment to be supposed that this diary is to take the place of bookkeeping; it is simply an aid to good management.

I have often seen a customer enter a grocer's shop and give a small order. She said she had "forgotten her purse." It was only 4½d., but she would pay it next time. "Oh! all right," the grocer will remember it. To try to remember it "is bad management." Put it down in the diary—a mere pencil jotting. The most trivial things should be recorded, and after they are recorded dismiss them from your mind, and let your undivided attention be given to your business. The following morning make it a duty to go over the diary, and it will surprise you the information that diary will give you, and it will save you pounds of money in a year. The process of transferring items to the next day should also be adopted. Of course, if you have got to look for the diary and the blotting paper, instead of having a good desk—to which you are justly entitled—then the whole arrangement will turn out futile, and you will always be in a muddle.

The young merchant may be deterred from adopting this system on account of the trouble and expense, but when he has got used to it, he will be so convinced of its advantage that he will continue to work on the lines indicated.

If you go out, leave instructions that whoever calls upon you their names are to be jotted down, and their "business." "Oh," says the shopman, "I'll remember." He has no right to remember to tell you. If the call is recorded in the diary you don't require to be told, you can see the entry for yourself.

How do you manage your business? Do you let things take their chance, and trust to luck to carry you through somehow? Are you working on a system so that you can tell how your stock stands, and what you are worth? Too much trouble! Well, now, I know a firm in Glasgow who pay in wages £5,000 a week, and if the bell rings from the private room the governor can tell next morning how the firm stands as regards stock, finance, orders, etc., to within a margin of five per cent., all because of the adoption of a rigid supervision of their affairs, not a mere guess.

Put it down in black and white. If the balance is on the wrong side, face it like a man; if the balance is favorable, do not let it lessen your efforts to push ahead. Another simple thing is to copy from your diary the goods you are out of, make a list of them, and when you go to the city to call on your merchants you will do your business in half the time, and your merchant will look up to you with respect, and if they have a "good line" in the market you will certainly not be overlooked. As a rule, the members of the grocery and allied trades are quick witted, and possess a good knowledge of human character; they know the value of paying promptly, but in all these things every man will be guided by the circumstances with which he is surrounded, and no one can advise him; but these little business failings referred to, which are very common, create a bad impression, and, by adopting the simple suggestions here offered, readers may avoid them.

TEA DEMONSTRATIONS.

DEMONSTRATIONS as a means of introducing food products to consumers have become quite a feature in modern business methods. One of the Canadian firms that has lately been making a feature of this method is the packer of Ross' tea. This firm has given demonstrations in the leading stores of such cities and towns as Port Hope, Belleville, Lindsay, Peterboro', Kingston, Brockville and Ottawa.

In carrying out these demonstrations the Ross people have spared neither money nor pains. The booth in which the demonstrations are made is both unique and handsome, being Oriental in design and drapery. The young lady in charge of the booth is a graduate of the School of Domestic Science.

Excellent results are being obtained from the demonstrations and in Ottawa in one week one store in which the demonstrations were being carried on sold nearly $200 worth of tea.

HAMILTON BOARD OF TRADE.

The following officers were elected by acclamation by the Hamilton, Ont., Board of Trade on Tuesday:

President—John Bruce.

Vice-President—F. C. Fearman.

Secretary-Treasurer—Chas. Stiff.

Council—J. B. Fairgrieve, William Hendrie, James Turnbull, John Proctor, Senator A. T. Wood, George E. Bristol and W. D. Long.

Board of Arbitration—J. M. Young, R. T. Steele, George Hope and Ald. C. K. Domville.

PRODUCE COMPANY RETIRES,

The Imperial Produce Co., organized in 1890, with $100,000 subscribed capital, of which $25,000 was paid up, and with Hon. Charles Drury as president; John Stark, vice-president and treasurer; J. K. Leslie, 2nd vice-president, and Arthur Jones, secretary, have decided to go into voluntary liquidation, and have discontinued business. A recent heavy loss on a cheese deal in Quebec has assigned as the cause. The consignment of cheese was destroyed by fire on the day on which the company purchased it. The company held that the cheese had not been delivered, but the courts ruled otherwise. Ordinary creditors will be paid in full, it is anticipated.

Royal is the baking powder of highest character and reputation, the favorite among housekeepers. The cheapest to consumers, the most profitable for dealers to handle.

Those grocers who are most successful in business---who have the greatest trade, highest reputation, the largest bank accounts---are those who sell the highest quality, purest, best known articles.

It is a discredit to a grocer to sell impure, adulterated and unwholesome goods; nor is the sale of such goods, even though the profits on a single lot may be larger, as profitable in the long run as the sale of pure, wholesome, high-class articles at a less percentage.

Trade is won and held by the sale of the best, the highest grade, the most reliable goods.

GETTING VACATION TRADE.

A NEW Jersey grocer tells in The Grocery World how he holds and gets trade during the summer vacation as follows.

We have always been bothered a good deal by the falling off in our business during the summer. We sell mostly to all well-to-do people, who either go to the country or seashore in the summer, and that has always made us very dull all summer.

I have always accepted this as a matter of course, and blame myself for never having given much thought to the matter before last year. In May, 1900, I got hold of a Philadelphia newspaper, and my eye was attracted, by an advertisement of one of the large grocers there—if I remember rightly, Hanscom Bros. It was only a small advertisement, but it brought out the idea of following vacation customers to their summer homes and continuing to supply them with groceries throughout the summer.

I hate to think that to make me see anything it is necessary to hit me with a stuffed club, but I honestly had never thought of this before with reference to my own business. I at once went to work, however. That very night I made a list of our customers who usually went out of town during the summer. The next day I got a table of freight rates—it seldom pays to send such things by express, I find—and then I started out to canvass. I called on every customer who usually spent the heated months out of town, and asked permission to keep on supplying them with goods during the summer. I had my table of freight rates with me, and in most cases it was safe for me to offer to deliver free of charge inside of 50 miles, although we seldom had to go that far. In a few cases I agreed to deliver by express, but I found that unless the package is small and the distance short, freight is far cheaper and just as satisfactory.

During the summer of 1900 we did fully 50 per cent. more business than we had ever done during any previous summer. With a few hitches, the scheme worked perfectly. Every Saturday evening I would send a postal card to my out-of-town customers as a memory jogger. It would reach them Monday morning, and the order for the week would usually reach me on Tuesday or Wednesday morning. As a rule, I could not ship green stuff or perishable goods, but such things as olives, bakers' goods, and all of the regulation dry groceries went forward without any trouble whatever. We have good freight service in this part of the country, and the goods usually reached the customers within two days after I received it, sometimes in one day. As I took care that they should order ahead, this was very satisfactory.

The free delivery by rail cut into my profits a little, but we argued that we would rather make 8 per cent. than nothing, so we have pushed the plan even harder this year. The season is backward, and fewer people have left town, but from present indications we shall do considerably more than we did last year.

FANCY DECORATED LAMPS.

A STRIKING characteristic of the industrial development of Canada of late years has been the recognition by manufacturers and the mercantile world generally that in many lines, formerly imported, there can be produced at home goods fully equal in appearance, quality and value to the imported article.

Gowans, Kent & Co., Toronto, have done much to force recognition of this fact as regards fancy earthenware and glassware. Not long since they established a plant to manufacture cut glass, and have been eminently successful in competing with foreign makers of this line of goods.

Another line in which they have begun to compete with the outside houses is fancy decorated lamps.

The only part of these which have to be imported are the opal globes and bottoms. The globes and bottoms which are brought in undecorated from Germany bear a duty of only 30 per cent. into Canada, as compared with 60 per cent. into the United States. As the large makers in both countries get their stocks from Germany, this gives the Canadian maker a big advantage at the start in buying his raw material.

The plant for decorating and "firing" installed by Gowans, Kent & Co., is thoroughly up-to-date. The decorations are of three classes, hand painted, pattern printed, and the dry tint process. In all cases, the lamp has a "fired" or burnt in decoration which cannot be scraped or washed off. The decorations are bright and well finished, while the bases and brass connections used are now of the best quality and with the best gilt finish, making a vast improvement in the whole appearance of the lamps over inferior bases formerly used.

The accompanying cut shows one of the dainty designs made by Gowans, Kent & Co. Further particulars can be secured from the catalogue which has just been issued, and which gives several illustrations of the newest shapes and designs. The trade is invited to visit the firm's warehouse and factory while in the city.

If any reader wishes to know where any article can be purchased in Canada or abroad, a letter to the Editor will probably place him in communication with the seller.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 4, 1901.

GROCERIES.

WITH the holiday and the warm weather, the wholesale grocery trade during the past week has been somewhat languid, and there is a general complaint all around. The situation in canned goods is without material change, business still being light and prices unchanged. Coffees are meeting with a fair request. The only line in which increased activity can be noted is sugar, in which a fair business is now being done. Syrups and molasses are still dull. Very little interest is being shown in teas, although the market is fairly steady all around, as far as prices are concerned. There is a decidedly firm feeling in regard to pepper. Currants are still firm, although the London market is not as strong as that in Patras. Valencia raisins are still dull and weak. Prunes are meeting with a fair demand. In other lines of dried fruits, the market is quiet and featureless.

CANNED GOODS.

The feature of the week has been a freer business in canned strawberries, the wholesalers having bought rather freely. Although the crop of strawberries is large, packers complain that the berries become so soft before they can be used that there is a great deal of waste. In consequence of this, there is a rather firmer feeling in regard to prices. The wholesalers are quoting $1.50 for canned strawberries in syrup, and $1.75 for preserved. There has been a little more inquiry from the wholesale trade for canned tomatoes, but we hear of no transactions, although, if any lots were offered at low figures, they would evidently be quickly taken. The lowest figure a buyer could get, who wanted a round lot of tomatoes, was 77½c., but the wholesalers are still quoting 75 to 80c. to the retail trade. In fact, just now a case of tomatoes can be bought at a lower figure than even a round lot, for the simple reason that wholesalers are not desirous, as a rule, to sell large lots.

Canned peas and corn are still quoted at 70 to 75c. The demand is keeping up well for canned goods, and, on account of the troubles among the fishermen, and the canners on the Coast, the feeling in regard to prices is firmer if anything. Really fine sockeye salmon on spot is getting scarce, and the same remark applies even to cohoes. There is an abundant supply, however, of pink salmon. Spot salmon is quoted at $1.60 to $1.65 for Fraser River, and $1.50 to $1.55 for northern fish, and $1.20 to $1.25 for cohoes. Fraser river sockeye for future delivery is still quoted at $1.45 for less than 10 case lots, and $1.42½ for 10 case lots and over. Northern sockeye for future delivery is quoted at $1.30 for less than 10 cases, and $1.25 for 10 cases and over. Sardines are meeting with a fairly good demand. In canned meats a good business is to be noted.

COFFEE.

The market is fairly steady as to price and local wholesalers report the demand good. The prices in the primary market, however, are still considered too high for local importers to operate, consequently, little business of an import nature is being transacted. We quote green Rio coffee No. 7, 7¾c.; No. 6, 8¼c.; No. 5, 8¾c.; No. 4, 9¼c.

See pages 33 and 34 for Toronto, Montreal, and St.
John prices current.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The market in both syrups and molasses is quiet and featureless. We quote: Corn syrups, barrels, 3c. per lb.; half-barrels, 3½c.; kegs, ¾c.; pails, $1.40 each for three gallons, $1.05 for 2 gallons. Sugar syrups range from 30 to 37c. per gallon, and New Orleans molasses at 23c. upward.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There is a fair trade doing in rice, but very little is being done in tapioca. B rice is quoted at 3½c. per lb. and Japan and Java rice at 5½ to 6c. The idea for tapioca is 4¼ to 4½c.

SPICES.

Pepper is firmer and all low offers have been withdrawn. Advices received in Toronto this week say, however, that whether it is the beginning of a big advance or not cannot be definitely stated. The loss of a steamer with 900 bags on board, referred to in a previous issue of this paper, is still an influence in the market. In cloves the market is rather flat.

SUGAR.

There is a fairly good movement in sugar, business having materially improved. Across the line the deliveries on existing contracts have been so heavy that it has been almost a physical impossibility to keep up with the demand. Raw sugars are steady at the decline noticed in a recent issue. Supplies of raw sugar in the hands of the refiners in the United States are so heavy at the moment that the latter are not willing buyers. Holders, however, appear to be indifferent, and are warehousing their goods rather than make any concessions in prices. The beet sugar market in Europe is firm with slight fluctuations of from ¾ to 1½d. Present quotations in London for beet sugar are 9s. 3¼d.

TEAS.

There is not much change in the situation as far as Indian and Ceylon teas are concerned. The market in London is rather steady, but business both there and here is light. Some samples of Indian green teas are offering this week on the local market, and they are of desirable character. There have been a few transactions in Ceylon green teas. New season's China black teas are being quoted this week, but we hear of no transactions. There has been a little business in old Japan teas at about 16½c., but in new season's teas there has been scarcely anything done, only a few of the finer teas changing hands. It is expected that it will be about two or three weeks from now before the cheaper teas come to hand.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—The demand is keeping up fairly well, and, as stocks are light, quotations are not being cut. A feature of the market is the fact that currants are cheaper in London than in Patras. This is on account of the larger stocks which are carried in the former city. Ruling quotations here for good, sound fruit are 9½ to 10c. for Filiatras, 10½ to 11c. for Patras and 12c. for 1-crown Vostizzas and 14c. for 5-crown.

VALENCIA RAISINS—This market is still dull and weak. Fine off-stalk, standard brands, is quoted at 6½ to 7c., but inferior brands run as low as 5 to 5½c. Selected is quoted at 7 to 7½c. for standard brands and down as low as 6c. for inferior brands.

PRUNES—The demand for prunes keeps up fairly well. Californian prunes are quoted at the following prices: 30-40's, 8 to 8½c.; 40-50's, 7½ to 8c.; 50-60's, 7 to 7½c.; 60-70's, 6½ to 7c.; 70-80's, 6 to 6½c.; 80-90's, 5½ to 6c.; 90-100's, 5 to 5½c. French prunes, 3½ to 4c.

CALIFORNIAN DRIED FRUITS—Business is moderate. We quote: Apricots, 11½ to 12½c. per lb., in 25-lb. boxes; peaches, 8½ to 10c. per lb., in bags, and 10 to 12c. in boxes.

GREEN FRUITS.

Tuesday was a record day for strawberries at the Scott street fruit market, and prices fell as low as 4c. for inferior stock, but the best stock did not get below 6c., and some sold as high as 7c. The stocks on Wednesday were smaller, and prices were forced up about 1c. all round. Gooseberries in small baskets are now plentiful at 25 to 40c. Cherries are starting to arrive, and sell fairly well at from 60c. to $1. The feature in imported fruits is the sale of lemons which has been so great during the past week that stocks are not nearly up to the average at this season. The result of the scarcity has been to cause an advance of $1 per box. Florida pineapples are in excellent demand at $3.50 to $4 per crate. Sugar loaf pines have sold readily at $1.75 to $2.25 per crate. Several bunches of red bananas were received this week, and were sold all the way from $1.50 to $4, according to condition. These are the first red bananas that have been sold on this market for a long time. Californian fruit is arriving more freely, and is in good demand. Plums are selling at $1.75 to $2.25; peaches, $1.50 to $2.50; pears, half boxes, $2.50 to $3; apricots, $1.75 to $2. A shipment of Rhodi oranges is offering at $3.50 per box for all sizes from 160's to 300's. Late Valencias are in good demand at $5, an advance of 50c. Bananas are in excellent demand, and, though the supply is liberal, prices are 25c. higher. Cocoanuts are steady at $3.50 to $3.75.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand is light and as receipts continue fair prices are ½ to 1c. per doz. lower. The "loss-off," which is largely due to the great heat, is very large. We quote 11 to 11½c. per doz.

BEANS—There is practically nothing doing. We quote $1.60 to $1.65 for hand-picked and $1.50 to $1.60 for prime.

HONEY—The market is listless. Prices are steady. We quote: 10 to 11c. for extracted clover, and 5c. for extracted buckwheat, while clover comb is worth $2 to $2.40 per doz.

DRIED APPLES—There is practically nothing doing. We quote nominally 5c. for evaporated and 3 to 3½c. for dried apples.

POTATOES—The market has fluctuated considerably with the result of a net decline of 5c., which makes the ruling quotation 35c. per bag on track Toronto.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—There is a good local demand and a fair export movement, so that though receipts are fairly large the market is well cleaned up and prices are steady. We quote as follows: Dairy prints, 16 to 17c.; best tubs, 16 to 16½c.; seconds, 13 to 15c.; creamery prints, 19 to 21c.; boxes, 18 to 20c.

CHEESE—The prices paid at country boards this week are fully ½c. lower than a week ago, and as a result the local market shows a similar decline. New cheese is now quoted at 9½ to 10c. and old cheese at 10c.

FISH.

Frogs' legs are selling at 30c. per lb. The demand for fresh fish is good, but salt fish are rather quiet. Prices are steady as follows: Fresh fish—Speckled trout, 25c.; red snappers, 12½c.; Spanish mackerel, 12½c.; codfish, 7c.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 7c.; halibut, 9c.; sea salmon, 15c.; haddock, 6c.; herring, 4c.; British Columbian salmon, 15c. Prepared fish—Dried cod, in 112 lb. bundles, $4.75 per cwt.; flitched cod, $5 to $5.25; boneless cod, in bricks, 5 to 5½c. per lb.; steak cod, 6½c. per lb.; shredded cod (2 doz. in box), $1.80 per box; boneless fish, loose, in 25-lb. boxes, 4 to 4½c., and 5-lb. boxes, 5c. per lb. Live lobsters are worth 15c. per lb.; frogs' legs, 30c. per lb.

VEGETABLES.

There is an excellent demand for practically all lines. We quote: Cucumbers, 50 to 75c. per doz.; beans, $2.25; green peas, $1.50 to $1.75; Egyptian onions, $2.50 per sack; asparagus, $1.25 per basket; radishes, 10 to 20c.; lettuce, 25 to 30c.; rhubarb, 25c.; green onions, 10 to 20c.; carrots, 25c.; beets, 25c.; cauliflower, $1 to $1.25.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—An advance of 1c. throughout is reported. We quote: Cowhides, No. 1, 7½c.; No. 2, 6½c.; No. 3, 5½c. Steer hides are worth 1c. more. Cured hides are quoted at 8 to 8½c.

SKINS—There is not much doing, and no change in price has been made. We quote as follows: No. 1 veal, 8-lb. and up, 9c. per lb.; No. 2, 8c.; dekins, from 60 to 70c.; culls, 20 to 25c.; sheepskins, 90c. to $1.

WOOL—Cables from London state that at the wool sales there this week fine wools were sold at from par to 5 per cent. lower, and cross-breeds at 5 to 10 per cent. reductions. This has tended to further weaken the market here, but there is no change in prices. We quote: Combing fleece, washed, 13c., and unwashed, 8c.

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The wheat market is steady. Red and white are quoted at 67c. at outside points, middle freights. Manitoba wheat is worth 89½c. for No. 1 hard, grinding in transit, or 88c. Toronto and west. The movement on the local street market is fair. We quote: Wheat, white and red, 71c.; goose, 69 to 69½c.; oats, 35c.; rye, 52 to 52½c.; barley, 47c.

FLOUR—A fair local trade is doing. We quote on track, Toronto (bags included): Manitoba patents, $4.20; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.95; Ontario patents, $3.30 to $3.60; straight roller, $3.20.

BREAKFAST FOODS—The demand is light, but prices are steady. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal, $3.70 in bags, and $3.80 in bbls.; rolled oats, $3.60 in bags, and $3.70 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.25 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.75; split peas, $4; pot barley, $4.

MARKET NOTES.

Eggs and cheese are ½c. lower.

Red bananas were sold on this market at from $1.50 to $4 per bunch this week.

Lemons are $1 higher, and are likely to advance at least 50c. more if the weather continues hot.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 4, 1901.

GROCERIES.

A GAIN we have to report a fairly good trade, although it has been much disturbed by the excessive heat of the past 10 days. Sugar shows a decided improvement in demand, and the trade anticipate the usual advances made at this season of the year. Molasses remains firm at the Barbadoes, and the mails this week have confirmed the report we gave in our last issue to the effect that the Barbadoes market was virtually closed. We understand now that it is difficult to find any remaining goods. Prices remain firm. In canned goods, the situation remains unchanged. Corn is firmer, in sympathy with unfavorable reports of the growing crop. The agencies of some salmon packing concerns have taken all the orders for new goods that they have been allowed, and have now withdrawn from making offers. Currants are firm and raisins are weak. The tea market is unchanged.

SUGARS.

The changes made by the refineries last week in the price of sugar leaves granulated at $5.60 per 100 lb. and yellows at $3.85 to $4.50, according to quality, which means that whites are the same as two weeks ago and yellows 10c. higher per 100 lb. At the present moment the sugar market is strong and the trade look for further rises. The demand of the past few days has been extraordinarily heavy in consequence of the commencement of the preserving season. The raw sugar markets are stronger and more active, and we may safely adjudge the period of weakness to be passed.

SYRUPS.

As usual at this season of the year, business in syrups is slow. There has been practically no call for any variety during the past week. Cane syrup is quoted nominally at 1½ to 2c. per lb. and corn syrup 3 to 3¼c., according to package.

MOLASSES.

Mail advices to hand this week from the Barbadoes confirm our report of last week to the effect that stocks at the Island are sold up. It is now said that small parcels of goods can be secured only with the greatest difficulty. The price is held firmly. On the local market business is rather quiet, although some jobbing transactions have been entered into on a basis of 27½c. To the retail trade 29c. is the prevailing price.

CANNED GOODS.

Jobbers have placed their orders for canned strawberries and are now contracting for their raspberries and pineapples. Some already have their quotations on these latter goods in travellers' hands, as we mentioned last week, and are reported to be taking encouraging orders. Strawberries in syrup are worth $1.50 and preserved $1.65. Raspberries are generally quoted at $1.40 for syrup and $1.55 for preserved. Pineapples are selling at $2.30, and grated at $2.55 to $2.60. Vegetables do not show any change. There is a fair country demand and corn is firmer on account of continued discouraging reports about the new crop. Tomatoes are worth 80 to 85c.; corn, 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1, and beans, 70c. Salmon is selling well and some brands are withdrawn from the market. Jobbers' prices for new pack salmon are $5 for Fraser River red sockeye, $4.50 for northern fish, and $3.90 for pink.

SPICES.

A good inquiry is reported for spices this week. We quote: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per

RICE.

The demand is only fair and prices are steady. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in half bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3.00 in bags, $3.05 in half bags, $3.10 in ¼ bags and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¼c. per lb.

TEAS.

The Japan tea market continues to show only firmness. Early Japan teas are fully 2c. per lb. higher than last year. But in spite of the firm tendency of this year's market, common and low-grade teas fail to hold their values of last fall and jobbers confess that they would have difficulty in clearing out last year's goods in large lots without losing money. There is a fair country demand for Japan tea, ranging in price from 17 to 20c., while a few small lots of early tea of this year's crop have been sold. Otherwise the trade is quiet.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—The market is still firm and stocks are light. Some sales have been made this week at 10½ to 11½c.

RAISINS—Raisins are entirely without life, and few goods are moving. There was one lot of 2,000 boxes of rather poor fruit offered this week, and it is said 50c. a box would likely have bought them. Valencias, fine off-stalk, are worth 5c., selected, 5½c. and layers 6c.

PRUNES — A moderated demand is reported at unchanged prices. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5½c. for 90's to 100's; 6½ to 7½c. for 60's to 70's and 7½ to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS — Evaporated apples are firmer again, and the quotation this week is 6½c. per lb. Apricots, peaches and pears are unchanged.

GREEN FRUITS.

Trade has been very active during the past week. The rush on strawberries is pretty well over, and prices are on the upward trend. Californian fruit is selling readily at somewhat higher prices. We quote: Messina oranges, 200's, $2.75 to $3 per box and $1.50 to $2 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $2.25 to $3.25; 360's, $2 to $2.75 per box; bananas, $1.75 to $2.25; Californian apples, $2.25 per box; pineapples, 20 to 25c.; Tennessee tomatoes, $1 to $1.25 per crate; radishes, 15c. per doz.; new Bermuda potatoes, $3.75 per bbl.; new Bermuda onions, $3 per crate; Canadian asparagus, $1.50 per basket; strawberries, 5 to 6c. per box; cabbage, in crates, $1.75; cucumbers, in baskets, $2.50; Californian cherries, $2.50 per box of about 10 lb.; Californian plums, $1 to $1.75 per box; Californian peaches, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; Californian apricots, $1.25 to $1.40 per box; Egyptian onions, 2¼c. per lb.; limes, $1.50 per box.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS — There has been no material change since our last report and prices remain about the same. Sales have been made at 11 to 11½c. for No. 1, and at 9 to 9½c. for No. 2.

HONEY—Quiet. We quote: White clover honey in comb, 12½ to 13½c.; white extracted, 8½ to 10c.; buckwheat, in comb, 9 to 10c., and extracted, 7 to 8c.

POTATOES—Potatoes are very firm in this market, sales of carlots having been made at 50c. per bag.

ASHES — The market is steady. We quote: Firsts, $4.30 to $4.35; seconds, $3.90 to $4, and pearls, $5.85 per 100 lb.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—The market has ruled fairly active during the past week for local account, several good sized lots having been placed. We quote: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $4 to $4.20; winter wheat patents, $3.45 to $3.70; straight roller, $3.20 to $3.40; in bags, $1.55 to $1.65 and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.75 to $4.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 73c. afloat July; peas, 77 to 77½c.; rye, 58 to 59c.; No. 2 barley, 52 to 53c.; oats, 35 to 35¾c.; buckwheat, 60 to 61c.; corn, 54 to 55c.

OATMEAL—The market is steady, but prices are irregular. Quotations are from $3.60 to $3.80 in wood and $1.75 to $1.85 in bags.

FEED—Trade is fairly brisk on American

BALED HAY—The supply this year will be heavy; full as heavy, indeed, as the demand. We quote: No. 1, $10.75 to $11; No. 2, $9.50 to $10, and clover, $9 to $9.50 per ton in carlots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE—English buyers have refused to allow the recent advance, and trading at the country boards has been decidedly less active than a week ago; in fact, prices have declined about 1c. per lb. Goods have sold on the wharf at 8½ to 8¾c.

BUTTER—Butter is not quotably changed, but there is a decidedly weak tone to the market, due to the fear of a coming break. Still fancy creamery brings 20½ to 21c.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

St. John, N.B. July 4, 1901.

THE holiday broke into the business of the week. Sales at best at this season are not active. Retail dealers, particularly the smaller ones, complain because so many householders are out of the city. There is also a complaint, particularly from the retail grocers, because of the very general half-holiday on Saturday this summer. It is far more general than ever before. They say very many are led to go out of the city and the Saturday-evening trade, which has always been quite a factor, is hurt. We have yet to hear of any complaint from those who have the holiday. The interest of the week has been in canned goods. Some very low prices are quoted. Cream of tartar is quite firm. Ginger is rather firmer. Pepper is at least no higher. Hops have been somewhat shaded.

OIL—In burning oil, business is quiet. There is no change in price, and but little interest is manifested. Paint oils hold their price, and there is a fair sale. In lubricating oils, prices continue low. There is a good general demand. Cod oil is quite scarce. Local supplies are not yet coming to hand. Some will likely be brought in from Newfoundland. In wax there is a steady but light sale.

SALT—Liverpool coarse is the line of chief interest here. The quantity imported and going into local consumption is large. There was quite a quantity to hand the past week, and it was very largely sold to arrive. In Liverpool fine, there is quite a range in the quality imported. Some brands are being much preferred. Canadian salt is in good general demand. We quote: Liverpool coarse, 50 to 55c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20 lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10 lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; car-tsns, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb.

CANNED GOODS—There has been considerable interest during the week. Some old goods, particularly corn and tomatoes, were offered very low. We cannot find that there have been large sales. No doubt the present week will bring some more definite knowledge. At present the business seems satisfactory. There is some interest in salmon. While some are quoting cohoes, operating is not general. These are now chiefly sold here, and have given good satisfaction. In sockeye fish the demand is for the cheaper brands. In fruit, there is but a fair demand. Oysters are rather higher. Canned meats show no change. There is good general business. New canned haddies are being received.

GREEN FRUITS—The first full car of Californian small fruit was received this week. There is a fair active demand. Peaches selling best. In prunes and apricots, as well as peaches, prices are low. Some apples were received, but these are not good sellers. Bananas are rather higher west. Local market being rather overstocked, shows no change. In oranges, while prices are higher, the market has not ruled as high as last season. Lemons keep quite low the demand west not being such as to cause advanced figures. Tomatoes are still high. In pines, there is a fair sale at even figures. In berries, there is a wide range in price. The last Canadian and American received were sold very low, causing quite a loss. The New Brunswick berry is preferred.

DRIED FRUITS—This is still a quiet line. Some orders for new Valencias at open prices have been given. These are likely to be bought in light quantities this season. There is an increased interest each year in Californians. In spot stock, both loose muscatels and seeded are rather lower. Currants are rather higher, but there is only a fair sale. Prunes are dull, even at the Halifax, N.S.

Dear Sirs,—I beg to advise receipt of the car Molasses, which came to hand in good order and condition, and, as a proof I am satisfied with the quality, now offer same figures for two cars same grade.

This is an extract from a letter received a few days ago referring to a carload of Barbadoes shipped to one of the largest cities in the Province of Quebec.

We have some more of this grade to offer, and the price is low.

low figures. The season for evaporated apricots and peaches is over. Evaporated apples are higher, but stock here is light. Dates are quiet and offered low. Package goods continue to have inquiry. Figs are dull. In Egyptian onions there is still some movement. Importations are over. Prices are low. In peanuts, the low prices still rule, but there is a good steady sale.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Eggs are easy. There are but light arrivals and the sale is limited. Butter is dull, and offered low. Stocks are quite large and quality must be good to move at market prices. In cheese, our local market is rather lower than the west, and prices are expected to show some advance. For local consumption small cheese is wanted. There is a demand.

SUGAR—Prices in both yellows and granulated have been slightly advanced, and the market is firm. There is a large sale. Some Trinidad sugar has been on the market. The sale is light, and chiefly to outside points.

MOLASSES—The sale has been good. There is a tendency to buy while the new goods are landing. On an even or advancing market, the stock can be bought to advantage, and it seems the season of sale. There is no change in prices, though the outside market is firm. The demand is for Porto Rico. In Barbadoes, much received has gone West.

FISH—Fresh salmon is the matter of interest. This is just the season. The catch is fair but not large. There is a good sale, so that prices are held. Some nice smoked salmon are offered. In halibut, some are still received. Some shad are also still seen. Mackerel is scarce. The catch of these fish is always very uneven. In dry cod the lower prices rule. New fish continue to arrive. Pollock keeps scarce but has little sale, and the price is unchanged. New pickled herring sell at rather lower prices. The early fish is not of as good quality as those caught later. Smoked herring is unchanged. We quote: Large and medium dry cod, $3.25 to $3.35; small, $2.15 to $2.30; haddies, 5 to 6c.; smoked herring, 11 to 12c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2½c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.50 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $1.80 to $2.15 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl.; $2.75 per half bbl.; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl.; $2.25 per half bbl.; shad, 12 to 15c.; salmon, 12 to 14c.; halibut, 7 to 8c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—There is no change in flour. Local feeling favors rather easier prices. There is a good inquiry. In oats, business is light. Oatmeal holds high; there is but light sale. Cornmeal is not so freely sold. Prices are low. Local ground meal supplies the market. In beans the market is rather higher. Local stock is not large, but the sale is light. Barley is quiet and inclined to be shaded. Split peas are high. Blue peas are scarce and full prices are asked. Feed is in light demand. Hay, while there is a little local sale, is quite high. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.70 to $4.75; best Ontario, $3.80 to $3.90; medium, $3.65 to $3.80; oatmeal, $3.85 to $4; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; middlings, $2.20 to $2.3; oats, 40 to 42c.; hand-picked beans, $1.65 to $1.75; prime, $1.55 to $1.60; yellow eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; blue peas, $1.25 to $1.40; pot barley, $3.85 to $4; hay, $12 to $13.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

A. L. Goodwin this week received the first car for this season of Californian fruits.

C. & E. Macmichael have a shipment of Machonochie & White's pickles just received.

Theo. H. Estabrooks, packer of "Red Rose" blend tea, is just home from a successful and pleasant trip to Newfoundland.

Mr. John Campbell, of St. Thomas, Ont., the well-known miller, called on THE GROCER this week. "Sunbeam" is a well-known flour here.

Mr. C. K. Fletcher, representing the J. K. Armsby Co., large shippers to this market of Californian dried fruits, in company with the local representative, J. Hunter White, called on the trade this week.

DON'T CUT.

Some business men fall into the error of making high prices on their goods, so that there may be plenty of reduction when it is asked, says The Storekeeper. When a merchant becomes known as a "cutter" the customers who are aware of his propensities in price-making will invariably ask for a lower figure because they know they will obtain it. The old method of barter, where every sale was preceded by long negotiations concerning the price, is still used among semi-civilized countries, but is sadly out of place in modern America, where the quick despatch of all business has become proverbial. A fixed price that allows for a working profit is a much better rule in all cases than is a sliding scale of values. The customer will not allow the merchant to cheapen his dollar, nor should the merchant allow the customer to cheapen his goods, it being a poor rule that doesn't work both ways. As for the merchant who permits himself to be advertised as one who will take less for his goods than the price at which they are first offered, it may not be out of place to remark that he mainly succeeds in cheapening himself.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN OSHAWA.

MR. S. TORRENS, who carries on a general business at Oshawa, was in Toronto on Wednesday. He reports business fairly good. The grocery trade was, he declared, unaffected by the Toronto departmental stores, but they undoubtedly did injure the dry goods trade.

"Can they buy dry goods, as a rule, cheaper in the departmental stores?"

"No, they cannot, but the trouble is that one woman does not want to wear what another does in the way of dress goods, and, by coming to Toronto, she thinks she can better avoid doing so."

Mr. Torrens said that the canning factory at Oshawa is planning to put up a much larger quantity of goods this season than last season.

"Do you do much advertising?"

"Not in the local papers. I have found that the best way to reach the residents of the town is to issue dodgers, for there are certain classes that do not read the papers."

EARLY-CLOSING ITEMS.

There is a disposition to extend early closing in Sydney, N.S. At present the stores close at 6 p.m. only on Wednesday evening, but, according to a score of interviews published last week by the Sydney Post, it is clear that the general desire is to close at that hour at least two or three evenings a week.

A number of the leading city grocers would like to close their stores at 7 o'clock in the evening, but find some difficulty in getting all to agree. In fact, one or two positively decline.

In favor of the early closing it is pointed out that the grocery clerks work from 7 a.m. till 10 p.m., and on Saturday evenings till midnight. On other than Saturday evenings there is very little business done after 7 o'clock, and that little could be just as well done earlier without crowding the clerks, if it were understood that the stores would close at 7. The tendency has steadily been toward less and less buying in the evening, and it is held that there would be no loss of trade, no inconvenience to anyone, and a great boon conferred on those who work such long hours in the shops if early closing were made general—especially in summer.—St. John Sun, June 25.

The premises occupied for so many years by R. H. Ramsay & Son, wholesale produce dealers, 72 Front street east, Toronto, who have retired from business, are offered for rental by D. Gunn, Bros. & Co., 74 Front street east. These premises are well situated and suitably adapted to the needs of a wholesale fruit or produce business.

CURRENT MARKET QUOTATIONS

July 4, 1901.

This list is corrected every Thursday, and the quotations herein given are for the cities of Montreal, Toronto, St. John, N. B., and Halifax. The prices are solicited for publication, and are of such quantities and qualities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit. For Winnipeg market report and prices, see page 42.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices. All quotations for staple products are under the direct control of the Editors, who call daily upon all the leading houses in the principal centres.

AMONG TORONTO RETAILERS.

THE FRUIT TRADE OF TORONTO.

I wonder how many grocers realize the magnitude of the fruit trade of Toronto, especially on a record day like Tuesday of this week. A couple of commission fruit dealers figured out on Tuesday night the extent of the trade in strawberries that had been done in the Scott street market during the day. Their estimate was 350,000 quart baskets, which, at an average of 5c., would mean $17,500. This was in strawberries alone, though, of course, this was the great bulk of the trade done during the day. The other lines would, however, easily increase the total fruit trade of the day to $20,000, or possibly to $25,000, which is quite a respectable sum for one day's fruit trade.

CLOSING MATTERS.

Though from the lack of legal action or public agitation the opinion might readily be formed that early closing is a dead issue in Toronto, this is far from being the case. The decision of Judge Macdougall in quashing the convictions of Messrs. Reddock and Henry, made it impossible to proceed further with the by-law as it stands to-day. The committee of the Retail Grocers' Association, which represents the body favorable to the by-law, has decided to press for such amendments to the by-law as are necessary to make it enforceable. When the essential amendments have been secured, test cases will be made. In fact, the intention of the Retail Grocers' Association, which represents in this matter fully three-quarters of the grocers of the city, is to continue their efforts to secure a sound, workable by-law. Once it is secured, it will in all probability be permanent. Success in Toronto would likely lead to attempts to secure similar by-laws in other centres, such as Hamilton, where action has been deferred because of the decision of Judge Macdougall.

OSHAWA.

The arrangements for the 12th annual picnic of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association at Prospect Park, Oshawa, on July 24 are progressing favorably. The donations of prizes from manufacturers and jobbers have been fully up to the usual standard both in number and value, so the list of sporting events will be as large and varied as usual. The event of the day will be the baseball match between the grocers of the east and west ends of Toronto. Both teams include several players of established reputation, and as the contest approaches interest is increasing. Another event which is exciting much enthusiasm is the quoit tournament, which will be open to members of the grocers' and city travellers' associations. Of the racing events the most interesting will probably be the relay race, each team competing to have ten runners. This is always an exciting race, but is especially so when some of the runners are "unknown quantities" in the sporting line.

A NOTABLE WINDOW.

A half inch filling of fine white salt between the front glass and boards 15 in. high, and a thin coating on an elevated platform with half a dozen lumps of rock salt in the centre; bottled pickles arranged on lumps of salt, and over the rock salt hangs a flowerpot of drooping vine, fancy groceries decorating the apparent "salt bank"; pyramids of canned goods and white butter cloth background—attracted attention in the Hartney store of The A. E. Hill Co., Limited.

DID YOU SAY?

Well, we didn't say, but we know every butcher would be better off if he would quit guessing at weights. He may think his long experience in weighing meats has made him infallible, but the end of the year will tell him better than we can that every penny must be taken care of. ## THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Horse Pickling in Oregon—Miscellaneous Notes.

HORSE PICKLING IN OREGON.

AN Oregonian writes to The Breeders' Gazette in relation to Oregon horses, in this characteristic style :

"We have a horse-pickling plant in Linnton, Ore. They are killing a large lot of horses. The meat goes to the Old Country. The demand is growing every year. It takes about six horses to fill a barrel. Everything is used for something. Fertilizer is made out of the blood. Every horse has to pass inspection; every piece has a tag on it as to health. All horses that become unfit for service go to the pickle if healthy, otherwise into the fertilizer tanks.

"One never sees the Oregonian look at a horse's eyes nor inquire as to heaves; these diseases are not here nor were they ever here. I doubt very much if there is any glanders in our Northwest country. Some great stuff has been raised on the range. There ought to be. Some of the best blood in America is on the range."

We might slip in the remark right here that we hope Chicago and further east are not considered a part of the territorial expression, "The Old Country." Just now our stomach has the anti horse meat feeling. We prefer the old style of still riding the horse and not the new one of eating the animal and being afterwards ridden by a night mare conjured upon our brain by some pickled horse steak, while the automobile shies past on its tearing rubber legs.—National Provisioner.

PRODUCE IMPORTS INTO LIVERPOOL.

According to the weekly circular of the Anglo-Canadian Produce Co., Limited, the imports of dairy produce and provisions into Liverpool this year up to June 13 and for the corresponding period last year were as follows :

PRESERVATION OF EGGS IN GERMANY.

Consul General Guenther, of Frankfort, June 4, 1901, sends the following extracts from an article on the results of experiments in preserving eggs, which appeared in a recent issue of a technical journal :

Four hundred fresh hen eggs were subjected to the action of different substances for a period of eight months. At the expiration of that time it was found that the eggs which had been put into salt brine were all spoiled; that those which had been wrapped in paper were 80 per cent. bad, and that a like percentage of those which had been immersed in a mixture of glycerine and salicylic acid were unfit for use. Of the eggs which had been rubbed with salt, or embedded in bran, or coated with paraffin, 70 per cent. were spoiled; of those subjected to a coat of liquid glass, collodion, or varnish, 40 per cent.; and of those which had been placed in wood ashes or had been painted with a mixture of liquid glass and boracic acid, or a solution of permanganate of potash, only 20 per cent. were bad. Almost all the eggs that had been coated with vaseline, or had been placed in lime-water or in a solution of liquid glass were in good condition.

CANADIAN PROVISIONS IN ENGLAND.

A cable from London, Eng., says : "American provision importers in London view with dismay the Canadian project to build fast steamers to transport dairy and other perishable produce to British markets. They are strongly of the opinion that unless the United States Department of Agriculture speedily awakes to the seriousness of the situation Americans will be excluded from the British provision trade. Canadian bacon has already practically superseded the American product. This is shown by the statistics of imports. In 1889 Canada sent to England 4,000,000 lb. of bacon, valued at $384,000. The importation was increased last year to 135,000,000 lb., valued at $12,750,000."

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The abundance of fresh fruits and the extreme heat have combined to limit the sales of all dressed meats to very small compass. This week is, in fact, the dullest of the season in fresh-dressed meats, especially pork. Spring lambs are in fair request. Prices are unchanged throughout, except for dressed hogs, which are 50c. lower. We now quote as follows : Dressed hogs, $8.50 to $9.00 per cwt.; sheep, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $6 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, 12 to 13c. per lb.; beef carcasses $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8 to 9c. for best; fore quarters, $6 for best; calves, $8 to $8.50 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

Both the domestic and the export demands for smoked and salted meats continue steady, and as stocks are moderate prices are firm. We quote : Long clear bacon, 11c. Smoked meats — Breakfast bacon, 14½ to 15c.; rolls, 11½ to 12c.; small hams, 13½c.; medium hams, 13c.; large hams, 12 to 12½c.; shoulder hams, 11c.; backs, 14c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $19.50 to $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10¾c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11¼c. The good demand and firm price of provisions keeps the live hog market firm at $7 to $7.25. Deliveries are fairly good.

MONTREAL.

The market for both pork and lard remains firm, and shows no weakening tendency. Some houses have again advanced their price of pure lard to $2.30 per pail, while others are still quoting $2.25. We now quote : Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.88 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.86 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.82 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; Cottolene, 9¼c. per lb. in tierces, and 10¼c. in 20 lb. pails and 10c. in 50 lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Barrelled goods are quiet. Prices are firm, particularly in pork. In smoked meats prices are high. Hams have a fair sale. Lard is still high. The local market is well supplied.

NEW YORK

In New York, the exporters are buying mess pork moderately at firm prices. A quiet market prevails here for Western lard. The city lard is bought up close to offerings by shippers or refiners. The continent business in refined lard is of a conservative order. The city cutters are getting ¼ to ½c. more money for bellies, with 12 lb. loose pickled now selling at 10c.; the accumulations are moderate after very good demands from the mining regions. There are freer sales of pickled shoulders and hams, with no trouble found in sustaining strong prices.—National Provisioner.

CRANSTON'S DUE BILLS.

For village, town and city merchants no invention of modern trade requisites is more useful than Cranston's trade due bills, manufactured by J. K. Cranston, Galt, Ont. These trade due bills are designed to lessen labor and correct the evils of the produce and credit business. They are made of fine, durable, colored cardboard in 1, 5, 10, 25, 50c. and $1 styles, or currency denominations. In exchanging produce they are extremely useful. Also the merchant who has customers to whom he has been granting credit, charging up each item, whether the amount be 1c. or 50c., making out statements and arranging settlements, and having the annoyance of disputed accounts and losses caused by forgetting to make charges when extremely busy, etc., simply issues to his customers due bills covering the amount such customer will probably want credit for, and charges this amount in one single item, and when settlement is made, by giving an attractive discount, you get cash in advance, and thus both are benefited. In the meantime, the due bills are used by the customers in buying supplies, paying for purchases same as paying cash. Merchants who have used these due bills say that they find them economical, useful and convenient, and also that customers like them, and trade increases by their use.

WALLACEBURG BEET SUGAR CO.

The organization of the Wallaceburg, Ont., Beet Sugar Co. has been completed. On Wednesday last week the organization meeting was held in J. S. Fraser's office and within half an hour the entire amount of stock, $300,000, was subscribed. The factory is to cost $600,000, and will be bonded for balance of amount required. Among those present at the meeting and who are all heavy stockholders, were: B. Boutell, H. Gillett, Dr. John McLurg, Selwyn Eddy, H. B. Smith, Charles Moore, David LeFavour, W. Starkley and G. W. McCormick, of Bay City; Capt. Forbes, of Port Huron; Capt. J. W. Steinhoff, D. A. Gordon and J. S. Fraser, of Wallaceburg.

D. A. Gordon was elected president, B. Boutell, vice-president, and H. B. Smith, treasurer. Ten directors constitute the Board, four of whom, Messrs. Steinhoff, Gordon and Fraser, with one to be chosen, are from Wallaceburg.

It is intended to have the building erected before winter begins.

A CHANGE IN PURE GOLD.

Thos. B. Greening & Co., Hamilton, have sold out their business to Balfour, Stewart & McLaren, of the same city. Mr. Greening has bought out the interests of the late Mr. Jardine in The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Limited, Toronto, and at the beginning of next year will be actively identified with that company as its president. Mr. R. A. Donald will continue as partner and general-manager, and, in other respects, the business of the company will be conducted as formerly.

A site has been bought on Wellington place, Toronto, whereon a larger factory than their present one will be erected, and the business will be generally extended. The union of Mr. Greening's interests and that of The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Limited, is considered as likely to be one of much power and influence.

The firm which succeed Thos. B. Greening & Co. in Hamilton is composed of Walter Balfour and Robert Stewart, who have had many years' experience in the tea and coffee business, and are well known to the trade, and Henry E. McLaren, who will attend to the firm's finances.

THE CAPSTAN CO'S NEW QUARTERS.

The Capstan Manufacturing Co., formerly of Collingwood, has removed their business and manufacturing plant to Toronto, and are now installed in their new premises at 50 Jarvis street. Japan Tea is the highest priced tea on the Canadian or American markets to-day, and this after years of acquaintance on the part of the public. What then must we deduce from this—Japan Tea has proven itself to be the best tea obtainable. If people are willing to show a preference for it in this way, it is not likely to be displaced very easily.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 3, 1901.

THE week has been fine with the exception of a very heavy rainstorm Tuesday evening. The storm broke about 8 p.m. and lasted until 3 a.m. Wednesday, and during that time more rain fell than even the "oldest inhabitant" remembers falling in a like period of time; in fact, for a time it was such a deluge that the city sewers could not carry it away, and it was backed up on some of the basements to a depth of two feet and on the streets to a depth of several inches. Although the storm covered a large section of the Province and was accompanied by severe thunder and lightning, with slight downfall of hail in some parts, no reports of serious damage have come to hand, and the crop prospects still continue all that could be desired.

Trade has been excellent all the week, and more than one wholesale house is expressing surprise at the amount of money coming in, and state that paper is being well met at the banks. This increase in the circulation of money is due to the good price realized by farmers for their stockers, the cash being paid by creameries to the farmers, and the general activity in all lines of farm produce.

FLOUR—This market is fairly active, but shows a drop of 5c. per sack on almost all grades, owing, no doubt, to the weakness of wheat prices. Lake of the Woods Milling Co., Five Roses, $2; Red Patent, $1.85; Medora, $1.40; XXXX, $1.10 per 98 lb. sack. Ogilvie Milling Co., Hungarian Patent, $2; Glenora, $1.85; Alberta, $1.65; Manitoba, $1.50; Imperial XXXX, $1.10.

CEREALS—The demand in this market is normal and without change of price. Rolled oats, which is the line showing heaviest sales, are firm at $2.05.

EVAPORATED AND DRIED FRUITS—Evaporated apples are scarce and firm in price. Several sales were made this week at 8c. Dried are also firm, but the demand is slight. Quotations are 6 to 6½c. All reports go to show that the apricot crop is short, and prices will be high. The opening price here will be 14c. this year, as against 9½c. a year ago. Peaches are not yet quoted up, but the crop is reported to be abundant. Prunes also will be cheap. A large quantity of last year's crop is still in the dealers' hands, and this season's crop is very abundant.

CANNED GOODS.—The new pack of strawberries is expected on this market in a few days. The reports from Ontario indicate a liberal crop, and the opening price will be $3.25. Raspberries will probably open about $3.15. Vegetables are not yet quoted, but, no doubt, peas will be quoted in a few days. Last season's goods are selling well and old stocks will be pretty well cleaned up by the arrival of new goods. Standard packs are maintaining prices well, but there is a great variety of quotations for other packs.

GREEN FRUITS—This market is active in all lines. We quote: Peaches, $2.00; plums, $2.25; apricots, $2; cherries, $2; Ontario strawberries, $3.50 per crate; pines, $2.50 and $2.75 per doz.; fancy bananas, $2.75 to $3.25 per bunch; lemons, $5.50; oranges, $3.50 to $4.75.

VEGETABLES—The first new potatoes are in, and quoted at 4c. per lb.; new beets and carrots, 75c. per doz. bunches; cauliflower, 85c. per doz.; cabbage, 4c. per lb.; asparagus, 60c.; cucumbers, $1 per doz.

CURED MEATS—This market is without change of any kind. Prices are firm and demand fair.

BUTTER—Creamery, 15½ to 16c. Supply is large. Dairy is abundant and prices firm at 10 to 13c., according to grade.

CHEESE—Market is good and prices have ranged from 8 to 8½c. Produce houses are predicting lower prices, but it would seem that prices should remain firm, especially during present scarcity of boxes.

EGGS—Supply is fair, and price 10½c. delivered Winnipeg.

NOTES.

Mr. J. J. Codville, of the firm of Codville, & Co., left this week for his summer home at St. Patrick's, Quebec.

Mr. Kenneth J. Johnston, of Bright & Johnston, wholesale fruiterers, left this week with his wife and family to visit his old home in St. Catharines and the Pan-American Exposition. While in the East he will interview a number of Ontario fruit growers with reference to shipments of Ontario fruit to this market.

Mr. D. M. Hirne, city traveller for Campbell Bros. & Wilson, has left on a long vacation tour, which will embrace a visit to the Glasgow Exposition. Just as his train pulled out a number of his friends who had gathered to wish him bon voyage, handed him a box of choice cigars and a purse containing $50 in gold.

Mr. W. B. Buckley, of the Gatehead Mills, Delph, England, is a visitor in the city this week, returning from a year's trip around the world. Although the mills of Wm. Buckley, sr., are devoted to shawls and woollens, Mr. Buckley has made it his business to inquire into the status of all classes of British manufactures in the colonies. He left Monday for the east and will visit Toronto, Montreal and other points.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

The assets of A. Lamontagne, Confectioner, Quebec, are to be sold on July 10.

The stock of H. A. Bigham, grocer, etc., Culloden, Ont., has been sold at 51c. on the dollar to Wm. Barnard.

A. Cote & Fils, general merchants, St. Fabien, Que., have sold their stock to Bellevance & Frere at 62c. on the dollar.

CHANGES.

Keeler & Constance, general merchants, Mount Sicker, B.C., are out of business.

E. N. Sicotte, fruiterer and confectioner, St. Pierre, Man., has removed to La Rochelle.

J. W. Robinson, general merchant, Ospringle, Ont., has been succeeded by A. J. Currie.

Wm. Laidlaw, general merchant, Durham, Ont., has been succeeded by James Ireland.

Mongeau & Frere, grocers, St. Henri de Montreal, Que., have been succeeded by Juneau & Fessier.

FIRES.

Morrison & McCormack, grocers, etc., Bridgeport, N.S., have been burned out.

LARD

Orders can be filled by any of the leading jobbers in Canada or direct.

No hog lard is as pure and wholesome as Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound. This brand is the oldest on the market, commanding the preference of consumers everywhere.

Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound commands a better price than hog lard at times when hog lard is cheap; at present our "Boar's Head" Brand is sold at 1½c. to 2c. per lb. less than hog lard.

Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound is composed chiefly of vegetable oil, and on account of its purity and wholesome quality is preferred to hog lard by those who have tried it. It will go further in cooking than any hog lard.

Write for quotations on Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound. It will give satisfaction to your trade and increase your profits. We guarantee the quality.

PACKING GOODS FOR FOREIGN MARKETS.

OWING to the distance and the change from land to water haul and back again to land haul, the use of proper packages for goods exported from America to European countries has become of vital importance. The matter has received so much attention of late, on both sides of the Atlantic, that United States Consul Fleming, of Edinburgh, in his annual report to the Department of State, goes into the subject comprehensively. The report, though prepared for United States shippers, is of equal importance to Canadian exporters.

In his introductory remarks Consul Fleming points out that severe criticism is heard regarding the style and quality of cheese boxes used. Hams, tobacco, and several other articles are also sent from this side of the Atlantic in inferior packages.

In the following paragraphs taken from the report, the words following the figure (1) denote the more important forms in which an article is shipped, the most common form being stated first. The matter following the figure (2) describes or indicates the method of packing considered by shippers and importers to be the best, or gives the opinion commonly held here regarding the way packing is now done. Where there is practically only one form of package or only one way in which an article is prepared for shipment, the figures are omitted, and the matter relates to the best method of packing or some feature of it, or comments on present methods. I should add that, although the export case universally recognized as the best for all goods requiring special protection from moisture is a tin-lined or zinc-lined case, where the word case is used in these pages, the ordinary wooden case is meant, unless otherwise stated.

Apples—1. Barrels, cases, bags, baskets. 2. American apples are generally well packed in the ordinary way, the barrels remaining in fair condition as long as any other, but it is said that the fruit keeps in a better state when shipped in barrels ventilated by small diamond-shaped holes cut in four places in the staves. This is a Dutch idea, and the apples from Holland arrive in a more marketable condition, as a rule, than those from any other country, although the quality is, perhaps, inferior.

Brooms—1. Bales, bundles, cases. 2. The importance of stoutly binding bales and bundles must not be overlooked; otherwise, the best handling will not save them from damage.

Butter—1. Boxes, tubs, barrels, cases. 2. Danish butter, the standard article here, is shipped in white-pine cubical boxes, each box containing 56 lb., thin paper separating the butter from the wood.

Cheese—1. Boxes, cases, barrels, tubs. 2. Boxes of good material should be used in the cheese trade, and the lids so well fastened that they will not come off in handling at the wharves. Some Canadian shippers of cheese are more careful in this respect than the American shippers.

Eggs—It is thought that the cases now used in commerce lack strength, and that a little improvement in this respect would bring profitable results to shippers everywhere.

Fish—1. Barrels, bags, bundles, cases, kegs, bales. 2. Nearly all dried fish are properly shipped in bundles made of bagging and mats sewn together. Salted dried fish are best in tin-lined cases. Herrings are generally packed back downward in barrels bound with wood, iron hooped. Fault is found with the fish barrels commonly used here. It is held that they should be bound with iron, not wood.

Flour—1. Sacks, barrels. 2. The jute sack is a much better protection than the cotton, as it is stronger. Only winter wheat flour comes in cotton bags. Bakers on this side prefer to have cotton bags for this class of flour, which always comes in half-sacks. But flour dealers say that the cotton bags do not stand the wear and tear in transit so well as jute. The quality of the cotton, however, has been much improved in the last two or three years, importers insisting on getting heavier and stronger sacks, as, when they burst, the millers have had to pay the loss when the inspectors certified that the texture of the cotton was not sufficiently strong; so that, for their own protection, they are now putting flour into more substantial bags.

Fruit (small)—1. Boxes, cases, bags, baskets, bales, sieves, barrels, crates, chips. 2. The boxes, cases and baskets in which most of the different varieties of fruits are now received here from the continent and America are quite sufficient for their purposes, but it is suggested that raisins should be packed in heavier boxes than at present, as there is much waste through weak boxes.

Hams—1. Barrels, cases, bags. 2. There is more or less complaint that cases of American hams are not substantially bound. They should be rendered secure enough to withstand very careless usage.

Handles—1. Cases, crates, bags, bundles. 2. Handles in any sound case are always secure enough, as are short handles in bags. To put in bundles is poor packing, unless the ends are very firmly bound. Those from America are cased and come in first-rate condition.

Lard—1. Tierces, pails, casks, firkins. 2. The oak tierces in which lard comes from America hold about 336 lb. The lard arrives in good condition if there has been no shifting of cargo from rough weather. Lard comes also in 112-lb. casks. The pails, containing 28 lb., are regarded as very neat packages, and they seldom arrive here in bad condition.

Meat (canned)—American cases are of first-class material, but occasionally show carelessness or haste in the packing house, being insufficiently nailed or bound together.

Pig products (feet and heads)—1. Barrels, tierces, cases. 2. Substantial, iron-bound barrels. These are the kind uniformly used by shippers in Denmark.

Vinegar—1. Barrels, cases. 2. Extra care is suggested as necessary in heading up barrels for vinegar. Not a few barrels are defective in the heads, and the loss from leakage at this port is considerable.

Among the exports to the United States last week were 15,260 lb. of "Salada" Ceylon tea.

John McLaughlin, general merchant, Church Point, N.S., is erecting a larger store, as his present premises are too small.

Inspector W. Wilson, of Victoria, condemned as unfit for use 150 cases of imported fruits, principally peaches. They were seized and sent back to the shippers.

The Capstan Manufacturing Co., late of Collingwood, Ont., have removed their offices and plant to Toronto, having secured premises at 50 Jarvis street.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information, no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

Lime Juice

It Holds Trade.

Quality, not quantity, wins trade and holds it—a new article sold on the basis of “more for your money” may catch the temporary customer, but do you want a man or a woman to buy once and then stop?

Stower's Concentrated Lime Juice is the pure Juice of West Indian Limes that are cultivated especially for “Stower.” It is all Lime Juice down to the last drop in the bottle. Years and years ago it was distinguished from all other Lime Juice because—no musty flavor—no free acid taste—its perfect keeping qualities after the cork is drawn—its great strength, because concentrated. “It holds trade”—it maintains its reputation of the past steadfastly.

WE HAVE TALKED

Most frequently and enthusiastically of the richness, strength and purity of

and they deserve every word of it. There is something indefinable which characterizes and distinguishes these extracts from those of other makes. It would not be practicable for us to point out one particular feature and say that it makes them superior to other brands. There are many reasons why they are the most desirable. Jonas' Flavoring Extracts are rich, strong, pure—they have been the favorites for over thirty-one years. They will never spoil a woman's baking—a very little of them yields a rich, natural, delicate flavor that is true to the fruit, flower or spice it represents. Certain, we have talked most enthusiastically in favor of our flavoring extracts—it is because of our confidence in their quality, and we intend to keep on talking about them.

FOOD FADS

The claims that these preparations are "the most natural food for mankind"—"the great nerve and muscle builder," are exaggerations, but we are so used to over-statements of facts in advertisements that probably no one is deceived by them.

This food claims to be "composed entirely of pure gluten, and is one of the healthiest foods known." This claim is false and should be criminal.

The above extracts are from a recent bulletin of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, of investigation of some of the food fads now on the market.

About Molina Rolled Wheat, we make a plain, simple statement. It is made from Wheat which has been thoroughly cleaned and scoured—it is dried by intense heat and makes a wholesome breakfast dish. Its reputation doesn't rest upon false claims. It is sold in barrels of 100 lbs. and in kegs of 50 lbs. It's a good thing for the grocer and still better for his customer.

THE FOREIGN WALNUT MARKET.

Report by United States Consul Skinner at Marseilles.

THE export of walnuts from Marseilles to the United States is confined almost exclusively to nuts grown in the interior of the country, which seek this port because of its advantages as a shipping centre. This trade is entirely in the hands of commission houses, and I ascertain that during recent years their business has been seriously injured by the increasing practice of American importers to deal directly with the grower in the interior, and to assume all the risks of unsatisfactory deliveries. Considerable quantities of shelled levantine nuts, most of which grow in Turkey, are imported into France, and are shipped to the centre of the walnut-growing country, where they are consumed by the oil-crushing trade. In certain portions of the interior of France, walnut oil is preferred for table use, in the first place because it is cheap, and in the second place because the consuming public demands it. Many small growers have oil pressers and produce a sufficient quantity for their own use, but, as with everything else, the present disposition of those engaged in the trade is to concentrate the manufacture of oil in certain industrial centres, notably, Grenoble, where the business is conducted on a large scale; and as the French walnuts command higher prices than the levantine, it has naturally come about that quantities of Turkish nuts are imported into the departments where walnuts are grown most largely, for the purpose above described.

The walnuts grown in the vicinity of Marseilles are small in size and inferior in quality. No effort is made to export them.

The value of exportations of nuts from Marseilles to the United States during a series of years is shown below :

| 1895..... | $137,093 | $ 3,949  | $124,992                             | $ 576      |
| 1896..... | 148,104   | 3,153     | 142,273                               | 2,124       |
| 1897..... | 105,118   | 2,121     | 155,428                               | .....       |
| 1898..... | 242,704   | 12,398    | 115,618                               | 2,020       |
| 1899..... | 183,103   | 20,731    | 119,815                               | 578         |
| 1900..... | 238,174   | 28,730    | 139,750                               | 3 126       |

It is impossible at this time to forecast the probable crop of walnuts in France. The trees are now in flower. It may be said that, up to the present time, no injury by frosts, drought, excessive rains or otherwise has been noted, and the conditions are favorable to an average yield. It is expected that a price for the new crop will be established in August, and that shipments will begin in September.

The best walnuts sold here are shipped from the department of Isere, and are generally known as Grenoble walnuts. Marseilles also receives walnuts known as "Marbots," "Cahors," and "Cornes"; these being the three varieties most appreciated. They are generally shipped via Bordeaux.

Grenoble walnuts are not prepared for the market by the sulphur process, because they are fair enough in their natural state. All dealers recognize that the sulphur process affects the quality of the walnut, and it is applied only to the Marbot, Cahors, and Cornes walnuts, which are of relatively inferior quality.

Walnuts of last year's crop are selling at this moment at 66 francs per 100 kilograms ($13.72 per 220 lb.)

The production of walnuts in California is much discussed here, but my informant says that it has practically not affected the market in this city. The buyers in New York and elsewhere use the threat of large crops in that State as a means of hammering down prices in France. This is not true, however, of almonds. While the princess almond of France is said to be not equaled by the Californian nut, the Californian quality is here acknowledged to be sufficiently excellent to replace the French article, and Marseilles trade has been very much injured in consequence.

The demand for shelled walnuts in the United States is for the confectionery trade, and for this purpose, walnuts of first-class quality are used and whole half-kernels are shipped. The small fragments of kernels resulting from the shelling process are carefully saved in the interior of France and used for the production of oil. Unshelled walnuts are at present selling at 145 francs per 100 kilograms ($27.98 per 220 lb.), best quality, and the small pieces sell for 80 francs per 100 kilograms ($15.44 per 220 lb.).

The levantine walnut trade is considered entirely separate from the French walnut business, the only possible connection being when an unscrupulous dealer selects the fairer portion of the kernels from a levantine shipment and mixes them with Grenoble kernels, thereby securing a better average price. This, of course, is simply a commercial fraud.

CALCULATING MACHINES.

CALCULATING machines have been in use for so long, and are used at the present time by so many people, that it would be natural to suppose that everybody would have some sort of acquaintance with them, and some idea of the principles on which they work, remarks Iron and Coal Trades' Review. Personal experience, however, shows that a calculating machine is nearly always regarded as a novelty, and usually as something exceptionally wonderful.

The first recorded attempt at an arithmetical instrument in Great Britain was made by Napier, the inventor of logarithms, early in the seventeenth century. It consisted simply of a movable multiplication table, somewhat flippantly called "Napier's bones," in spite of the fact that the inventor christened his system rhabdology. There is much that is good about these "bones," but as a calculating instrument it will not compare for a moment with logarithms, for which we are largely indebted to Napier.

The first real calculating machine was invented by the philosopher Pascal, about 1650. He was then a lad of 19, helping his father in work which required much calculation; and he contrived a series of wheels connected with one another, with the ten numbers 9 to 0 engraved on each. Addition and subtraction were performed by turning the appropriate wheels by hand, the carrying over being mechanically provided for.

Whenever calculating machines are mentioned, people invariably think of Charles Babbage, who undoubtedly designed by far the most complete machine that has ever been invented. Babbage's machine was designed to calculate elaborate tables and automatically set them up in type, or else supply a mould in which stereotyped plates of the tables could be cast. After many experiments, he constructed his first "difference engine," as he called it, for the reason that he employed the method of differences as a general principle on which to base the calculations. He said that his machine could go on for years working by the same formula. It could then change, without human intervention, to another formula for a single calculation, and subsequently resume working by the original formula.

Since Babbage's day many small calculating machines of various kinds have been invented, of which the most practical and widely used are two. The first of these is an American invention, called the comptometer. This is actuated by keys like those of a typewriter, and by its means it is simple to add, feasible to subtract, multiply and divide. It has the great merits of simplicity of construction and low price. The second of the calculating machines at present in commercial use is the arithmometer, an English invention.

KLONDYKE TRADING CHANGES.

A Tacoma correspondent of The Financial News, London, Eng., writes: "The outfitting of large numbers of miners for Alaska in the cities of Puget Sound has apparently become a thing of the past. For four seasons following the discovery of the Klondyke outfitting was one of the chief industries of Tacoma and Seattle. The gold-seeker purchased his provisions, clothing, tools, and other supplies, paid freight on them to Skagway or Nome, and was ready for business on his arrival in the gold country. The development of Alaska and the British Yukon has resulted in a great change. The provisions and clothing are shipped northward in quantities cheaper than the prospector can take them. He is also saved the bother of assembling an outfit and seeing that it is kept together until he reaches his destination.

"In a word, Alaska business has settled down into the regular channels. It is now the wholesalers who are paying the greatest attention to Alaska and the Klondyke, so far as the supplies to be used by the miners are concerned. This does not mean that the Sound cities are not benefited by the Alaska trade to fully as great an extent as in past seasons. The gold output has increased so rapidly, and is now spread out over so much of the entire year that the arrival of treasure is almost a daily occurrence. Every steamer brings its quota of successful miners, and their arrival means large expenditures for clothing and the other habiliments of modern civilization. This continuous stream of gold makes retail trade brisk, and compensates in a large measure for the loss of the outfitting trade. What Puget Sound merchants have lost in this respect has been gained by the merchants and trading companies of Skagway, White Horse, Dawson, and Nome.

"The wholesalers of Tacoma and Seattle are supplying the northern merchants to a large extent, though it is undeniably true that a growing quantity of merchandise destined for Alaska and Dawson is being shipped in carload lots from the wholesale centres of the East. Vancouver and the cities of Eastern Canada are making a stronger bid for the trade of the Klondyke than ever before. The United States Government has played into their hands to an almost remarkable degree by the making of Skagway a sub-port of entry. The full meaning of this fact is now better appreciated than ever before. Many carloads of goods which formerly came exclusively from the United States are now being shipped from Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg to Vancouver, and thence reshipped by British steamers to Skagway and through American territory in bond to the upper Yukon towns and Dawson. American goods shipped in the same manner must pay duty when British territory is reached."

BUILD UP YOUR TOWN.

A TOWN is not built up through its natural advantages alone, writes "The Hustler," in Stoves and Hardware Reporter. It may have untold stores of wealth around it, it may be crossed by a dozen railways and have other advantages that need only to be utilized in order to become moneymakers, but the town can't make itself and it must be created as an enterprising, go-ahead place by those who constitute its population. Thrift begets thrift and strength grows upon itself without waste. If the citizens of a town advertise themselves for enterprise and public spirit, it becomes known as a desirable place in which to live and do business. Industries increase in number, the town takes on a new growth, business improves and wealth follows as a matter of course. But when a town is advertised for its deadness, as a good place to die because there is so much time and chance to get ready, the people had better conclude to retire into oblivion—because they have taken themselves off of the map.

I could never understand why people do not take an interest in the affairs of the place where they live. Every item that goes into the improvement of a town helps those who do business there. All citizens are partners in municipal matters. If you and I own a business together and I don't take an active interest in its affairs, you will probably want to have the partnership dissolved, to get rid of me because I don't help you. It should be the same way with indifferent partners in citizenship. You may not be able to get rid of them, since they have equal rights with you "in life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," but you can establish a good example and show by actual experience that it pays to be public-spirited, pays to build up a town, pays to take it away from a dead-and-alive existence, pays to be a citizen like those of Bloomington, pays even to have a sort of moral fire that will burn out the cobwebs and give the chance to the citizen to prove that they are still Americans and not merely refugees from the world of sleep.

INQUIRIES REGARDING CANADIAN TRADE.

Mr. Harrison Watson, curator of the Canadian Section of the Imperial Institute, London, England, is in receipt of the following inquiries:

1. A Johannesburg house asks for names of Canadian producers of evaporated vegetables.
2. A firm of manufacturing chemists asks to be placed in communication with Canadian shippers of talc and mica schist, and also of mica in sheets, not split, as it comes from the mine.
3. A Liverpool house wishes for names of Canadian producers of asbestos.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the High Commissioner's office in London, England:

4. A German firm, having experience of the trade is open to negotiate with Canadian wood pulp manufacturers with a view to representing them on the continent.
5. A correspondent asks for addresses of some large hog-killing firms in Canada.
6. A gentleman recently from Canada, well acquainted with the requirements of the country, would like to recommend a very well-established agent there to handle draperies, etc.
7. Inquiry is made by an agent established at Ghent for names of Canadian firms desiring representation in Belgium.
8. Another inquiry has been received for names of Canadian shippers of boxwood, shipped in the flat, ready to be put together by the purchaser.

[The names of the firms or individuals making the above inquiries will be furnished on application to the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.]

TWO FACTORY ADDITIONS.

The Canadian branch of The N. K. Fairbank Company, Wellington and Ann streets, Montreal, seems to have enjoyed its full share of the general prosperity of the past year. Some months ago, they found it necessary to take in a four storey addition, each flat measuring 60 x 125 ft., and now another building of the same size and dimensions is being annexed and occupied. This means an increase of 60,000 ft. of floor space in one year—not an unimportant tribute to the increasing popularity of Fairbank's goods. Their most important products are "Boar's Head" brand of compound lard, "Gold Dust" washing powder and Cottolene, but in time they expect to manufacture on Canadian soil their "Copco," "Glycerine," "Tar" and "Santa Claus" laundry soaps. The Canadian manager, Mr. H. A. Leak, has been largely instrumental in bringing about these happy results, for his courtesy, as much as his enterprise, has ingratiated him in the hearts of the members of the grocery trade.

A. F. MacLAREN IMPERIAL CHEESE CO., Limited

MY vacation has just ended. I spent two days in Montreal, a week in Boston, and three days in New York. From the standpoint of recreation my holidays were a failure, for if one is wanting a rest, or to recuperate, he must not go to a great city because sightseeing (when one desires to do much in a short time) is the hardest kind of work. Educationally, in a great city, such as New York or Boston, there is the opportunity to learn and see many things in a line of business in which one is interested. Especially was I favored in this respect, as I had many friends engaged in this business in these cities. To call upon them, renew our friendship and see the different conditions of trade in the various localities was to me a great privilege, which was most thoroughly enjoyed.

My trip was by way of Montreal. While there I called and saw the retail stores of Walter Paul and Fraser, Viger & Co. Good stores, well equipped and the stock kept in good order, the clerks attentive and gentlemanly in their handling of customers. I also had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Geo. C. Silcock, of the Geo. Matthews Co.; Mr. Louis A. Lambkin, of the Walter Baker Co., who very courteously gave me an invitation to call and see the company's works in Dorchester, Mass.; also Mr. D. Gilmore, who is well known to the trade of Canada as the representative of Chase & Sanborn, of coffee fame.

WHERE COFFEES ARE PACKED.

I had a look over their complete establishment in Montreal, a miniature of that in Boston, which, on my arrival in that city, I went to see. In company with their genial manager, Mr. George, I first went up to the roof and enjoyed the splendid view of the harbor, the shipping, and Fort Warren in the distance. On descending, I looked over their mammoth building. The 7th floor is used for storing stock. An immense quantity of green coffees are here piled up to the roof and used by this firm in supplying their trade all over the continent. The 6th floor: Here the coffees are most carefully graded and thoroughly cleaned by the most improved machinery, for this firm is first in the use of improved appliances for the preparation of coffees, and a number of special machines can here be seen in operation.

The roasting department with its large revolving coffee roaster, cooling trays, etc., is on the 5th floor. The grinding machines are also on this floor.

On the 4th floor is the packing department. Aside from seeing the large quantity of goods so expeditiously handled, the nailing machine for nailing boxes, driving five nails at a time, and under the most perfect control of the operator, was to me very interesting. The 3rd floor is taken up exclusively for the packing of "Seal" brand coffee. The empty tins come swiftly along on a belt, the proper quantity of coffee is automatically weighed into each tin and then is passed along to be labelled, all so swiftly and accurately—an object lesson of despatch and skill. On the 2nd floor are the counting-room and sample-room for testing coffee. Here I saw the addressograph with 6,000 customers' addresses for mailing purposes. With this machine it is only a matter of a few minutes to address letters to all the firm's customers. The salesroom and general offices are on the 1st floor, and here I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Sanborn, one of the heads of the firm; Mr. Palmer, also a member of the firm and head of the accounting staff; Mr. Moyer, manager of the tea department. A large business is done by this firm in teas.

WHERE COCOAS ARE PUT UP.

When one has been selling a line of goods for years it is interesting to go to the place where the goods are manufactured. Consequently, it was to me a great pleasure to see the wonderful establishment of Walter Baker & Co., of Dorchester, Mass. For over half a mile I was able to detect the odor of cocoa before I reached the factories, as the wind was blowing from that direction towards me. This firm date back to 1780, and the site they now occupy is the home of the chocolate industry of America.

Mr. W. B. Thurber is the manager of the works, and to him I am indebted for the privilege of inspection. Mr. Gallagher, one of the members of the firm, is a Canadian. Mr. Howland is the president of the company. Over 400 hands are employed in four large substantial brick buildings. I enjoyed a walk through, and that which impressed me most was the absolute cleanliness of all the factories. In one part of the building I examined a most beautiful piece of machinery, resembling a large marine engine, manufactured in Dresden, Germany, the only machine of its kind on the continent, and it has much to do with the manufacturing process. I also enjoyed trying a sample of their new vanilla wafer, a preparation of merit.

BOSTON'S RETAIL STORES.

I then went among some of Boston's retail grocery stores, commencing with S. S. Pierce & Co., corner Bacon and Tremont streets, who have one of the best equipped grocery stores I have ever seen, employing 150 clerks, a number of whom are Canadians. I noted MacLaren's and Millar's cheese had a prominent place and, I was glad to hear, sold well. Another thing I noted was a large shallow glass case containing a sample of each kind of biscuit sold by the firm. The clerks have a good toilet room and numbered lockers for each man. They get prices for choice goods there. I saw "Czarine" tea at $5 per lb., cigars at 50c. each. Customers who want fine goods can buy them there. They give their clerks two weeks' holidays and drivers ten days.

Cobb, Bates & Yerxa employ 60 men in their store. I noticed they had a coffee counter for serving coffee by the cup, and the clerks are supplied with coffee checks, which they present to customers. The clerks' hours are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Holidays seven days and two days extra for overtime. When working overtime the clerks get supper money given to them. They also have a good toilet room.

Rhodes Bros. have a fine store on Massachusetts avenue, exceedingly bright and clean. The clerks wear long, white coats, with a round nickle disc with a number on each man. A good many of their clerks are Canadians. It is said that 40,000 Canadians reside within the radius of one mile from the State House of Boston.

Outside the stores mentioned above I called at a number of others and asked if they employed many Canadians. One manager said he did not know, for it was a difficult matter to tell them from Yankees.

The wages clerks there receive are somewhat in excess of that paid here, but the cost of living, I think, evens this up. Then, again, from what I was able to learn, they change their staff often, frequently in a dull time discharging 20 hands at a time and engaging them again as business improves.

AT THE Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

I also attended the great Y. M. C. A. convention in Boston, and was walking up the aisle to take a seat with the foreign delegates, when one of the ushers touched me on the arm and said: "Are you a foreigner, sir?" I replied, I was from Ontario. He looked puzzled and said: "Ontario; Ontario! let me see. That is not in the Union. But it's not a foreign country; you sit there, sir, please." So I was unable to pass for a foreigner with that usher. You should have heard the Canadian boys sing, "God Save the King," in the convention when King Edward's message was read. We nearly burst our lungs, and all the convention stood and joined in with us, calling forth from the speaker very complimentary remarks on the present relations of the two great nations.

RECIPROCAL TRADE.

While I was in Boston the Chamber of Commerce adopted unanimously a resolution to Congress favoring a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada. Shrewd business men these, and all over I was questioned regarding our prospects. There seems to be no doubt among our friends to the south of us that we are on the eve of a great development of our country. As a field for investment we are beginning to attract the attention of the monied men over there. They are finding us out, and the coming few years will witness immense strides in the development of our resources.

OBSERVATIONS.

I noted "Salada" tea is beginning to make its mark in Boston. Chapin & Adams, of State street, report large sales and a wonderful increasing demand, due, no doubt, to the efforts of Mr. Jas. McGuane, the Canadian hustler, who has charge of the Boston business. Mr. McGuane's old Toronto friends will be glad to hear of his success in Boston.

On my return I find a stack of mail awaiting me. I will get to work at once boys, and answer your letters, but remember, some will have to wait. In my next letter I shall give you a little of my New York experience.

A NEW MARMALADE.

The T. Upton Co., Limited, are putting on the market a new brand of marmalade, called "Upton's Home-Made Orange Marmalade." It is not as bitter as their regular line. It is put up in stone jars, 2 dozen in a case, price $1.20 per doz. In future, the Upton Co. will prepay freight to points in Ontario east to Montreal, west to Windsor, north to Owen Sound on 10 case lots, delivered direct from factory, and in points outside of Ontario they will make a freight allowance of 25c. per cwt. net on 10-case lots.

ALUMINUM BREAD CHECKS.

The merchants, bakers and milkmen, of Canada, will be glad to know that they can now obtain aluminum bread checks in Canada at moderate prices, from J. K. Cranston, of Galt. As the Government have passed legislation to govern the issue of the ordinary cardboard tickets, the adoption of aluminum checks should become very general. They are cheap, light, neat and handy, and danger of contagion is reduced to a minimum by their use. Canadians would do well to write Mr. Cranston at once and adopt them. They never wear out.

T. A. Lytle & Co., Limited, have been incorporated with a capital of $100,000. When asked as to whether the business of the company would be extended beyond its present scope, Mr. Lytle said: "We intend going on as we are at present, and I do not desire to speak of future plans as yet."

A new grocery firm, Hopper & Fleming, has been opened up in Ottawa. Both members of the new firm were formerly employees of Bate & Co., of that city. Their late fellow employees of that firm waited upon them at their new store on Saturday night, and presented each with a solid gold ring.

TAXING COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

THE arrest in Charlottetown lately of a well-know traveller owing to a dispute about the license which he held to sell goods in the Island, directs attention to the fact that this law is still in operation.

We feel sure that this legislation is not characteristic of the business spirit of that Province, where the merchants whom we have come in contact with are fair and reasonable. The law, as it stands, however, is exceedingly oppressive. Its avowed object apparently is to raise revenue, but surely the required taxes could be got by some less objectionable means!

It is just a question whether the law is constitutional, because, to the Dominion Parliament alone belongs the subject of trade, and no Province under the British North America Act of 1867 has power to limit trade with any other Province. It is time for the authorities at Ottawa to consider this question in its legal aspect with a view to deciding whether the Provincial authorities have the right to maintain it.

A valued correspondent on the Island writes to us as follows on this question:

"The Act was introduced a few years ago by the Hon. Fred. Peters, who was at that time leader of the Liberal Government of this Province. The principal reason for the tax is to help the revenue of the Island. Eight thousand one hundred and forty dollars was collected from the travellers last year. No less than 353 paid $20 each and six paid $200 each. The six represented firms in the liquor business. I am not in favor of the tax, not because it makes any difference to our business for buying. I believe that indirectly it is hurtful to the Island, and that no commercial barrier should be allowed in any Province against firms doing business in Canada. There are a few business men here who favor the tax because they do a jobbing trade throughout the Island."

A COMMENDABLE INNOVATION.

One of the partners of a well-known wholesale house has persuaded one of his sons to spend a part of his school holidays in accompanying one of the firm's travellers on his regular route.

The idea is a commendable one. A young man designed for a commercial career can scarcely begin too soon to lay the foundations necessary to success. And there is scarcely a better way of getting a start than by being taken under the wing of an experienced traveller on such a trip as that being undertaken by the young man in question. And then it is a good way of spending a holiday as well as an admirable way of gaining experience.

It is a matter that we think worthy of the attention of other wholesale merchants who have sons who are taking a rest from their studies.

HE CONDEMNS HIMSELF.

The secretary of the Kentville (N. S.) Board of Trade confesses, in a circular he has recently sent out, that he, with the other members, is getting lax in regard to board of trade matters and needs a shaking up.

It is not usual for secretaries of boards of trade or of any other organization to find fault with themselves, and such an unusual departure as that of the secretary of the Kentville board ought to lead to a more than usual awakening of the lax members.

Those who know Secretary Calkin, however, can easily imagine that it will not require a great deal of effort to stir him up. He is too enthusiastic a board of trade man for that.

PROSPECTS FOR HIGH LARD.

ALL signs would indicate that we shall see a continuation of the high prices prevailing on the lard and pork market for some months to come. Those who are in closest touch with the market expect the turning point to come in December, when a large crop of hogs will be marketed. Until that time, dealers will be compelled to pay high prices, in spite of the fact that they expected a turn before this. Lard manufacturers are selling goods under a 90-day guarantee.

The statistics for July 1 show no radical change in the situation. Stocks at Chicago have increased during the month from 47 193 to 120,233 tierces, and the total stocks held at the world's ports have increased from 166,827 to 195,926 tierces in the same time. But, although the stocks have grown within the month, the stringency is by no means removed, for stocks are not increasing in a ratio proportionate to that of previous years. Last year, the stocks held at the world's ports on July 1 were 297,406 tierces, and in 1897 they were 593,780 tierces.

On the Canadian market, the price of lard, if moving at all, is going upward. In Montreal, some houses who bought supplies ahead are selling at $2.25 per pail, others are asking $2.30, while a fair market quotation would be $2.35.

BEET SUGAR IN THE WEST.

PROVINCIAL aid to the beet sugar industry in Canada is expanding. The Assembly of the Northwest Territories is the latest to define a policy in this respect, Premier Haultain having introduced a Bill to exempt beet-sugar factories from municipal taxation for a period of 20 years.

When introducing his Bill the Premier explained that there was a proposition to establish a beet-sugar manufactory in the western part of the country, which would involve an expenditure of some $500,000, that it was not proposed to establish such in any existing town or village, but that the exemption was desired from taxation by any future town or village which might grow up as the result of the industry.

Experiments in sugar-beet culture have been carried on for some years in the West, and, as shown by the reports of the Dominion experimental farms, not without encouraging results.

SIR RICHARD'S ENNUI.

THERE appears to be a feeling in the High Commissioner's office in London that a recent article dealing with it was rather harsh. The purpose of the article was to point out the importance of a commercial agent being sent to London and to deplore that the Trade and Commerce Department had not yet done so. If, in pursuance of this object, anything which was said displeased the High Commissioner's office, we regret it.

With what the High Commissioner's office does we have little or nothing to find fault. As a medium between the Dominion and Imperial Governments it is a necessary office, and the position which the High Commissioner holds undoubtedly makes him serviceable in charging the memory of the War Office and the Admiralty in regard to Canadian products for the army and the navy. The last report of the High Commissioner shows that the South African and China Wars were seized as opportunities of drawing the attention of the War Office and the India Office to Canadian products.

"During the last year, as in 1899," says the Commissioner in his report, "I have paid considerable attention to procuring from the War Office and from the India Office orders for the supply from Canada of articles required by His Majesty's forces, both in South Africa and China. That my efforts have been successful, will, I think, be admitted on a perusal of the following lists of supplies that have been obtained from the Dominion, the value of which must, in the aggregate, represent some millions of dollars." Then follows a list of Canadian articles, such as hay, corned beef, boneless chicken, saddlery, clothing, flour, which had been purchased by the War Department since November, 1899.

So far so good, but what Canada wants as well as is an official—a commercial agent—who will be in a position to supply business men with information about business men and business matters. This, the High Commissioner's office does not supply.

It is true that it has prepared lists of importers and exporters, which have, no doubt, proved of assistance in not a few instances. But that in itself is not enough. The business men in this country and the business men in Great Britain who have sought for commercial information know this perfectly well. If it were not so why is it that The Canadian Manufacturers' Association and various boards of trade throughout the country have spent so much time and money in trying to impress upon the Canadian Government the necessity of appointing a commercial agent in London to supply that in which we are now so deficient? It is simply because they recognize that there is a long-felt want, which, in the interests of this country, should be filled. Our position is, therefore, based on no mere supposition.

We believe in fact, we know that Lord Strathcona and Mr. J. G. Colmer, his secretary, are doing the best they can for the country they represent. But, as we have said before, Lord Strathcona has not the time to look after such matters as would be required of a commercial agent. Then, if Mr. Colmer had the time at his disposal his long absence from Canada places him at a decided disadvantage.

We all generally recognize that one of the best commercial agents Canada has is Mr. J. S. Larke. Yet his absence of six or seven years in Australia has made him somewhat out of touch with the commercial interests of the country he represents, and The Canadian Manufacturers' Association has wisely asked to have him recalled for a few months in order that he may have an opportunity of refreshing himself in regard to commercial affairs in Canada.

If the Government does not appoint a commercial agent to reside in London, the next best thing it can do is to invite Mr. Colmer to spend three months in Canada, touring it from one end to the other and associating himself with those engaged in the various industries.

We, however, only urge this as an alternative. The importance of the British trade demands the appointment of a commercial agent whose whole time and attention shall be devoted to the work appertaining to the office. This, the High Commissioner nor anyone in his office is not doing.

It is true that under existing conditions our export trade with Great Britain has increased enormously, during the last five years by 62 per cent. But what we supply, notwithstanding the increase, is only an infinitesimal part of what the Mother Country imports, being scarcely 5 per cent. of the whole, while compared with the United States our exports to the parent country are only about 12 per cent.

None recognize better than the manufacturers of this country the need of a commercial agent in Canada, but notwithstanding that the Trade and Commerce Department has been memorialized by commercial bodies and importers by the trade press and by the daily press of both shades of politics, nothing has been done.

Sir Richard Cartwright is smitten with ennui in regard to this as in regard to nearly all other matters appertaining to his Department. And it looks as though Sir Richard will have to go before a commercial agent in Great Britain is forthcoming.

THE HANDLING OF COFFEES.

Remember the date for receiving articles on the "Buying, Handling and Selling of Coffees" positively closes on July 20.

A DECLINE IN SUGAR.

IN spite of a demand in the United States that exceeds the supply and an improvement in business in Canada, the price of refined sugar is lower in both countries this week.

The Arbuckles have been selling sugar on the basis of 1.45c. per lb. for granulated, but they have been alone at that figure until Monday, when The American Refinery Company marked its prices down 5c. per 100 lb. to meet those of its rival.

The action of the Trust has had a particularly depressing effect upon the market, as it had twice within less than a week notified the trade that there would be no change in its figures. One of such notifications was issued on the very morning of the day on which the reduction was made. On the strength of the announcement that there would be no change the refined market assumed a firm tone, while only on Saturday last Willett & Gray, the sugar experts, advised that "It would be well for buyers to anticipate their want, particularly as nothing will be gained by waiting."

The reduction in prices in Canada has not been all along the line. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 yellows, for instance, are quoted as before. Granulated and cream sugars, however, are down 10c. per 100 lb., and bright coffee and bright yellow are 5c. per 100 lb. lower.

Granulated is now on the basis of $4.15 to $4.50 in Montreal and $1.63 to $1.68 in Toronto.

To have the Arbuckles selling on the basis of 4.45c. per lb. must have been irritating to the Trust, but why it should change its mind so suddenly after two emphatic announcements that it would make no change seems inexcusable.

With the Arbuckles and the Trust again selling sugar on the same basis, to say nothing of the activity of the demand, the conditions for steady prices are, after all, more favorable than they were.

CANNED CHERRIES ADVANCE.

Quite a little interest has developed in canned cherries this week on account of a somewhat unexpected advance of 25 per cent. in the price of new season's goods. The advance was initiated by the packers and was followed by the wholesalers.

Buyers from the United States have been large purchasers of the ripe fruit along the Niagara Peninsula, and the prices paid have been so high as to put them beyond the reach of the packers. For this reason the pack of cherries in Ontario will be short; and it is the expectation of this that has led to the present appreciation in values.

Wholesalers are now quoting new season's pack to arrive at $2 for red pitted and $2.25 for white pitted cherries.

BUSINESS MEN AND ROYALTY.

CANADA'S loyalty to the British Empire is well known. And preparations are being made to emphasize it during the forthcoming visit of the Duke and Duchess of York. But while this is only natural and proper it is to be hoped that in the exhibitions of loyalty nothing will be forgotten that shall exhibit the resources of the country.

It must not be forgotten that it is not merely the Royal personages and their retinue that will visit us. There are in their train several of Great Britain's leading journalists and artists, the latter of whom will do a great deal of illustrative work for their respective journals. It is of the utmost importance that the natural resources of each and every part of the country shall be brought into as much prominence as possible.

Canada is undoubtedly a country wonderfully rich in natural resources. We all know how dense a great many people in Great Britain are in regard to this fact. Even the extent and beauty of our cities are surprising to many of those from the other side of the Atlantic who visit us. What, therefore, must it be with regard to many of our natural resources that are not so observant to the eye?

This density is often sources of amusement to us, but after all is not the onus largely upon ourselves? We think it is.

The enterprising merchant, by window displays, by advertising, or through the medium of his travelers keeps his wares in the public eye.

Nations are but aggregations of individuals. If they wish to develop the resources with which nature has endowed them they should not miss an opportunity of showing the world what they possess. Canada has not been as enterprising in this respect as the circumstances warranted. Consequently for much of the ignorance which obtains on the other side of the Atlantic in regard to Canada we are to blame.

For the reasons already set out the visit of the Royal couple will afford Canada an exceptionally good opportunity for us to exhibit our products of the factory, field, farm, forest, and mine.

There will be a few months before Royalty will be in our midst, but there is no time to waste. No one is interested more than the business men of the country in making the sojourn of our visitors pleasant, interesting, and instructive, and they should lend their influence to at once launching local schemes which shall attain the maximum of good for Canada as well as the maximum of entertainment for our Royal visitors.

NEW PACK VEGETABLE PRICES.

Prices on new pack vegetables were issued by the syndicate this week. Compared with the opening figures of last year they show a reduction of 2 1-2c. per dozen.

The figures at which the wholesalers are quoting futures to the retail trade are 85c. per dozen for tomatoes and 80c. for peas and corn.

No business as far as we can learn has been done on the basis of these figures. Although, as already pointed out, the new prices are lower than last year they are still too high to induce speculative buying, and the wholesalers are disposed, as last year, to allow the packers to carry the bulk of the goods. Then, it will be remembered, the pack of 1900 came upon a bare market, while this year the conditions are somewhat to the contrary.

The control of the bulk of the pack by the syndicate and the agreement to curtail the output by 30 per cent. create, however, new features of the situation, the result of which can only be known from actual experience.

TEA TAX AND CONSUMPTION.

AT the annual meeting of The Tower Tea Company, Limited, London, the address of the chairman, Mr. Thomas Laugh, M.P., was a more than usually interesting one. We have not the space at our disposal to reproduce the address in full, but the following extract from it cannot fail to be of interest to the grocery trade in Canada:

"The great articles of consumption now subject to a tariff in this country are so few that the public will watch with interest the effect produced even on one of them by those abrupt increases of taxation with which the nation has become familiar. We may well inquire what has been the effect of the large increase, amounting to 50 per cent., in the taxation on tea? This has now been in existence for over a year, so that we are in a position to judge. It is the only increase which has been made in the tax since tea became one of the leading products of the British Empire. In 1865 the tea duty was reduced to 6d., and in 1889 to 4d. per pound. The same result followed the reduction in each case. Within two years consumption increased by 15,000,000 lb. The duty remained at 4d. till last year, when it was raised to 6d. In 1865 96 per cent. of the tea used in the United Kingdom came to us from China. The effect, therefore, of our tariffs on the trade was of small concern to us as a nation; but last year 95 per cent. of the tea consumed came from estates in India and Ceylon, owned by British capitalists and worked by British subjects; therefore any vicissitudes which affect the business become of profound importance to the Empire. The experience of those engaged in tea production is unanimous that the increase of duty has produced disastrous results. British tea-growers had naturally made arrangements to meet a steadily increasing demand, which they had every reason to expect; but the new duty has checked consumption, and the latest figures show, for the first time for many years, a decrease in the quantity of tea used in the United Kingdom per head of the inhabitants. In 1899 the Board of Trade returns show that the consumption had reached 5.98 lb.; but last year, according to figures just issued by Messrs. W. J. & H. Thompson, it had fallen to 5.91 lb. per head. This is the general result of an increase of taxation. In 1898 a tax of 10 cents per pound was imposed on tea in the United States, and the effect was that within two years consumption was lowered by 25,000,000 lb., or one-third of a pound per head of the population. The imposition of this American duty—like that in the United Kingdom—has hit the Indian and Ceylon tea growers, who were rapidly introducing their products into that country. The ill-effect of the duties has been heightened by the recent silver legislation in India, and owing to all these causes one of the most notable new enterprises in which British capital has been engaged during the last half century has received a blow from which it will require some years to recover. We may congratulate ourselves that the business of our company is distribution, and not production, and I may give, in conclusion, one other crumb of comfort to the shareholders—the distributive tea trade generally flourishes when other trades decline."

The above extract from Mr. Laugh's address is worthy of careful perusal, particularly by those in Canada who have been the advocates of a Customs duty on teas in this country.

THE STRIKE ON THE COAST.

THE salmon canning season opened on the Fraser River on the 1st inst., but on account of the strike among the fishermen the conditions are anything but auspicious.

The strike is over prices. The fishermen want 12 1-2c. per fish during the whole season. The canners at first were unwilling to pay more than 10c. the season through, but ultimately offered to pay 12 1-2c. per fish until August 3, and 10c. from that date until the close of the season. In accepting this the men made it a condition that they should be paid 12 1-2c. per fish till the end of the season, if the price on the British market held good, any break, ever so small, in the price there to be followed by the reduction of the price on the river to 10c. a fish.

The canners refused to accept this proviso and the whites and Indians are on strike, but the Japanese fishermen are standing by the canners. According to the press despatches from the Coast, however, the situation is serious on account of the possibility of physical encounters between the strikers and the Japanese.

It is to be regretted, indeed, that the difficulty could not have been settled by arbitration, particularly after the experience of last season.

The strike does not appear to have yet exercised any marked influence on the market, but, it is, of course, early to expect much in that respect.

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE Montreal Retail Grocers' Association met in the Monument National last Thursday evening and completed arrangements for their monster picnic to be held at Plattsburg, N.Y., next Wednesday, July 17. Mr. N. Lapointe, the president, presided over the discussion, and among those in the hall were: J. P. Dixon, secretary; O. Champagne, E. W. Farrell, T. O'Brien, M. de Repentigny, Ald. Turner, V. Raby, S. D. Vallieres, P. Daoust, Deschamps, N. Chartrand, F. Begaouette, C. Creely, Levecque, Gagnon, Lenaïel, J. Brunet, Poupard, and others.

The different committees gave their reports, all showing that the bulk of the preparation work has been done; in fact, the committees have not worked so hard for the success of the affair in years. All that is required to insure a good crowd and a pleasant time is fine holiday weather, and Mr. Lapointe says he is going to have that essential, if he has to take it with him. The association will entertain quite a number of guests on that day, including the mayor of Montreal, the mayor of Plattsburg, the customs collectors of Plattsburg and Rouse's Point and some important tradesmen.

The trains will leave Bonaventure Station at 8.30 and 9 o'clock and return at 6 and 6.30 o'clock, stopping at St. Henri and Pt. St. Charles both coming and going. The fares will be $1.25 for adults and 60c. for children.

The subscriptions and prizes have been sent in quite generously, and the banquet and games will be kept right up to the standard. The Mascottes, of Montreal, will play the Plattsburg baseball team a game on that day. The following firms have been good enough to subscribe to the picnic funds in money or kind:

CALIFORNIAN RAISIN GROWERS.

A VERY remarkable experiment in consolidation is to be tried, and it is to be tried, not by great manufacturers or financiers, but by agriculturists, or, to be more precise, fruit culturists. The courts have ruled against the terms of the agreement between the Prune Association and its members, and this has created some uncertainty about the validity of the raisin agreement, though the President of the Raisin Association says their agreement is better and has not been upset by the courts at any point. But to obviate all doubt it is proposed to change the form of agreement. The association will lease the vineyards of its members. The latter will become virtually the hired men of the association.

There is no doubt that this would give the growers in their corporate capacity absolute control over their combined production. The first problem is to get the growers to enter the arrangement. As President Kearney says: "The association will be the producer and the grower will simply be an employee." It might be supposed that the growers would hesitate a little about putting themselves in this position, and Mr. Kearney admits that they do; "while they will hesitate a little at first about signing leases, they will eventually sign because there is no choice—they will sign the leases or nothing." This is negative pressure; positive pressure of an acute kind is held in reserve; the members of the association feel very bitter toward growers who stayed outside and sold their fruit at some reduction in price. They have called on the directors to cut prices till there is no profit left if these growers remain outside.

Here is about the most extreme type of trust that can be imagined. The individual owners are to lease their vineyards to the association and accept the role of hired men on their own places, and if they refuse the association will undertake to drive them out of business by cutting prices to any extent that may be necessary.

All this for the purpose of maintaining prices, which it is complained were deplorably low the past year. But Mr. Kearney says the last crop was exceptionally large; he does not look for such another crop for years. Besides this, the supply of raisins is going to be curtailed by a larger demand from the wineries for grapes. The surplus of this year has been greatly reduced by the efforts of the association to force a market, and Mr. Kearney is confident that all the raisins on hand will be disposed of before the new crop comes on. It seems to us that the important fact is not that some growers sold outside the association and cut prices, but that the crop was excessive; the association had to cut prices itself to reduce the stock. If Mr. Kearney is right as to a smaller crop and a better demand and no surplus carried over from this year the price the coming year would naturally be better than during the past year. In other words, according to Mr. Kearney's own showing, the price is almost entirely a matter of the supply, and whether the association succeeds in suppressing the independent grower or not has a very slight effect upon the situation.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 11, 1901.

GROCERIES.

THE aggregate volume of business being done at the moment is moderate, the hot weather and the holiday season combining to lessen the activity of trade. The feature of the week is the issue of prices on the new pack of canned vegetables. The range of prices made by the syndicate, which has control of the output, is considerably above that at present ruling for last year's stock. There is a good demand for gallon apples, canned meats, sardines and campers' supplies. There is a fairly steady trade in currants which continue firm in value. Raisins are easy. Owing to the big sale of sugar during April and early May, the movement since the middle of June has not been quite as large as a year ago.

CANNED GOODS.

The syndicate prices for the 1901 pack of canned vegetables have been issued. They average about  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c. per doz. higher than the prices which have been quoted by the wholesale dealers for some time. The wholesalers have not yet, however, advanced their quotations to meet this difference, as stocks in retail hands are thought to be rather large. But the feeling is decidedly firm and the tendency to break prices is much less manifest than before the syndicate prices were issued. In any case, wholesalers say, no cut on the present quotations would be made for large lots. Tomatoes are quoted at 75 to 80c. to the retail trade, and canned peas and corn at 70 to 75c. Wholesale dealers are quoting to arrive: Tomatoes, 85c.; peas and corn, 80c. The pack of strawberries is claimed to be moderate, and the wholesalers are quoting \$1.50 for canned strawberries in syrup and \$1.75 for preserved. There is a short pack of cherries, and United States packers have been buying fruit in Niagara and paying prices which local packers are not disposed to pay. Latter advanced prices 25c., and wholesalers have followed suit on goods to arrive, their quotations being \$2.20 for red pitted and \$2.25 for white pitted. The market is bare of these goods. There is still a good demand for canned salmon, and prices are steady. There is a scarcity of cohoes and the best quality of sockeye salmon on spot. There is an abundant supply, however, of pink salmon. Spot salmon is quoted at \$1.60 to \$1.65 for Fraser River, and \$1.50 to \$1.55 for northern fish, and \$1.20 to \$1.25 for cohoes. Fraser River sockeye for future delivery is still quoted at \$1.45 for less than 10 case lots, and \$1.42½ for 10 case lots and over. Northern sockeye for future delivery is quoted at \$1.30 for less than 10 cases, and \$1.25 for 10 cases and over. There is a good, steady demand for sardines at unchanged figures. All lines of canned meats are in excellent demand, and prices are well maintained.

COFFEE.

There is an active demand, with prices steady throughout. We quote green Rio coffee No. 7,  $7\frac{3}{4}$ c.; No. 6,  $8\frac{1}{4}$ c.; No. 5,  $8\frac{3}{4}$ c.; No. 4,  $9\frac{1}{4}$ c.

John prices current.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is practically nothing doing in either syrups or molasses. Prices are steady throughout. We quote: Corn syrups, barrels, 3c. per lb.; half-barrels,  $3\frac{1}{2}$ c.; kegs,  $3\frac{1}{4}$ c.; pails, \$1.40 each for three gallons, \$1.05 for 2 gallons. Sugar syrups range from 30 to 37c. per gallon, and New Orleans molasses at 23c. upward.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There is a fairly steady demand. Prices are unchanged. B rice is quoted at  $3\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb. and Japan and Java rice at  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c. The idea for tapioca is  $4\frac{1}{4}$  to  $4\frac{1}{2}$ c.

SPICES.

There is not much doing yet, but it is expected that there will soon be a demand for pickling spices. Pepper continues stiff, but prices are unchanged. The clove market continues dull.

TEAS.

There is a fair trade doing in Indian and Ceylon teas and quite a little business is reported in Ceylon greens. Teas in Japan are about 1c. higher than they were a few weeks ago. Samples of Ceylon tea are being freely shown here, but there is practically no business being done as there is a difference of about 2c. per lb. between the views of buyers and sellers. Mail advices from Yokohama under date of June 22, say: "Our market, notwithstanding the dull reports from your side, keeps fairly firm and active. Second crop leaf is now arriving in small quantities and shows the usual falling off in quality as compared with the earlier leaf." Mail advices from China indicate that a smaller business is being done than last year.

SUGAR.

While the demand is better than last week, the market is disappointing. In fact, the total volume of sales to date this year has been considerably below that up to this time last year. As a consequence of the dullness, a decline of 10c. has been made in refined and 5c. in all yellow and coffee sugars except Nos. 1, 2 and 3, in sympathy with the New York market. During the week, there has been a decline in raw beet sugar in London.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—An excellent demand is noted. Prices are steady. Ruling quotations here for good, sound fruit are  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c. for Filiatras,  $10\frac{1}{2}$  to 11c. for Patras and 12c. for 1-crown Vostizzas and 14c. for 5-crown.

VALENCIA RAISINS—Reports from Valencia indicate that damage to the extent of 40,000 tons to the raisin crop has been caused by hailstorms. This has steadied the local market considerably, but there is no change. Fine off-stalk, standard brands, is quoted at  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7c., but inferior brands run as low as 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. Selected is quoted at 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c. for standard brands and down as low as 6c. for inferior brands.

PRUNES—A steady trade is reported. Californian prunes are quoted at the following prices: 30-40's, 8 to  $8\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 40-50's,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c.; 50-60's, 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 60-70's,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7c.; 70-80's, 6 to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 80-90's,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c.; 90-100's, 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. French prunes,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4c.

CALIFORNIAN DRIED FRUITS—Business is rather quiet. We quote: Apricots,  $11\frac{1}{2}$  to  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb., in 25-lb. boxes; peaches,  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c. per lb., in bags, and 10 to 12c. in boxes.

GREEN FRUITS.

Strawberries are about done, but there is a fair delivery of late varieties which are, as a rule, inferior in quality to what sold previously. The range of prices is steady at 5 to 8c. Raspberries are starting to arrive, and have sold all the way from 12 to 15c. per quart basket. Gooseberries are arriving freely at 35 to 45c. per basket. Red currants range from 35 to 50c. Cherries are in good demand at $1 to $1.50 for eating varieties and 90c. to $1 for cooking varieties. Blueberries are plentiful and are in ready demand at $1 to $1.25. Californian fruit is coming to hand fairly well. Peaches are freely offered at $1.50 to $1.75. Apples, pears and plums are not so plentiful, but there is generally some of each line to be had. Apples are worth $3; pears, $4.50 and plums, $1.75 to $2. Apricots are not offering this week. There is a fairly good demand for late Valencia oranges at $4.50 per box. Rhodi oranges are steady at $3.50. Messina lemons are selling readily at $4.50 per box. Bananas are in steady demand, with prices steady at $1.75 to $2.25 for firsts. Limes are in fair request at $2. South Carolina watermelons are offering at 40 to 45c. each.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Owing to the large shrinkage due to the heat dealers are buying subject to loss off in Toronto. Prices have declined ½c. We quote 11 to 11 ½c.

BEANS—Market is quiet. We quote $1.60 to $1.65 for hand-picked and $1.50 to $1.60 for prime.

HONEY—Some new stock has arrived, and a great deal more is offered. Prices for the season have not yet been definitely made, but a fair nominal quotation is 10c. for new extracted clover, and $2 to $2.25 for new clover comb.

DRIED APPLES—There is practically nothing doing. We quote nominally 5c. for evaporated and 3 to 3 ½c. for dried apples.

POTATOES—The market is dull, as the high prices of three or four weeks ago brought in potatoes so plentifully that the market was practically glutted. Car lots are not salable, but there is a fair movement out of store at 35 to 40c. per bag.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—A great deal of what is coming in shows deterioration by heat. Prices are 1c. lower throughout, as last week's figures could not be maintained. We quote: Dairy prints, 16c.; best tubs, 16c.; seconds, 11 to 14c.; creamery prints, 19 to 20c.; boxes, 18 to 19c.

CHEESE—The market continues to "ease up," as the prices paid on country boards are fully 1c. below those noted a fortnight ago. New cheese is now worth 9 ½ to 10c.

and old cheese 10c. There is a fair demand for both.

FISH.

There is a good demand for whitefish, trout and herring. Herring is 1c. lower. Other fish are in fair request. We quote: Fresh fish—Speckled trout, 25c.; red snappers, 12 ½c.; Spanish mackerel, 12 ½c.; cod-fish, 7c.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 7c.; halibut, 9c.; sea salmon, 15c.; haddock, 6c.; herring, 3c.; British Columbian salmon, 15c. Prepared fish—Dried cod, in 112 lb. bundles, $4.75 per cwt.; flitched cod, $5 to $5.25; boneless cod, in bricks, 5 to 5 ½c. per lb.; steak cod, 6 ½c. per lb.; shredded cod (2 doz. in box), $1.80 per box; boneless fish, loose, in 25-lb. boxes, 4 to 4 ½c., and 5-lb. boxes, 5c. per lb. Live lobsters are worth 15c. per lb.

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The wheat market is steady. Red and white are quoted at 67c. at outside points, middle freights. Manitoba wheat is worth 89 ½c. for No. 1 hard, grinding in transit, or 88c. Toronto and west. The movement on the local street market is fair. We quote: Wheat, white and red, 71c.; goose, 69 to 69 ½c.; oats, 35c.; rye, 52 to 52 ½c.; barley, 47c.

FLOUR—There is a fair demand, with prices steady. We quote on track, Toronto (bags included) as follows: Manitoba patents, $4.20; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.95; Ontario patents, $3.30 to $3.60; straight roller, $3.20.

BREAKFAST FOODS—A fair trade is doing, with prices unchanged. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal, $3.70 in bags, and $3.80 in bbls.; rolled oats, $3.60 in bags, and $3.70 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.25 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.75; split peas, $4; pot barley, $4.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There is a good demand, and prices have advanced 1c. per lb., in sympathy with higher prices on the United States market. We quote: Cowhides, No. 1, 7 ½c.; No. 2, 6 ½c.; No. 3, 5 ½c. Steer hides are worth 1c. more. Cured hides are quoted at 8 to 8 ½c.

SKINS—Dekins are 5 to 10c. lower. Otherwise, there is no change. We quote as follows: No. 1 veal, 8-lb. and up, 9c. per lb.; No. 2, 8c.; dekins, from 55 to 60c.; culls, 20 to 25c.; sheepskins, 90c. to $1.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. C. Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, left with Mrs. Chaput on Wednesday for a five-weeks' holiday at Old Orchard Beach.

Mr. J. W. Flavell, manager of The Wm. Davies Packing Co., Limited, Toronto, with his assistant, Dr. Smale, were in Montreal this week calling on the trade on their way down east.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 11, 1901.

GROCERIES.

THE general run of business has hardly been so good this week, and some lines show little life. The feature of the week has been the syndicate's announcement of the prices of new pack of vegetables. They are found to be somewhat higher than the present quotations of the wholesale trade, yet rather lower than last year. The strange feature of the market is that the wholesalers have not changed their prices and are still content to sell at a loss. The trouble is, of course, they still have large stocks, some houses having enough corn and tomatoes to run them six months. The demand for sugar has somewhat slackened during the week, but there is still a fairly brisk demand and the markets are steady. Molasses has become interesting, most dealers having taken in their stocks. Japan teas are reported firmer again and dealers have had to advance their limits. Local agents of Japan houses have had their quotations advanced 1 to 2c. this week. Indian and Ceylon tea markets remain dull, while China blacks and greens are very low. Every tea market except the Japan, is deathly sick. Reports to hand this week reiterate prospects for a heavy crop of foreign dried fruits. American pork is 3-8c. per lb. lower, while coarse salt is 2c. higher per bag.

SUGARS

The demand for sugars which was at high tide last week has fallen off somewhat, and now the refineries are quite able to fill orders promptly. The market is reported steady with no change in prices. Refiners quote $1.60 per 100 lb. for granulated, and $3.85 to $4.50 for yellows, according to quality. City 5c. extra. The raw sugar markets are rather quiet.

SYRUPS

There is but little demand for syrup just now. Prices are unchanged at 1 ½ to 2c. per lb. for cane syrup and 3 to 3 ½c. for corn syrup, according to package.

MOLASSES

The molasses market has lost almost all interest for the grocer, the primary market being closed, and the retail trade being thoroughly supplied with early goods.

CANNED GOODS.

The syndicate has announced its quotations. That is sufficient to make the canned goods market interesting for a week. These are above the present wholesale values and somewhat below last year's combine figures. They are such as to allow the wholesaler to quote the following prices: Tomatoes, $5 to $7 ½c.; corn, 80 to 85c.; peas, English garden, 80 to 85c.; sweet wrinkled, $2 ½ to 85c.; early, 85 to 90c.; and fine French, $1 to $1.10; golden wax beans, 77 ½ to 80c. At the present moment tomatoes are selling in Montreal at 80 to 85c.; corn, 75c.; beans, 70c.; and peas 75c. to $1. The syndicate's announcement, although it may have tended to strengthen the market, has not yet caused and appreciation of values. It seems to be the supreme object of wholesalers to rid themselves of stocks and they voice the determination that they will not hereafter buy heavily. There seems to be no inducement to do so, a fact which the retailers will also note. Fruits, to arrive, are selling in regular quantities, at $1.50 and $1.65 for strawberries in syrup and preserved; $1.40 and $1.55 for raspberries in syrup and preserved, and $2.30 and $2.50 to $2.60 for pineapples preserved and grated. Salmon is firm and unchanged in price.

SPICES.

There is a fair demand reported for spices this week. The market remains firm. We quote: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12 1-2 to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE

Tapioca continues to be very scarce and supplies are being taken as rapidly as they come upon the market. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in half bags, $3.15; in 1-4 bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in half bags; $3.10 in 1-4 bags, and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4 1-4c. per lb.

TEAS

Cablegrams have come from Japan this week advising agents here of advances of 1 1-4 to 1 3-4c. per lb. The trade has been holding off, expecting a fall, but contrary to their expectations comes this rise. Importers have been compelled to advance their limits two or three times.

The local market is in a rather poor state. Indian and Ceylon as well as China black and green teas are very sick and dull. There seems to be but little demand for any grade. The market for Japan teas is also affected, for, on account of the slow demand for teas, dealers are making concessions and are selling Japan tea at prices fully 2c. below what it would cost to lay them down here. Old teas have sold at 13c. Medium grades generally bring 18 to 20c.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.*CURRENTS—The market is strong, with goods selling at 9 1-2 to 10c., although some quote 10 1-2 to 11c. There is a regular demand and the market is in a healthy condition.RAISINS—According to latest mail advices the new crop has been progressing favorably till a few days ago when some hail storms set in and damaged 40,000 or 50,000 cwt. There is no talk of price ideas as yet. In sultanas there is no change in the crop prospects. There has been some cloudy weather but no complaints are to hand as yet. Locally, the raisin market is quiet and unchanged.PRUNES—There is a fair demand for prunes. The mails give optimistic prospects for the new French prune crop, although the size may be hardly as large as last year. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5 1-2c. for 90's to 100's; 6 1-2 to 7 1-2c. for 60's to 70's and 7 1-2 to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.EVAPORATED FRUITS—Evaporated apples are firm at 6 1-2c. Apricots are worth 10c., and peaches and pears, 8c. each.GREEN FRUITS.

Strawberries are now about out of season. They have been selling at 6 to 8c., but the quality is poor. Raspberries are worth 15 to 18c., but a drop is expected. Bananas are in good demand, with firsts selling at

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There has been no important change in the situation of the market. Exporters report a better demand this week, but it seems difficult to get the Englishman to pay the price. Locally, No. 1 stock is selling at 11 1/2 to 12c. and No. 2 at 9 to 9 1/2c.

HONEY—The demand for honey is nil; the trade is dull and prices are steady. We quote: White clover honey in comb, 12 1/2 to 13 1/2c.; white, extracted, 9 to 10c.; buckwheat, in comb, 9 to 10c., and extracted, 7 to 8c.

POTATOES—The season for old potatoes is about over; the last sales of carlots being made at 45 to 50c. on track. A few lots of new potatoes have arrived but they are mostly small.

ASHES — There is nothing new to report. We quote: Firsts, $1.30 to $4.35; seconds, $3.90 to $4, and pearls, $5.85 per 100 lb.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR — The market during the past week has ruled quiet, although the usual amount of business has been put through on local account. We quote: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $3.85 to $4.20; winter wheat patents, $3.45 to $3.70; straight roller, $3.20 to $3.10; in bags, $1.55 to $1.65, and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.90.

GRAIN — We quote: No. 1. spring wheat, 71 to 71 1/2c. afloat July; peas, 78 to 79c.; rye, 58 to 59c.; No. 2 barley, 52 to 53c.; oats, 35 to 35 3/4c.; buckwheat, 60 to 61c.; corn 54 to 55c.

prices irregular at $3.60 to $3.80 in wood and $1.75 to $1.85 in bags.

Feed — The market is easier and sales of carlots are reported at $13, buyers now offering $12.50. Shorts, $14 to $15, as to quality: mouillie, $19 to $21.

BALED HAY — The supply is ample for all local requirements and as regards business we have to report sales of No. 2 in carlots at $9.50, $9.75 and $10 on spot. No. 1, at $10.50 to $11.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE — The dull tone that pervaded the market last week seems to have deserted it and we now find quotations advancing. The English market refused to meet the advance here, and prices have again settled themselves down to a fair basis. For Quebec cheese the ruling quotation is 8 1-2 to 8 7-8c., and for Ontario, 9 3-8 to 9 1-2c. So far this season dealers are reported to have made little money. The break-down of a portion of the city cold storage system has brought a fear for quality in the market.

BUTTER — After a break the tendency of the butter market is again upward. The English market is bullish on Canadian butter, which seems to have given every satisfaction this year. For finest creamery, 19 1-2 to 19 3-4c. is paid, and for dairy, 16 to 16 1-2c.

MARKET NOTES.

Oranges are 25 to 50c. per box of 200's higher.

Coarse salt is 2c. higher per bag, being now quoted at 40c. f.o.b. wharf. Fine salt, in bags, is unchanged at 90c. f.o.b. wharf.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., July 9, 1901.

COOL? Yes; we are just enjoying life. While we have had a few warm days, in the city we do not know what warm weather is. And though, perhaps, a little warm at midday, the evenings are delightful and the nights cool. Our American friends appreciate this and are arriving in large numbers, driven from Boston, New York, and other points by the extreme heat. We wish more western Canadians would come this way as we feel sure they would enjoy the change. In business there is little new. The lumbermen complain of the low prices, although the American market has kept at quite good figures. In line, for which, in quality, quantity and ease of shipment, we cannot be surpassed, this has been the best spring for many years. In groceries, flour is easy and dull. Sugar is firmer, the refiners have slight. Sugar is firmer, the refiners having slight.

OIL — There is nothing new to report in burning oils. While prices are steady the market cannot be called strong. The sale at this season is very light. In paint oils there continues to be an active business at quite full prices. The situation has favored the wholesale dealer. Lubricating oils have a steady sale; prices are quite low and the market is easy. In seal oil there is a good demand, and figures are firm. Cod oil is scarce. Little new has yet been received and prices are fully maintained. In wax, while prices are still the lowest which have been quoted this season, there is no expectation of as low prices as those which prevailed a few years ago.

SALT — In Liverpool coarse there is a fair stock held. Prices are unchanged. There have been no arrivals for a time, but some is shortly expected by sailing vessel. Some shipments are being made from Boston to points along the Bay shore. In fine salt, Canadian is in good demand, as the cheese factories use it almost exclusively. Note as follows: Liverpool coarse, 50 to 55c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10 lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 11c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb.

CANNED GOODS — There has been considerable interest in old goods, vegetables, caused by some low figures quoted. It is generally understood that orders at these figures were not filled. There were, however, quite a few goods sold at lower prices than the standard association packers would quote. There are fair stocks held. Buying of new goods is likely to be small. Fruits are quiet. This is a small market. Lobsters are high and not generally offered. In salmon, while some sales have been made, there is no special interest. The cheaper grades have the demand. Oysters are quoted rather higher by Baltimore packers. In local packed fish, such as finnan haddies, considerable stock is being received. There is a good sale, chiefly for the west. The quality of these goods is such as should command better prices. Sardines, which are just being packed, are easier. It is early for herring. In these goods the demand exceeds the supply. In all these lines competition among the packers keeps the price, it is said, below cost.

GREEN FRUITS — There is a very active business. Californian pears are now being received and they are large sellers here. Peaches, plums and apricots are rather higher. A few Valencia oranges have been received. The quality is good. Very few Californians have been received. Other grades are light sellers. Lemons are sellers and the price is quite low, though somewhat higher than it was. Bananas are rather higher this week. There is a large consumption. Pines are not so freely sold. Georgia peaches are received and are of good quality. Tomatoes are lower and more freely offered. Strawberries, local grown, have been very low, selling freely at retail at 5 to 6c. The quality is particularly good. Large quantities are being shipped west.

DRIED FRUITS — There is little of interest. Some orders for the new Valencias for first shipment have been given at open prices. The spot market is very dull. It is thought buying will be light. The trade prefer Californians but in these the sales, owing to price, were disappointing last season. A good business is hoped for. Seeded will be largely used. Prunes, it is expected, will be largely bought. Prices are expected to be below last year. The spot market is dull. Currants are light sale, with price firm. In peels, the price of citron, new goods, is well above that of last year. Orange and lemon show little change, but are also rather higher. In dates, the sale is for package goods. Figs have no sale. Onions are a light stock and are held rather higher. In nuts, peanuts have a steady sale but prices hold low.

DAIRY PRODUCE — In eggs, the price is low and there is a tendency to still lower figures. There are but few receipts and light sales. Buyers have to be careful about quality as there are many bad at this season. Butter is dull and the price is low. Stock needs to be very good to move at all freely. Cheese tends higher. Prices here have been below western figures. Local consumption is not large.

SUGAR — While prices of both yellows and granulated have been advanced 10 cents by the refineries, there is little or no change in the local market. There is a large sale. Considerable foreign granulated is offered.

MOLASSES — Much of the Barbados which has been received has been shipped west. At the difference in price the local demand is for Porto Rico, the price of which in the local market has been kept low. There is still considerable to arrive.

FISH — The interest is still in fresh fish, chiefly salmon. There has been a good catch and prices have been well maintained. The quality of the fish is particularly good. A few shad are still being received. There is a wide range in price. In dry codfish the receipts are light, the weather being too hot for curing. There is but a limited sale. Pollock are a small stock, but are in little demand. While a few new pickled herring have been received the market does not require many. Smoked show no change. Fresh halibut is still received. In finnan haddies business is local. We quote: Large and medium dry cod, $3.25 to $3.30; small, $2.10 to $2.25; haddies, 5 to 5 1-2c.; smoked herring, 12 to 13c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2 1-2c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.60 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $2.15 to $2.25 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl.; $2.75 halves; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl.; $2.25 halves; halibut, 8c.; shad, 10 to 22c.; salmon, 12 to 14c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL — In flour, values are lower and demand dull. There is a very good sale for Manitobas, which show a low range. In feed, there is little doing. Oats are dull but quite firm in price. Oatmeal is a light sale. Prices are steady. Beans are quite firm but there is little doing. Yellow eyes have some demand. Barley has but a small movement and price is quite firm. Blue peas are quite scarce and hard to get. Hay is dull for local consumption. We quote: Manitoba flour, $1.65 to $1.70; best Ontario, $3.70 to $3.80; medium, $3.60 to $3.70; oatmeal, $3.80 to $4; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.35; middlings, $2.2 to $2.3; oats, 40 to 42c.; H. #### TRADE NOTES.

Geo. E. Barbour is expecting this week the third cargo of Porto Rico molasses for this present season.

Messrs. Jones & Schofield and Geo. E. Barbour have lately enlarged and very much improved their offices.

Messrs. W. Frank Hatheway & Co., packers of "Tiger" tea, are presenting their customers with useful souvenirs.

Mr. Ryan, of Lefebvre, Ryan & Co., manufacturers of vinegar and pickles, called on the trade this week. Mr. Ryan has many friends among the trade.

J. Hunter White has been appointed representative here for the N. K. Fairbank Co. Their compound lard and "Gold Dust" washing powder are almost staples with the trade.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 6, 1901.

TRADE continues fair, and to date all reports from the country are favorable, but it is generally conceded that we have had sufficient rain and a warm and fairly dry July would be desirable.

FLOUR—Trade fair and prices unchanged.

CEREALS—In merely normal demand and unchanged in price.

CANNED GOODS—The unfavorable reports from Ontario re strawberry crop have led to the withdrawal of all quotations from this market, and higher prices are expected. New pack peas have been shown the trade here, but quotations are not yet arranged. It is anticipated, however, that prices will be higher.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—The firmness of apricots reported last week continues, and an advance of ½c. per lb. is now reported in peaches.

DRIED FRUITS—Nothing new is reported in this market concerning currants and raisins. The demand for old stock is very light.

COFFEE—There is a further drop, and No. 5 Rio is now 9c. Little is being done.

SUGARS—Yellow sugars have advanced 10c. per 100 lb., but granulated remains unchanged.

GREEN FRUITS—Business has been much retarded owing to a shortage of fruit. Bananas, for which there is always a great demand here, have arrived in a most unsatisfactory condition. So much so, in fact, that a man has been sent direct to New Orleans by the Winnipeg Fruit and Produce Exchange to superintend the shipment of fruit to this point. The shipments of Ontario strawberries have been more unsatisfactory than usual, and that is putting it strongly. Ontario gooseberries arrived and were satisfactory, the price is $3 per 24-box crate. A few Californian apples came in during the week; these were quoted at $2 per box. Peaches, $2; plums, $2.25; apricots, $2. Cherries are over for this season. Oranges and lemons are in active demand.

CURED MEATS—Markets are firm and prices unchanged.

BUTTER—Creamery, 15 to 16c. factories, with poor demand for June make. Dairy butter offering large on a weak market.

CHEESE—Offerings fair and price 8 to 8½c. Winnipeg; 7½c. f.o.b., factories.

EGGS—Offerings decreasing and prices advanced to 11c. Winnipeg.

AMONG TORONTO RETAILERS.

EARLY CLOSING AND TRADING STAMPS. At the meeting of the Legislative and Reception Committee of the City Council on Tuesday considerable time was devoted to the proposed by-law to prohibit the use of trading stamps and to the amendment to the early-closing by-law which has been proposed in order to meet the technical objections of Judge Macdougall to the by-law as at present worded. The committee decided to recommend to the City Council that the trading stamp by-law be passed.

T. HOLMES ROBBED.

On Thursday evening last week, T. Holmes, 994 Bathurst street, left $6.90 on a shelf when he closed his store, in order that he would be reminded by it to pay an account early in the morning. On Friday morning, when he came down to open up, he found his front door open and his money gone. "I cannot swear that the thieves took anything else," said Mr. Holmes, "but I can swear about that all right." It seems that the thieves entered through the fan light above the door, which was not locked.

GROCERS' FAILURES.

Two Toronto grocery firms are in financial trouble this week. One of these, Adam Reddock, Parliament street, whose creditors were called to meet this week, became prominent last year in connection with his vigorous opposition to early closing. The other firm, Jeffs Bros., College street, had not been in business many years. They were enterprising grocers, but frequently cut prices and gave trading stamps. They assigned to J. P. Langley, and their creditors meet on July 15.

A MODERATE PACK OF LOBSTERS.

THE season for lobster fishing on the Atlantic coasts of Canada ended on Wednesday. Regarding the pack, a despatch from Ottawa says: "Early in the year enormous quantities of live lobsters were shipped from Western Nova Scotia, chiefly from Yarmouth, and also from points as far east as Richmond and Cape Breton counties, on Cape Breton Island. The catch was probably quite equal to previous years. Along most of the coasts the canning of lobsters by law does not commence for four or five months after the live lobster trade has begun. In Western Nova Scotia the canners found that in some localities the lobsters were extremely scarce, while in others a pack above the average was put up. The same holds true of Northern New Brunswick."

"On account of the shortage in the localities referred to, the Department of Marine and Fisheries has been asked to grant an extension of the season, but Sir Louis Davies decided before he left for England that no such enlargement was to be permitted. In view of the high prices which prevail the fishermen and canners will do better than the shortage would lead one to suspect. In the Straits of Northumberland and on the eastern shore of Cape Breton Island lobster fishing continues after July 10, but the industry there is not of such extent as to seriously affect the total pack."

PHOENIX, B.C., TRADE NOTES.

B. A. Reeves has opened up a fruit, confectionery, cigar and news stand in the Delahay building under the style of Reeves the Confectioner.

Vaughan & McInnis, last week, sold their butcher shop, stock and real estate in Phoenix to P. Burns & Co., who already have shops all through British Columbia. It is the intention to run the two shops in Phoenix.

J. E. W. Thompson, of Morrin, Thompson & Co., general merchants, is taking a much needed holiday in Nelson, B.C., and Columbia Valley.

"Chief Keokuk"

Pickles and Condiments.

"Montrose"

Tomatoes, Peas and Vegetables.

SOLD ON THEIR MERITS.

KEOKUK PICKLE CO.

KEOKUK, IOWA, U.S.A.

CURRENT MARKET QUOTATIONS

July 11, 1901.

This list is corrected every Thursday, and the quotations herein given are for the cities of Montreal, Toronto, St. John, N. B., and Halifax. The prices are solicited for publication, and are of such quantities and qualities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit. For Winnipeg market report and prices, see page 28.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices. All quotations for staple products are under the direct control of the Editors, who call daily upon all the leading houses in the principal centres.

What One Woman Says!

Windsor Salt doesn't cake. You don't have to run for the ice-pick and dig and scrape in the Salt box when a spoonful of Salt is needed. Windsor Salt is fine, dry and white—every particle of moisture has been removed from it.

"Windsor Salt Is The Salt For Me,"

so says one wise, little woman—"it saves me time, trouble and patience. There's not a woman in the land but would be glad to do likewise—save time, trouble, patience. Ask them and see. Suggest Windsor Salt—the Salt that doesn't cake.

COLES COFFEE MILLS

None better for Granulating or Pulverizing.

Our mills will Pulverize without heating Coffee.

Every Coles
Coffee Mill has a Breaker that breaks the Coffee before it enters the grinders, thus reducing wear of grinders.

A GREAT LABOR-SAVER.

Our Grinders
wear longest.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

The total shipments for Californian citrus fruits so far this season number 21,936 carloads, compared with 16,100 carloads for the same period last year. Of this season's shipments it is estimated that 1,600 carloads have been of lemons, the remainder oranges.

DAMAGE TO VALENCIA RAISINS.

Private mail advices from Valencia just at hand state: "The raisin crop was progressing favorably, and gave promise of a good yield, but, unfortunately, a few days since hail storms occurred in some districts, causing considerable damage, it being calculated that some 40,000 to 50,000 cwts. have been lost. This will naturally produce its effect with the remainder. Nothing is yet spoken of regarding the probable prices, and as yet no idea can be formed of what they will be." In this connection and commenting on the present outlook a leading importer of raisins said to-day: "The situation, with regard to the new crops of Valencia raisins, walnuts, almonds and currants, is uncertain. From now until these crops are nearly made the period is a critical one, and a great deal depends on favorable conditions of weather. Our last advices on Valencia raisins reported the outlook good for a large yield. Now, however, it appears considerable damage has been done by hail. Almonds and walnuts are liable to destruction from the same cause, although as yet no advices to this effect are at hand. The uncertainties surrounding the fruit crops make buying of futures purely speculative, and the experience of recent seasons has been that buyers here have not profited by purchases of the various products unmatured at the time of purchase. The odds are much in favor of the speculator, as if the price at the time the crops are gathered is low the advance sale at higher values is in his favor, but if the crop is short and prices higher than figures quoted on goods for future delivery the chances are deliveries of good quality will not be made, so that the buyer is perforce obliged to take inferior goods, or, if he rejects them, he is without stock, or is obliged to pay the higher prices."

TEA IN CEYLON.

Odell & Co., under date of Colombo, Ceylon, June 1, report as follows regarding the tea market: "About 28,015 packages have been offered since our last, of which 20,137 passed the hammer at an average of 30 cents per pound. The market is firm for good broken. Common sorts which are in large supply remain easy. The quality is poor and likely to remain so for the next six weeks. Shipments for May to the United Kingdom were 9 1/2 million pounds, and we estimate shipments for June at 10 1/2 million pounds."

HOLLAND HERRING CATCH.

Private mail advices from Viardingen, Holland, state: "The catch of herrings so far this season, has been small and somewhat disappointing to curers, as the fish landed have sold too high fresh to permit of packers using them. The outlook, according to reports at hand from the fleet, is favorable for a fair catch late in July, and until then there is little probability of much curing on a large scale."

THE MAINE SARDINE PACK.

In connection with the sardine pack mail advices from Boothbay, Me., report: "The run on fish in June was small and the quantity packed by the independent packers less than during the same period last year. For this reason the price has been firm on the present basis, which is somewhat higher than offerings by the syndicate. The latter, it is stated, is not taking orders ahead on the S3 basis for quarter oils, but some business at this figure has been done in a limited way for prompt shipment."

THE TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE regular meeting of The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association in St. George's Hall, Elm street, on Monday evening was well attended, as several important matters of business, including the arrangements for the annual picnic, were considered. Vice President W. J. Sykes occupied the chair.

T. Dowswell, Wellesley street; White Bros., Carlton street, and Chas. Callendar, Arthur street, were received into membership.

EARLY-CLOSING BY-LAW.

A letter was read from F. S. Mearns, solicitor for the association, stating that the City Solicitor had prepared amendments to the early closing by law to meet the technical objections raised to it by Judge Macdougall in his decision on the Reddock and Henry cases. The amendment would be placed before the Legislative and Reception Committee during the next few days.

CITY TRAVELLERS' HOLIDAYS.

A communication from The Wholesale Grocers' Guild informed the association that the guild would agree to recognize the fortnight, from August 5 to 17, as a uniform holiday term for Toronto city travellers, on conditions that wholesale houses, who were not members of the guild, agreed to do the same.

The following resolution was thereupon moved by D. J. Kelly, seconded by A. R. Williamson, and carried: "That in view of the fact that, at the request of the association, The Wholesale Grocers' Guild express readiness to observe from August 5 to 17, as a uniform holiday term for Toronto city travellers, we do now request all wholesale and jobbing grocery houses to fall in line, and grant their travellers holidays at this date."

TRADING STAMP LEGISLATION.

D. J. Kelly suggested that as the Legislative and Reception Committee had prepared a by-law to prohibit trading stamps and as there would likely be strong opposition to the by-law, it would be well to keep fully informed as to what was being done in the matter and to use all influence possible to induce members of the committee and of the council to favor the passage of the by-law.

The secretary reported that the proposed by-law had been passed upon by the City Solicitor, who considered it legally sound, and was now being considered by the solicitor of The Retail Merchants' Association, and by Mr. Urquhart, a member of the Legislative and Reception Committee.

The secretary was instructed to notify the members of the association when the by-law should come before the council for consideration.

THE EXCURSION.

The Excursion Committee reported that at their second meeting the sub-committees had been thoroughly revised, and were now as follows:

GAMES—D. W. Clark, J. S. Bond, R. B. Snow, D. J. Kelly, Jerry Burns, A. R. Williamson, T. Clark, J. Nolan, J. T. Scholes, F. Thorne and J. A. Johnson.

MUSICAL—T. C. Scott, F. Higgins, R. H. Stewart, A. White and R. W. Davies.

CONVEYANCE AND TICKET—W. J. Sykes, Benj. Panter and R. Robertson.

PRINTING—T. Holmes, W. H. Marmion, J. Blood, J. A. Farewell and Secretary McKinnon.

BUYING—F. W. Johnson, A. O. Robinson, J. Butcher and D. Bell.

The Games Committee reported that about fifty prizes in goods and about $150 in cash had been offered by the leading whole sale and jobbing houses for the prize fund, and that an excellent programme had been prepared, including a baseball match, a quito tournament, a relay race, etc.

The proposal to have a "Grocers' Parade" on the Monday evening previous to the picnic was considered at some length, but as it was feared that the parade might not be thoroughly representative it was decided not to attempt it this year.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

L. CHAPUT, FILS & CIE have just received a carload of 500 boxes of Brinsson's alimentary pastes. These are fine French goods and are put up in tasty packages. Every up-to-date grocer should see them.

New Thistle Haddies are offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Wilson's Fly Pads are being sold by pushing jobbers. They pay a large profit to both wholesaler and retailer.

"Crystal Beverages" are delivered in 5-case lots by Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

If you want to get a case of catsup free read The A. F. MacLaren Co.'s advertisement on page 10.

Stower's Lime Juice and cordial in quart and pints may be procured from Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Warren Bros. & Co. have bought the entire season's pack of The Strathroy Canning Co., for which they are quoting moderate prices to arrive.

The Kin Hee coffee which has been put upon the Canadian market by The Fly, Blain Co., Limited, has a large sale in the United States.

The Maritime Spice and Coffee Company, St. John, N.B., have received a shipment of Smith Bros.' Poison Fly Pads. These are large sellers at this season and are packed in 5 and 10c. packages.

The brigantine Iona and the schooner Josie arrived in Halifax a couple of weeks ago with cargoes of Porto Rico molasses consigned to The Dominion Molasses Company, Limited. The same firm also received from Barbados, 100 puncheons by schooner Kipling and 600 by s.s. Orinoco and a further shipment of 600 puncheons of Barbados per s.s. Orinoco. Intending purchasers should communicate with this firm before placing their orders elsewhere.

The Petersville & Hampstead Dairy Co., New Jerusalem, N.B., have opened up their new factory, manufacturing daily some 450 pounds of cheese.

Agnew & Co., grocers, Rossland, B.C., have moved into new and larger premises. They will enlarge their grocery stock, and probably carry a line of men's furnishings.

SUCCESSFUL COUNTRY STORES.

AS the big department stores multiply and flourish in the large trade centres, and as cut-price stores increase in number, the question naturally recurs: What are the chances for the maintenance of the country general store?

One thing is certain, says The Store-keeper, that country retailers agree that it is more difficult to do a profitable business now than in former years, owing, not alone to increased competition, but also to smaller individual purchases than in earlier years. The tendency, becoming stronger each year, is to buy for immediate requirements, and added to this, is the speedy, ready access to the larger, distant store—rendering it absolutely necessary to show the greatest appreciation of the minor orders and fill them with quite as much pleasure as they were formerly wont to do with the large orders. This attention is not only necessary but will pay in the manifested appreciation of customers.

The country stores, conducted on the same principles that draw trade to the city departmental stores, will continue to do a profitable business despite all the efforts put forth by the largest city emporiums or greatest of cut-price establishments. All that is necessary is to work as hard and perseveringly towards the turnover of goods. City clerks, managers and buyers are constantly being urged to greater extremes in judicious advertising, closer buying and greater attention to details, including the preference of customers, thus keeping interest constantly aroused. During this time not two out of every 10 country stores are putting forth the slightest extra effort at pushing sales, extending trade, arousing interest in the business by judicious advertising, or even displays, beyond the regular routine.

It may safely be said, and it could readily be proven, that in any township in Michigan where a good farming community exists, a good general store could be started in addition to the number already there, and do a prosperous business from the start. Where would this store get its trade? It would draw partly from the other stores near by and partly from the custom now going to the larger centres. The greater efforts put forth, and the greater genuine inducements offered, which should be done as well in the village as in the city, the greater would the trade be enjoyed. It would require hard work and greater efforts to sustain; but why should a man expect to win out with less energy if doing business in the country than if doing business in the city, where he would be compelled to move fast or be run over? If he could, all a man need to do in order to have a "snap" would be to move out of town. The country merchants who have made a success of the general merchandise business are those who can retail no such "snap" as might be inferred as existing prior to the days of cut-price stores in the cities. Judicious and frequent buying in small lots, permitting no old, unsalable goods to hold a place on the shelves, no old, questionable accounts kept alive on the books, nor any new, questionable accounts to be opened, are among the resolves of these wide-awake dealers, who go ahead from decade to decade paying 100c. on the dollar and gradually acquiring their own houses and, perhaps, a nearby farm as a source of additional revenue and satisfaction. As the dwellers of the country become acquainted with the ways of city stores they will become better customers of the first-class country store, if its owners but insist on keeping its prices, bargains and goods before the public with the same determination shown by the city merchants. The latter can never expect to gain quite the same confidence of their out-of-town customers as the conscientious, enterprising dealer in their midst.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Provisions in South Africa—Miscellaneous Notes.

PROVISIONS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

J. G. STOWE, consul-general at Cape Town, South Africa, writes to the United States Department of State as follows: "As the British Government has prohibited the use of United States meat for army purposes for a certain period, and as the great bulk of the tinned meat bought by the military authorities of Great Britain has been sent here (Cape Town), I have been making investigations with a view to finding if objections have been made to the American product. I obtained permission for an American, who was proceeding to Johannesburg, to stop at the different military bases and make inquiries. I give the substance of his report below:

"Thousands of empty tins which have contained American beef are strewn throughout the entire route to Pretoria. The percentage of Australian is very small; I should think less than 5 per cent. of the whole. At De Aar, Bloemfontein, Kroonstadt, and lesser bases, large stores of American corned beef are to be seen. The men, when questioned, state that it is very satisfactory, and I was informed by several officers that in many cases the men preferred tinned meat to the poorer fresh article.

"There is a large stock of American meat at Pretoria. All the stores and shops carry it, and have had no complaints as to its quality.

"I have ascertained that it is the custom at the bases to use cases of corned beef as floors, putting a layer of cases on the ground and piling thereon flour, meal or other commodities which it is desired to protect from moisture. These cases are often so used for several months before being sent out as rations, and the tins become rusty and small holes let in the air, thus spoiling the meat, although the tin is not blown. This, in my opinion, is the principal cause of complaint.

"The importation of frozen meat is in the hands of The De Beers Company, which has erected several substantial depots and installed ice making machinery, imported from the United States, thus reducing the price of frozen meats to the consumer. It also imported refrigerator cars for transmitting meat up country. The company now proposes to import from Australia frozen hog products, hams, shoulders and bacon, and to cure these after arrival. It is reported that the difficulty in curing frozen meat had been solved in New Zealand, and that a London company is applying the new process. It would seem cheaper to import cured meats than to import frozen ones and cure them. The import of hog products into South Africa up to date has been limited."

PRODUCE IMPORTS INTO LIVERPOOL.

According to the weekly circular of the Anglo-Canadian Produce Co., Limited, the imports of dairy produce and provisions into Liverpool this year up to June 13 and for the corresponding period last year were as follows:

|                       | To June 27. | To June 26. |

THE WM. DAVIES CO., LIMITED, EXTENDING.

The Wm. Davies Co., Limited, Toronto, have taken out a permit for, and commenced the construction of, a $25,000 addition to their factory. The new wing will adjoin the northwest corner of the present factory and will be devoted to the meat canning department, which is now in the same building as the packing department.

The company have also decided to erect a $5,000 dining hall for the employees of the factory. There is a dining hall on the premises now, but as this is rather small a larger and better building will be erected.

THE PROVISION MARKETS. TORONTO.

The demand for meats, though still small, has improved somewhat, and dressed hogs and beef have advanced  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  c. per lb. The deliveries are moderate. We now quote as follows: Dressed hogs, \$9.25 to \$9.50 per cwt.; sheep, \$6 to \$7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, \$7.50 to \$8 per cwt.; spring lambs, 11 to 12c. per lb.; beef carcasses \$7.50 per cwt. for best and \$6 to \$7 for mediums; hind quarters,  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to  $9\frac{1}{2}$  c. for best; fore quarters,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to  $5\frac{1}{2}$  c. for best; calves, \$8 to \$8.50 for best and \$6 to \$7 for mediums.

The market continues stiff. Live hogs are  $\frac{1}{4}$  c. per lb. dearer. Rolls and hams are  $\frac{1}{2}$  c. higher. The demand keeps good. We quote as follows: Long clear bacon, 11c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon,  $14\frac{1}{2}$  to 15c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  c.; medium hams, 13c.; large hams,  $12\frac{1}{2}$  c.; shoulder hams, 11c.; backs, 14c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, \$19.50 to \$20; Canadian short cut, \$21; lard, tierces,  $10\frac{1}{4}$  c.; tubs, 11c.; pails,  $11\frac{1}{4}$  c. Live hogs are selling at \$7.25 to \$7.50.

MONTREAL.

American pork has declined  $\frac{3}{4}$  c. per lb. on this market, while Canadian varieties are unchanged. The demand is not heavy for smoked or salt meats at this season of the year. Lard is being sold under a guarantee of 90 days, an indication of the view manufacturers take of the market. We now quote: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, \$20.50 to \$21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, \$21.50 to \$22.50; family short cut back pork, \$20.50 to \$21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, \$20 to \$21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, \$2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), \$1.88 for 1 to 24 pails; \$1.86 for 25 to 49 pails; \$1.82 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, \$1.65 per pail; Cottolene,  $9\frac{1}{4}$  c. per lb. in tierces, and  $10\frac{1}{4}$  c. in 20-lb. pails and 10c. in 50-lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Pork is still firm at the high figures; sale light. Beef has some little movement. It does not show the same advance, being about half the price of pork. American is used. Lard is a good stock. The sale is good even at the high price. The demand is for pure.

RINGING UP BY PROXY.

Scene—Manager's Office in Jones' factory.

Jones—"Croney! Ring up Mr. Johnson, of Johnson & Co., wholesalers, and tell him I want to speak to him."

Croney (aged 15)—"Side track 1234. Hello. Is Mr. Johnson in? May I speak to him, please? (Pause). Is that Mr. Johnson? A minute please. Mr. Jones would like to speak to you."

"Mr. Jones, Mr. Johnson is at the phone."

Jones—"Very well. Ask him to wait a minute."

Scene changes to Johnson's office.

Office Boy—"Mr. Johnson! Mr. Jones would like to speak to you at the phone."

(Mr. Johnson goes to the phone).

Johnson—"Hello! is that Mr. Jones?"

(Then follows the above conversation, and Jones is asked to wait a "minute." He waits. He waits 10 seconds, and becomes restless. He waits 30 seconds and by that time is wrathful and foaming at the mouth. Finally comes the answer.)

Jones—"Hello Mr. Johnson. Sorry to keep you waiting, but I was very busy. Say, I have some more of that last size of our brand run off, and I thought, perhaps, I could sell you some. They turned out well."

Johnson (in a rage)—"Do you fancy that you are the only man in town that is busy? Keep your — old goods." Hangs up the phone.

Jones then begins to wonder why. Here's why:

1. He should have gone to the phone himself, instead of sending his boy.
2. He should have known that by asking a man to keep the telephone at his ear 30 seconds he is giving him an hour's trouncing.
3. He was asking Johnson to return good for evil, and men who comply are as scarce as hen's teeth.

ELECTRICAL EFFECTS FOR WINDOWS.

HOW TO WIRE.

IN some of the larger stores an electrician is employed, and when the trimmer requires anything in electrical work done, he simply calls on the electrician. These cases are exceptional, for in the majority of stores the window-trimmer is thrown on his own resources and has no one to help him out of his difficulties, and if he is not posted on electrical appliances his designs are not properly illuminated—a deficiency that annoys the conscientious trimmer as well as his employer.

While I do not understand electrical work thoroughly, and am not a good critic on such matters, yet I have had enough practical experience to enable me to do my own wiring, and the following remarks may prove of value to some of my confreres in the profession who wish to enhance their displays by modern lighting and mechanical effects.

Electricity, properly applied, is an important factor in selling goods through the show window. Therefore, the window-trimmer who understands wiring his own windows is a more valuable man to his employer than one without this knowledge. In the following I shall try and explain simple wiring as minutely as possible, without using technical terms.

If you have permanent lights in your windows, the first thing to do is to have a "cut-out" placed on the inside of the window with, say, a 50 volt circuit running to it from the street wires. Any dealer who keeps electrical supplies will show you what a "cut-out" is and how it is used; also the other articles that I may mention.

Any electrician will put this "cut-out" in for you in a short time. This saves you "tapping" the permanent wires, which should not be done, as it weakens the permanent lights. Be sure to ascertain the voltage, or, to be plainer, find out how many lights your "cut-out" will carry. Before you begin your work you must have sufficient tools to work with, and sufficient supplies to meet any case of emergency.

The following is a list of what is generally required :

- A pair of nippers to cut and twist wire,
  - Brace and bit,
  - Screwdriver,
  - An old pocket knife,
  - A burner (candle will do).
- The list of supplies :
- A bundle of No. 10 or 12 wire,
  - A roll of insulating tape,

Porcelain knobs,
Sockets,
Bushings,
Solder.

The last item you can get prepared with resin, and it needs no acid to make it adhere. No quantities are mentioned in the list, as that will have to be decided by what you intend to work out.

First of all, I will explain the difference between "arc" wiring and incandescent. If we had a row of "arc" lights to put up, we could run our wires as in Fig. 1. The current going to the first light passes through to the next, and so on, until it reaches the last light, when it returns to the dynamo at the power-house.

With incandescent lights we run two wires parallel and make our connections as in Fig. 2.

This is called "multiple arc." Each lamp is independent of the others, and if one "dies" the current passes through the others uninterrupted.

Now for the wiring. We will suppose you have a straight board 5 ft. long and you want to put lamps on it. Proceed as follows: Space out your distances and bore a hole wherever you want a lamp. Make this hole large enough to take the holder (or socket, as they are called). After wiring each socket with a piece of "cord wire" (that is, the twisted cord wire as used for suspending lamps with), place one in each hole. Leave enough of the cord to connect to the main wires.

Fig. 3 will illustrate it.

After each light is connected to the "mains" (that is, the wires that convey the current), take a piece of insulation tape about 4 in. long and wind it around the exposed joints thoroughly. This is to prevent it coming in contact with another wire that might cause a "short circuit" and blow your lights out. The "short circuit" will be explained later.

To join the wires together cut about 1½ in. of the insulation off the wires, and then scrape them so as they will be clean and bright, and then twist one tightly around the main wire. Do this on the opposite side, and cover with insulation tape; see Fig. 5.

After you have them well insulated you can proceed to join the main wires to the "cut-out" which supplies the current. First of all cut about an inch of the insulation off the ends of the main wires, then unscrew (just a little) the brass screws in the "cut-out," push the end of main wire under the screw head and screw it down tightly on the wire. Do the same with the other main wire on the opposite side of the "cut-out," put in your lamps and you will find they are lit.

Great care should be taken to see that the "cut-out" is properly "fused." The fuse in the "cut-out" is a piece of lead wire; its use is to prevent an accident, such as fire, etc. Should the main wires touch each other it would cause a short circuit. The fuse then "blows out," that is it melts and all that is required to start the lights again is a new piece of fuse wire put in the old one's place.

Care should also be taken not to allow the ends of the mains to touch each other, especially when connecting them to the "cut-out." If they touch it will blow out your fuse.

Insert the ends in the "cut out" one at a time and see that they are tightly screwed in. If you don't have them tight a lot of power is wasted. Also with loose joinings. It is always better to solder the connections, but I seldom do so as I join them tightly. When I have a cluster of lights, say, four or five, I always solder the ends where they are connected to the "feed" or main wires.

The same principles as above explained will enable one to place lights in circles, horseshoes, and any other designs that may be required. The above remarks refer to a design where a single line of lights is needed, that is where they run uninterruptedly from one light to another.

But how about a design that cannot be wired that way? It is very simple, as the accompanying diagrams will illustrate. Notice where the connections are made.

These are very rough sketches, but will convey the idea. The following are a few "don'ts" for those not familiar with wiring:

Don't bring a wire through the floor or window without bringing it through a "bushing" (that is, a clay tube made for the purpose).

Don't forget to cut the wire where X is marked, as shown in Fig. 7.

If you forget it, it will cause a "short circuit."

Don't handle live wires; 110 volts won't kill you, but it is decidedly unpleasant, and through carelessness some day you may catch a stronger one. Practise caution.

When you get the electrician to put up the "cut-out," get him to run a switch in for you also, and get him to show you how to connect it to the wires of your design.

Don't leave a bare wire show from the street; cover it with the same color as the background.

Don't think the writer of these remarks knows all about electricity. He merely understands simple wiring like the foregoing examples, which is about all that is necessary to understand to get up neat effects with lights. If any of my readers are interested in electrical effects, he can generally get all the information he desires from any local electrician from whom he gets his supplies.

Don't be afraid to try it. A great many young fellows have a dread of an electric wire. There is no danger whatever connected with it, if caution is exercised.

I have a 75-volt circuit in all of my windows, from which I take my connection. I have been doing my own wiring for a number of years, and have never had the slightest trouble.

I did not know an iota about wiring when I first tried it, but, by asking questions from different electricians and by experiment at different times, I soon became acquainted with it. I find it very interesting and fascinating work, and at present I have some beautiful electrical effects in our windows which are receiving great comment. I trust I have made my ideas plain enough. If any reader has a design that he would like wired and does not know how to go about it, if he will send me a drawing of the design I will be pleased to forward him a diagram of how it can be wired and what it will cost to do the same.

HOMELY RELATIVES OF DIAMONDS.

The closest relative of the diamond is a smooth black substance called graphite, says a writer in St. Nicholas. In one form you handle it every day, for graphite is used in making lead pencils. Gas carbon is a cousin of the diamond, and is obtained, as you might imagine from the name, in the process of making gas. Only three things come from bituminous coal—gas, coal-tar and coke. Gas carbon is another name for coke. Now, the diamond gives exquisite and inimitable sparkles of light, which makes it of great value as a jewel; but it gives only the pleasure of possession. Its sober-hued cousin, coke, affords broad beams of light, making the path of night easy to travel and lessening the crime that used to prevail in dimly lighted streets, for from coke the long black pencils, or "carbons," used in arc lights are made.

A SMALL CODFISH CATCH.

THE Finmarken codfishing season has closed, and the smallest catch in 10 years is recorded, the number of fish taken being less than half of the number caught last year, bad weather having to a great extent interfered with the fishing. The following table shows the number of codfish taken each season during the 10 years from 1892 to 1901, inclusive, and also the amount of oil, in hectoliters, rendered each year:

| Years.     | Fish.      | Oil.  |
|------------|------------|-------|
| 1892 ..... | 20,000,000 | 3,900 |
| 1893 ..... | 12,800,000 | 2,100 |
| 1894 ..... | 14,900,000 | 4,500 |
| 1895 ..... | 8,200,000  | 2,500 |
| 1896 ..... | 13,900,000 | 9,500 |
| 1897 ..... | 12,700,000 | 3,900 |
| 1898 ..... | 8,400,000  | 4,300 |
| 1899 ..... | 7,800,000  | 2,600 |
| 1900 ..... | 14,000,000 | 5,400 |
| 1901 ..... | 6,500,000  | 1,800 |

The figures show also that the amount of oil rendered from this season's catch is disproportionate to the size of the catch when compared with the figures of other years. This is accounted for by the fact that a great part of the fish lives this season was used for tanners' oil, the figures given above showing only the amount of medicinal oil rendered. This was not the case with the Lofoten crop, where the number of fish taken was also the smallest in 10 years, but where the amount of medicinal oil rendered was much larger than resulted from the rendering during the season of 1900, when almost twice as many fish were taken. The following table, taken from the same source as the foregoing information, namely, The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter, shows the statistics of the Lofoten catches during the seasons from 1892 to 1901:

| Years.     | Fish.      | Oil.   |
|------------|------------|--------|
| 1892 ..... | 37,100,000 | 8,100  |
| 1893 ..... | 26,700,000 | 18,600 |
| 1894 ..... | 28,000,000 | 12,300 |
| 1895 ..... | 32,600,000 | 12,300 |
| 1896 ..... | 32,300,000 | 8,900  |
| 1897 ..... | 31,300,000 | 18,500 |
| 1898 ..... | 29,800,000 | 11,200 |
| 1899 ..... | 24,500,000 | 18,500 |
| 1900 ..... | 22,700,000 | 10,800 |
| 1901 ..... | 13,000,000 | 15,700 |

WM. ANDERSON LEAVING TORONTO.

Mr. Wm. Anderson, who for the past four years has represented T. A. Lytle & Co. in Toronto, has accepted a position on the road with John Sloan & Co., his territory being that covered until recently by Mr. Alex. Hill in Middlesex and Waterloo counties. In the departure of Mr. Anderson Toronto loses one of the most popular travellers in the city, one who has been a warm favorite not only with the retail trade, but with his fellow-travellers also. At the last annual meeting he was elected vice-president of the Toronto City Travellers' Association and was "slated" by the members for the presidency.

SUGGESTIONS TO EMPLOYEES.

A LITTLE booklet entitled "Suggestions," has been issued to its employes by the Canada Biscuit Co., Limited, Toronto. As other business men may find it to contain ideas which may be helpful to them we herewith reproduce it. It reads:

Anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

The working hours belong to the company. Time lost by you tells against its prosperity.

Do not waste anything.

Respect yourself and others will respect you.

There is a place for everything. See that everything is in its place.

Pluck and backbone are essential to success.

A good word honestly spoken about a company by its employes is the best kind of an advertisement.

Taste in putting up goods must be a leading feature with all who have this work to do. Goods well and carefully packed are half sold.

The head of every department is expected to see that his or her part of the factory is neat and clean at all times. "Soap and water are cheap, but dirt on goods is expensive." A tidy department means tidy employes.

This company desires to advance the interests of its employes. Do not hesitate to appeal to the manager. Reasonable requests will always be attended to.

A shut mouth will not catch flies.

What goes on in this factory should not be the subject of outside gossip. You would not like it in regard to your own affairs.

The company's success depends largely upon the cordial cooperation of its employes.

Let us not speak ill of our fellow worker. If we cannot say something kind it is better to keep our mouths shut.

Human sympathy is the brightness of life. A kindly look and a friendly word may send a fellow toiler on his way rejoicing.

Politeness does not cost anything.

Not "what is my due," but "what is my duty."

All that we expect of you is to do your best.

Weeks are made of days, days of hours, hours of minutes.

It is worry, not work, that kills.

Measure with a rule, not with your thumb.

Sixteen ounces make a pound. Give it every time and take it too.

Never misrepresent goods made by this company. Brown sugar goods are not made from white sugar.

Don't run down your competitor. He may make and sell as good goods as your own.

We would like you to speak of this company, while in its employ, as our company, if you feel that you are of it and with it.

If you can suggest any improvement in the manufacture or packing of goods, or in the mode of doing any work, don't think that it is not worth mentioning. Every suggestion will be considered, and if of value to the company, you will be rewarded.

Our success depends upon your using your brains as well as your hands. We need your best thoughts.

When you remember that you are handling products which enter into the daily bill of fare of thousands of people, you will be as careful and as cleanly as if you were preparing the food for your own table.

If you see any material that is not strictly first-class, reject it. The company relies upon you to carefully guard its interests in even small matters. A soiled biscuit or piece of confectionery may be the means of our losing a good customer.

The company will ask as little work after regular hours as possible, but when demanded by the necessities of business, a willing and hearty response will be appreciated.

A "Suggestion Box" has been put up in the warehouse near the timeboard. Any employee who has a suggestion to make in the way of putting up goods; the making of new lines, or any suggestion by which the company can be benefitted the company will pay for it. Write your thoughts on a slip of paper, sign your name and the department in which you work, enclose it in an envelope and drop it in the box. The box will be opened twice each month and if the suggestion is a good one you will be rewarded.

THE COFFEE ESSAY CONTEST.

THE CONDITIONS.

1. No essay shall exceed 2,500 nor be less than 1,500 words.
2. Each essay must be signed by a nom de plume. Both the proper name and nom de plume of the writer must be written on a sheet of paper and placed in a sealed envelope across which must be written the nom de plume. This envelope, which will not be opened until the judges have made their award, can be placed within the envelope containing the essay or in another envelope and addressed to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front street east, Toronto.
3. The judges will be disinterested merchants.
4. Competition shall close on July 20, by which date all manuscripts must be in this office.
5. There must be two or more essays sent in by different competitors or no prize will be given; three or more essays or no second prize; four or more or no third prize.
6. The envelope in which each essay is mailed should have written across the corner the words, "Essay Competition."
7. All prize essays shall be the property of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The subject, it will be remembered, is "The Buying, Handling and Selling of Coffees." The 1st prize will be $15; 2nd, $10 and 3rd $5. Besides this, to each of the five essayists whose productions rank next to those winning the cash prizes will be awarded a copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER for one year.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

SALT

“Educate your customers in regard to quality.”

This is especially true with regard to Salt. You want your customers to buy Salt that will bring them in a good return—by producing the finest butter and cheese. You likewise desire to sell Salt to housekeepers that will not set hard in the salt cellar or dredger, and that possesses the pure, sparkling, white color that first-class Salt alone can have.

Educate them thoroughly by advising them to buy Coleman's or Rice's Salt, and the results will give them confidence in your judgment forever after. These Salts are pure—they do not cake—certain to please.

Keep on Planting.

You remember the man who stopped planting his seed because he said the crows were getting more out of it than he was—he expected the seed to take care of itself. He stopped planting and his creditors took his farm—he's flagging trains at a way-station now.

It pays to plant good seed, but you must cultivate it after it's down and by-and-bye you'll get a crop that will surprise you. Plant "seeds of confidence" now among your customers—it pays. If the first lot doesn't come up, "keep on planting," and don't forget to cultivate them after they're down.

REAPING THE HARVEST

Throughout the land the farmers are busy gathering the results of their sowing. Much of its success depended upon the wise selection of the seed and careful planting.

Suppose the farmer had reasoned something after this fashion—"Wheat is only wheat anyway—by buying this cheaper kind I will be saving something worth while."

If he did, he is likely reaping a harvest of barren regrets now.

So with the business man if he dreams for a moment that anything but the highest quality of goods is going to yield a profitable harvest—he is making the same serious blunder as the farmer.

MOLINA ROLLED WHEAT is at the head of its class and its fast increasing sales are the result of its superior quality. It is packed in barrels of 100 lb., and in kegs of 50 lb. and made only by

THE TEA TRADE FOR TWELVE MONTHS.

[From a Report of W. J. & H. Thompson, London, Eng.]

IN the statistical record of the twelve months ending 31st of May, which we print at foot, will be found much that is of interest, and even a little that is encouraging amidst the disappointments which so many have suffered.

The figures show the great producing powers of Indian and Ceylon plantations; unlooked for vitality in China's export trade; a larger volume of business than ever before, but—a decline in the average value of our product so considerable as to seriously affect the welfare of nearly everyone connected with the industry.

As a year ago, so now, the statistics relating to home consumption have been disturbed by the heavy clearances before the budget, and do not enable us to gauge what increase there has been, if any. We incline to the opinion, however, that consumption is increasing, notwithstanding the raising of retail prices necessitated by the advance in the duty. That the proportion of British-grown tea used has increased is certain. But important as this would be if supply and demand were evenly balanced, it is of comparative insignificance at the present juncture, for production has outstripped the combined requirements of home and foreign markets, and a limit has been found, for the present, to the quantity that can be taken at prices that will pay the producer. To this untoward fact the decline in value must be directly attributed. The fall would probably have taken place 18 months ago if it had not been for the heavy speculative transactions in anticipation of the budget of 1900; it has been accentuated by the reaction which followed, by the strain upon the trade's resources caused by the high duty, by the heavy and poor crop, and to some extent by the use of unsuitable chests.

To revert to a higher standard of quality, where it is possible, appears to us of primary importance. The stocks held everywhere consisting of inferior tea, the turn for a finer crop has come; London and provincial buyers ask for it and will handle it with more confidence, whereas they regard with foreboding the possibility of another large and common one. It is quite true that trade has been stimulated in the past by abundant and cheap supplies, but a low quotation alone, without merit in the tea itself, no longer brings new customers, and a larger business without profit benefits no one but the shipowner, the warehouse keeper and the Customs house.

We emphasize the need of listening to what the home trade says, because they are in touch with consumers; while taking, as they do, 80 per cent. of the total output of India and Ceylon they ultimately determine the value of the whole, wherever sold or however distributed.

We pass on to consider the markets outside the United Kingdom open to us, and the best means of gaining entrance to them. The fact that of the tea used at home only 5 per cent. now comes from China shows how little margin there is for increased sale here of British-grown tea, and illustrates the importance of finding customers elsewhere. Useful and even necessary as advertisement, subsidy, and the intelligent work of special agents have been in countries where our tea was practically unknown, we have now to rely upon business expanding through the regular channels of trade, to work upon a commercial basis, and to trust to our ability to sell cheaper and better tea than can be obtained from other sources.

There is not room for a much larger business with Australia, which already draws from Calcutta and Colombo 80 per cent. of its supply (leaving only some 6 or 7 million pounds of China tea to be displaced), and can obtain from those markets all it wants, as London buyers will probably be ordering less this year. Canada takes about 45 per cent. of its import from us, leaving some 13 or 14 millions of Japan and China tea to be displaced. The trade with Asia is becoming useful, as it takes tea of which there is sometimes an over-supply, thus relieving this market. Germany, South America and South Africa are still small outlets though steadily growing.

There remain the great markets of Russia and the United States, using annually some 180 million lb. Of these, the Russian is the more hopeful, because it requires black tea, appreciates quality, and is taking more from us every year, by direct importation or from London; it, too, is calling for better tea. Our trade with America continues to disappoint some who had not grasped the difficulty of persuading people who prefer tea uncolored or green to drink our strong black sorts. The attempt to manufacture tea to suit their tastes is enterprising, but we fear lest it be made in a way which will give trouble and bring disappointment to a number of individual growers, without substantial benefit to any one. It will take a decade to create a trade worth anything to us by means of specimens, unlike in make or flavor; for large distributors hesitate to introduce a new kind of tea to their customers unless they can rely upon a regular, uniform and free supply. We think that if Americans had this matter in hand on their own account they would rent for a term of years estates capable of producing, at the lowest possible cost, millions of pounds per annum, have it all made uniformly into two or three grades, procure men and materials from China for packing it in the way Americans like, give a constant supply, and undersell their rivals until the trade was made. It would cost money, but it might prove the cheapest and most effectual way of making a market—assuming, of course, that we can make unfermented tea that Americans will drink. Seeing that we have obtained less than 10 per cent. of a trade amounting to 84 million lb. per annum, after 20 years of heavy expenditure by planters and strenuous effort by the agents of London dealers, it is obvious that other means must be tried. It has been said that tea is not likely to become in America the popular beverage that it is here and in the colonies; but it may be that the small and declining consumption in the United States—now only 11.8 lb. per head per annum—is due to the astringent and unsatisfying nature of the Japan and China teas principally used, as compared with the softer and richer tea of India and Ceylon which other races of Anglo-Saxon origin find such a cheap and wholesome article of diet that their annual consumption has reached the rate of nearly 6 lb. per head. It should be noted how largely the use of tea here has increased since the introduction of our own in place of Chinese growths.

As regards the home trade—which is the most important factor, inasmuch as our 12 millions of people, taking their 250 million lb. per annum, use nearly as much as the rest of the world put together—its position is financially sound. The tendency continues for business to come into the hands of the large specialists, whether dealers, blenders, or distributors, who, by absorption or purchase, seem to be getting the trade under their control at the expense of the small vendors. If this entails risk of possible combination of buyers against sellers, it finds some compensation in the larger financial resources they command and their greater power of holding stocks. It is of importance to growers that those who buy and pay for their produce should be financially strong and doing a profitable business; and we believe the trade have had a good year, though just now they are overstocked. Retailers having raised their prices to the extent of the rise in duty a year ago, and having bought the crops for about 1d. per lb. less than before, it might be thought that they had made 1d. per lb. more profit on all they have sold to the public; but they have not done that, for although their quotations may be 2d. higher the average of their sales is not. A great number of consumers pay no more now than when the duty was 4d., and it is owing to this that the increased tax has injured the growers; consumers in the aggregate are only paying a portion of it and producers are paying the rest: the middlemen are untouched, while those of them who took the 40 million lb. out of bond before the budget last year and have filled their stores with free sugar this, have made additional profits.

Our export trade is also healthy and growing; it is larger, indeed, than it has been for many years, notwithstanding that we have lost so much of the China trade that used to pass through London, but is now done direct. Nine years ago the total was about 37 million lb., of which only 7 million lb. were Indian or Ceylon; in the interval the volume of business has been gradually contracting, but during the past season it has risen to 43 million lb., 28 1-2 millions of this being British-grown tea.

We have said there is encouragement for producers even in the statistics of such a bad season as the last has been: we find it in the fact that the world is now largely dependent upon India and Ceylon, and in the evidence that the use of our tea is increasing. It is, therefore, not an exaggeration to say that planters hold the key to the position, and by combined action, resolutely followed on the lines indicated, have it in their power to recover a considerable degree of prosperity.

A Right Royal Reception

Such as is being prepared for the Duke of York, will cost a great amount of money. But, as it is a duty, a privilege and a pleasure, cost should only be of secondary consideration.

Have you participated in the reception that Means money for you?

The way in which our Bobs Tea has been received is simply surprising, indeed, beyond our most sanguine expectations. Its success has been remarkable.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

CURRANTS IN LONDON.

THE demand for currants continues steady and of a character to indicate that grocers are by no means overstocked. Although business with the outports and foreign countries has lately been unimportant, there is good reason to suppose that the London stock will be drawn upon to some extent to supply requirements in these directions right up to the end of the season. Considerable sales of new crop to the Continent are reported from Greece, but so far English buyers have shown no disposition to operate in new currants.—Produce Markets' Review.

DRIED APRICOT PROSPECTS.

"The situation on cured apricots is made and held entirely by the position of the growers who still own the fruit," says The Fruit World. "On spot orders dealers have gone in and purchased a few cars for immediate shipment, but do not show any inclination to take hold of this line for future purposes. Apricots purchased this week had to be secured at growers' prices. In the Vaca Valley growers are asking $1-1 to $1-2 cents per pound for the fruit in the sweat box, which means $3-4 to $4-4 cents f.o.b. the cars. San Joaquin Valley growers are also asking as high as 8 cents per pound in the sweat box for choice grade, which means $1-2 cents f.o.b. the cars. We note a few sales of San Joaquin Valley apricots at 7-1-2 cents in the sweat box, but asking prices are about a half-cent higher.

"The crucial period in apricot price-making has arrived. The situation is not as clear as it usually is and may not be so easily defined. The dealers are taking a few on orders, but with hot weather in the East and a holiday week all over the country they are as inactive as they would be if they thought there were a thousand or two thousand cars of cots out here this year, which, of course, there is not. The dealer is in an absolutely hold-on position and loses nothing by holding over. The canners have not used many apricots this year. That is certain. What the exact output of the apricot crop will be cannot be determined for another ten days, possibly two weeks. The trade claim that all the apricots shipped East last year have not gone into consumption and until the situation becomes a little more defined there will not be any market to speak of except that represented by growers asking prices."

THE BRAZILIAN COFFEE CROP.

The Brazilian Review of June 18 says of coffee: "Entries of new coffee continue to increase, and at Rio now represent about 30 per cent. of the total, the quality, however, being decidedly poorer than usual, even at this period of the crop. The weather continues all that can be desired and the trees look strong and promise well for the 1902-1903 crop. Large entries are expected in or after the second week in July."

CANNED SALMON IN ENGLAND.

The bulk of the salmon that was sold to arrive has now been practically delivered, and it is expected that the market will settle down on a firmer basis. Stocks are less than for some years past, and, with three of the best consuming months before us, it is expected that some grades of fish will be almost entirely cleared before the pack of 1901 should reach this market.—Produce Markets' Review.

CURRANTS IN NEW YORK.

There arrived Saturday to the trade here from Mediterranean ports 550 barrels of currants ex-Marco Minghette and about 800 barrels ex Pocabontas, or in all a matter of 1,350 barrels. The first of these arrivals was somewhat unexpected at this time, but both lots are said to go into strong hands and thus far are without material influence on the position of the market. The spot stocks, it is stated, have been considerably reduced by the moderate trade requirements from time to time, during the last two months, and the fact that there is several inquiries here from interior markets for round lots at a shade under the views of holders is taken to indicate first, that stocks in the country are very light and second, that prospective purchasers have a consuming outlet which is constantly calling upon them. Some purchases have been made within the last few days of 10, 15 and 30-barrel lots, the buyers being actually in need of the goods. Sales were made at from 9 1-4 up to 9 3-4c, for Amalia grades. At the moment little is known of the quality of the fruit just landed, but some of it is known to grade fine, and it is stated a considerable portion cost the equivalent of 9 1-4c. laid down. A leading dealer, commenting on the situation, said: "The arrivals reported, if they go into strong hands, as seems likely, cannot affect the spot situation for some time at least, if at all. The offerings from the other side on new crop have not interfered with the position seriously, as buyers are taking no stock in those speculative prices, since the output of the new crop is uncertain yet." —N. Y. Journal of Commerce, July 15.

THE RAW SUGAR MARKET.

Willett & Gray say of raw sugar: "The Java crop of sugar, estimated at 750,000 tons, is bound to have a very important influence on the markets here and abroad; here, because the bulk of the crop must eventually come here; abroad, because efforts to sell it will fail and only produce lower valuation. This is already shown in a decline of 4 1-2d. in London for Java this week under an effort to sell there in absence of buyers here; 73,000 tons were exported to America from Java in June by our cable message, and July exports will be very large also. The marketing of this large quantity of cane sugars must necessarily produce an adverse influence on the best and other sugars of the world, and it is now becoming evident that the trend of prices has turned downward again instead of upwards. To what extent the downward tendency may continue is not visible at present, and the general disposition among refiners, as well as importers, is to make as light or as little decline as is possible. A steady market is rather desired by all interests."

NEW CROP OF SICILY ALMONDS.

A private cable from the other side to-day quoted a price of 65s. 6d. on new crop of Sicily shelled almond f.o.b. in bags for October shipment. Last year there were prices quoted up to 120s., with a normal price in seasons of average crop of 50s. in bags. The prices quoted to-day are considered low compared with those ruling last year, but in the absence of definite crop news they have aroused little interest in the trade here.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, July 13.

NEW YORK PEA PACK.

Private mail advices from the pea-packing sections in New York State report a somewhat dubious outlook. The letter says: "Unfavorable weather conditions have interfered with the growth of the vines, and the pack of the finer grades will be light. At present it looks like a fair output of seconds and lower grades, provided the pea louse does not interfere. In some sections the pest is reported in evidence and doing considerable damage."

INDIAN AND CEYLON TEA SITUATION.

In their notes on Indian and Ceylon teas for June, McMeekin & Co. say:

Indians—The offerings at London public auctions were 43,000 packages, against 16,000 packages in the same month of 1900. About 1,500 packages were of new season's growth, and, being generally of fairly useful quality, the teas were readily taken by the trade at satisfactory prices. For old season's teas there was a dull tone during the month, with a lower tendency for the common grades, but at the close there was generally fairly good competition and an improvement in the biddings.

The actual statistical position does not look better than it did at the end of May, but there are various indications justifying the hope that better trading conditions may prevail before long. The shipments from Calcutta to London up to the end of June of the new season's teas are 4,500,000 lb., behind the total at the same date in 1900, while reports still point to a late season and a reduction in the crop. Should producers show at an early date, by the figures of shipments actually made, a reduction of some 10,000,000 lb., the position in London would probably immediately improve, as the excessive stock now held would soon be absorbed and a more healthy basis for trading be established.

Ceylon—The offerings at London public auctions were 115,000 packages, against 94,000 packages in the same month of 1900. The quality was of a fair ordinary character, but not such as to induce any strong competition in a flat market. Medium grades were irregular and neglected, especially broken Pekoes, with a tendency to lower prices, and only really good teas maintained previous values.

On comparison, the statistical position of Ceylons looks fairly healthy, especially having in view the reduction in imports, as compared with last year, which may be looked for. The imports for the three months of April, May and June have successively shown a decline on last year's figures, but the shipments made during June from Colombo are a good deal in excess of the estimates.

WONDERS OF A BIG HOTEL.

I was with considerable regret I parted with my old friend, Jno. W. Lee (now managing J. T. Connor's Roxbury grocery), to whom I owe so much of the pleasure of my Boston visit, and took steamer for New York. On my arrival there I had occasion to visit the far-famed Waldorf-Astoria. This establishment was to me such a revelation, that I feel a short description will be interesting to you. This mammoth hotel is said to have cost $6,000,000 to build and $1,500,000 to furnish. The stock rooms in the basement interested me. They were like those of some large wholesale grocery, and they had a thorough system of weighing and checking goods on entry, and nothing can go out until it is properly charged to the various departments. They have imported for themselves a wonderful variety of European canned goods, many of which I had never seen before. The kitchens were arranged in departments. Seventy-five cooks are engaged continually, and they use on an average 12 tons of meats per week, as well as 2,000 dozens of eggs, 7,000 lb. of butter, and 20,000 quarts of milk. I saw their man whose business it was to make the coffee, which kept him busy as he used up about 300 lb. each day. This one hotel is a veritable town of itself with its 1,400 employees and about an equal number of guests. Why, it simply staggers me to describe it in a brief way. A thing that amused me was to see in the kitchen 25 men washing dishes. After the soapy water they are placed in heaters and then they come out clean, dry, and hot. Their engine rooms are grand. They have three ice-making machines. A short description of this room alone would fill this page. The electrical switchboard with its indicators was about 40 feet long and 10 feet high. All the machinery was well kept, clean and bright. They have big carpenter and machine shops, employing a large number of men, fitted up with the latest and most improved machinery. Here they make their own improvements and alterations. The staff is kept constantly busy, as in such a mammoth concern the breakage and general repairs are enormous. After inspecting the basement and its various departments, for, as I said, the work is all done in departments, there is the soup department, frying department, roasting department, ice cream department, confectionary department, pastry department. In this last-named place they turn out beautiful flowers, figures, and real works of art, made of sugar. I was shown some made for a banquet that were simply astonishing, and reflected credit on the staff of designers. We took one of the elevators, walked through the large offices, visited the billiard room, with its frescoed ceiling, by Fowler, the Marie Antoinette room, the Turkish and Oriental room, the State banquet hall, lecture hall, seating 700 people, the large hall and theatre, where the charity ball is held, and then up to the 15th floor to the "Talk Studio," with its grand works of art, marble staircase and marble pillars, surmounted by recumbent figures—indeed, a most beautiful studio. With some people, a suggestion to stay at the Waldorf-Astoria is regarded as extravagant, but this is not the case, for their rates are reasonable, according to accommodation required. Mr. Boldt and his assistants have thorough command of every detail, and it certainly reflects great credit on the management in the smooth manner in which this large hotel is run. No friction of any kind—everything goes with the utmost precision and nowhere can guests be better cared for or kindlier treated.

Austin Nichol & Co. have a very large wholesale grocery establishment on Hudson street. They employ 350 hands and carry an immense stock. I was and large number of bookkeepers employed. They make a specialty of spices and sell a fine class of imported goods. Near there is the Schepp coconut warehouse, in which I had a short chat on the coconut trade.

HINTS ON CARE OF COCONUT.

I was cautioned not to place coconut near any goods of strong odor, such as soap or coal oil, and that it was also easily affected by moisture, and that it must be kept fresh if you desire to give satisfaction to your customers.

FEMALE GROCERY CLERKS.

In the large department stores I was surprised to see the number of young women employed in the grocery sections. In Macy's, a young woman was demonstrating MacLaren's cheese. I tried it for it is something one never tires of eating, and I was pleased to hear that it was meeting with a large sale due to the merits of the goods, backed by good advertising.

PEEP INTO A LICORICE FACTORY.

I was over in Brooklyn and saw the factory of Messrs. Young & Smylie, the celebrated licorice makers. The main building is 240 feet long, four storeys and basement, and I saw the well-known product of this firm being turned out in large quantities. There is no great amount of machinery required in the manufacture of licorice products, but what impressed me was the cleanness of the place, the number and different shapes and forms licorice is placed on the market, in plugs, pellets, tubes, pipes, wafers, sticks and a dozen other different forms. Major Smylie, one of the members of the firm, assured me of the wholesomeness of their product. Every care is taken to give the public an article of medicinal value combined as a choice confection. This is one of the oldest firms in the business, thoroughly reliable, and the members of the firm are gentlemen with whom it is a pleasure to meet.

Park & Tilford are the largest retail grocers in the city, having five large stores, employing about ### 800 CLERKS.

They also have a store in Paris. Having been in business for about 55 years, they have the grocery business down to a science. I went into their 72nd Street store, one of their branches employing 160 hands, and had the pleasure of renewing acquaintance with the manager, Mr. Easton Beechman, whose home is near Toronto. I was shown through this fine store, in equipment one of the best grocery stores I have ever been in, with a large stock of high-class groceries exceedingly well arranged. They carry some high-priced goods, such as a special brand of butter at 75c. per pound, wine at $110.00 per case, or $10 per bottle. And I thought what a pleasure to sell to a trade that would buy that class of goods.

No visit to New York would be complete without seeing the Stock Exchange on Wall street, the Bowery, Central Park and other points of interest to which I managed to get around in my brief stay. There is an educational value in an outing among the trade of another city. One learns so much by seeing other methods, new goods, and new faces. It helps to get one out of the rut and you come home with the feeling that it is time and money well spent.

BROTHER CANADIANS.

One of my chief pleasures has been in meeting with so many brother Canadians in the cities of the United States, all worthily representing their country. Every man of them I met inquired eagerly for friends and about their homes, etc., showing that their affection and loyalty for the Motherland was deep-seated and real. One big jolly fellow from Ontario, said: "It's over twelve years since I left my old home, and I love it more, and think oftener of it to-day, than ever before." There is no question about it, Canadians as a rule are well-liked and succeed in the cities of the United States. They receive larger pay, many of them, than they would draw in Ontario, but to a great extent this is offset by the increased cost of living. Therefore, in the ordinary way I cannot say it is advisable for a young man to go across the line. There are exceptional cases, which are held up as an example of what a young man can accomplish by going over there, but this is only the exception and not the rule—just as there are some exceptional cases of progress by young men here at home—only some, however, hear of them from a distance—more often than we do at home, and this tends to unsettle our boys. More young men from the United States have come into Ontario last year than in any previous year, and to a greater extent than ever am I convinced that our country, to the average young man, affords as good prospects as any land under the sun. There may be some young men in a particular line of labor in which the United States may, on account of increased population, afford at the present time a greater opportunity for advancement. From the standpoint of a grocery clerk, looking for present employment and the hope of starting in a business for himself, there is no better field than this country.

In next week's paper I hope to answer some of the many letters written me during the last two weeks.

Arch. McMillan has opened a wholesale fruit store in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

The grocery and dry goods business of James & James, Perth, Ont., has been purchased by J. H. Mendels.

F. Axworthy, Walkerton, Ont., has bought the stock and business of Geo. E. Pay, grocer, of that place, and opened up for trade on July 2.

OTTAWA GROCERS' MEET.

A LARGE and representative meeting of the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening last week to discuss observing Wednesday afternoons as half-holidays during July and August. The meeting proved to be unanimous in favor of the proposition, and it was decided to secure as many signatures as possible to an agreement to observe the half holiday. Since then over half the total of members signed the petition, but several of these stated last night that they would not suspend business on the mid-week day unless all their competitors would do likewise. With one exception the grocers along Wellington street were opposed to the move, but those in business on Bank, Sparks and other streets, were more evenly divided. Another meeting will be held and an effort made to secure the cooperation of the dissenting members. The association held another meeting on Monday this week. It was decided to hold the annual excursion this year at Stanley Island, Ont., on August 14. They will proceed to Cornwall by the Ottawa and Cornwall line and take boat at the factory town for Stanley Island, passing through the rapids. Committees were appointed to make all arrangements.

CAN STILL FILL ORDERS.

Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, have just been advised that the factory of the Baldwin Condensed Milk Co., Baldwin Mills, Que., has been burned out. The storehouse, however, was not damaged, so that they have plenty of goods on hand, and the fire will not in any way interfere with filling of orders. They expect that the factory will be in operation again by September 15.

SUGAR BEETS ALL RIGHT.

Prof. Shuttleworth, of the Agricultural College, Guelph, says that the beet root sugar crop in the Province of Ontario this season will be good. He has just completed a visit to many of the districts which grow beets, and finds that the rain of the early spring, which it was feared would destroy the crop, has not injured them at all.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. F. Haggarth, general merchant, Canfield, Ont., was in Toronto this week.

Mr. J. F. Eby, of The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, Toronto, and his son, Douglas, have been in Cincinnati during the past week on business.

GROCERY STORE COLLAPSES.

R. Bogue, general merchant, Moose Jaw, N. W. T., had been excavating for some time in order to add an annex and to build a foundation under part of his store and was practically finished with that work when heavy rains undermined the existing foundation and caused the rear portion of the buildings to collapse. Mr. Bogue's grocery stock was almost entirely destroyed, the stone wall having fallen upon the shelves, and much damage was done to the boots and shoes and other goods. Altogether, it is estimated that $3,000 will scarcely cover the loss.

There were six persons in the store when the building fell, and their escape was almost miraculous. One of the clerks escaped midst falling canned goods, groceries, bricks and timbers. This is the second accident that has overtaken Mr. Bogue this year, his acetylene gas plant having exploded some months ago.

WILL DISCUSS THE CEYLON GREENS.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, of The "Salada" Tea Co., accompanied by his family, will sail on the Oceanic on July 24 on a visit to England. No doubt while over there he will thoroughly discuss the Ceylon green tea situation with the many persons interested there.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie are offering canned goods at very low prices.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have some very fine quintal and brick cod for the haying season.

"Meerschaum" tobacco, cut smoking, packages 10 to 1 lb., in stock with W. H. Gillard & Co.

The Eby, Blain Co. report large sales of the new breakfast cereal which they have just put on the market, called "Wheat-Os," a 2-lb. package of which retails at 10c.

A rapid sale is being made of New York ginger ale, of which W. H. Gillard & Co. are agents.

The "Salada" people say that last week's business was the largest they ever had, and greater than their entire output in 1894, the second year "Salada" was on the market.

VISIT FROM A FRUIT MAN.

Mr. C. J. Missir, of Missir & Co., Smyrna and New York, was in Toronto last week. He was introduced to the trade by Mr. Geo. Lightbound, and carried away pleasant recollections of the courtesies extended to him by the trade. Mr. Missir, who resides in New York, has just returned from a visit to his native land. When in Smyrna, Mr. Missir impressed upon his partners American ideas as to the conduct of his business, and, from a few minutes' conversation with that gentleman, one gathered that he was what might be termed "up to date" in matters appertaining to figs and raisins. Mr. Missir was also gratified with the liberal share of orders he carried away with him.

TRAVELLERS' HOLIDAYS.

THE more one contemplates upon it the more one is persuaded of the wisdom of the action of the wholesale grocers, spice manufacturers, etc., in agreeing upon a uniform period for travellers' holidays. The period, it will be remembered, is from August 5 to 17, inclusive.

The relaxation will be a pleasant one to the travellers, and will give them an opportunity of going off in twos or threes or more holidaying in a way that travellers know how to spend a holiday when an opportunity affords. Plans for fraternizing have already been made, those hailing from Hamilton and Toronto having been invited by their confreres in London to be their guests for Saturday, August 17.

The agreement to close was signed by over 60 firms, comprising wholesale grocers and wholesale dealers and manufacturers of spices and woodenware in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Sarnia, Collingwood and Brantford.

If there are any firms in any line allied to the grocery trade that have not yet fallen into line, it is to be hoped they will do so.

It is a matter that does not need a great deal of preparation. Give at the same time the city travellers their holidays, and thus allow all to have a good time together.

This holiday movement should not be confined to Ontario either. Let the wholesalers in all commercial centres in Canada fall into line. It is a season when trade is usually quiet, and letter orders can be depended upon to keep the wheels from getting rusty.

The names of the firms that have signified their intention to withdraw their travellers from the road during the period in question have already appeared in the columns of this paper, but we herewith reproduce them:

FROM THE PAN TO THE INDUSTRIAL.

THE proximity of the Pan-American should be a help rather than a hinderance to the Industrial Exhibition at Toronto, provided intelligent methods are employed by the managers to make it so. Toronto and Buffalo are only about three hours' journey apart, and, if the attractions of the former are properly brought to the attention of those who visit the Pan-American at the latter city, many of them can, doubtless, be induced to extend their journey to the "Queen City."

In fact, numbers of people who have been at the Pan-American are even now daily taking the journey across the lake to Toronto and other points in the Dominion.

We are pleased to note that the management of the Industrial is making some effort in the direction indicated, for every visitor will spend money that will directly or indirectly accrue to the benefit of the business men of this country.

Ideas are more likely to be caught than fish, provided one casts about diligently for them.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

THE question as to how far a firm or corporation can go in refusing to sell its wares to people who are able to pay for them has always been an interesting one.

A year or two ago one of the courts of the United States, we forget at the moment which one, ruled that the proprietary medicine combination could not be compelled to supply with its products firms who refused to comply with their conditions as to sale. And now the South Carolina Supreme Court has rendered a decision in regard to a telephone case which seems to be based on a premise somewhat to the contrary.

A Spartanburg merchant had in his store the 'phones of both The Bell Telephone Co. and The Citizens' Telephone Co. A fight being on between the two companies, the latter ordered the merchant to discontinue the use of the Bell telephone, and on his refusing to do so, removed its own instrument.

The merchant thereupon applied for a mandamus to compel the Citizens' company to restore its telephone, but the court before whom the application was made refused to grant the request. Nothing daunted, the merchant took the case before the Supreme Court of the State. And that court has just decided that a telephone company cannot deny the use of its instruments to an applicant because he persists in using the lines of a rival company.

A business man can get along without advertising just about as well as a vessel without steam or sail.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT AND THE HIGH COMMISSIONERSHIP.

A CHICAGO paper says a movement is on foot to remove Lord Strathcona from the High Commissionership in London and appoint Sir Richard Cartwright in his room and stead.

We hope it is only an idle rumor. As long as Lord Strathcona can be persuaded to retain the office it is to the interest of Canada that he should do so. He is easily the best High Commissioner Canada has had in London during the 18 years the office has been in existence. His personality, his business ability and his liberality have made him invaluable to Canada, and to replace him by one who has administered the chief business portfolio of the Government in such a perfunctory way would be a mistake most grave.

Our criticism of the High Commissioner's office in the past has been because of the attempt to impose upon it as well the duties appertaining to a bureau of commercial intelligence for the use of business men in Canada who desire to find a market for their products in the United Kingdom. This it cannot do, at any rate, as it is at present constituted. The function of the High Commissioner's office is chiefly diplomatic, not business. The latter is merely a sub line to it.

What Canada wants, and what the business men of Canada demand, is a commercial agent who shall give his whole time to the duties of the office. He must be a Canadian of practical business experience, and one who is conversant with the resources and affairs generally of the Dominion. Such men are not relatively numerous, but there are enough of them to enable the Government to make a wise selection.

Sir Richard Cartwright has been importuned again and again by business men and by the press to make such an appointment, but he has done nothing, nor has he evinced any intention of doing anything. In the meantime the interests of Canada are suffering, but the Minister of Trade and Commerce does not appear to be at all perturbed.

We do not like to impute motives, but the High Commissionership would doubtless be an acceptable place of refuge to Sir Richard, and he is possibly hoping some day to occupy the office and administer a commercial agency as well. But whether we are correct or not in imputing such motives to the Minister of Trade and Commerce we know full well that he has failed to comply with a demand that every business man and every newspaperman in the country knows to be in the interest of the Dominion.

We believe that the portfolio for which Sir Richard is best fitted is that of Minister of Finance. There is probably no man in Canada to-day in either of the two political parties who has the grasp of financial matters he has, but his cavalier treatment of business men has made him so unpopular with the commercial and manufacturing interests of this country that his appointment to the office would have raised a storm of indignation that would have been decidedly unpleasant to the leader of the Government.

Since appointed to the portfolio of Trade and Commerce he has, by his inertia and by his non-compliance with their reasonable requests, further increased the displeasure of the commercial interests of the country toward him, and to send him to London as High Commissioner would only still further accentuate it.

REFRIGERATOR CAR SERVICE.

WHOLESALE produce dealers are complaining of the way in which butter, shipped in refrigerator cars subsidized by the Dominion Government, arrives at their warehouses. The Government provides by means of generous subsidies for a regular service of refrigerator cars which covers practically all the principal dairy sections.

This system is important and well-devised, and is much appreciated by all interested. But of late, evidences of carelessness or inattention have accumulated. Butter sent by this system, and supposedly in refrigerator cars, has arrived in soft, unsatisfactory condition. It has been, in fact, little better, if as good, as that shipped in ordinary freight cars.

As inattention in such matters causes direct loss to those interested it is not surprising that the wholesale dealers should be objecting strongly to the treatment they are receiving.

THE HEAT AND EGGS.

THERE is no produce that is affected more speedily by weather conditions than eggs; and consequently there is no line that is showing greater deterioration at the moment than this commodity.

Practically every shipment being received by wholesale dealers now shows a big "loss off" or "shrinkage," due to deterioration caused by the extreme heat. The loss from this cause is, in fact, greater than at any time for years, except possibly during a few days last year. The loss runs from 2 doz. per case to as high as 6, 7 or even 9 doz. per case.

This condition of affairs is not confined at the moment to the large Canadian centres, but is equally true of the principal United States cities.

One result of this condition of affairs is to cause wholesale dealers to handle carefully all shipments at time of receiving, and to charge back against shippers for all "loss-off." In view of this decision, it would be advisable for outside merchants to candle all eggs bought by them so as to charge the farmers for all deterioration. Even this will not save them from loss as there is sure to be shrinkage between the time of their receiving them and the time they arrive in jobbers' hands.

FINE QUALITY INDIAN GREENS.

A feature of the tea trade in Toronto is the samples of Indian green teas that are being submitted to the trade this week. They are from the Dooars and Sylet districts, and they are being offered at a most favorable price. But their chief recommendation is their quality. Those who have tested them say they are beautiful in style, and in cup quality exceptionally good. One dealer declares they are the finest he ever saw.

Hitherto green teas of India shown here have not been properly made.

But, however excellent the quality of the Indian teas may be, the attention of the public must be drawn to them if they are to become an important factor in the market, here in Canada or the United States.

HINTS TO MEN WHO ADVERTISE.

TASTY SEASONABLE "ADS."

AN advertisement that caught my eye the other day was that of Findley Acker & Co., the Philadelphia retail grocers. It was not its particular uniqueness that attracted me. It was its neatness of display and appropriate wording. I cannot reproduce it exactly as it appeared, not having the cut of the tea package. It has been found necessary to put rule work in the place of the cut. And any retailer who may want to make the advertisement the basis for one in his local paper can also employ rule work with appropriate wording in the centre. The following is almost a fac-simile reproduction with the exception already noted :

SOME FIGURES FOR BUSINESS MEN.

The average business man believes in sending out 5,000 to 25,000 circular letters now and again. He calls it cheap advertising. Is it? asks National Provisioner. Let's see: 10,000 circulars or circular letters mailed one time at 1c. each cost $100 for postage alone. If they are imitation typewriter print with each name written in to fool and entice the recipient, they will cost fully $50. The envelopes for mailing them will cost $25 more if they are of good quality. That means a total cost of $175 at the lowest to get these circular letters into the mails as circulars. If the deception is carried to the limit, a 2c. stamp must be put on to rob the affair of its circular character. That means $200 instead of $100 for postage, or a total cost of $275 to post 10,000 imitation typewritten letters at one mailing. To this must be added the office boy, or cost of addressing them.

Well, they go forth. How many of them find the waste basket without being read? How many are only seen by the mail opening clerk only?

A good trade paper will carry a full page ad. one time to 10,000 subscribers, and the thousands of others who borrow and read it. That costs $60 to $75. What a difference.

Now bookkeep it :

|                                                               |       |
|---------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Circulars, 10,000, sent as letters at one mailing.            | $275 |
| Trade paper, full page to 10,000 interested subscribers ..... | 7     |
| Difference in favor of trade paper .....                      | 200   |

Yet men willingly eat up their substance in circulars and growl at the economical and better medium, the respected trade paper.

The great business concerns advertise.

They do not waste money on circulars and letters which are not seen.

Wanamaker, Macy, Siegel - Cooper, Ehrlich, Hearn, Simpson, Crawford & Simpson, Adams Bros. and other great New York department stores advertise. They do not fill your mails and mail boxes with circular letters. The other big successful men do the same. It's the small fellow who thinks he has found a cheap method who uses the circular letter.

Just think it over and ask yourself if the page ad. in a good trade paper is not really cheapest of all of your commercial travellers.

SAY WHAT YOU MEAN.

On the Bowery there is one man who owns a number of stores, and over each he has hung a sign which reads, "The Cheapest Man on Earth." The popularity of a certain song attests that the world "don't like no cheap man"; what would be the opinion of the world on the "cheapest" man?

On the same classic avenue a mission has adorned its front window with white enamel letters, reading "Come in a few minutes." Why not now? Perhaps the soul of some tramp is thirsting for the living waters at the moment, and "in a few minutes" it may be too late.

Both of these signs, the one over the pawnshop and the other over a mission, are advertising mistakes: they teach an elementary lesson to all purchasers of publicity, and that lesson is, say what you mean.—Profitable Advertising.

NEW WHOLESALE GROCERY FIRM.

William Bremner, Henry Williams Zealand, Charles Bremner, Joseph Hannon Horning, Thomas Simmon Ford, of Mitchell; Albert Scarsbrook, of Petrolea, and David Little, of Guelph, merchants, have been incorporated to carry on business as wholesale grocers under the corporate name of The Grocers' Wholesale Company, Limited. The capital of the company is $100,000, and the head office of the company is to be at Hamilton.

KINGSTON GROCERS' PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Kingston Retail Grocers' Association, which is to be held on July 24 this year, is likely to be a big affair. The programme includes a baseball game between two local teams, horse races, dog races, newsboys' races, Black Watch and mechanics' race, Battery race, Comfort Soap race, shampoo contest, bicycle races, and other events. It is estimated that nearly $1,000 will be given in prizes. The 14th Battalion band will be in attendance,

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

CONSIDERING the hot weather, a nice trade is being done this week. The most unsatisfactory feature of the trade is the sugar market, the demand being disappointing and prices weak. Canned goods, on the other hand, are in a rather more favourable condition, that is, as far as spot goods are concerned. Very little is being done in futures. Coffees are still meeting with a fair demand. Teas are quiet. There is quite a demand for currants, and business is keeping up well in prunes. Valencia raisins continue dull and weak. Prices on new season's fruit have been received here. They are lower than they were a year ago. Such goods as syrups, molasses, rice and tapioca are quiet. Payments are fair.

CANNED GOODS.

Quite a little business is being done in canned vegetables for prompt delivery. It appears, however, to be largely the result of a speculative demand, born of the belief that new goods will cost more than the figures ruling to day for old goods. Both wholesalers and retailers are buyers of old goods. Some of the wholesalers report that they have been able to get rather better prices than they could a week ago. The fact that the syndicate proposes, after August 15, to advance the price of canned tomatoes of 1900 pack 2½c. per dozen and that of peas and corn 5c. per dozen is no doubt influencing the demand to some extent—something, no doubt, that the syndicate earnestly desires. Spot goods are selling, as a rule, at 75 to 80c. for tomatoes and 75c. for peas and corn. The quotations for futures, which, in the absence of business, are nominal, are 85 to 87½c. per dozen for tomatoes, 80 to 82½c. for peas and corn, and 80c. for beans. Pea packing is about over, and it is expected that the pack will not be large. It is expected that the pack of tomatoes and corn will be rather late.

A number of transactions between packers and wholesalers are reported in canned strawberries and raspberries, but very little is being done on retail account. The ruling figures at which raspberries and strawberries are being quoted to the retail trade are as follows: Strawberries, $1.50 in syrup and $1.75, preserved; raspberries, $1.45 in syrup and $1.70, preserved.

A good sorting-up trade is being done in canned salmon at $1.60 to $1.65 for Fraser River sockeye, $1.50 to $1.55 in northern sockeye, and $1.20 to $1.25 for cohoes. Fraser River sockeye for future delivery is still quoted at $1.45 for less than 10-case lots, and $1.42½ for 10 case lots and over. Northern sockeye for future delivery is quoted at $1.30 for less than 10 cases, and $1.25 for 10 cases and over. Very little is being done in futures, there being a disposition on the part of the wholesalers not to court business until affairs became more settled on the Coast. A telegram received in Toronto on July 16, read: "Expect a short pack on the northern rivers; Fraser river not started."

COFFEE.

The outside markets are small and featureless with prices fairly steady. Business keeps fairly good on the local market. We quote: Green Rio, No. 7, 7¼c.; No. 6, 8¼c.; No. 5, 8¾c.; No. 4, 9¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are quiet and featureless. Crop news from Louisiana is generally of an encouraging character, the indications being for a large output of molasses. The market in the meantime is dull with prices steady. We quote as follows: Corn syrups, barrels, 3c. per lb.; half-barrels, 3½c.; kegs, 3¼c.; pails, $1.40 each for three gallons, $1.05 for 2 gallons. Sugar syrups range from 30 to 37c. per gallon, and New Orleans molasses at 23c. upward.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Rice is quiet and prices steady in the primary markets. B rice is quoted at 3½c. per lb. and Japan and Java rice at 5½ to 6c. Tapioca is dull and easy. We quote 4¼ to 4½c.

SPICES.

Trade is fair locally, with the outside markets quiet and steady, but without particularly striking features.

TEAS.

Recent cables indicate that although prices in Yokohama are not quotably lower, the tendency is in buyers' favor, and representatives of leading Japan houses anticipate being able to lay down this season good serviceable teas suitable for the 25c. retail trade at lower prices than last year. Advices just received from Ceylon confirm what we recently said in regard to the dissatisfaction among the growers there in regard to the returns on green teas. During the last week or two there has been a little revival of business on the local market in green teas. Very little is being done in Indian and Ceylon black teas on the local market this week. Latest mail advices from London under date of July 5 say that the previous Monday's sale of Indian tea "passed with fair spirit, especially for better liquoring kinds of new season's teas." In regard to Ceylon teas, Gow, Wilson & Stanton say: "Tuesday's Ceylon sale comprised 22,904 packages, while 9,839 were printed for the auction in the private room on Thursday. The former sale was neglected by many dealers, the bulk being in consequence withdrawn; a great deal of the taken-out tea was, however, sold privately afterwards. Thursday's sale passed with good spirit at prices fully up to rates current last week." The same authority also says: "The prospect for tea growers is slightly improved by the smaller quantity shipped from India since April 1 and from Ceylon since January 1, the aggregate showing a reduction of about 7,500,000 lb. This; when taken in connection with the steady increase in the use of Indian and Ceylon tea in outside markets, is a hopeful feature, but by no means sufficient to relieve the overpressure occasioned by the recent heavy increase in production. The surplus must be largely worked off before any substantial relief is afforded."

SUGAR.

Since our last report nothing new has developed in the local refined market. The consumption is small for the season, and disappointment is naturally being expressed. An increased trade is, however, looked for when raspberries and other small fruits come more freely upon the market. The beet-sugar market has been slightly irregular during the week. At one time it was  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. lower than at time of our last review, but prices recovered on Tuesday, the quotation now again being 9s. 3d. per cwt. f. o. b. Hamburg for 88 per cent. sugar. In the United States the refined sugar market is completely demoralized. The Arbuckles on Monday reduced their prices 10c. per 100 lb., their quotation for standard granulated now being \$5.35. While the Trust and the National refineries still quote \$5.50, it is understood they are really selling at \$5.45. McChan, of Philadelphia, is, however, meeting the cut of \$5.35. The market is even weaker in San Francisco than it is in New York, there having been a decline there of  $\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb., due, however, to a forced sale of 16,000 bbls. of granulated and to the anticipated large crop of beet sugar in California. Up to the time of going to press, no change has been made in prices in Canada.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—Stocks are exceedingly light on spot, and there is a good demand, both from wholesalers and retailers. On Wednesday morning a Toronto broker received an inquiry from a western wholesale house, but was unable to find any available stock. Prospects for the new crop continue favorable, and it is expected that the market will open 2c. per lb. below the price ruling to day for old fruit. The ruling prices are 10c. for Filiatras,  $10\frac{1}{2}$  to 11c.

for Patras, 12 to  $12\frac{1}{4}$ c. for 1-crown Vostizas and 14c. for 5-crown do.

VALENCIA RAISINS—There is very little being done. The condition of the new crop continues favorable. Ruling quotations are: Fine off-stalk,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c.; selected, 6 to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c.

PRUNES—The demand for prunes keeps up exceptionally well. Californian prunes are quoted at the following prices: 30-40's, 8 to  $8\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 40-50's,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c.; 50 60's, 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 60 70's,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7c.; 70 80's, 6 to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 80 90's,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c.; 90-100's, 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. French prunes,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4c.

CALIFORNIAN DRIED FRUITS—Not much doing. We quote: Apricots,  $11\frac{1}{2}$  to  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb., in 25-lb. boxes; peaches,  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c. per lb., in bags, and 10 to 12c. in boxes.

GREEN FRUITS.

There is a liberal supply of raspberries, cherries and red currants. Strawberries are practically done. The demand for raspberries is good, and prices range from 9 to 11c. for red and 7 to 9c. for black. Cherries are worth 75 to 90c. for cooking and $1 to $1.25 for eating. Red currants are selling at 40 to 50c., gooseberries at 50 to 60c.; blueberries at 75c. to $1. Some early apples are being imported from Illinois. Californian fruit is in good demand. "Hill's Early" peaches are worth $1.40 to $1.50; "Crawfords," $1.75 to $2. Pears are selling at $4 and plums at $1.75 to $2. Lemons are stiffening in value, and $5 is now asked for some stock. Bananas are steady at last week's prices, as are also oranges. Watermelons are selling fairly well at 30 to 40c. each. Pineapples are in good demand at $3.25 to $3.75 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Owing to the extreme heat the "loss-off" continues unusually large. The shrinkage ranges from 2 doz. to as much as 7 doz. per case. This has determined dealers to exercise care in candling here, and to charge all such loss against shippers. For fresh candled stock the range is from 11 to  $11\frac{1}{2}$ c.

BEANS—The market is quiet. We quote $1.60 to $1.65 for hand-picked and $1.50 to $1.60 for primes.

HONEY—The market has not yet opened sufficiently to establish prices firmly, but, as there is every indication of a big crop, it is likely prices will be 2 to 3c. below last season. We quote 7 to 8c. for new extracted clover, and $1.50 for No. 1 clover comb.

DRIED APPLES—There is practically nothing doing. We quote nominally 5c. for evaporated and 3 to  $3\frac{1}{2}$ c. for dried apples.

POTATOES—There is not much doing in old potatoes, which continue steady at 35 to 40c. per bag. New potatoes are starting to arrive freely at $1.20 to $1.35 per bushel, and are selling readily at that figure.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Much of the butter coming to hand arrives in bad condition, so the market for really choice stuff is active, and prices are 1c. higher. We quote: Dairy prints, 16 to 17c.; best tubs, 16 to 17c.; seconds, 11 to 14c.; creamery prints, 20 to 21c.; boxes, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE—The market keeps steady, with a good trade being done. New cheese is firm at  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c. Old cheese is about done, but is steady at 10c.

FISH.

There is an excellent demand, especially for trout, whitefish and herrings. We quote: Fresh fish—Speckled trout, 25c.; red snappers,  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c.; Spanish mackerel,  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c.; codfish, 7c.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 7c.; halibut, 9c.; sea salmon, 15c.; haddock, 6c.; herring, 3c.; British Columbian salmon, 15c. Prepared fish—Dried cod, in 112 lb. bundles, \$4.75 per cwt.; flitched cod, \$5 to \$5.25; boneless cod, in bricks, 5 to 5½c. per lb.; steak cod, 6½c. per lb.; shredded cod (2 doz. in box), \$1.80 per box; boneless fish, loose, in 25-lb. boxes, 4 to 4½c., and 5-lb. boxes, 5c. per lb. Live lobsters are worth 15c. per lb.

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The wheat market is steady. Red and white are quoted at 67c. at outside points, middle freights. Manitoba wheat is worth 89½c. for No. 1 hard, grinding in transit, or 88c. Toronto and west. The movement on the local street market is fair. We quote: Wheat, white and red, 71c.; goose, 69 to 69½c.; oats, 35c.; rye, 52 to 52½c.; barley, 47c.

FLOUR—The demand is excellent and prices steady. We quote on track, Toronto (bags included) as follows: Manitoba patents, $4.20; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.95; Ontario patents, $3.30 to $3.60; straight roller, $3.20.

BREAKFAST FOODS—There is a steady demand, with prices unchanged. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal, $3.70 in bags, and $3.80 in bbls.; rolled oats, $3.60 in bags, and $3.70 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.25 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.75; split peas, $4; pot barley, $4.

VEGETABLES.

There is an excellent demand. We quote: Carrots, beets and turnips, 20c.; lettuce, radishes and watercress, 25c.; mint and parsley, 20c.; cauliflower, 50c. to $2; celery, 60 to 75c.; cabbage, 40 to 60c.; corn, 15c.; cucumbers, short, 60 to 90c.; long, $1 to $1.50; onions, 40c. per peck or $3.50 per sack; tomatoes, 50c. per box; butter beans, 75c. to $1 per bushel.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Owing to the steady advance in values in the United States, the market here has risen steadily for three weeks. An advance of ½c. this week makes a total advance of 1½c. in three weeks. We quote: Cowhides, No. 1, 8c.; No. 2, 7c.; No. 3, 6c. Steerhides are worth 1c. more. Cured hides are quoted at 8½ to 9c.

SKINS—There is a steady trade, but no change in quotations. We quote as follows: No. 1 veal, 8-lb. and up, 9c. per lb.; No. 2, 8c.; dekins, from 55 to 60c.; culls, 20 to 25c.; sheepskins, 90c. to $1.

WOOL—The market is steadier. We quote: Combing fleece, washed, 13c., and unwashed, 8c.

MARKET NOTES.

It was erroneously stated in last week's issue that Warren Bros. &amp; Co. had purchased the entire pack of The Strathroy Canning Co. It should have read the entire pack of that company's sifted peas.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 18, 1901.

GROCERIES.

THE excessive heat naturally has had a depressing effect on trade, which, though up to the average for the season, has not been active during the past week. The market is without any special feature. Probably the most important item of news is that the sugar market is weak, due to a decline of 10c. on the part of some New York refiners. The feeling here is decidedly bearish at the moment. Canned goods on spot are somewhat firmer, wholesalers now selling at the canner's new prices. Two cargoes of molasses are on their way to this port from the Barbadoes. In teas, trading is still dull, although Japans maintain their firmness, and dealers are paying rather higher for what goods they buy than they did last year. The dried fruit market is unchanged; currants are active and raisins immovable.

SUGARS.

In spite of the drop of 10c. in the price of granulated sugar, the market remains weak, and some New York refiners dropped prices 10c. again on Monday. Here, no change is reported as yet, but a decline would not come as a surprise to the trade. The demand is steady. The price to day is $4.50 for granulated and $3.85 to $4.45 per 100 lb., according to quality, for yellows. Raw beet is easier, being quoted at 9s. 1½d. as against 9s. 6d. a month ago.

SYRUPS.

Business in this line is virtually at a standstill. Prices are nominally unchanged at 1½ to 2c. per lb. for cane syrup and 3 to 3½c. for corn syrup, according to package.

CANNED GOODS.

There is no powerful incentive to induce the wholesalers to buy stocks heavily this year as they did last, and, in spite of the 60 per cent. clause, they are not ordering the new pack very freely. All they wish to get is sufficient to fill early contracts, and, as for the rest, they intend to allow the syndicate to carry the bulk of the stock. Travellers are now taking orders for new pack goods at prices above those asked for immediate deliveries. Vegetables to arrive are quoted at 85 to 87½c. for tomatoes; 80 to 85c. for corn; 80 to 85c. for English garden peas; 82½ to 85c. for sweet wrinkled peas; 85 to 90c. for early peas; $1 to $1.10 for fine French peas, and 77½ to 80c. for golden wax beans. Last year's pack may be obtained at 5c. below the new crop quotations. These prices will probably continue in vogue till some large stocks in wholesalers' hands are reduced.

Fair orders are being booked for fruits to arrive. Salmon continues firm.

SPICES.

But few sales have been reported. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12½ to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

The market stands without any new feature. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in ½ bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in ½ bags; $3.10 in ¼ bags, and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¼c. per lb.

TEAS.

It would be difficult to report any improvement in teas. The amount of Indian teas in stock in London on June 30 was 32,566,000 lb., and the average of public sale prices for the month was 5¼d. per lb., against 7d. per lb. for June last year. An English report says in regard to the Indian tea market: "There is no vitality to business, a generally depressed condition having been brought about by the fact that many buyers have their resources still locked up in large stocks of duty-paid tea, while they and others who may not be so situated have the knowledge that large quantities are available on hand to supply their requirements. A change in the tone may come quietly and unexpectedly as soon as the indications of quantity likely to arrive are more definite and reliable." As for Ceylons, the same report says: "On comparison, the statistical position of Ceylons looks fairly healthy, especially having in view the reduction in imports, as compared with last year, which may be looked for. The imports for the three months of April, May and June have successively shown a decline on last year's figures, but the shipments made during June from Colombo are a good deal in excess of the estimate. It is to be hoped that producers in Ceylon will continue to keep down the yield, because, should they not do so, there can be little prospect of an improvement upon the present low range of prices."

A letter received this week from Foo Chow states that the new crop of Congous is short, and shows poor drawing qualities. Souchongs are an average yield, and produce a good liquor, while the quality of Saryunes is much better than that of last year, both leaf and liquor being satisfactory. As yet, very little business has been done, the settlements to date being 34,000 half-chests, against 48,000 last year. Japan teas are firm and unchanged.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—The market is a fairly active one, with no accumulation of stock. Dealers are selling half cases from 10 to 11c.

RAISINS—The stock of Valencia raisins in the city has been materially reduced, but there are still some good quantities of Californian fruit offering. Valencia goods are worth 5c. for fine off stalk, 5½c. for selected, and 6c. for layers. Californian raisins are worth 6¼ to 7c.

PRUNES—Are rather slow just now, when fresh fruit is plentiful. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5½c. for 90's to 100's; 6½ to 7½c. for 60's to 70's and 7½ to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—Apples remain quite firm at 6¼ to 6½c. Apricots, peaches and pears are rather slow.

GREEN FRUITS.

The market has been very strong on hot-weather goods. Lemons are in an exceedingly heavy demand, and, as holdings are light, an advance is looked for. Oranges are very scarce, as are also bananas. Californian fruit receipts have been light the past week, and this is the cause of heavy advances. Raspberries are coming in more freely, and are selling at 9 to 11c. to-day. We quote: Messina oranges, 200's, $3 to $3.50 per box and $1.50 to $2 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $3.50 to $3.75; 360's, $3.25 to $3.60 per box; Californian apples, $3 per box; pineapples, 20 to 25c.; Tennessee tomatoes, $1.25 to $1.50; new Bermuda onions, $3 per crate; Californian plums, $1.75 to $2 per box; peaches, $1.40 to $1.75; limes, $1.50 per box; gooseberries, 40c. per basket; raspberries, 9 to 11c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Business on local account is fair, but as yet the export trade has not opened up fully. Canded stock has been selling at 11½ to 12c., straight receipts at 10½ to 11c., and No. 2 stock at 9 to 9½c.

HONEY—The demand is slow and the market dull. We quote: White clover honey in comb, 12½ to 13½c.; white extracted, 9 to 10c.; buckwheat, in comb, 9 to 10c., and extracted, 7 to 8c.

POTATOES—It is difficult to secure good sound goods. New potatoes are growing in importance and the old stock is falling off in price. The best price obtainable in carlots is 45c.

ASHES—The tone of the market is steady with but a small business passing. We

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—The demand is almost purely a local one. Prices are steady. We quote as follows: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $3.95 to $4.20; winter wheat patents, $3.45 to $3.70; straight roller, $3.20 to $3.40; in bags, $1.55 to $1.65 and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.90.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 74c. afloat July; peas, 80½c.; rye, 56 to 56½c.; No. 2 barley, 50 to 51c.; oats, 35 to 35½c.; buckwheat, 60 to 61c.; corn, 54 to 55c.

OATMEAL—Fair sales are reported at unchanged prices. The barrel is worth $3.60 to $3.80, and the bag $1.75 to $1.85.

FEED—The market shows an improved tone, owing to a better demand, but prices are unchanged. We quote: Ontario bran, in bulk, $13; shorts, $14; mouille, $20 to $24 per ton; Manitoba bran, including bags, $14, and shorts, $16.

BALED HAY—In baled, hay a fairly active trade continues to be done, and, as supplies of desirable goods are not excessive, prices are sustained. We quote: No. 1, $10.50 to $11.50; No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50, and clover, $8.50 to $9 per ton in carlots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE—The market has shown some improvement during the week, and prices have scored several advances. Trading has been put through at 9½c. for Ontario makes, 9½c. for Townships and 9¼c. for Quebecs.

BUTTER—The market remains steady, but the demand is not particularly active. At the wharf creamery sells at 19½ to 21c. Fancy creamery is very scarce.

WHEAT FOUR FEET HIGH.

One of the finest samples of this year's growing wheat crop was brought to The Free Press office yesterday afternoon by Mr. Andrew Straug. The sheaf stands over four feet and was taken from the farm of Mr. Otto Gaube, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Altona, a few miles from the village. It is a beautiful indication of the productive soil of the Province.—Free Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., July 15, 1901.

THE interest of the week has been the naming of prices on vegetables by the association. It was somewhat of a surprise that corn, peas and tomatoes should be as high as last year. There have been a good many old goods bought. In general business is quiet. Cream of tartar is rather easier, though there is no change in price. There has been a strong effort made by the grocery clerks toward shorter hours, and it looks as if they would have at least some success. The retail stores close at seven, except on Saturdays. It has been a shame the hours that have ruled, the stores being kept open late every night, and Saturday till midnight.

OILS—In burning oils there is but small movement. In price there is no change, but the market is not a strong one. Paint oils show less sale, the best season of demand being over. Prices are quite firmly held. In lubricating oils, this is a quiet season, though there is a good general business. Prices are low. In cod oil, a little new is being received. The price is quite high. The market is bare. There is a demand for seal oil at a fair price. Wax and candles are unchanged.

SALT—There is quite a little to arrive within a week, and buyers would do well to place their orders ex-vessel. This is a good season for sales, though the country bought very freely in the spring. In fine salt there is a fair sale, chiefly for Canadian. Bulk salt in barrels has a good demand. We quote: Liverpool coarse, 50 to 55c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.10 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb.

CANNED GOODS—The interest is in vegetables, the prices being named by the association during the past week. There was some surprise that they should be so high. Buying will not be large. Quite a few have been carried over, and quite a quantity of old goods have been bought at quite low figures. This will tend to hurt business and will mean little profit. In fruits there has not been a general quoting of prices. There are some oranges in figures quoted. Strawberries have been quite freely bought. The price is quite firm. Meats are quite active at even figures. Salmon are very firm. Little is doing at present. New haddies and sardines are offered. The competition keeps local fish low, except in kippered, in which the demand exceeds the supply.

"You can fool all of the people some of the time, and some people all of the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time."

Now, this applies to vinegar equally to the circus business. There was a time when the consumer thought he had to use that yellowish tinted, harsh, unpalatable article sold as vinegar—that time has passed, and the retailer that offers such "stuff" in this enlightened and scientific age will soon find his vinegar trade become beautifully less, and his competitor, who handles the first class article, has largely increased his vinegar business and profits.

IMPERIAL WHITE WINE, for instance, has largely increased his trade and profit. "Imperial" is the acme of vinegar manufacture. Clear, Sparkling, Smooth, Even-Flavored, and guaranteed full Government Strength. The best for all purposes that vinegar can be used.

IMPERIAL costs no more than other first class vinegars. See that the name "IMPERIAL" is on the barrel.

THE KENT CANNING CO., Limited - Chatham, Ont.

with Californian pears freely offered and tending lower. Californian fruits have a large sale. Plums have been in good demand. Apricots are about done. Few oranges are being sold. The price is quite high. Bananas are free sellers. Some watermelons are offered, but the sale is still light. The price is quite high. Lemons have a good sale. There has been a sharp advance in prices. This is the busy season in the American market. Pines are but fair sellers. Strawberries have continued very low, being plentiful. They have been lower than usual. Raspberries are offered, but the sale is more limited, except in the wild berries, in which the quantity shipped from some parts of the Province is very large. Nova Scotian cherries are quite freely received, and prices are tending lower.

DRIED FRUITS—This is a quiet line in spot goods. Raisins of all kinds, but particularly Valentias, are dull. Buyers are looked for. Currants are in light demand. The sale is for cleaned. In dates, there is some sale for package goods. Dates are also being sold. Prices are low. The dark dates seem to have the demand. Peels are being bought, and there is a good business, even though citron is costing quite a little higher than last year. Onions are light stock. Shipments of Egyptian are done. In evaporated apples, while there is a light demand, prices are higher, and it is thought new goods will open high. There is some inquiry for dried.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Eggs are but fair sellers, and though stocks are not large, the price is quite low. There is quite a wide range in prices. Butter is somewhat firmer, though still low. There is inquiry for best stock. Cheese keeps quite firm. The local demand is for twins.

SUGAR—The refinery has dropped back to the figures before the advance, the market going off ten cents during the past week. There is a large sale. The continued presence of foreign granulated keeps figures low. Yellows sell slowly.

MOLASSES—There is a cargo of Porto Rico landing and further lots are to arrive. The market is kept low by the offerings of some importers, so that some are inclined to hold stocks, though there seems small chance of higher figures. Barbados is offered. Some nice stock has been received.

FISH—Fresh salmon are still the chief movement. The catch has been quite large, and prices have been well maintained. The market is firm. There is little other fresh fish, except cod and haddock. Dry cod-fish are rather higher. Pollock have little sale. Pickled Bay herring are lower, there being but little sale at this season. There are fair arrivals of new fish. Smoked herring show no change. Business is quiet. The hot weather affects shipments to the West Indies. We quote: Large and medium dry cod, $3.75 to $3.85; small, $2.15 to $2.30; haddies, 5 to 6c.; smoked herring, 11 to 12c.; fresh haddock and cod, 21-2c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.50 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $1.75 to $1.85 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl., $2.75 per half bbl.; shellburne, $4.50 per bbl., $2.25 per half bbl.; salmon, 11 to 12c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour is easy and the demand light. The feeling favors low prices. Oats are light sellers. Oatmeal shows a wide range in price, but seems firm. Business is small. Cornmeal sells freely. Prices are rather higher, and strong with an upward tendency. Beans are light sellers, but western prices are rather firmer. Blue peas are high and supplies scarce. Local demand for hay is dull. We quote: Manitoba flour, $1.70 to $1.75; best Ontario, $3.80 to $3.90; medium, $3.65 to $3.80; oatmeal, $3.85 to $4; cornmeal, $2.35 to $2.40; middlings, $2.2 to $2.3; oats, 40 to 42c.; handpicked beans, $1.65 to $1.75; prime, $1.55 to $1.60; yellow eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $1.10 to $1.15; blue peas, $1.25 to $1.40; pot barley, $3.85 to $4; hay, $12 to $13.

SOCKEYE SALMON PRICES IN THE U.S.

A private telegram from the Coast to-day received by the agents of one of the largest outside packers on Puget Sound, who also has interests in Alaska, quotes the following prices on the 1901 pack: Fancy sockeye, talls, $1.20; flats, $1.35, and halves, 90c.; Cohoes, medium red fish, halves, 75c.; flats, 1-lb., $1.10; humpbacks, best grade of pink, 70c. for talls; red Alaska, half flats, 75c.; flats, $1.10. Prices are f.o.b. Puget Sound, usual terms. In this connection it may be mentioned that some packers recently made prices a shade lower than the figures above. The prices just named, it is stated, are guaranteed against the average prices of the new combine, and in some quarters there is a feeling that these figures will be the ruling basis from now on.

Talk on the street regarding probable opening prices by the new combine favors a basis of values around $1.40 for flats and $1.25 for talls. While there is, so far as can be learned, no authority on which to base this view, those best posted on salmon matters say they would not be surprised if the $1.40 basis for flats were fixed eventually when the Coast combine begins operations.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, July 13.

PIG FEEDING.

In a pig-feeding test at the South Carolina Experiment Station it was found that the hams from the pigs fed from the different crops were all cured in the same way. The shrinkage did not vary greatly, ranging from 22 to 27 per cent. The lean meat in the hams from the pigs fed with Spanish peanuts exclusively was coarse and stringy. The hams were tainted somewhat, though treated like the others in every particular. The lard from these pigs had a lower melting point than that from those fed with the other crops.

The amount of the different feeding stuffs required to produce a pound of pork was: Corn, 6.02 pounds; Spanish peanuts, 4.43 pounds; sweet potatoes, 32.17 pounds, and cowpeas, 4.91 pounds. Taking account of the gains made and the yield of different crops, and rating pork at 5 cents per pound, the corn was calculated to be worth $6.97 per acre; Spanish peanuts, $24.37; sweet potatoes, $18.47, and cowpeas, $6.12.

The pigs used in this test, which covered thirty-three days, weighed from 117 to 200 pounds when the trial began. They were regarded as too large for the best results.—National Provisioner.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Look After the Ice Box—Miscellaneous Notes.

LOOK AFTER THE ICE BOX.

THE ice box is the butcher's summer care and trouble. A whiff of hot summer air rushing into the cooler causes more damage and loss than one might at first suspect.

Keep your meats in the back of the ice box, so that the inrush of air will not reach the easily affected fresh stuff until that air is chilled. If the outside air strikes the meat it will burn and turn black. Such stuff will have to be trimmed off or sold at scrap rates. Then, again, the amount of ice which it will take to overcome one good puff of hot air into the box is very large.

Close your ice box at 1 p.m. and let it remain closed until as near 6 o'clock as your trade will allow. It is more economical to have a small glass refrigerator for the small cuts which are being used up than to keep these laying on the counter to get off color and off condition. It is better also to have this glass refrigerator than to be rushing into the cooler for every order. Such continuous opening of the market refrigerator is expensive. These summer hints are worth attention. The old way of keeping the ice box door on the swing is a money-losing way.—National Provisioner.

MEAT FOR NORTH OF ENGLAND.

A despatch from London says: American enterprise backed by British capital, has arranged to build extensive cold storage plants of abattoirs at Barrow in Furness. Messrs. Howard Crosby and Cooke, representing New York and Chicago capitalists, held a conference yesterday with the directors of the Furness Railway, which owns Barrow docks, and agreed on the details of the project.

The English interests are of the strongest character, the Duke of Devonshire being chairman. Mr. Cook plans to erect the most complete packing establishment in Europe, modelled on the latest American pattern, at a cost of $150,000, and expects that the allied Leyland-Atlantic Transport line will bring American cattle, apples, and West Indian fruits in great quantity as soon as adequate receiving facilities are available. Throughout the north of England there is a ready market.

IT WAS NOT THEIR BOX.

Our St. John, N.B., correspondent writes: "Mr. White, representing The Wm. Davies Co., called on 'The Grocer' this week to say that if there was any unsatisfactory Canadian beef here it was not shipped by his company, as he was continually getting repeat orders from our trade."

RENEWED COMPETITION WITH CANADA.

Canadian exporters of butter and cheese will soon be encountering renewed competition from the United States. Judging from the report, just to hand from their Department of Agriculture, the producers of butter in the United States are now fully alive to the fact that the butter trade has slipped out of their hands—almost entirely to the great advantage of Canada, Denmark, and the Australasian colonies. The Department of Agriculture has accordingly requested the Industrial Commission to investigate the causes of the decline in the United States trade, and from the result of its inquiries it appears that the system of Government inspection in use in Denmark and in certain colonies is to be adopted.—British Trade Journal.

A PIG AS CUPID.

This happened this week at Wilkesbarre, Pa.: An old bachelor and a matured maiden—their combined ages exceeding a century—fondled the same orphan pig so much and so long over the same slop pail that both claimed it. The man was hog enough to take it and the maid piggyish enough to sue him for possession. The judge, emulating Solomon, said: "I'll have it killed and divided equally between you." Both objected. "Then, there's only one other way, and that's for you two to get married and keep the pig in the family." They did, then and there.

HAVE AN EYE TO THE FUTURE.

The Montreal Retail Grocery Clerks' Association have come to the conclusion that Montreal must be the distributing point of groceries for the North Pole, when it is located, and have decided to champion Capt. Bernier's expedition. To assist him in his endeavor they have rented Sohmer Park for the afternoon and evening of August 8, where they hope to have a great gathering to hear Capt. Bernier and some of his ardent supporters. The French-Canadian mariner will be presented with a share of the gate receipts.

PRODUCE IMPORTS INTO LIVERPOOL.

According to the weekly circular of the Anglo-Canadian Produce Co., Limited, the imports of dairy produce and provisions into Liverpool this year up to July 5 and for the corresponding period last year were as follows:

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The demand for dressed meats is moderate, but prices are steady. We now quote as follows: Dressed hogs, $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.; sheep, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $7.50 to $8 per cwt.; spring lambs, 11 to 12c. per lb.; beef carcasses $7.50 per cwt, for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8 1-2 to 9 1-2c. for best; fore quarters, 4 1-2 to 5 1-2c. for best; calves, $8 to $8.50 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

Pork products continue to stiffen in value. Live hogs are steady at $7.25 to $7.50.

Long clear bacon, rolls, hams, and backs are 1-2c. dearer. We quote as follows: Long clear bacon, 11 1-2c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 11 1-2 to 15c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 13 1-2 to 14c.; medium hams, 13 1-2 to 14c.; large hams, 12 1-2 to 13c.; shoulder hams, 11 1-2c.; backs, 14 to 14 1-2c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $19.50 to $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10 3-4c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11 1-4c.

MONTREAL

Trade in provisions is rather slow, yet the market remains quite firm. Prices are not materially changed. We now quote: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.88 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.86 for 25 to 49 pails, $1.82 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; cottolene, 9 1-4c. per lb. in tierces, and 10 1-4c. in 20 lb. pails, and 10c. in 50-lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

There is but limited business. Pork continues high. In beef there is not the same extreme price, and Canadian, which is offered quite freely, tends to further easy figures. Some nice goods are being received. Lard is still high, but quite free sales are reported. Compound shows steady business. Cottolene has been advanced. Smoked meats tend higher.

NEW YORK.

In New York, the exporters have been figuring in a moderate way over pork; they have bought refined lard a little more freely. The steam lard here is rather under neglect by shippers, but it is taken more freely by the refiners. The city cutters have held prices of bellies firmly because of the cost of hogs; their stocks are moderate; demands are of a reserved order. A good demand prevails for hams. Indeed, all meats are firmer in price.

MUNICIPAL RAILWAYS IN EUROPE.

Report by R. Guenther, U.S. Consul-General at Frankfurt.

DR. A. VON DER LEYEN, a railroad expert, has published an article in the June number of The German Review concerning the management of the Government railroads of Prussia.

He demonstrates that the example of Prussia in buying the private railroads and running them on Government account has contributed to popularize this system in other countries, and states that not only have the other German states followed it, but that almost all the other European countries have purchased the existing railroads.

The Austrian Government railroad net has to-day a mileage of almost 6,300 miles; that of Hungary, about 8,150 miles. Since 1882, a great change has taken place in Russia; of the then existing 14,000 miles of railroad, only about 40 miles were owned by the Government. The total mileage in 1897 was about 24,300 miles, of which 15,780 miles belonged to the Government. To this must be added the Government railroads in Finland and Asiatic Russia, the Trans-Caspian and the Siberian railroads. The Servian, Roumanian, and Bulgarian railroads are owned exclusively by the respective Governments.

Of the northern European kingdoms, Denmark has a Government railroad system of 1,167 miles and 525 miles of private railroads.

Norway's railroads belong almost exclusively to the Government.

Sweden has 2,303 miles of Government and 4,387 miles of private railroads. The Government has not yet succeeded in acquiring the latter, although efforts have been made to do so.

Belgium, in 1898, through the purchase of the Grand Central Belge and some minor private roads, became the possessor of the whole Belgian railroad system.

Holland acquired all the remaining private railroads in 1890; they are, however, operated by two private companies.

The Italian Government purchased all private main railroads of Italy in 1885 and leased them for 20 years to private corporations. Dr. Von der Leyen states that both the last countries have had unpleasant experiences with this arrangement.

Switzerland, after long discussion, resolved by federal law in October, 1897, to gradually purchase all the private railroads. On January 1, 1901, the first federal railroads were operated by the Government.

By agreements of 1883, the six large French private railroads had their rights recognized by the Government, and no change has been made in the policy in that country. The relatively small Government railroad system, located between the Orleans and the Western railroads, has remained intact. As the private railroads, however, have received large subsidies from the Government, and as they will revert to the State in the second half of the present century, they can hardly be considered purely private railroads.

Of the countries which have a private railroad system exclusively, only England and the United States remain, and the writer remarks that it would not seem that this condition will soon be changed. He adds that it would be difficult to prove that the railroads of these two countries show more efficiency than the continental ones. To an American travelling in Europe, however, it is apparent that as far as comfort and convenience are concerned, the American railroads are far in the lead, and the English come next.

Damage to the extent of $200 was done by fire to Choquette's grocery store, Notre Dame street, Montreal.

SPECULATING IN CREDIT.

By F. C. Brunhouse.

THE query naturally arises "Is there such a thing as credit speculation?"

From the reckless way in which some people grant credit we are led to believe that such is the case. In conversation with a prominent attorney, recently, regarding commercial failures, speaking from an extensive experience with debtors and creditors, he stated: The creditor is to blame to a large degree for a very great many of the difficulties arising between the debtor and creditor. Over zealous to do a large business, he neglects to be cautious, conservative, and fails to correctly discriminate between those whom he should and should not trust.

In analyzing this statement, let us endeavor to discover in what respects it is correct. To be equitable we must admit at the outset that there is a great deal of truth embodied in this statement. Like all problems, whether political, social or commercial, there are two sides of this question, viz., the debtors and the creditors.

The purpose of this article will be to point out a few of the many errors that have crept into our modern ideas of doing business, and show how it is possible to speculate in credit. This, of necessity, was to a certain degree the condition under which our forefathers transacted their business, but in a time when profits were considerably larger than they are at present. A man to indulge in such methods to-day, with all the advantages of commercial agencies and other sources of information open to him, is reckless, to say the least. Greed for the mighty dollar and business has been the death-knell of many a business man.

In what respect, then, is the creditor to blame for the difficulties arising between the debtor and the creditor?

We will take a hypothetical case to illustrate. Assuming that A is the debtor, doing business in one of our smaller towns, possesses the average ability usually found in that class of merchants, and a man of moderate means. B, C, D, E, F, G, and we might continue indefinitely because they are so numerous, are the creditors. In due season, B, C, D, et al., start out their salesmen with the injunction, "Don't fail to sell A all the goods he will buy," which instruction every man obeys, as a matter of course; every fellow's goods are the best; all have bargains galore. A buys here and buys there, and in the course of time he finds himself overloaded with a large stock, in which all his good money is invested; and for which, perhaps, he will be unable to realize 50 per cent. on the dollar. Time rolls on; his condition gets worse; he is unable to meet his obligations, and he is brought to realize that he is insolvent. If he is an honest man, he will stop short and transfer his business to his creditors. If, however, he is indifferent or inclined the other way, he will make an effort to take care of No. 1. How well he succeeds a great many have learned to their sorrow. What is the remedy? When A appears for your consideration, don't think that you are the only people that are going to sell to him, but take into consideration that there are others; obtain, if possible, and, in a doubtful case, insist upon it, a statement which will show A's net working capital. Then follow the common sense course. Unless you know positively from how many houses A is buying, in justice to others, as well as yourself, you must adopt a rule such as in vogue with credit insurance companies, of limiting your sales, according to the confidence you have in the ability and integrity of A, to 5 per cent. of his net working capital. If such a rule were adhered to, a great many of our present-day "lack-of-capital" failures would be avoided. We all can do a great deal to assist A to keep within his limits. Over-zealousness on the part of very many do a large business, disregarding the safeguards which should be thrown around every mercantile house to insure its success, leads to speculation in extending credit. To this reckless procedure there can be but one result, failure.

It is worth while to recall a remark made by a man who amassed a fortune. "I never speculate in matters of business." It is the only safe course to pursue.

Again, is it not true that there are a class of persons (you will find them everywhere), looking for the lambs, and by artful means attempting, either by giving a false statement or by a great show of wealth and prosperity, to secure credit? To illustrate, we will cite a case in point of a party who operated in this fashion. He made a great display, used attractive stationery, furnished doctored statements under the direction of a shyster attorney, purchased goods in small quantities and paid them in ten days, gradually increasing his purchases and paying promptly, until he had his game, when he wound up with purchasing all the goods he could get, which were sold at ridiculously low prices to close quickly, and when the bills became due and attempts were made to collect, the accounts were returned as uncollectable. All this was in the face of adverse ratings of this party by both Dun and Bradstreet. It seems almost incredible; one is amazed at the cupidity of some business men. Is it any wonder that our attorney friend views the relation of debtor and creditor in this light?

This is only one feature of how these sharps operate, and are usually the kind of cases that find their way into the attorney's hands. It does appear that credit is too cheap, and, as it is commonly said: "I can get all the goods I want. If you will not trust me, others will." It behooves the credit man, as well as the business man, to carefully scrutinize all new business, and if perchance you open an account with your new-found friend, keep your eyes on him until you are convinced that he is a solid man and worthy of your confidence. Better do a small business safely than a large business on speculation. Learn to discriminate between the worthy and the unworthy, when, whom and how much to trust, and when you have decided that point, stick to it.—Commerce and Accounts.

THE REPORTED SALT CONSOLIDATION.

IN connection with the current reports of plans for an international salt company which shall take over The National Salt Company in this country, The Canadian Salt Company of Canada, and the Salt Union of Great Britain, the following from The Liverpool Journal of Commerce, may be of interest:

"It may be said at once, in a most emphatic manner, that were an international salt trust formed embracing the corporations named it would be as far from controlling the world's output of salt or the world's prices as English and American salt manufacturers are to-day. But according to authentic information, the trust does not include the Salt Union, so that its controlling power in English, Continental and Eastern centres of production will be nil. In America, protected by the tariff, a trust, controlling the entire output of salt in the States, could do much. It could reduce the output and raise prices to the highest point at which protection would be secured by the tariff, but higher than that prices could not go without admitting eastern salt into American markets. For export, the high prices obtained in America could not rule as cheap English, Spanish and Italian salt would be competing with American salt. As regards any extensive shipments of salt from American ports to the United Kingdom, salt manufacturers and shippers here still ridicule the idea. Assuming that the International or any other salt trust absorbed the Salt Union, the whole of the independent English salt manufacturers would remain untouched and free. They could make and sell as they pleased, and might bring about a state of ruinous competition. Apart from such profit as would accrue to the trust from working the present business of the Salt Union as the English branch of the trust and in harmony with the English market, no visible advantage of an exceptional kind would accrue to the trust by absorbing the Salt Union. Such an absorption would unquestionably give the trust a desirable English branch, but would not give it control of the English salt output and of prices. To secure such a branch, which represents an extensive English and export business, it might be thought by directors of a large trust, worth while to take in the Salt Union. The point of interest at the present time is, that officials of the Salt Union declare emphatically that their company had not been taken in.

"Assuming again, that the Salt Union, and the whole of the other English salt makers had been absorbed, and that as regards the English production of salt, and prices, control was perfect, Continental makers would practically be masters of the situation. They have become severe competitors of the English salt makers, the recent high prices of salt in England having induced them to make a bold bid for English trade. Nor can they, as a body, be regarded as insignificant. They have already secured a large slice of the English saltmakers' trade. During May supplies of salt were received at English and Scottish ports from several Continental ports of shipment to the extent of 6,785 tons to the value of £6,926. For the four previous months of the year, the total quantity imported was 13,463 tons and the value £10,784. For the five months, from January 1 to May 31, 1901, the quantity of Continental salt imported into the United Kingdom was 20,218 tons, the value of which was £16,810. For these five months, the coastwise shipments from salt ports in the United Kingdom show a shrinkage compared with the first five months of 1900, of 11,704 tons, the tons being: In 1900, 121,985 tons; in 1901, 110,281. The exports of salt, other than coastwise, during the same five months, show a gratifying increase compared with the same period in 1900, the total being for the first five months of 1900, 213,416; of 1901, 231,369. The shrinkage in the coastwise shipments compared with last year is attributed by the trade to the inroad which Continental salt has made, and this has unquestionably been caused by the high price of fishery salt in the United Kingdom, brought about by The Salt Association."

THE FRENCH SUGAR BOUNTIES.

WE are informed, on the very highest authority, says The Produce Markets' Review, that the French Government has decided to put an end to the bounty system at the earliest possible moment. It is, however, in their opinion, impossible to make such a drastic change at once, and it is probable, therefore, that the abolition of the bounties will take place by successive steps. It appears likely that the direct export bounties will be abolished first, and that a reduction corresponding to the saving in the revenue, will be utilized to lower the excessive sugar duties in France. As regards the indirect bounties on production, which form so large a portion of the sacrifices made by the French taxpayers to cheapen sugar in England, the French Government apparently proposes to continue this system for the time being, but perhaps in a modified form, in the hope of a general agreement being arrived at, when the sittings of the Brussels Sugar Conferences are renewed. It is satisfactory to find, as has always been the case, that, whatever system of bounties may be adopted, it has a strong tendency, sooner or later, to fall by its own weight. This has been the experience in past years, and it is apparently being renewed in France. Austria and Germany, as is well known, are desirous in their turn to abolish sugar bounties, and Belgium and Holland have long been prepared to do so. The sole difficulty that exists is in the case of Russia, where there are very complicated arrangements which the Government appears at present indisposed to alter.

The following gives the views of the Journal des Fabricants de Sucre on this subject in a somewhat abridged form:—

While England has reestablished the sugar duty there is talk in France of suppressing it, so that we are again on the threshold of the sugar question. In the presence in the deficit of the revenue receipts for the first five months of the year, which for sugar alone amounts to 16,011,000 francs, as compared with the estimates, the Government proposes, it is said, to alter the sugar duties so as to lower the consumption tax and to reduce the bounty on manufacture. The French bounties, as is known, are of two kinds, viz.: Direct and indirect. The first were introduced by the law of 1881, and had to do with the working of the tax on the roots. These are taxed on the basis of a yield of 7.75 per cent. of refined sugar; the excess yields up to 10.5 per cent. are taxed only 30 francs per 100 kilos, and the excess below that limit at 15 francs, while the full sugar duty is 60 francs. As to the indirect bounties established by the law of the 7th April, 1897, the amount varies. The payment of these bounties is assured by the refining tax of 4 francs, which is added on to the selling price of sugar at the full duty of 60 francs, and by a tax of 1 franc on raw crystallized sugars entering directly into consumption.

Direct bounties and the manufacturing and refining taxes are especially kept account of by the Treasury. When the produce of the receipts is inferior to the amount of the bounties paid during the season, this deficit has to be recovered in the following season by a proportionate reduction in the amount of the legal bounty. In fact, since their introduction the direct bounties have been frequently reduced, the consumption which gives the fund for them being almost stationary, while the production and export constantly increase. What specially interests our sugar manufacturers at present is the change projected in the 1881 law. The first thing to ascertain is, what is the cause of the reduction in the receipts from sugar to the extent of the 16 million francs mentioned above. As we have already remarked, the consumption of sugar in France has not diminished, for it has even slightly augmented, the figures having risen from 439,029 tons in refined in 1899, to 455,320 tons in 1900. The produce of the sugar tax has fallen from 200,626,831 francs to 183,682,345 francs. This is a falling off of 16,944,481 francs from the past year. To what is this due? To the increasing introduction into consumption of sugars at the reduced tariff of 30 francs, which are substituted for sugars liable to the full tariff of 60 francs. For the past few years, in fact, the quality of the beetroot appears to have improved, and the yields have increased, so that the production has developed and the proportions of sugar delivered duty free has notably risen. In 1896-97 the excess yield was 141,485 tons, or 21 per cent. of the production subject to bounty, whereas in 1899-1900 the excess was 249,644 tons or 28.72 per cent.; the yield has thus risen from 9.98 per cent. in refined to 11.75, while the quantity of sugars enjoying the reduced tariffs has risen from 144,185 tons to 249,644 tons. This progress has not slackened during the present season, for this shows up to the end of May a yield of 11.81 per cent. against 11.62 per cent. last year, and the excess yields under the reduced duties have risen from 296,694 tons against 241,955 tons. It is, therefore, without doubt partly owing to these excesses delivered at the reduced duty that the smaller receipts are due, but it is possible that the sugar consumption has fallen, like that of other commodities, under the influence of the economic crisis. The general revenues of the State have fallen off, and frequent strikes, the exodus of capital, the severe regulations in factories, the new charges with which production is menaced, are all things not likely to develop the economical prosperity of a country, nor to add to the receipts of the State. Our Parliament may in this connection lay to heart the celebrated saying: "Give me good policy and I will give you good finance."

Private mail advices from Patras, Greece, under date of June 10, state that a considerable business has been done for shipment to June 10 have aggregated 32,200 tons to Great Britain, 5,112 tons to the United States and Canada, 3,175 tons to Australia, 120 tons to France, and 6,860 tons to the Continent. The total shipments from Greece for the season to May 31, 1900, compare as follows with the total shipments to the end of the season of 1899:

On June 10 the available stocks in Greece were placed at not exceeding 1,500 tons. In regard to the new crop, reports officially published from all quarters are favorable. The damage done by peronosporos in some isolated cases is insignificant. The rainy and cool weather that prevailed during the last fortnight or three weeks has not apparently been injurious to the fruit, and the crop promises to be a good middling one as to the volume and acceptable as to quality.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

Canned Where Caught.

The "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kipperd Herring, and Herring and Tomato Sauce are canned right where they are caught—at the water side. How better could you preserve the natural richness and delicate flavor of the fish? Impossible!

But that is not all, because Captain Austin has the unequalled skill of a lifetime of experience. There is no dirt or slime—no uncleanness to be found in the "Thistle" Brand. The reputation of the foremost fish-curer in the country is at stake under the label of the "Thistle" Brand. Buy it, and you buy the best.

Bottled in England.

Macurquahart's Worcester Sauce is bottled where it is brewed—in England. It matures for many months in the vats before it is ready for the bottles.

The fact that it is not brewed in a hurry, to sell in a hurry, and that unremitting care is exercised at every stage of the brewing gives it a richness, a full "body" and strength that makes it the most economical sauce your customers can buy.

IT'S TIME TO REFLECT.

There is a cause for progress. The secret of the progress of

JONAS' FLAVORING EXTRACTS

is intrinsic merit—nothing else. The appreciation of the women folks of our efforts to give them economical, rich, strong Extracts (which is evidenced by increased sales), encourages us to greater efforts. We certainly intend to maintain the high standard of quality which has given us the reputation for high-grade Extracts. We could not afford to lower quality. Every drop in every bottle of Jonas' Flavoring Extracts is pure.

IT IS NOW TIME TO TURN YOUR THOUGHTS

to fall trade. Weigh carefully in your mind whether it is more advantageous for you to handle cheap, weak Extracts, which apparently seem profitable, or the purer, stronger, richer and more economical kind, which produce in the long run greater profit, more satisfaction for your goods, and increased business. If it is the latter kind you require, send along your order for Jonas' Flavoring Extracts, if not, send your order elsewhere. "Fair profits and no misrepresentation" is the motto of the makers of these popular thirty one year old Extracts. If you have not already done so, it is now time to reflect upon the question.

"Into the Light."

Here and there is a grocer who is groping in darkness and about ready to give up the Cigar department in his store. If that particular grocer would get into correspondence with me I could convince him that the probable cause of his discouragement was, first, because the profits he had been making were not large enough, and, second, because the quality of the Cigars he had been selling was not what it ought to be.

I would like the opportunity to lead him "into the light." If he can't write he can at least send in for a trial order of a thousand or more of my Cigars at my expense.

REAPING THE HARVEST

Throughout the land the farmers are busy gathering the results of their sowing. Much of its success depended upon the wise selection of the seed and careful planting.

Suppose the farmer had reasoned something after this fashion—"Wheat is only wheat anyway—by buying this cheaper kind I will be saving something worth while."

If he did, he is likely reaping a harvest of barren regrets now.

So with the business man if he dreams for a moment that anything but the highest quality of goods is going to yield a profitable harvest—he is making the same serious blunder as the farmer.

MOLINA ROLLED WHEAT is at the head of its class and its fast increasing sales are the result of its superior quality. It is packed in barrels of 100 lb., and in kegs of 50 lb. and made only by

WARNING

Would-be competitors, who produce articles of inferior quality, seemingly find it necessary to misrepresent matters in order to make sales. One of their favorite schemes is to impress merchants with the idea that "GILLETT'S GOODS" are manufactured in the United States, whereas, the truth is, every article is made in our factory located in Toronto, where, on an average, 100 people are employed.

BEWARE of goods made by concerns who find it necessary to resort to such methods as above stated.

THE ART OF WINDOW DRESSING.

By H. H.

AN IDEA OF CONSTRUCTING ARCHES.

THE following will explain how arches, etc., can be arranged cheaply and with very little expense by any grocery trimmer. Instead of having the arches, etc., cut from boards they can be made by taking heavy cardboard, on which draft out in pencil the design you intend putting in the window. After you have them pencilled out cut them out with a sharp knife or scissors and nail light pieces of packing boxes or laths on the back of the design. This will hold the cardboard design in shape. Puff white cheese cloth or other material over this, and it is then ready for the window. The puffing can easily be done by giving the design a coating of glue and while it is still wet ruffle the cheese cloth or other material over it and it will soon dry. Make the shirring very fine and even. The rough drawing will give the idea.

CAMPERS' SUPPLIES.

A good trim of campers' supplies would be right in season just now. Make a good stocky showing of these goods and in the centre of display put a large card reading :

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE DISPLAY.

For a neat, clean looking vegetable or fruit trim the following will be found practicable: Secure enough foliage, such as ferns, and leaves, etc., to cover the bottom of your window to the depth of about an inch. Make it nice and flat and sprinkle it twice or three times a day with water. Down the entire back of the window stretch pink or pale blue tarelton or mosquito netting and over this entwine artificial morning glory or some trailing vine. On the bed of the foliage in window place here and there (if you are showing vegetables) a nice clean bunch of radishes, tomatoes, lettuce, onions, etc. Place an egg here and there well apart among the vegetables, and add just a few bottles of salad dressing, olives, or something pertaining to this line. Don't crowd this trim. Show very few things, but pick out the choicest and have them washed and cleaned. This makes an effective trim and one that looks clean and inviting. Change this after it has been in a few days. Shake up the foliage that is underneath, as it will be much fresher than what is on top. You can then make a pretty display of fruits in fancy boxes or baskets. Arrange the colors of the fruits so as they will blend nicely and harmoniously. Very effective trims can be made with fruits with a little forethought that will amply repay the trimmer for the time spent on them.

A striking trim and one that would be sure to attract the passer-by's attention could be made with watermelons. The window could be arranged with long corn stalks so as to give it the effect of a corn field, then place a few of the largest watermelons about the floor. Then secure the forms of one or two little negro boys. Cut up a melon and place a slice of the melon in the little hands of the negroes, and arrange him in the act of taking a big bite. Have a card, worded similar to the following placed in a conspicuous place: "Golly, dis am de stuff." Green felt could be placed on the floor of the window over which could be strewn corn leaves, pebbles, etc., to give the scene a more realistic effect.

A SOAP DISPLAY.

Illustration No. 1 is suitable for a small window. It is built up on a circular, stair-shaped stand, covered with black print. The goods shown are principally soaps. A doll dressed in tinsel gauze represents a "fairy" holding a cake of "Fairy" soap. The display was a very striking one and drew great attention.

Frank D. Harrigan, grocer, Hamilton, Ont., while attempting to catch a box of starch falling from a shelf, ran the point of a bill file into his arm. The file penetrated to the bone, and Mr. Harrigan has been compelled to carry his arm in a sling for some days.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

OPAL WARE.

One of the most artistic catalogues of the year has just been issued by Gowans, Kent & Co., Toronto. This work is devoted exclusively to one line, "Opal Ware," for the season 1901-1902. It contains over 250 superb illustrations of the dainty patterns in pin, comb and brush trays, jewel, hairpin, trinket, bon-bon, puff, scrap, cuff, collar, handkerchief and glove boxes, vases, fern dishes, bowls, plates, smoker sets, toilet bottles, plaques, candlesticks, cracker jars, mugs, tumblers, jugs, cream and sugar bowls, salt and pepper shakers, etc. The range of quality and design is so great and the illustrations of the patterns are so excellent that every dealer in china-ware should easily make a selection suitable to his trade. This line is especially suitable for the grocery trade, for the goods are so dainty and attractive that they add to the appearance of a retailer's stock, and they are so moderate in price that there can be made an excellent demand for them. Grocers who have not yet secured a copy of this catalogue can get one by writing to Gowans, Kent & Co., Toronto.

CHARACTER THE TRUE TEST.

President Ramsay, of The Hide and Leather Bank, New York, recently expressed himself as follows in a speech before the New York Credit Mens' Association:

"If you want to get down to the facts as to whether it is safe to trust a man, find who the man is, what his character is, how he lives, and how he treats his neighbor, and see that he is a fairly good man, then it is safe to trust him. You cannot make a man sign a mortgage on his wife and children: such a man will dupe you. If you find him honorable in his deportment, honorable in the town where he lives, I won't ask that he drinks water all the time; let him be fairly straight in his walks of life, and that man is pretty near safe to trust, and I think you will all bear me out."

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

THE total shipments of citrus fruits from the Coast for the season up to the end of last week number 22,500 earloads, of which 1,900 earloads were lemons, compared with 16,800 earloads for the same period last year.

BRITISH CANNED SALMON MARKET.

Although the business doing in salmon on the spot is quite of a hand-to-mouth character, yet the inquiry generally is better, and now that quotations are more reasonable, a great improvement in the demand may certainly be looked for. Half-pound tins are in good supply, and quotations show very little, if any, advance over the prices in 1900. Unfortunately this particular pack is less popular in the south than it is in the north, but it is hoped that present valuations will do a great deal to bring this size tin into prominence.—Produce Markets' Review, July 13.

THE SARDINE MARKET.

Latest advices point out that there is a good demand for the fish from all of the best packers on the French coast, and that the fishermen have no difficulty in selling at good prices. This, coupled with the poor catch that has been effected up to the present in Portugal, and the small existing stocks of French goods, would make it appear improbable that we shall see the very low prices that ruled in 1898-9.—Produce Markets' Review.

PRUNES ON THE COAST.

Private mail advices from the Coast state: "There is some inquiry here from the East for prunes and buyers are bidding around 2c. for the 'four sizes,' and some, it is stated, have been bought around that figure for prompt shipment in a small way. Stocks are held pretty firmly by the Association, and it is believed that little can be had in the way of assortment at the 2c. basis. Futures are not attracting attention."

CANNED SALMON ON THE COAST.

On salmon The San Francisco Trade Journal has the following: "Columbia River advices continue to note an improvement in the run. It is also stated that the size of the fish average slightly larger. The run, so far as our advices tend to show, is about the same as it was at the corresponding time in 1900. We still hold to the opinion that the July and August catch will be larger than during the corresponding months last year. Puget Sound telegraphic advices state that the run is of a scattering character. Next week the run ought to be of a more pronounced character. Cannermen on the Sound had not generally at last mail advices started up—only those started up to test their machinery to see if everything would work smoothly. The cannermen on the Sound are prepared to pack 50,000 cases a day, and will do so if the fish run. The same quantity can be packed on Fraser River. On the latter river there is the same old labor trouble."

CURRANTS EASIER IN NEW YORK.

The weakness shown in currants on the spot continues to be noticeable, although the prevailing opinion among holders is that the easier situation is temporary. It is believed that with the closing out of the few hundred barrels by the weak holder that the market will react, particularly should buying interest show improvement. In the meanwhile there is very little interest in the article at the decline. Sales aggregating some 60 barrels were reported, the bulk on the 9c. basis for Amalia grade, and a small lot at 9 1/2c. A report is current that a lower quality of Amalias is offered at 8 3/4c., the report stating that a few lots were moved ex dock on that basis. In the absence of any tone to the demand the market is decidedly quiet and somewhat easy at quotations. There is, despite the low offering of futures, 19s. for September shipment, no interest reported here, and so far as can be learned the only results accruing from these speculative offerings have been to unsettle the situation on spot goods. Latest reports from the other side note a favorable outlook for the new crop, and conservative estimates figure on a production of 130,000 tons, or 60,000 tons short of the average.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE SAIGON RICE YIELD.

Mail advices from Saigon dated June 6 state of rice: "The predictions made at the beginning of this season as to the yield of our rice crop being some 25 per cent. below last year's harvest seem to be realized, as stocks in the interior are already said to be low and decreasing rapidly. The shortness of crop, combined with the pretensions of natives not to part with their supplies, except at enhanced prices, tend to keep our market firm and out of reach of some of the importing markets, especially Europe.

GALLON APPLES IN NEW YORK.

Quite an active interest was noted to-day in the market for gallon apples, and a considerable business for shipment on Western account was noted at a range of from $2.05 to $2.10 per dozen for gallons State pack. Sales in one or two lots aggregating 2,000 cases were noted, price paid being around $2.10. Some difficulty was reported in obtaining goods on late orders, and the market is now said to be very closely cleaned up, with the few holders asking around $2.15 to $2.25 on gallons. It is stated that the demand from the west is the direct result of the drouth-injured prospects for the new crop both there and in this State and extreme scarcity of supplies of old crop dried, green and canned. Canned pears are also reported somewhat firmer in sympathy with the advance noted in apples. —N. Y. Journal of Commerce, July 21.

FLAT COCOA MARKET.

The cable advices received from London reported that at the auction sale on the 16th inst., there was a flat market. The position of the local market has not changed in any important particular. There have been fair offerings of the extreme low grades, and they have ruled in buyers' favor, but the better grades have held about steady.

CURRENTS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The market for currants continues moderately active and there is no further decline in prices. Although stocks are so reduced as to be only barely sufficient to supply the trade until the arrival of new fruit, the qualities on offer still show a good assortment, and market prices are accommodating themselves favorably to retail quotations. Reports of the growing crop are in all respects favorable, and it may be confidently hoped that the danger of any important reduction in quantity or deterioration in quality is now past, and that the crop for 1901 will be of a character in both respects to make up for the shortcomings of its predecessor. Quotations for new fruit show a tendency to decline from those current a few weeks ago, but this is probably accounted for by the absence of business and the desire of merchants to establish a low level for opening prices, with a view to provide a steady market during the months when consumption is heaviest. Even at the highest estimate yet formed there are only likely to be just enough currants to supply the universal demand during the coming year without any undue pressure upon markets.—Produce Markets' Review, July 13.

STRONGER TOMATO MARKET IN THE U. S.

Additional strength is shown in tomatoes, both spot and future, the views of holders here and in the South being a fraction higher than was the case early in the week. Sales in fair sized lots were reported to-day on the basis of 77 1-2c. for Maryland 3s. spot, and 75c. appears to be the ruling price in the country, although some goods are offering at 72 1-2c. cash less 1 1-2 per cent. f.o.b. On this basis some futures might be had in Aberdeen. Some packers, however, hold out strongly at 75c. cash less 1 1-2 per cent. f.o.b. shipping point. Baltimore offers on the 72 1-2c. basis regular for futures and 75c. regular for spot. The improvement in the situation is reported to be due to the increased demands on Eastern packers from Western points, a very considerable movement of goods having taken place within the last ten days. The demand for spot goods appears to be caused in part by the scarcity and high prices on fresh vegetables—notably tomatoes and peas—and the poor growing conditions in the west. Chicago advices to-day report that tomatoes are looking very badly in the western tomato packing belt, and in some cases growers have already abandoned the field. The danger appears to be that a protracted drouth in July will result in delaying the season and crowd the crop in September, all of which will result in lessening the pack and hurrying the labor.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

TORONTO GROCERS PICNIC AT OSHAWA.

THE fifteenth annual excursion and picnic of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, which was held at Prospect Park, Oshawa, on Wednesday, was not as well attended as have been the annual outings of the association for some years. Owing to the difficulty of chartering a boat, as has been the custom, the excursion was run by train. Owing to the extreme heat, the train trip, with its accompaniment of dirt and sultriness, did not possess the attractiveness which has made the annual event such a popular event with the trade.

But from every other standpoint than that of attendance the excursion was a thorough going success. The games, races and sports were well contested; good music was provided by the Oshawa orchestra; the day and the park were almost ideal, though possibly rather warm, and the party had ample time in Oshawa, yet arrived home in good time.

After the excursionists had arrived at Prospect Park, and before the commencement of the games, Mayor Fowke, on behalf of Oshawa in general, and the merchants of the town in particular, made a short, happy address of welcome, giving to the grocers and their friends the freedom of the town—the best town in the Province, he claimed. President Panter replied briefly, thanking Mayor Fowke and the deputation accompanying him for their courtesy and accepting the invitation to take possession of the town for the day.

The event of the day was the baseball match between teams representing grocers west of Yonge street and grocers east of Yonge street.

The west end team was composed of Fred Thorne, captain; W. J. Sykes, J. Dempster, T. Clark, A. V. Bradley, T. Holmes, F. Higgins, Benj. Panter and C. Callendar, while the east end was represented by J. W. Sanderson, captain; R. W. Davies, D. J. Kelly, W. Mills, P. Roach, J. A. Farewell, J. L. Paterson, Benj. Cope and R. H. Stewart.

The east end team was rather disorganized, as Jerry Burns, the organizer of the team, and two other good players were unable to be on hand. But up to the end of the fifth innings, when the score stood 10 to 10 runs, there was little reason to consider one team better than the other. The battery of the east end seemed to be the stronger, the sensational work of the day being a running catch of a foul fly by catcher Sanderson. But poor throws by the infield at critical moments let in several runs, and in the sixth innings the west end pulled away and eventually won out by a score of 16 to 11 runs.

To many of those present the quoit tournament proved of even greater importance and interest than the baseball game. There were eighteen entries for the championship of the trade, and though a good part of the morning and nearly all the afternoon was spent by the contestants in playing off it became too late for the semi-finals, and J. Pearson, R. B. Snow, C. H. Wilson and S. R. Richardson drew for the respective prizes, winning in the order named. T. Holmes won fifth place. Many of the events were keenly contested and decidedly close, some really strong players being defeated in the early stages.

Possibly the most laughable event was the lady's washing contest, each contestant washing a soiled towel and hanging it up to dry. The judges, T. H. Smith and Wm. Radcliffe, decided not merely from the standpoint of speed, but also took into consideration the quality of the work done. Small tubs, washboards, etc., were provided, and from the word to start to the time the first towel was on the line, 43 seconds in all, the stand upon which the washing was done was a scene of bustling activity. The winners of the event were; 1st, Mrs. Farrow, Oshawa; 2nd, Mrs. Callendar, Toronto; 3rd, Mrs. Fisher, Oshawa; 4th, Mrs. West, Oshawa; 5th, Mrs. Geo. Smith, Toronto; 6th, Miss Lambert, Toronto.

Another event which excited considerable interest was a cheese-cutting contest. In this event each contestant had to cut off at least  $\frac{1}{4}$  lb. cheese, and to estimate its value at 15c. per lb. The cheese was then weighed, the person estimating the weight of cheese to be winner. Over 30 persons entered the contest. Two people, Mrs. Farquharson and J. C. Phillips, estimated correctly, and D. McLean and R. W. Davies within an eighth of a cent of the exact value. These cut again, and Mr. Phillips won first; Mrs. Farquharson second and Mr. McLean third.

Further variety was added to the sports by making use of an "Aunt Sally" fixture on the grounds. The first contest was open to wholesale fruit dealers. The winners were: J. J. Ryan with a score of 30, M. P. Clemes with a score of 20 and Geo. Carlton of 15. Several challenge matches were then fought off, fun being provided for the crowd for nearly an hour.

The winners of the various races were as follows:

100 yards' foot race, unmarried members—1, Fred. Thorne; 2, R. W. Davies; 3, A. V. Bradley; 4, J. L. Paterson.
100 yards' foot race, married members—1, C. Callendar; 2, J. Nolan; 3, T. Holmes; 4, T. Clark.
100 yards' foot race, Toronto city travellers—1, R. Scott; 2, S. H. Moore; 3, W. Mills.

25 yards' backward race, members—1, J. L. Paterson; 2, F. Thorne; 3, C. Callendar.

Girls' race—1, Amelia Venini, Oshawa; 2, Irene Gray, Oshawa; 3, Annie Murray, Oshawa; 4, Martha Cowdy, Toronto.

Three-legged race, grocers and travellers—1, F. Thorne and R. Scott; 2, W. Mills and C. Callendar.

Potato race, wholesale and retail grocers' employees—1, W. Mills; 2, W. J. Parks; 3, Lewis Irving.

200 yards' hurdle race, members—1, J. Nolan; 2, J. L. Paterson; 3, R. W. Davies.

Consolation race, members—1, J. Dempster; 2, W. J. Sykes; 3, F. Higgins; 4, J. Blood.

Simultaneous with the running of the games, the orchestra was providing music in one of the pavilions, and many of the ladies and gentlemen enjoyed a good porportion of the afternoon dancing. An impromptu game of basket ball, in which F. W. Johnson, J. Dempster, D. W. Clark and W. J. Sykes were strong players furnished much amusement. Several hundred made a guess as to the number of coffee beans in a jar. The guesses ranged from 500 to 10,000, but several came very close to the actual number, 2,562, the winner of the gentleman's prize, Mr. J. Anderson, being three from the count, and of the lady's prize, Mrs. John Hays, being nine figures too low.

As there were no entries for the Grocery Clerks and Drivers' Race, this event was changed to an "Aunt Sally" contest for members, the winners being J. McKay, 1st; A. R. Williamson, 2nd, and Secretary McKinnon, 3rd.

After the games were over the excursionists took possession of Oshawa, the principal centre of interest being the Oshawa Canning Factory, where many of the grocers were initiated into the mysteries of canning, and were permitted to sample the superior quality of peas and strawberries which the company have recently put up.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

D. W. Clark, chairman of the games committee, was kept busy all day.

J. S. Bond and John Butcher should have been on the musical committee.

There should be another baseball game between the east end and the west end.

All the excursionists spoke highly of Prospect Park and its manager, E. S. Edmondson.

The lateness of the raspberry season kept several grocers away who otherwise would have been there.

Frank Everist, M. P. Clemes and Cameron Husband, as judges, and J. T. Schoales, as starter, proved excellent officials.

An impromptu handicap race for the "veterans" was held. F. Hall was an easy winner. Wm. Radcliffe, from scratch, made a game race, but did not catch the leaders.

William Radcliffe and C. Husband "jollied" the grand stand before the games started. They got a dollar out of the crowd and had some impromptu races for the smaller youngsters.

Jerry Burns did not attend on account of the sudden death of his brother in Hamilton. General regret at his absence and sympathy for him on account of the cause was expressed when the facts became known.

SNEAK BUSINESS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER,—I hear of some people, or, at any rate, travellers, who intend "doing" the retail trade during the travellers' holidays. If such an "article" turns up I trust he will be treated the same way as a "similiar one" was last season. There are travellers and there are travellers.

THE OTTAWA GROCERS' EXCURSION.

The executive committee of the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association, composed of Messrs. H. W. Booth, Wm. York and M. H. McVeity, journeyed to Cornwall the other day to complete arrangements for their excursion to Stanley Island, which will take place on August 14. The committee decided to go via Ottawa and New York Railway to Cornwall and from there take the steamer Filgate to the island. The Wednesday half holiday has been more successful than was anticipated. Over 30 stores closed last week, and it is expected that a large number will observe the holiday hereafter.

INQUIRIES AND ANSWERS.

WHO OPERATES IN FROZEN POULTRY?

A London, Eng., firm writes :

Gentlemen,—In thanking you for your copies of the May 31 issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER, which I find a most excellent and useful work, it occurs to me that you might publish some books or periodicals pertaining to poultry, and might also be able and willing to send me the names of some of the largest operators in fowls, which are now being frozen for the English market in some parts of Canada.

[Remarks: Can any of our readers furnish us with the names of operators in frozen fowls for the British market?—THE EDITOR.]

The Grocers' Wholesale Company, Limited, Hamilton, held its general meeting at the Waldorf hotel on Tuesday. After the directors had been elected and other business transacted the shareholders inspected the warehouse and offices which are in course of construction and expressed themselves well pleased with what they saw.

CURIOUS ANALYTICAL RESULTS.

In his latest report to the Birmingham Health Authorities Dr. Alfred Hill refers at length to a sample of coffee which gave very curious analytical results. Part of the sample received from the inspector contained 34 per cent. of chicory, but the other part had only 20 per cent., and Dr. Hill certified it to be adulterated to the extent of 20 per cent. The defendant had the portion of the sample which was left with him analyzed, and the chemist found 5 per cent. of chicory. After the case had been heard the third sample was obtained from the inspector, and was found to contain only a very small proportion of chicory, not more than 1 per cent. Inquiries led to the knowledge that when the sample was sold the bulk of it was taken from a box which was emptied, and the remaining quantity necessary to make up the weight was taken from a canister. It appears probable, Dr. Hill says, that the greater part of the sample taken from the box was pure coffee, and that the small quantity from the canister was either chicory or a mixture of chicory and coffee. The sample was evidently not properly mixed, so that the three parts into which it was divided contained chicory in various proportions. Dr. Hill remarks that if the portion containing only 1 per cent. of chicory had been sent to the Government chemist at Somerset House, and reported on as practically genuine, there would probably have been some very strong remarks made upon the carelessness or incompetence of the public analyst who found 20 per cent. of chicory in a sample of coffee that should not contain any. The moral is that samples should be properly mixed before division.

AN APPEAL TO CONSUMERS.

AS the readers of THE CANADIAN GROCER are doubtless aware, an active movement is on foot in St. John, N.B., for shorter hours for grocers. And the movement is receiving the hearty support of the local press. In a recent issue The St. John Sun made an appeal to the consuming public to assist in the movement by shopping earlier. And the appeal is so strong that we herewith reproduce it. It reads:

So far as can be learned by the published lists and in other ways, the majority of the grocers are in sympathy with the movement of their clerks for shorter hours. Their interest is much the same, for nearly all proprietors of grocery stores are themselves salesmen. They make no more money by keeping the shop open for two-thirds of the 24 hours. No matter how long the shops are open, people will buy what they need, or what they can afford to pay for. The aggregate grocer's bill of the town would not be larger if the shops were open all night, or smaller if they closed at seven, or six, or any other early hour. An individual dealer might lose trade if he should close early and his neighbor should be open in the evening, but a general early closing would leave all on about the same basis that they are now. There is no doubt that if the dealers were satisfied that their customers would not be displeased and inconvenienced, they would readily fall in with the early-closing movement, provided each one were sure that all the rest would close. No traders in St. John are more accommodating, or take more trouble to meet the needs and the convenience of purchasers than the grocers and their clerks. They send home the smallest purchases at the most inconvenient times. They compass sea and land to provide the customer with what he wants. They are liberal—perhaps too much so—with credit. If they hesitate to close their shops in the evening, it is because they think that the people want to buy in the evening. But the purchasers can supply their wants in the day time, and the proof is with the people themselves. Let them do their buying before seven and the grocers will not keep their shops open till all hours of night. They are not in business for fun, and a rest will be worth as much to them as to the clerks. They will get better service too, for if the grocery salesmen are called upon to give a much longer day than clerks or employes in other lines of activity, men will not be attracted to that service, or if they are they will require larger inducements.

If there were many as warm, able, and influential advocates of early closing among the daily press of the country as The St. John Sun, grocers would soon have little or no excuse for keeping their stores open the long hours they now do. Grocers should paste The Sun's article up in a prominent place in their stores for the perusal of their customers.

At a meeting of the Grocers' Federation Conference in Brighton, Eng., the other day, a good deal of attention was given to the question of "Grocers and Christmas Boxes." Rather a cold weather subject for a hot weather season.

A BIG SALMON COMBINATION.

AFTER lengthy negotiations the combination among the salmon canning interests of Puget Sound and Alaska has at last been consummated, letters patent having been filed a few days ago in Trenton, N.J., the centre from which nearly all the great combinations in the United States have derived their authority.

The combination is an extensive one. It composes 17 canning companies in Alaska and on Puget Sound, and it is said the total number of subordinate companies will reach 30. The authorized capital stock is $32,000,000.

The New York banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., that organized the great steel combination and negotiated the purchase of the Leyland Line of steamers, have had a hand in the formation of the canned salmon combination. The well-known salmon-canning firms of Delafield, McGovern & Co., and J. W. Seligman & Co. were also prominent in the negotiations.

MANUFACTURERS' REPRESENTATIVES.

THERE are many manufacturers whose business does not warrant them keeping a traveller out on the road, but who, nevertheless, lose a great deal of trade which might be theirs were they represented at the right place.

For instance, there are many articles which the trade will not keep in stock, because the demand is so limited that the small storekeeper cannot afford to carry them. True, he generally knows some leading house from which to get them if called for, but this sort of trade lacks the active sympathy which is required to sell goods in these days of keen competition.

A remedy suggested, and one which does not seem unlikely, is for the manufacturer to secure the services of a local member in his particular line of trade, in every city, town and village in the country to act as agent for him and push the sale of his articles whenever possible.

To do this he might advertise through the trade press offering liberal commissions to agents for business so obtained, thus reaching and keeping constantly in touch with the storekeeper in every part of the country.

The remedy is a simple one, and might easily be put into operation and given a fair trial.

BRITISH TEA IN AUSTRALIA.

One of the features of the trade in Indian and Ceylon teas is the increased consumption of these teas in Australia. This is evident from a glance at the following table showing the exports of Indian, Ceylon and China teas direct to Australia during the year ending April last and the corresponding two years:

|                  | 1900-1901.lb. | 1899.lb. | 1898.lb. |
|------------------|-------------------|--------------|--------------|
| Indian . . . . . | 10,129,028        | 8,301,839    | 6,327,817    |
| Ceylon . . . . . | 19,207,929        | 15,349,144   | 15,105,000   |
| China . . . . .  | 6,776,684         | 6,517,406    | 5,800,000    |
| Total . . . . .  | 36,113,641        | 30,168,389   | 27,232,817   |

Australia is, per head of population, the greatest tea-consuming nation, next to Great Britain, in the world.

GET UP STEAM.

It does not matter how much ability a man may have, the measure of his success in business, or in any other vocation, will be in proportion to the energy he displays and the enterprise he develops.

A man, like a locomotive, is of very little use until steam is up.

THE PAST SEASON'S MARKET.

TO those wholesalers or retailers who carry heavy stocks of groceries and to those who make a practice of speculating in some of the many lines coming under this term, a review of the grocery markets for the past year must be a recreation not altogether pleasant. Yet the ups and downs of the market, unfortunately, mostly the latter, have not been without interest or results and certainly should not be forgotten by a shrewd business man.

We believe we are safe in saying that there is not one grocer that has congratulated himself on his heavy purchases of last fall. First and foremost came the drop in fruits. It was seen long before Christmas arrived that they were not going to sell half as well as in previous years. The cause of the disturbance was the light crop and high price of currants, and it seems one of the ironies of the fates that this was one of the few lines on which little money was lost or perhaps some was won by our Canadian investors. But the high price of currants coupled with climatic evils had its effect on the raisin market. Prices soared, indeed, out of sight for a time, and when they reappeared it would cost 9 1-2c. to lay fine-off stalk down on this market. Fortunately our wholesale houses "got in" at much lower figures. But although they bought comparatively lightly, the goods refused to go at 9c., then at 8c., then at 7c., then at 6c., and finally at 5c. they have been proving themselves to be only a drug.

Last week 4,000 boxes of raisins sold in Montreal at such a price as to allow the buyer to resell to the retail trade at 3 1-2c. per lb. and make a profit. This fruit may not be first-class, but at least one house is selling good stuff at $1.20 per 28-lb. box—not much more. The loss on these goods must be more than one-third of the cost.

The high price of Valencia raisins and currants had its inflating effect on other values which could do nothing but collapse. To-day we know a dealer who is selling Sultana raisins at 8 3-4c. that cost him 10c., and Californians at 6c. that cost him 8c. Prunes have declined from 2c. per lb. on the higher grades to 1-2c. per lb. on the lower grades, robbing our merchants of the bulk of their profit. Fortunately, fancy raisins were imported but lightly and few were sacrificed. But taking it all in all this is certainly a record for a depopulated spring dried fruit market. And yet we are not touching upon the "cut prices" that prevailed during fire sales.

Then there is canned goods. Something got into the canned goods eating apparatus of the people and vegetables refused to move at profitable or even cost figures and, finally, were being sold at 7 1-2c. per doz. below canners' figures. The market has taken a better turn to about this extent, but even yet where does the profit come in? And several lines of fruits dropped about 20c. a dozen in the same period.

Then comes molasses. Last fall the jobbing price for 50-punchon lots was 38c. and it was being shipped in single punchons at 11c. per gallon. Stocks in Canada were supposed to be very short; it was feared that there would be hardly enough to supply the demand. But as ill-luck would have it, no demand came, and when new crop prices were announced dealers found themselves still burdened with a last year's dead weight. The opening price at the Island was 15c. first cost; which declined in some weeks to 9c., and finally settled at 11c. This meant a drop of 12c. on the local market, and the resultant losses mounted up to the tens of thousands of dollars. One house alone, noted for its prudence and foresight, is said to have dropped $3,300.

Then again the tea market acted most arbitrarily. Last year statistics showed that Canada was importing less Japan tea than usual, and some of our best importers naturally concluded that high-grade Japan teas would be good property this spring. But the tea market assumed a chronic dullness and the expected rise developed into a slight tumble and where sales have been made of late, we have dealers' statements for it, that only the cost has been redeemed.

We do not wish to gloat over these misfortunes, but we feel they should be reviewed by sane business men. Above all they show the necessity that lies on a business man of being a thorough student of the market.

Another reason for the review is the explanation it gives of the change that has come over the attitude of buyers, both wholesale and retail. It is now an open secret that the orders being placed for canned goods for fall by the jobber have been very light and by the retailer almost nil.

ARE THERE DISHONORABLE TRAVELLERS?

AS we have already announced, nearly all the wholesale grocers, spice dealers and woodenware manufacturers will give their travellers a holiday from August 5 to 17 inclusive. There are rumors abroad, however, to the effect that a traveller here and there will endeavor to take advantage of the absence of his confidantes from the road to do business. It is said that some will even do this who represent houses that have signed the agreement.

We most heartily hope that the rumors have no foundation in fact. The holiday is one that has been so generally endorsed by not only those directly interested but by retail organizations as well, that it is to be hoped that no house will do anything or allow anything to be done which will only tend to mar the occasion or that will savor of dishonorable practice.

While the travellers are holidaying, could not a portion of the office staff be spared at the same time? It would certainly increase the popularity of the holiday. We understand such a practice is in vogue in Glasgow and a few other cities in Great Britain.

WILL THE BISCUIT FACTORIES AMALGAMATE?

FROM a New York source comes the announcement that a movement is on foot to amalgamate the biscuit factories of Canada.

"The Canadian Grocer" learns that there has been a movement on foot for some time to include not only the biscuit manufacturers, but the confectionery manufacturers as well.

In pursuance of this object an option has been held on a number of the concerns for some time. The options, it was originally intended, should expire on July 1, but we learn that they have now been extended to the autumn.

All but two concerns, we have been given to understand, are in favor of the scheme.

It is held by some that The Biscuit Trust of the United States is behind the scheme. One thing is certain at any rate, and that is that those who are promoting it are citizens of the United States.

Whether the amalgamation will be consummated or not remains to be seen. At present the outlook is not the most promising, due largely to the fact that one of the manufacturers who has refused to co-operate is the largest in Canada.

Biscuit manufacturing is one of the industries which has developed materially in Canada during the past ten years. And not only is the home demand largely supplied by the home factories, but a promising export trade is being developed. As quite a few Canadian biscuits have been going into New York, we may perhaps therein find an explanation for the desire of The Biscuit Trust across the border to amalgamate and control the industry in this country.

THE COFFEE CONTEST.

The coffee essay contest closed on the 20th inst. Several essays were submitted and the result will be announced as soon as the judges have completed their labors.

Judicious advertising has often proved a good tonic for a debilitated business.

CANADA AND THE RECIPROCITY QUESTION.

RECIPROCITY is a question which is again receiving some attention from commercial organizations in the United States. A short time ago The National Association of Manufacturers' in session at Detroit adopted a resolution recommending the calling of a general convention for the consideration of reciprocity treaties with foreign countries. Since then two important and influential commercial bodies in the United States have adopted resolutions asking the President and Congress to take steps to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with Canada. The one was The Boston Chamber of Commerce and the other The Merchants' Association of New York.

The business men across the border realize that self-contained and all as the United States is, it is not altogether independent of other nations for the development of its trade and commerce. One gathers that from a perusal of the reciprocity resolutions recently adopted, and particularly from that of The Merchants' Association of New York.

"The manufactured products of the United States," reads the preamble of that resolution, "are constantly increasing and are already exceeding the demands of home consumption; and whereas this over-production is a serious and growing menace to the commercial interests of this country; and whereas the opening of foreign markets upon such terms and conditions as will enable the manufacturers of this country to dispose of their product advantageously therein will furnish a preventative for this threatening evil. . . . Resolved.—The Merchants' Association of New York hereby urges upon the President and Congress that such immediate steps be taken as in their judgment will result in the consummation of a mutually advantageous reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada."

The resolution adopted by The Boston Chamber of Commerce is little less emphatic in regard to the importance of foreign markets, and recognizes equally as fully the importance of Canada's trade. "Canada," it says, "is our nearest, and, in some respects our best foreign market."

The export trade of the United States during the fiscal year recently ended was nearly $1,500,000,000 and the excess of exports over imports nearly $665,000,000. Compared with ten years ago the increase is enormous. But while the conditions are so satisfactory it is the future that is causing uneasiness to the commercial interests of the United States.

The attitude of the United States towards other nations, in a commercial sense, has been that of the ancient Jews toward the Samaritans. They wanted no dealings with them, with this difference: The United States wanted to sell to other nations, but she did not want to buy from them. And in order that she might not buy from them she has surrounded herself with a Customs tariff which averages about 55 per cent.—about double that of the Canadian tariff.

This policy was irritating at all times, but it became increasingly so as the products of United States factories invaded in larger volume the markets of Europe. Now, nearly every nation in Continental Europe is up in arms, in a commercial sense, against the United States; and leagues and other devices against that country are openly and vigorously advocated. Many of them are visionary and impracticable, no doubt, but there is more than a possibility that some of them will crystalize into something that will be anything but helpful to the export trade of the United States.

"We see," said the President of The National Association of Manufacturers, in his address at Detroit, "industrial Germany aroused and alarmed by the encroachment of American competition. . . . We see Russia incensed because her friendly efforts to secure commercial courtesies in return for valuable concessions extended to us have been cavalierly ignored and great injustice done to her. France has waited patiently for nearly two years to give us abundant time to consider propositions touching mutual trade concessions. . . . Even Austria and Switzerland . . . are expressing with much emphasis their dissatisfaction with our national policy which seeks to obtain all possible trade advantages and yet is unwilling to concede any favors in return."

One, too, cannot but be struck in perusing the trade and daily press of Great Britain to notice that in that country there is developing a sentiment in favor of something being done in the way of legislation or combinations to meet the competition of the country with the jug-handled trade policy.

In Canada we are not sufficiently concerned to be actively interested in the movement across the border for reciprocity, even as far as it relates to this country. At present at any rate we do not consider it within the pale of practical politics. There was at one time a strong sentiment in this country in favor of reciprocity with the United States, and possibly if it was thought that there was any likelihood of such a treaty, and particularly an equitable one, being forthcoming we might again be in favor of it. But we have not at present the slightest belief that Congress will adopt a reciprocity treaty, and particularly one that would be fair to Canada. Of course, we may be mistaken in our premise, just as the people were 47 years ago when Lord Elgin, contrary to their expectations, successfully negotiated the reciprocity treaty of 1854. But in the meantime we are afraid that no good thing can come out of Nazareth.

Canada's efforts are now centred in developing her trade with the countries within the Empire to which we belong and not so much that of the continent to which we belong, thanks to the McKinley and the Dingley tariffs, with the result that 60.60 per cent. of our total exports now go to Great Britain against 52.91 in 1890, while the proportion to the United States is only 30.66. As to our export trade to the countries within the Empire, in 1896 it was $71,109,278 and in 1900 it was $114,781,217. Our export trade to the United States for the two periods was $31,160,428 and $51,501,394 respectively.

If the United States offers us a fair reciprocity tariff business commonsense demands that we at least give it careful consideration. But, as Hon. George Brown said in 1865, when the question of renewing the reciprocity treaty with the United States was being considered, "It is the place of the Americans to approach us with a proposition." Public sentiment in Canada would not countenance for one moment the initiative being taken by our statesmen.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE.

Canada's foreign trade during the past ten years has increased over 80 per cent. This is shown by the unrevised official returns just issued for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, the figures being $394,000,000 for 1901 and $218,384,934 for 1891.

The growth is all the more significant when it is remembered that during the previous decade it was scarcely 8 per cent.

There is an increase over 1900 in both exports and imports. The exports last year of goods, the produce of Canada, were $170,642,369, and this year, according to the unrevised statement, they were $177,639,192.

The growth of the export trade is one of the most striking in the commercial history of the country, it having, during the last ten years, doubled.

The exports during 1901 compared with 1891 were as follows:

|                           | 1901.         | 1891.        |

GROCERIES.

SUGAR is perhaps not as active as it should be for this time of the year, but taking it all round the wholesale grocery trade is fairly brisk. Canned vegetables is the most interesting line at the moment on account of the attention that is being given to last season's pack, a good many transactions in which have taken place during the week. In teas, a fair business is being done on retail account, but wholesalers are operating but sparingly. Coffees are quiet and weak. Currants continue steady and Valencia raisins weak. There is a fair demand for the former. The demand for prunes is gradually falling off. Spices are in fair request for pickling purposes. In both rice and tapioca the demand is fair. Trade conditions generally throughout the country are fairly good. The railway earnings and the bank returns are favorable and the crop prospects continue promising.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned vegetable situation, as far as spot goods are concerned, shows increasing strength. Wholesalers have been free buyers during the week, with the result that stocks in first hands must be greatly reduced. There is a firmer feeling in regard to prices on spot goods. Although there is yet no quotable change in figures wholesalers are now able to make sales without cutting prices. There have been some sales of canned tomatoes to retailers as low as 77½c. during the past week, but the lowest figure we hear quoted, as a rule, is 80c., while the range is up to 85c. for some brands. It is generally conceded that the pea pack is a short one, and several packers have notified the wholesalers that they will not be able to fill the whole of their orders for the sifted description. Some of the wholesalers are quoting sifted peas at $1.20 to arrive. One house refused 75c. this week for 100 cases of ordinary peas. The ruling price is 80c. Corn is quoted at 75 to 80c. per doz. On account of the dry weather the bean pack is not promising well. One packer in the west advises that the bean crop will be one-half short. The expectation of a short crop has also stimulated the demand for old pack goods, and there have been quite a few transactions at the syndicate prices. Little or nothing is being done in canned vegetables of any kind on future account. The quotations for futures are 85 to 87½c. per doz. for tomatoes; 80 to 82½c. for peas and corn, and 80c. for beans. Canned fruits are quiet. Raspberries and strawberries are being quoted to the retail trade as follows: Strawberries, $1.50 in syrup and $1.75 preserved; raspberries, $1.45 in syrup and $1.70 preserved.

There is a good sorting-up demand for canned salmon, but little or nothing is being done on future account; and not much may be expected until something more definite is known in regard to the pack. As the trade is doubtless aware, the strike among the fishermen has been settled on the basis of 12½c. per fish for one-quarter of the pack and 10c. for the balance. Spot salmon is quoted at $1.60 to $1.65 for Fraser River sockeye, $1.50 to $1.55 for northern sockeye, and $1.20 to $1.25 for cohoes. Fraser River sockeye for future delivery is still quoted at $1.45 for less than 10-case lots, and $1.42½ for 10-case lots and over. Northern sockeye for future delivery is quoted at $1.30 for less than 10 cases, and $1.25 for 10 cases and over.

Toronto, Montreal, and St.
John prices current.

COFFEE.

The crop movement of Brazilian coffee is large and prices are in consequence weak. Mild coffees are also easy. Locally there have been a few operations on importation account, but business on retail account is falling off; and little has been done during the past week. We quote: Green Rio, No. 7, 7¾c.; No. 6, 8¼c.; No. 5, 8¾c.; No. 4, 9¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Business is seasonably quiet in both syrup and molasses. We quote: Corn syrups, barrels, 3c. per lb.; half-barrels, 3¾c.; kegs, 3¼c.; pails, $1.40 each for three gallons, $1.05 for 2 gallons. Sugar syrups range from 30 to 37c. per gallon, and New Orleans molasses at 23c. upward.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The demand is fairly good for both rice and tapioca. B rice is quoted at 3½c. per lb. and Japan and Java rice at 5½ to 6c.; tapioca 4¼ to 4½c.

SPICES.

The demand for pickling spices is good. Pepper is in the usual steady demand. The outside spice markets rule quiet and steady.

TEAS.

A recent cable advance from Yokohama, Japan, reports that the price of tea there still rules high. A peculiar feature of the market, however, is the fact that old teas are being sold at about 2c. below what they cost last year, while to duplicate them today with new teas would cost 2½ to 3½c. higher. Advices from Chicago say that the figures at which first crop Japan teas are selling are slightly below cost. "But we believe," say the advices, "that when the conditions of affairs prevailing in Japan are known here our market will advance and especially affect the lower grades. Advices from Shanghai regarding the opening of the market for gunpowder teas say that prices were 2 to 3c. per lb. above the opening figures of last year. On the local market very little business is being done from first hands in Indian and Ceylon black teas, wholesalers not being inclined to operate except at low figures. Very little has been done in Ceylon green teas during the week. Mail advices from London, England, under date of July 12, say that the auctions of Indian teas were again light, and that the scarcity of useful liquoring medium tea from 6d. to 10d. per lb. was producing a better market for such grades with prices showing a hardening tendency. Supplies at the auction of Ceylon teas were also smaller and prices showed a slight improvement.

SUGAR.

Since our last issue the sugar market has assumed a much better position. Beet sugar is 4½d. dearer, being quoted at 9s. 7½d. and centrifugal sugars in New York lost 1 32c. per lb. but regained it on July 23 by the sale of a cargo at 4 3 16c., duty paid. The New York refined market has assumed a firmer tone. The Trust has announced that its lowest quotation is 5.45c. per lb., but the independent refineries are still 10c. below that figure. On the local market there is a little more inquiry and prices are firm.

NUTS.

Quotations received for new crop Tarra-gona almonds and Grenoble walnuts indicate that the supply is considered sufficient for all purposes. The filbert crop promises well.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—Hancock & Wood advise that crops are progressing well; indeed, no malady has appeared, and they think they have escaped this drawback altogether. Fruit looks healthy and is plentiful, and they expect a crop of fully 150,000 tons. If a retention is put on of 15 per cent. there will be 128,000 tons available for export. Locally, the demand for currants is fair for small sorting up lots. Some shipments have recently come to hand, but stocks are still decidedly low. Wholesalers report that they have no difficulty in getting 10c. per lb. for the lowest grades. Ruling prices for good sound fruit are: Filiatras, 10c.; Patras, 11c.; Vostizzas, 12c. for 2 crown and 14c. for 5 crown.

VALENCIA RAISINS—The local market is dull and weak at  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb. for fine off stalk, and 6 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c. for selected, according to brand. Advices from Mr. John D. Arguimbau are to the effect that the crops in several districts have suffered considerably from storms and hail, which has destroyed a considerable quantity of the fruit. In other districts the crop is reported in very good condition, rains having been very beneficial to the vines, and, as a result, quality of the fruit is expected to be fine and the fruit large.

SULTANA RAISINS—Shipments of Sultana raisins have come to hand during the past week, and some good deliveries have been made to the baking trade. Last advices say there was fine settled weather, and, as a result, it is probable that the yield will exceed the present estimate of 25,000 tons. Stocks held over are exhausted, and dealers have every interest in opening the market at a low level of values, which will enable them to realize a profit on their purchases in the interior.

FIGS—Wholesalers report that they have met with poor success this season in trying to sell Eleme figs to arrive. Crop conditions in Smyrna continue favorable.

PRUNES—The demand continues to fall off, and although trade is small it is larger than is usual at this time of the year. Californian prunes are quoted at the following prices: 30-40's, 8 to  $8\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 40-50's,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c.; 50-60's, 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 60-70's,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7c.; 70-80's, 6 to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 80-90's,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c.; 90-100's, 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. French prunes,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4c.

GREEN FRUITS.

The supply of cherries is not a very great one, and prices have gone up to 90c. to $1.25, an advance of 15c. Raspberries, black or red, are not plentiful either, though prices a few days ago went down to 7 to 9c., and, so far, have not risen. Strawberries are done. Red currants are in good demand at 40 to 60c., an advance of 10c. Gooseberries still sell at 50 to 60c., and blueberries at 75c. to $1. Lemons are 50c. per box higher, $5 being now the ruling price. Oranges remain steady at $3 50. A good supply of late Valencias are in. Bananas are in good demand at $1.75 to $2.25. Watermelons remain at 30 to 40c. each, in moderate demand. A few American muskmelons are coming in, but prices are so irregular, owing to the condition of the fruit, that any satisfactory quotations are impossible. They run from $1.55 on some low lines up to $3 for the best. Pine-apples continue at $3 25 to $3.75 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There is still a great shrinkage. Prices for fresh candled stock are 12 to 13c.

BEANS—There is still a rather dull market. We quote $1.60 to $1.65 for hand-picked and $1.50 to $1.60 for primes.

HONEY—Some honey is commencing to arrive at the following prices: New extracted clover, 7 to 8c.; No. 1 clover comb, $1.50.

DRIED APPLES—A very dull market continues. Nominally prices are 5c. for evaporated, and 3 to  $3\frac{1}{2}$ c. for dried.

POTATOES—Old potatoes remain at 35 to 40c. per bag, but prices are practically nominal. A fair supply of new potatoes at $1.20 to $1.35 per bushel are in good demand.

LIVE POULTRY—July prices for ducklings and spring chickens (not under 2 lb. each) as quoted by the Canadian Produce Co., Toronto, are 8c. per lb. For hens (including last year's) 4c. per lb. is offered.

DRESSED POULTRY—No quotations can be given, as commission men are doing no trade at all in them. They could not handle them during the present hot weather.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—A good deal of butter continues to arrive in poor condition. Outside of the best quality, for which there is a good market, trade is rather dull and the market is somewhat easier. There have been no changes in prices. Our quotations are as follows: Dairy prints, 16 to 17c.; best tubs, 16 to 17c.; seconds, 11 to 14c.; creamery prints, 20 to 21c.; boxes, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE—There is a fair amount of business doing. For new cheese, prices are firm at  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c. There is more old cheese than usual at this time of year, and prices are  $\frac{1}{2}$ c. lower, now being  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c.

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—During the last few days the wheat market has taken a boom, and at present there is rather a feverish feeling. Standing on its own merits wheat would naturally go down, but the shortage of the corn crop may send up the price of wheat. Manitoba No. 1 hard is at 81c., grinding in transit, or 79c. Toronto and west. There is not much movement on the local market. Oats are 4c. higher. We quote: Wheat, white and red, 68c.; goose,  $62\frac{1}{2}$ c.; oats, 39c.; rye, 52 to  $52\frac{1}{2}$ c.; barley, 47c.

FLOUR—There is still a good demand. Manitoba patents are 15c. lower, and strong bakers' has dropped 20c. We quote on track, Toronto (bags included) as follows: Manitoba patents, $4.05; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.75; Ontario patents, $3.30 to $3.60; straight roller, $3.20.

BREAKFAST FOODS—The movement is fair and prices are steady at the following figures: Standard oatmeal, $3.70 in bags, and $3.80 in bbls.; rolled oats, $3.60 in bags, and $3.70 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.25 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.75; split peas, $4; pot barley, $4.

FISH.

There is a good demand for fish, and several kinds have advanced, owing principally to the difficulty in keeping them in hot weather. Whitefish and trout are each 1c. higher; halibut has advanced 6c., and British Columbian and sea salmon are 10c. higher. We quote as follows: Fresh fish—Speckled trout, 25c.; red snappers,  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c.; Spanish mackerel,  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c.; codfish, 7c.; whitefish, 8c.; trout, 8c.; halibut, 15c.; sea salmon, 25c.; haddock, 6c.; herring, 3c.; British Columbian salmon, 25c. Prepared fish—Dried cod, in 112 lb. bundles, \$4.75 per cwt.; flitched cod, \$5 to \$5.25; boneless cod, in bricks, 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb.; steak cod,  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb.; shredded cod (2 doz. in box), \$1.80 per box; boneless fish, loose, in 25-lb. boxes, 4 to  $4\frac{1}{2}$ c., and 5-lb. boxes, 5c. per lb. Live lobsters are worth 15c. per lb.

VEGETABLES.

A heavy demand continues. Cauliflower has begun to be a little scarce and the cheaper grades have advanced 25c. Corn, too, is in short supply, but no change in prices has taken place. Green onions have altogether displaced old onions and are in good demand at 15 to 20c. per doz. Some Canadian tomatoes are in, and sell well at 10 to 12c. per lb. A few green apples are offered at 50c. per basket. We quote as follows: Carrots, beets and turnips, 15c.; lettuce, radishes and watercress, 25c.; mint and parsley, 20c.; cauliflower, 75c. to $2; celery, 60 to 75c.; cabbage, 40 to 60c.; corn, 15c.; cucumbers, short, 40 to 75c.; long, $1 to $1.25; tomatoes, 50c. per box; butter beans, 75c. to $1 per bushel; green onions, 15 to 25c. per doz.; Canadian tomatoes, 10 to 12c. per lb.; apples, 50c. per basket.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—The market is weak here in sympathy with that of the United States, and a decline is looked for. No changes in prices have occurred. We quote as follows: Cowhides, No. 1, 8c.; No. 2, 7c.; No. 3, 6c. Steerhides are worth 1c. more. Cured hides are quoted at  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to 9c.

SKINS—Prices are steady and a fair trade is doing. We quote: No. 1 veal, 8-lb. and up, 9c. per lb.; No. 2, 8c.; dekins, from 55 to 60c.; culls, 20 to 25c.; sheepskins, 90c. to $1.

WOOL—There is a moderate demand at steady prices. Our quotations are: Combining fleece, washed, 13c., and unwashed, 8c.

MARKET NOTES.

Oats have advanced 4c. Messina lemons are 50c. per box higher. White and red wheat are 3c. lower, and goose wheat  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c. lower.

Canned vegetables in first hands have been active during the past week.

Manitoba patent flour has declined 15c., and Manitoba strong bakers' flour is 20c. lower.

Whitefish and trout are each 1c. higher; halibut 6c., and British Columbian and sea salmon each 10c. higher.

GROCERIES.

THE midsummer trade is as active as can be expected and gives every encouragement for the fall. Sugar is somewhat stronger this week on account of a sudden advance in the raw beet market. The demand on the local market has improved and the outlook is now much brighter. The feature in canned goods is the fear of a short pack of salmon. A telegram received on Tuesday by one of the largest agencies says that the Inlet run has been a total failure so far. Fishermen had been expecting a good run this year but their anticipations are not likely to be realized. Salmon seems to be the only canned article of the new pack that wholesaler or retailer is ordering with any freedom. We understand that the demand for the new pack of vegetables and fruits has been remarkably light. The auction sale of 4,000 boxes of Valencia raisins at the wharf last Friday has appreciably affected the value of this article and prices as low as 3 1-2c. for inferior fruit are spoken of; for good sound goods 5 to 6c. is asked and obtained. The feature of the Japan tea market is a falling off in the demand at primary points.

SUGARS.

At the wharf last Friday 4,000 bags of Austrian and German sugars were sold at $3.35 to $3.70 per 100 lb., the lower values being on packages damaged in transit. This sale has, naturally, not tended to stiffen the local market, yet it is rather stronger than it was a week ago, due to the advance in European raw beet which is 5d. higher on the week. With the improvement in the tone of the market comes an improvement in the demand which has been rather heavy during the past few days. As before granulated is selling at $4.50 per 100 lb. and yellows at $3.85 to $4.45, according to quality.

SYRUPS

But few parcels have moved forward this week. The market shows no change, corn syrup being quoted at 3 to 3 1-2c. and cane syrup at 1 1-2 to 2c.

MOLASSES.

But little interest is centred about molasses this month. It is said a few small lots have come to light at the Islands during the past few weeks, but they have brought full prices. In round lots between jobbers the ruling quotation is 27c., while to the retailers the price is 29c. per gal.

CANNED GOODS.

The feature in this line is the probability that there will be another short pack of salmon. So far the run has been decidedly discouraging. A telegram received in Montreal on Tuesday announced the Rivers Inlet pack so far as an entire failure. Although it is as yet somewhat early to place the pack at small figures, it is now reasonably certain that the large pack which the fishermen expected will not materialize. All the prices on new pack fruits are now announced and wholesalers are taking orders at $1.50 for strawberries, $1.40 for raspberries, $1.40 for gooseberries, $1.55 for pears and $2 for 3's, $1.20 for lombard plums and $1.30 for green gages, $1.70 for yellow peaches and $2.50 for 3's, $2.30 for sliced pineapple and $2.45 for grated, 85c. for 3-lb. apples, and $1.90 for gallons, $1.80 for red pitted cherries and $2 for whites, unpitted 20c. less. Few orders are being taken for the new goods, either fruits or vegetables. On spot vegetables are selling

SPICES.

A fair trade is being done in spices at former prices. We quote nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12 1-2 to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

An active distributing trade is well maintained. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in 1 1/2 bags, $3.15; in 1-4 bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in 1-2 bags; $3.10 in 1-4 bags; and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 1 1/4c. per lb.

TEAS

Bulletins from Japan report a quiet market. One letter dated June 30 says: "Since our last report, the market has been comparatively quiet for the time of year and prices at the close are a trifle easier. Second crop tea is now arriving but the quality is not very desirable. The excess of settlements over last year which has heretofore been reported has disappeared, purchases now being about the same as last year." Another letter corroborates this report of the market saying: "There has been quite a falling off in the demand for teas since our last advices, transactions amounting to 11,961 piculs, as against 21,737 piculs during the corresponding period last season. The demand has been best for teas grading from good medium to finest. . . . Stocks are estimated at 8,000 piculs and consist mostly of low-grade teas, poor in cup and style of leaf. The second crop has been shown since the 18th instant. The quality of the teas so far received is about the same as first receipts last year. It is reported that the bulk of the second crop will consist of low-grade teas. Statistics show that there have been 1,239,857 lb. of Japan tea admitted into Canada this year as compared with 912,751 lb. to the same date last year. The Indian and Ceylon tea markets are steady.

The local demand for teas is improving, some fair parcels having moved out this week.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—The demand for spot goods continues to be quite fair at full prices. It is estimated that only 500 tons of currants came to Canada during the past year against 2,000 tons in the previous season. Fine Filiatras are quoted at 9 1-2 to 10 1-2c.

RAISINS—A sale of 4,000 boxes of somewhat inferior Valencia fruit has affected the raisin market considerably, buyers being able to resell this fruit at 3 1-2c. per lb. and make a profit. First-class, sound fruit brings 5c. for fine off-stalk, 5 1-2c. for selected and 6c. for layers. Sultana raisins are going at 8 3-4 to 9c. Shipments of new Valencias are expected to commence about August 15.

PRUNES—Fair quantities of prunes are selling at regular quotations. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5 1-2c. for 90's to 100's; 6 1-2 to 7 1-2c. for 60's to 70's and 7 1-2 to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—The apricot harvest has begun in the Santa Clara Valley. The quality of the fruit is A-1, but the supply of graded apricots will not be large. The demand for spot goods is but moderate.

GREEN FRUITS.

The demand for all lines of green fruits has been decidedly active during the past week. Oranges are very scarce at 75c. per box higher. Lemons are also 25 to 50c. a box more than they were last week. Raspberries are now coming in quite plentifully. We quote: Messina oranges, 200's, $3.75 to $1.25 per box and $2 to $2.25 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $3.75 to $1.25; 360's, $3.75 to $1 per box; Californian apples, $3 per box; pineapples, 20 to 25c.; Tennessee tomatoes, $1.25 to $1.50; new Bermuda onions, $3 per crate; Californian plums, $1.75 to $2 per box; peaches, $1.75 to $2; limes, $1.50 per box; gooseberries, 10c. per basket; raspberries, 7 to 8c.; coconuts, $3.25 to $3.50 per bag of 100; Bartlett pears, $3 to $3.25 per box; blackberries, 8 to 9c.; huckleberries, 7 to 8c. per box; watermelons, 25 to 35c.

per cent. patents at $3.15 to $3.20 on track here. We quote: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $3.95 to $4.20; winter wheat patents, $3.45 to $3.70; straight roller, $3.15 to $3.40; in bags, $1.55 to $1.65, and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.90.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 73 to 74c. afloat July; peas, 80 1-2c.; rye, 56 1-2 to 57 1-2c.; No. 2 barley, 50 to 51c.;

oats, 36 1-2 to 37 1-2c.; buckwheat, 56 1-2 to 57c.; corn, 54 to 55c.

OATMEAL—The market is firm in sympathy with oats, but prices are irregular. We quote: $3.65 to $3.80 in wood and $1.75 to $1.85 in bags.

FEED—The market continues firm notwithstanding the more liberal offerings of green feed. Ontario bran has sold at $13.50 to $14, shorts, at $15 to $15.50, and mouil-

COUNTRY PRODUCE.
EGGS—The English market has not been favorable for export, but it is taking a better turn and a more advantageous market is looked for. The hot weather has spoiled quite a quantity of eggs. All receipts must now be candled. We quote: Candled stock, 11 1-2 to 12c.; and No. 2, 9 to 9 1-2c. per dozen.

HONEY—Old stock is pretty well cleared off the market and new honey is now being received. The range of prices for new white honey is 12 to 13c., while 10c. is expected to be the price later on, a good yield being expected.

POTATOES—New potatoes are in better supply and are down to $1.10 a bag. No cars of new are expected for some time yet.

ASHES—Trade in ashes is very quiet and price steady. We quote: Firsts, $4.25; seconds, $3.85, and pearls, $6.75 to $7.25 per 100 lb.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—Complaints are loud about sour and lumpy flour arriving during the past few days, due to the extreme heat. The market is quiet with sales of earlots of 90 lie, at $19 to $24. Quite a little bran is being exported.

BALED HAY—The deliveries of hay have not been very heavy during the past two weeks as farmers have been busy gathering the new crop, which is very heavy. Still some has come to market, and it sold at reasonable prices. We quote: No. 1, $11; No. 2, $9.50 to $10, and clover, $9.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE—The market is steady to firm in tone. The supply of really high-grade stocks has been affected by the heat and the ideas of holders of finest cheese have been stiffened. For Ontario there are orders at 9 1-2 to 9 5-8c., while Townships command 9 3-8c. and Quebecs, 9 1-4 to 9 3-8c.

BUTTER—The market is steady with the same wide range to values owing to the difference in quality. For strictly finest creamery, 19 3-4c. to 20c. has been paid. Seconds and undergrades range from 18 1-2 to 19c.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., July 22, 1901.

THERE is nothing really new, though there have been a number of changes in prices, and rather higher prices rule. There is a good business. The need of a steamer to Yarmouth is very much felt, to continue on to Halifax, stopping at the ports along the south shore of Nova Scotia. There is no doubt full cargoes could be obtained and a profitable trade result to our merchants. We are much pleased to report the success of the early-closing movement. Nearly every retail grocery store now closes at seven, except on Saturdays. We hope public opinion will soon manifest itself and that the few stores still remaining open will find, to hold their trade, they will have to fall in line. The movement is spreading to all the towns through the Province.

OIL—At the lower prices quoted for burning oils a good business is being done. Fall contracts are now being made. The wholesale grocery trade take, however, but little interest, particularly in the city trade. Paint oils have advanced, and are held firm, and the market would warrant even higher prices than we quote. There is still a good demand. Lubricating oils are but fairly active. Prices are low and unchanged. Seal oil is in demand. In cod oil receipts are very backward this season. The price is still high, but with freer arrivals will drop off. Wax is unchanged.

SALT—A steamer and a sailing vessel have both been unloading during the past week. Some 10,000 bags in all, chiefly coarse, was unloaded. Prices are rather higher. There is a good sale. No further arrivals are expected for a few weeks. There is a fair sale for mineral salt. The price we quote is for selected lumps. In Canadian there is a good demand. Dairy bulk salt in barrels is moving freely. We quote: Liverpool coarse, 52 to 58c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.10 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb. (selected lumps).

CANNED GOODS—This is the most peculiar season we have ever seen. Dealers are buying chiefly last season's goods, and a brand never before on our market. These goods have been bought low and are in the hands of nearly every dealer. The quantity of new goods to be bought is small and the outlook for a profit hard to see. This is also true of the old goods, of which quite a few are carried over. Peas are firmer and have some demand. New fruits are being quite generally bought. Prices rule quite low. The first new goods of the season arrived this week, namely, a car of strawberries. Salmon is firm. Cohoes are not freely offered. Meats have the demand. American corned beef is rather lower. Local canned blueberries, tomatoes, apples, corn and peas, are all offered. They are generally quoted at lower prices than western goods.

GREEN FRUITS—Business is active, and prices tend rather higher. Oranges are about out of the market. Lemons are high and the sale is not as active as it was. In Californian pears, high figures rule, and there is hardly enough to go around. All Californian fruits seem scarce. Pears are large sellers here. Pines are about out of the market. They are not large sellers, however. Watermelons still sell at quite full figures, and there is but a fair sale. In small fruits, strawberries are about done. They have ruled low, but are much higher. Raspberries are quite freely received, but they are not large sellers, except the wild description, which are shipped largely to the States for manufacturing purposes.

DRIED FRUITS—There is little of interest to note. Some few orders for Valencia raisins at open figures have been given. Orders for peels have been placed. Citron, which is the seller, will be much higher than last year. Dates have been bought quite freely. Prices are low. There is a good outlook for Californian fruit if prices are low. If, however, Malaga fruits are quoted early and low they will have some sale, as buyers, by waiting for Californian prices, lost money last year. Evaporated apples are higher. Local prices are below western figures. The new goods will, it is expected, open quite high.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Butter is becoming somewhat scarce, and is quoted rather higher. Good quality in particular is in demand. Business in creamery is not general, at least as far as the wholesale grocery trade is concerned. Eggs are firm, but there is little change in price. Cheese are rather higher, and there is a fair sale. Local demand is for twins.

SUGAR—There is a good sale at even figures. Prices keep low. Considerable foreign continues to arrive, particularly granulated. It is said a large quantity has been bought. English yellows are again on the market.

MOLASSES—Cargoes of Porto Rico continue to arrive. Some are being stored rather than take the present prices. There is no large stock held by the trade generally. There is quite a quantity still afloat. Barbados and Antigua are both offered. West Indian goods hold the market.

FISH—In salmon, while a few are still received, the season is about over. It has been a good one. In short, very few are now received, but what is called the fall run will soon begin. They are much better than the early fish. Pickled shad is scarce. In pickled herring, the price is still quite high. The sale is quiet as yet. In dry cod a few are coming to hand, and prices are quite high. Pollock is quiet. Smoked herrings are very dull. We quote: Large and medium dry cod, $3.75 to $3.80; small, $2.50 to $2.65; haddies, 5 to 5 1-2c.; smoked herring, 12 to 13c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2 1-2c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.60 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $2.15 to $2.25 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl., $2.75 halves; Shelburne, $1.50 per bbl., $2.25 halves; halibut, 10., shad, 10 to 22c.; salmon, 12 to 14c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour is dull. Manitoba millers report being sold right up on all lines. It is hardly thought prices can go lower. There seems to be quite active competition among Ontario millers. Oats are scarce and higher. Oatmeal is also quoted higher, but the demand is limited. Beans are firmer but quiet. Cornmeal is firm at the advanced price. Feed is somewhat scarce and a fair sale at rather higher figures is being experienced. In the local market hay is dull, but the African business makes a good market. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $3.70 to $3.80; medium, $3.60 to $3.70; oatmeal, $4 to $4.10; cornmeal, $2.50 to $2.55; middlings, $22 to $23; oats, 42 to 44c.; H. P. beans, $1.65 to $1.75; primes, $1.55 to $1.60; yellow eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; barley, $3.90 to $4; hay, $12 to $14.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

George E. Barbour received a large shipment of rice this week.

Northrup & Co. have a shipment of Cotton-tine in tins to hand this week.

Mr. Wetmore Merritt is west in the interest of one of his mining properties.

Mr. Fred. Dearborn, of Dearborn & Co., is away this week with a yachting party.

Baird & Peters have two cargoes of Porto Rico molasses due. This will make four cargoes for the season, two of which have been large ones.

A. S. Bowman, representing The Simcoe Packing Co., distributed to the trade the first car of new canned goods to be received here—a car of strawberries.

E. F. Sturdee, selling for The Imperial Canning Co., has placed several cars of their last season's vegetables here. This brand is new to our market.

A GROCERY FIRM'S NEW BLOCK.

J. G. Hargrave & Co., who have been prominent grocers in Winnipeg for the past 24 years, have just erected a handsome two-storey and basement brick block, 22 x 120. They occupy the entire ground floor and basement, while the upper floor is divided into doctors' and dentists' suites, Dr. Clint, dentist, in the front, and Dr. Crawford in the rear.

The building throughout is fitted with hardwood floors and fixtures, the latter in the grocery store being of very convenient design. An electric elevator brings goods from the basement, and a freight chute takes them from the transfer wagons in the lane to the basement.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 20, 1901.

THE weather has continued favorable for crops throughout the week, and the prospects continue of the most favorable character. Business also is good in all lines, and though money is scarcer than could be desired, still, bank paper is being fairly met. Very few changes have occurred during the week.

FLOUR—Demand is heavy and prices unchanged.

CEREALS—Rolled oats have advanced to $2.15 per sack, and cornmeal to $1.50.

SUGAR—Remains at the reduction of last week, and the demand is heavy, one house alone showing orders for $10,000 worth. Contrary to predictions the crop of native fruit is large and much preserving is being done.

CANNED GOODS—The situation still continues wholly unsatisfactory to the Winnipeg wholesaler and with no prospect of improvement. Reports here indicate a great scarcity of cherries. In fact, all quotations are withdrawn.

GREEN FRUITS—Demand is active, and fruit houses complain that they cannot get sufficient for their demands. Californian fruit is advancing in price with the season. Peaches are 30c. and plums 50c. per case higher than they were a week ago. Small fruits, such as red currants, blueberries and gooseberries, are abundant at reasonable prices. The first car of Washington fruit arrived Friday, and is showing good values. Californian oranges have advanced $1 per case. Oranges, $4.75 to $5.75; lemons, $7; peaches, $1.50 to $1.75; plums, $1.75 to $2; pears, $4; apples, $2.50 per box; bananas, $2.50 to $3; blueberries, 7 to 8c. per lb.; red currants, $3 per crate, gooseberries, $3 per crate.

BUTTER—Creamery is still 15 to 16c. at the factories, but the demand is better. Dairy butter is a drug at 10 to 11c., and a large part is going to cold storage.

CHEESE—Is in fair demand at 7½ to 7¾c. at factories.

EGGS—Are 11c., Winnipeg.

AN AMUSING SOAP CONTEST.

THE accompanying cut illustrates a shampoo contest that was one of the most laughable features of the Owen Sound grocers' picnic. This same contest, aided and abetted by the N. K. Fairbank Co. to popularize their glycerine tar soap, has been one of the most entertaining events of several grocers' and grocery clerks' picnics this year, and one can judge from this photo that the novel race must be the source of great fun—idealestically picnic. We understand that any grocers' or grocery clerks' association in Canada who wish to hold such an event can procure a full case of 100 cakes of the 10c. size of a picture of Queen Alexandra. Unlike most canisters; it has a roll top. Again we say that this offer should prove interesting to all live, up-to-date merchants.

LONDONER WANTS AGENCIES.

W. G. Humphrey, 9 Mincing Lane, London, Eng., who acted for some time as agent for Henry Tate & Sons, Limited, the great sugar refining firm, is seeking selling agencies in London for canned meats, fruits, fish, vegetables, or provisions of any kind. Mr. Humphrey has had 28 years' experience and is well-known to the principal buyers in the market he desires to cover.

sheep farmers in the Dominion who would act as their agents.

6. A London firm who contemplates doing a freight business between Cape Breton and the United Kingdom, desire to get into communication with firms there requiring representation in Great Britain.

7. Inquiry is made for firms in Canada, of good standing, who require a commission house to act as agents for any kind of Canadian product and to look after their interests in London.

8. A Glasgow house ask for the names of a few exporters of Ontario hay in pressed bales.

9. A wholesale and export firm of stationers, booksellers, etc., desire to communicate with Canadian buyers of books, stationery, toys, confectionery, druggists' sundries, etc.

10. Inquiry is made for names of manufacturers in Canada of iron and steel work, cast and wrought iron piping, steel plates, steel angles, etc.

11. A well-known firm of stationers in London are open to take up the agency for England for any Canadian speciality in their line of business.

12. The names of Canadian exporters of cheese-box wood and hoops for barrels are asked for.

13. A Manchester firm ask for the addresses of Canadian paper mills supplying "news."

[The names of the firms or individuals making the above inquiries will be furnished on application to the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.]

A HALIFAX RETAILER.

The well-known and up-to-date grocery of B. J. Hubley, Halifax, has been under a different management and name during the past year, the new firm being known as Larder, Hubley & Co. The store is one of the best in the Lower Provinces for stock of staple and fancy groceries carried, which, by the way, is well displayed as any of the readers of THE GROCER who have seen it can testify. The traveler who calls receives a genial greeting from Mr. Edwin Hubley, the buyer of the firm, who believes in making the traveller feel as much at home as possible.

NOVA SCOTIA MACKEREL CATCH.

Mail advices from Cabarrus, C.B., state: "A few mackerel are being taken off here counting 200 to the barrel. The average catch per boat is around 100 lb. per day." Canso, N.S., advices are to the effect that the average catch per boat off there is 2,000 fish, mostly medium, with 5 per cent. large. The weather there at the date of the advices was warm and dry.

A BEARISH BUSINESS MAN.

"Harry," she said thoughtfully.

"What is it?" responded the worried business man, shortly.

"I wish you would rearrange your business a little bit."

"How?"

"So as to be a bear on the stock exchange instead of at home."—Exchange.

Fairbank's glycerine tar soap free, making the contest profitable to the contestants as well as interesting to the spectators. The proposition is well worth consideration.

HAVE YOU ONE?

The "Ozo" Co., Limited, Montreal, have been announcing to the trade that with 100 lb. of their new blend of tea, "Queen Alexandra," they will present to the purchaser a handsome stock canister accompanied with brass tea scoops. Already large numbers of merchants have taken advantage of this offer, and we can recommend merchants who have not done so, that it would be well worth their while to delay the matter no longer. The usefulness of this canister in a grocery store is great, and, while probably that is the best feature about it, it will materially add to the attractiveness of the store. The design on the tin is exceedingly handsome, showing

INQUIRIES REGARDING CANADIAN TRADE.

Mr. Harrison Watson, curator of the Canadian Section of the Imperial Institute, London, England, is in receipt of the following inquiries regarding Canadian trade:

1. A London firm desire to be placed in communication with Canadian shippers of beans and peas.

2. The manufacturers of brick-making machinery seek the services of an active Canadian resident agent to introduce their goods.

3. A north country house asks for names of Canadian shippers of scrap and old metals.

4. An old-established manufacturer of carbonic papers and other stationery supplies would like to establish some trade in Canada.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the High Commissioner's office in London, England:

5. The proprietors of several kinds of sheep remedies, sheep dips, etc., ask to be referred to some Canadian firms with good connections among

FAILURES FOR THREE MONTHS.

DUN'S REVIEW says: "Canadian returns for the second quarter of 1901 were much more satisfactory than during the preceding three months, both in number and amount of liabilities. Compared with 1900 there was a moderate decrease in the aggregate, due to a difference of $607,316 in trading defaults, no branch showing an increase of importance, while but three exhibited any advance. Manufacturing lines were also in better condition, but the aggregate in this division was doubled by two large failures of paper mills, which made the total $471,224 greater than last year.

AN UNPOPULAR CUSTOMS REGULATION

OUR St. John, N.B., correspondent writes: "There is great dissatisfaction among our molasses importers in regard to the new regulation which the Customs are about to enforce in reference to the gauging of molasses. The Customs, finding it necessary for their own purpose of collecting duty to gauge all the molasses coming in, have, in the past, had the gauger scribe the casks, the total capacity, and the outage, so that deducting the latter it was very easy to see the net contents.

"This Government scribe was accepted by the importers, and allowed the goods to pass freely from hand to hand without any question as regards the quantity of the contents. While the Government gaugers will still have to gauge the molasses in order to ascertain the quantity for duty, they will not scribe anything on the casks to denote the quantity of contents. They will, however, scribe on the ends of the cask a mark to denote the vessel the goods arrived in, a number for the package, and the initial of the gauger, so that the labor to the official doing this work will be much more than ever, but very unsatisfactory to the trade.

"It is impossible to understand the reason for the regulation except it being intended that the importer pay the gauger to have the contents of the cask scribed as usual. In other words, the regulation will bring a perquisite to the gauger.

"Your representative has interviewed the importers in our city, and they are all dissatisfied with the regulation. They feel the Government should scribe the casks if only as a protection to the retail trade. Unless this is done there is no way the retailer can protect himself against fraud. If any of the wholesale dealers should be inclined to act dishonestly, under any condition, it will mean an extra expense to the importer, as it will compel him to have his molasses gauged in order that he may know the contents of the cask as he sells them, and there certainly will not be the confidence in a private gauge there has been in that of the Government officer.

"It is generally felt that when the matter is brought to the consideration of the authorities, this very unpopular regulation will be recalled, and the old method continued, which has worked so satisfactorily for so many years."

Most of the grocers of St. John, N.B., have agreed to close their stores at 7 o'clock every night except Saturday evenings.

Transient traders are charged $100 per six months.

THE COURSE OF PRICES.

Prices of staple products in England reached their highest point fifteen months ago, and since then the tendency has, with a few temporary checks, been downward. As in this country, the decline of late has been very gradual because of recoveries in certain commodities, but the net result has been to bring The London Economist's index number to the lowest point touched since March, 1896. The following statement shows the total index number of intervals since the end of 1897:

| End of               | Total index number. |
|----------------------|---------------------|
| June, 1901.....      | 2,007               |
| March, 1901.....     | 2,018               |
| December, 1900.....  | 2,125               |
| September, 1900..... | 2,235               |
| June, 1900.....      | 2,211               |
| March, 1900.....     | 2,240               |
| December, 1899.....  | 2,145               |
| September, 1899..... | 2,085               |
| June, 1899.....      | 2,028               |
| March, 1899.....     | 1,973               |
| December, 1898.....  | 1,918               |
| December, 1897.....  | 1,890               |

The present index number, it will be seen, is 5.5 per cent. lower than on January 1 and 9.2 per cent. lower than a year ago, while 10.1 per cent. lower than the top reached in March, 1900. It is to be noted in this connection that American prices, as shown by Bradstreet's index number, have reacted to nearly the same extent from the high point of the 1900 boom. Examination of the detailed prices shows that metals, while lower in price than at the end of June in the last two years, yet remain higher than the prices at this time in 1898 and 1897. Cotton, though not so high as it has been, is much above the average of recent years, and the same is true of other textiles, such as jute, flax and hemp, while wool has reached almost the lowest on record. Wheat, meat and articles of consumption generally are about at normal quotations.—Bradstreet's.

DELEGATES TO THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

PROGRESS.

There are 900 grocery stores in the City of Toronto. Over 500 of these sell Ross's High-Grade Tea. Considering The Ross Tea Co. started only six months ago, the progress made is marvellous. Every sale has been genuine, no goods being placed on consignment at all. We confidently expect before being a year in business to have every grocer in Toronto handling our tea.

In face of the number of other packages on the market, and the strong hold that some of them had, the success is most pronounced. It is the old story over again; a good article and vigorous advertising.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Awakening of the Poultry Trade—Miscellaneous Notes.

AWAKENING OF THE POULTRY TRADE.

RAPID strides have been made during the last year in our poultry trade; quietly and without much heralding of trumpets, it is true, but it is none the less substantial and real.

Probably the greatest bugbear to our general store keepers in the past has been the disposal of poultry, and especially chickens, the market being always uncertain; and, in the case of dressed poultry, often proving a total loss on account of its perishable nature. What has been wanted all along was a reliable market for live chickens. Within the last year that has all been changed, greatly to the advantage and profit of the general store keeper; for, what was a nuisance and frequently a loss, is now probably his most reliable product, having a good market at a fair price, devoid of uncertainty or expense in any way but the initial cost, convertible into cash without delay and in any quantity.

As the heading of this article indicates, the trade is only just awakening, for the possibilities of poultry in Ontario under these conditions are unlimited, and must soon emerge from its present state of easy-going indifference to be one of the important branches of farming. The general store keeper can now feel a hitherto unknown security in taking in trade or purchasing freely any quantity of chickens or ducks, and also feel there is no uncertainty as to the price he will receive, as in the case of most goods sent to a commission house.

The cause of all this change in conditions has been the enormous increase in the export of poultry to England, and the consequent increase in the demand for poultry here, and one house, The Canadian Produce Co., of Toronto, calling for no less than 1,000 tons this season. Their method of doing business is to pay a cash price per pound for live ducks and chickens, pay a fair proportion of express rates, and supply crates free.

It can be seen at a glance that the above conditions absolutely remove all uncertainty, trouble and risk, and to those who are in a position to go into the buying of poultry on an extensive scale this company offer a further bonus to active pushing agents. We, on our part, have undertaken to publish weekly, for the benefit of our readers, the quotations of the Canadian Produce Co., which we begin this week under heading of "Country Produce," so that any store-keeper, after a glance at our columns, will know just what to pay for live poultry.

A CHANGE IN PROVISION FIRMS.

Vaughan & McInnes, provisions and meat dealers, Phoenix, B.C., have sold out to P. Burns & Co. The latter firm have several stores in the Phoenix district, but will open two more in that place, one at each end of the town. Mr. McInnes, of the old firm, has not yet decided, but may may open a feed, grain and produce store in Phoenix.

We quote: Dressed hogs, $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.; sheep, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $7.50 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, 11 to 12c. per lb.; beef carcasses, $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8½ to 9½c. for best; fore quarters, 4½ to 5½c. for best; calves, $8 to $8.50 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

Pork products are firm at unchanged prices: Live hogs continue steady at $7.25 to $7.50. We quote: Long clear bacon, 11½c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 14 to 14½c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 13½ to 14c.; medium hams, 13½ to 14c.; large hams, 12½ to 13c.; shoulder hams, 11½c.; backs, 14 to 14½c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10¾c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11¼c.

MONTREAL.

Under light receipts of live hogs the market is steady, and packers have had to pay $7.25 to $7.50 for choice light and $7 for heavy. Lard and pork are unchanged under a light demand. Compound continues to sell well. We quote as follows: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.88 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.86 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.82 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; cottolene, 9¼c. per lb. in tierces, and 10¼c. in 26-lb. pails, and 10c. in 50 lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Business is dull. Goods show quite a range in price. Pork holds high. Smoked meats have a fair sale, but prices are high. Lard is still firm at full figures. Compound has quite a free sale.

T. A. Davis, M. Joyce, Leeder & Parsons, George Walsh & Son and A. H. Walsh, general merchants, Quyon, Que., have agreed to close their stores on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays until the end of August.

HOG PRODUCTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

An additional element of weakness part of the week was in the large receipts of hogs. That the swine are being hurried out of farmers' hands by reason of scarcity of water and the effect upon the feed crops by the drouth, is clear in the large number of pigs and small weight hogs arriving; many of them are, as well, out of condition. It is, however, plain that the situation of the corn crop is likely to add at some time to the strength of the hog-product markets, whatever temporary weakness it occasions through forcing large supplies of hogs upon the marketable centres. Even admitting the consideration that heavy rains may soon come along, and that corn at its present growth in some sections can stand a good deal of dry weather and yet come out all right, the fact remains that with whatever damage has been done the crop by late developments the grain had a poor spring season, that it was planted late and has had since unfavorable weather conditions, and that with all of the adverse conditions that the corn crop is likely to be decidedly under an average one; a reduced corn crop coming upon the country, with practically exhausted offerings of old supplies, means, of course, high prices for the grain; therefore, our belief is that whatever temporary influences develop for the hog products through anxious marketing of hog supplies and diminished demands for the products which usually come about upon unsettled prices, that at some time in the late summer or early fall months, if not before that period, there is likely to be some excitement all around. For awhile we are not looking for more than moderate changes in the prices of the hog products.—National Provisioner, July 20.

THE GUELPH PROVISION COMPANY.

The Guelph Provision Co., Limited, has been incorporated with Messrs. T. McAdre, Thos. Hepburn, Wm. Hamilton, James E. Day, John A. McPherson and Samuel Law as directors, and with a capital stock of $250,000. The new company has bought out and will succeed The Guelph Pork Packing Co., Limited, and intend to erect a packing factory with a capacity of 2,000 hogs per week. Their charter also empowers them to slaughter, and deal in cattle and sheep, and it is likely an export trade in dressed beef will be sought later on. A cold storage warehouse will be erected. The company will not start business until at least $100,000 capital has been subscribed by the stockholders. It is intended to secure as many stockholders as possible, so the shares of the company have been placed at $20.

AN EARLY-CLOSING DIFFICULTY.

D. W. C. tells me of the futile efforts to have an early-closing by-law carried in his town. He also urges the need of organization among the clerks of the Province of Ontario under a central head at Toronto, with local branches in every town of over 1,000 population, to have as its object, the elevation and instruction of clerks in their calling and to deal with all matters pertaining to their work. He wants to know if I consider such an organization feasible.

Under the existing conditions such an organization or union, properly managed, would be of great benefit and reflect credit upon the clerks themselves, for nowadays organization is regarded as a sign of intelligence. In such a union the members would have the hearty approval and co-operation of the merchants in their efforts to increase their efficiency in the art of selling goods, their knowledge of the goods they sell, the discussion of new preparations, constantly being placed upon the market, and all the other matters pertaining to the clerks themselves. This would draw those in similar lines together. Once they had met, their mutual interests would keep them together. It would be necessary to have different sections; one for each of the trades, with a general board of management. To my mind much good would result, the members being benefited many times above the mere cost of membership. I would have three degrees, the apprentice, active membership, and retired, with the allotted privileges for each, all working together for the betterment of conditions, the protection and elevation of their different trades. I have often wondered that such an organization was not started long ago, and yet why should one wonder when you see, even at the present day, how merchants regard each other? But a better feeling is growing and I am also sure there is a "brighter day coming" for the clerk. Let us all do our part to help it along. There is cause and work for a general clerks' association as much so as the number of other similar organizations throughout the world, and to my mind it is only a question of time before this need will be supplied.

In regard to the early-closing by-law, I am not troubled regarding legislation on this subject. Merchants themselves have found out that long hours do not mean more profits. The additional trade received after a reasonable hour does not pay for the cost of keeping open. Consequently this thing is righting itself all over the land, and it will do so in your town before long. I have enjoyed your letter and will be pleased to hear from you again.

A QUESTION OF CREDITS.

"J. E. R." writes me a letter on business management. He is doing a good trade but has insufficient capital to do a large credit business, which he regards as a drawback. He wants to know about the coupon book system of giving credit, and asks also about advertising.

The very fact of your capital being small is your safeguard. I would want to do as little credit business as possible, for I regard a small country town as nearly impossible to do a strictly cash business and get your share of the trade. It is possible to so conduct your business in giving credit that the amount of your capital locked up in your books need not be large. The one important department a merchant must constantly watch is his customers' accounts. When a man asks for credit, you question him regarding his occupation, how often and at what time he will pay his account? Then mark on your book his statement and about the amount you think him safe. Have his bill made out and if he does not pay up when agreed find out the cause, and do not hesitate to stop the account if you have doubts regarding his honesty. Look after your books frequently. Take note of those overdue. Then get after them. Remember the average mechanic can pay a small account easier than a large one. Therefore collect as often as you can. Don't be afraid to tell a man of whom you have had a bad report that he must pay cash. He will respect you for it, and you will in all probability get his cash trade. When you have given him reasonable time to pay give him fair warning you intend to sue and get judgment if he fails to heed the warning. Place the account in court and try all legal methods. Always be agreeable and make it easy for a man to do business with you if he so desires. Avoid words and trouble and be a gentleman under all circumstances. The coupon book saves book-keeping and also limits the account. These are strong features in its favor.

RETAIL ADVERTISING.

Regarding advertising. This is a broad question and one each merchant has to settle for himself. "Does advertising pay?" is no longer asked. The right kind of advertising always pays. Every successful merchant will tell you so, but a man must study his advertising to increase his business and spend the money judiciously along proper lines, avoiding the wild schemes of fakers, noting, expecting, and getting results for his expenditure. Give it thought. Plan, arrange and systematically advertise through your best mediums, and increased business will certainly follow.

DISCOUNT FOR SPOT CASH.

I always regarded the man who bought a good bill of goods and paid spot cash for it entitled to a discount—you get it—why should not he receive it from you? A man comes into your store, buys and pays for a barrel of sugar—give him a small discount for cash. If a chest of tea is purchased the margin of profit may admit of a greater cash discount. Every merchant has a right to do this, every customer should expect it; in fact, he is entitled to it. Were I the customer and a man told me I could buy at the same price, cash or thirty days, what inducement would there be for me to pay cash? Encourage your cash trade by giving them a discount. Just here is where many merchants make a mistake. The customers think they can buy as cheap for credit as they can for cash, and with many stores this is the rule. As long as it is so, the evils of the credit system will be with us. Once have your customer know that he loses money buying on credit and he will pay cash if he can. If not he should pay you for taking the risk of giving credit. This is only reasonable and fair.

"B. M." writes: You said you had more merchants write you than clerks. Well, I have my own store and I am as much a clerk as I ever was, only I don't get my wages every Saturday night as I used to do. I hope this will not exclude me from your "corner."

Oh, no! I think you will qualify even if you are not paid regularly. You might send us a few lines on "The man who is his own clerk."

"B. H. McD." writes: Are "Californian bees" handled by grocers? The substance I mean is a sort of fungus which is placed in an open jar and kept supplied with sugar and water, which, after the action of the "bees," makes a pleasant drink. The fungus develops rapidly, eventually filling the jar. Has it any special medicinal value? From what was it originally obtained?

I have heard of this drink, but never tasted it. I usually take something plain and have been stung with "Bees" before. Will some of the boys who are up in these fancy drinks kindly send me information re above. This is a "dry time" and it is only right to keep us posted on this question; in fact, it's a charitable act. I am sorry I cannot give you any information re Californian Bees.

PHOENIX, B. C., CLERKS.

The Phoenix Clerks' Union have elected the following officers for the ensuing term:

President—Geo. S. McKenzie.
Vice-President—A. S. Williamson.
Secretary—Bert Detcher.
Treasurer—J. L. Williams.
Guard—Henry B. Schooley.

The union is reported to be in a flourishing condition.

INCREASE IN SHIPPING.

A statement giving the number of sea-going vessels arriving in the port of Montreal from the opening of navigation up to July 1 shows a considerable increase over the corresponding period of last year.

In the year 1899 from the opening of navigation to July 1, the sea-going tonnage arriving in the port amounted to 284,000 tons. This was considerably higher than the corresponding period in 1898, and nearly 60,000 tons in excess of the same period in 1900. The present season, however, is a full 10,000 tons higher than 1899.

The statement giving the years, number of ships and tonnage is as follows:

| Years.    | Ships.   | Tonnage. |
|-----------|----------|----------|
| 1898..... | 257..... | 476,000  |
| 1899..... | 239..... | 484,000  |
| 1900..... | 203..... | 413,000  |

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC AT PLATTSBURG.

THE fact that this year's picnic of The Montreal Grocers' was the twenty-first annual seemed to be a good omen, for it entered into its majority under the most favorable auspices. Early in the morning Montreal was treated to a rollicking good thunderstorm that boded little good for the success of the day, but true to the rhyme: "Rain before seven, clear before eleven," the clouds cleared and the rain had only served to soften the intensity of the heat of that not easily forgotten week. Encouraged by the fine weather, the grocers, their wives, their daughters and their friends turned out in large numbers, and by 8.30 the first big train was drawn up at Bonaventure Station and was filled and ready to start. At 9 o'clock another ten-coach train load pulled out of the station, and at 11.30 there were about 1,200 Montrealers in the pretty little city of Plattsburg on Lake Champlain.

NEARLY A THOUSAND SOLDIERS.

The excursionists were rather nervous at first when they caught sight of the large barracks and spied the uniforms of 800 or 900 American soldiers quartered there. Immediately they were reminded that they were travelling on ground many times bloodied by Indian frays, but as they noticed that the warriors had lost their paint and feathers, they regarded them as more of a protection than a menace and their peace of mind was restored.

The grocers and their friends first repaired to Clinton Park, a beautiful spot overlooking the lake, where there is a fine baseball diamond and grandstand as well as a broad area of well-kept park shaded by numerous trees. As the sky looked threatening the committee decided to run off the races before lunch. All the events were finished but the last two when a slight shower fell but immediately passed away and thereafter the weather was all that could be desired.

THE BANQUET.

After the games the usual banquet was held at the Cumberland Hotel, presided over by the President, Mr. N. Lapointe. The orchestra played popular airs and no better humor could have prevailed. The feasting over, speech-making began. King Edward and President McKinley were toasted in high spirit, and the other appropriate toasts were not neglected. Among the orators were Ald. Turner, Ald. Raby, Ald. Ricard, Ald. Tansey, President Lapointe and several of the members of the association. The Mayor of Plattsburg welcomed the association to Plattsburg in a neat, not to say, flattering, speech, and he was given a rousing "For he's a jolly good fellow."

THE BASEBALL MATCH.

After the banquet some of the picnickers visited Lake Champlain, the Barracks, the Summer School and the Hotel Champlain, but the great majority went back to Clinton Park to witness the game of baseball between the Mascottes, of Montreal, and the Plattsburg team. The Montreal boys proved to be as easy prey for the Plattsburgs, as amateurs are for professionals, and the score at the end of nine innings stood 24 to 3 in favor of Plattsburg.

The officers and committee of the association deserve great credit for the way in which everything was managed, as the picnic was one of the most successful the Montreal grocers have ever held. The two trains that returned at 6 and 6.30 o'clock brought back a crowd of tired but contented excursionists.

THE GAMES.

The results of the games were as follows:

O'Brien; Finances—Ald. Turner; Subscription—F. Bigaouette; General Committee—John Scanlon and Ald. S. D. Valieres.

Among the representatives of the wholesale houses were: Mr. A. Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie.; Mr. Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali; Mr. John A. Gunn and Mr. C. H. Langlois, of Gunn, Langlois & Co.;

Messrs. Cardinal, Bertrand and Charland, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie.; Messrs. W. C. Whissel, A. E. Landry and A. Bergeron, of N. Quintal & Fils; Mr. J. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Cie.; Mr. J. Mathewson, of J. A. Mathewson & Co.; Fred. Hughes, of Lockerhy Bros.; and Mr. O. Rousseau, of S. H. Ewing & Sons.

NOTES.

"The Bluff" is where President McKinley generally spends a two-weeks' summer vacation, but as he has not yet been given his holidays the grocers did not have the opportunity of calling on him.

There was some trouble at the station in the morning about getting the liquid refreshments on the train, till Chairman O'Brien appeared on the scene, and then everything gave way.

The grocers' picnic has not lost any of its popularity with the people of Montreal. No jollier crowd leaves the city. To the grocers themselves it is invaluable, for it brings them together as nothing else can.

Next year the grocers should see to it that the banquet is held in a place that can accommodate a big crowd. The Cumberland dining room was hardly large enough. It was also found somewhat inconvenient to wait till 3 o'clock to get something to eat. It was unfortunate that the banquet committee should have been disappointed in this way.

Mr. Poirier, of The Computing Scale Company, was with the crowd, bringing one of his scales for the cheese evaluation contest.

THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

The annual session of the Maritime Board of Trade opens in Chatham, N. B., on August 21, and at a recent meeting of the latter board ways and means of entertaining the delegates were considered.

The suggestion that the visiting delegates should be given an excursion on the river was favored, and Hon. Senator Snowball said he would place a steamer at the committee's disposal for that purpose.

On motion of W. C. Winslow, seconded by James Nicol, this offer was accepted and a vote of thanks tendered to Mr. Snowball.

W. C. Winslow moved that the Town Council be asked to cooperate with the local board of trade in making arrangements for the coming visitors.

On motion of Mayor Snowball, the following committee on arrangements was appointed:

Secretary J. D. B. F. Mackenzie, George Watt, W. C. Winslow, R. A. Murdoch, J. L. Stewart.

President Loggie said that the board ought to suggest matters for discussion by the Maritime Board, such suggestions to be included in the list of subjects to be prepared by the Maritime Council in readiness for the Maritime Board's annual session.

President Loggie, Senator Snowball, Jas. Nicol and J. L. Stewart were appointed a committee to suggest, within a week, questions for discussion by the Maritime Board.

Delegates from this Board to the Maritime Board were appointed as follows: W. B. Snowball, George Watt, M. S. Hocken, W. C. Winslow, J. L. Stewart, R. A. Murdoch, J. D. B. F. Mackenzie.

T. H. McAdoe, Thos. Hepburn, J. A. McPherson, Wm. Hamilton, J. E. Day, and others, of Guelph, Ont., have been incorporated as The Guelph Provision Company, Limited, with an authorized capital of $250,000 to engage in a canning, cold storage and stock-yards enterprise.

THE STARCH TRADE IN EGYPT.

THE United States Consul at Trieste reports as follows: "From a recent report of the Austro-Hungarian Chamber of Commerce at Alexandria, I gather the following information concerning the starch trade of Egypt:

"Starch manufactured from either wheat or corn is used extensively in the preparation of Oriental sweets, the best known among these being the so-called 'rohat lukun,' the 'tali' of Arabian confectionery, which finds a ready sale in the Eastern market. The rice starch, used only for laundry purposes, is much less in demand.

"The home production is confined to a single factory at Cairo, which manufactures only wheat starch. Importations are made chiefly from Germany, France, Belgium, and Turkey.

"Confectioners buy only lump starch of a bluish tinge. This variety is imported chiefly from England, in cases containing 50 pounds net, and is delivered f.o.b. Alexandria at about 12 l.-2s. ($3.04) per case. It has a large sale in the interior of Egypt, but is not entirely satisfactory to the local trade of Alexandria.

"The article furnished by France and Belgium is practically of the same quality, and is not easily distinguished from the English product by the Egyptian buyer. The current price is about 31 francs ($6.50) per 100 kilograms (220.46 pounds) f.o.b. Alexandria. It comes packed in boxes of 25, 50, and 75 kilograms (55, 110, and 165 pounds). Tare is deducted, and, contrary to English custom, no charges are made for packing. This starch is put up in packages containing only 2 kilograms (4.4 pounds) each, and sold at an advance of 2 francs (38.6 cents) per 100 kilograms.

"Syria also supplies large quantities of corn and wheat starch; but as the pieces are rather small in size and of a yellowish color, this article finds a market only on account of its low price.

"Rice starch is imported from England, Germany, France, and Belgium. As has already been stated, it is used in only for laundry purposes. The products of the last three countries do not, upon the whole, seem to differ in quality. The starch is usually imported in cases containing 12 packages, each package weighing about 25 kilograms. There are two grades, the first being at present sold at from 48 to 50 francs ($9.26 to $9.65) and the second at from 40 to 42 francs ($7.72 to $8.11) per 100 kilograms (220.46 pounds) f.o.b. Alexandria. The German article, especially a Hauburg brand, is reported to have found a very ready sale in recent years.

"English laundry starch also finds a good market in Egypt, and is shipped in boxes of from 50 to 55 pounds. During the past spring, it was sold at from 20s. to 25s. ($4.86 to $6.07) per cwt. (112 pounds) f.o.b. Liverpool.

"The usual terms of payment for imported starch are cash within thirty days, with a discount of from 2 to 3 per cent."

NEW CENTURY IDEAS.

The Toronto Exhibition, to be held from August 26 to September 7, announces that its principal characteristic will be the adoption of New Century Ideas. The pom-pom will be on view, wireless telegraphy will be shown in practical use off the shore to passing vessels, magnificent displays of illuminating effects will be made, recently announced developments in electricity will be shown, demonstrations will be made in the cultivation of the sugar beet, modern methods of rescuing at sea will be illustrated, manoeuvres with latter-day artillery will take place; in fact, the military will be very much in evidence in all its branches, while the handy-man and the marines will also be used largely in the off-shore operations and the brilliant nightly spectacle, the Bombardment of the Taku Forts by International forces. An International Military Tattoo will be the feature of the opening night, when a large body of troops will be utilized. A strong exhibit of French-Canadian cattle, as well as of Pan-American live stock, is to be made. Greatly reduced rates on the railways and steamboats have been arranged for, and no better time for visiting Toronto and the Pan-American, or the former alone, could be desired than between August 26 and September 7. This year Toronto will distribute upwards of $35,000 in premiums and spend $30,000 in special attractions.

A GIRL GROCER.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Evans, aged 17, who still wears short dresses, carries on the grocery business successfully in Syracuse, N. Y., according to an exchange. Last year she cleared $1,000 after supplying the family table. Her grandfather left a large property to his daughter, Miss Evans' mother, but it was heavily mortgaged and Miss Evans, at 16 years, left the high school, opened a store in a little cottage, and put out a sign "M. E. Evans, Groceries." In a few weeks she added drugs, then notions. She has two telephones and a few weeks ago added a fine delivery wagon. Her 15-year-old brother drives it, and her two younger sisters, 12 and 14 years old, assist in waiting on customers. One of the latter bakes cakes for the store, which cake sells splendidly. Miss Evans buys candy in good quantities, and puts it up in half-pound, pound, and two-pound boxes, thus selling it at a handsome profit.

A new steel screw steamer, the Midland Queen, has been built to run out of Midland, Ont., with passengers and freight.

EARLY-CLOSING ITEMS.

The principal dry goods merchants, boot and shoe dealers, and jewelers, of Chatham, Ont., have agreed to close their stores at 1 p.m. on Thursdays, until September 1.

The clerks of Nelson, B.C., have formed a union and are pressing for a half holiday on Thursday afternoons.

The Merchants' Association, of Galt, Ont., have decided to close their stores every Thursday from 1 o'clock for the remainder of the day and evening, in place of the afternoon only. The change went into effect last week, and will continue until September 15.

Many Fredericton merchants, grocers and others, believe that it would be the part of economy and wisdom to close their stores evenings during the summer months. Concerted action is all that is required to bring about such a desirable end. The early closing now extends to the hardware, dry goods and boot and shoe stores and the proprietors of these establishments believe that they are not only saving money thereby, as the expense of keeping open evenings is greater than the profits from the insignificant sales; and more than this the proprietors and the clerks are allowed an hour or two out of doors in the evenings for the promotion of their health and pleasure.—Gleaner, Fredericton, N.B.

A NEW ORANGE.

A new kind of an orange from Florida has a dark brown skin which is rough and looks like alligator hide. The fruit has a very fine flavor and sells readily, in some places, for a dollar a dozen.

PROSPEROUS INVENTORS.

"There isn't much money in inventions," said the young man with long hair and a thoughtful manner.

"That's nonsense!" answered Senator Sorghum. "Look at the men who invented trusts and watered stock. The trouble is that you don't invent the right thing."

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

Offices Throughout the Civilized World.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information, no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence Invited.

"Educate your customers in regard to quality."

This is especially true with regard to Salt. You want your customers to buy Salt that will bring them in a good return—by producing the finest butter and cheese. You likewise desire to sell Salt to housekeepers that will not set hard in the salt cellar or dredger, and that possesses the pure, sparkling, white color that first-class Salt alone can have.

Educate them thoroughly by advising them to buy Coleman's or Rice's Salt, and the results will give them confidence in your judgment forever after. These Salts are pure—they do not cake—certain to please.

Pleasant Vacation !

The grocer who goes away on his vacation with a comfortable bank account has a pleasant time—and restful. One reason why he makes money is because he keeps his stock of goods seasonable. He carries what people want at just the time when they want to buy it. There are no dull times for him.

Take a vacation, gentlemen, but take it “feeling fit.” Keep seasonable goods in stock and make some money by selling them. Three hints follow for your vacation trade.

Hints for Your Vacation Trade:

Stower's Lime Juice.

20 per cent. stronger than any other, hence the most economical to use. Distinguished from the ordinary Lime Juice of trade because it has no musty flavor. Absolutely pure. Put up now in “Pale Gin” bottles and labelled especially for the Colonial trade.

Stower's Lime Juice Cordial.

Nothing but pure, freshly-squeezed Lime Juice and refined loaf sugar. No vegetable mucus or albumin substances or impurities in it. A delicious, cooling drink, all ready to serve with the addition of water.

“Thistle” Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kipperd Herring, and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Clean, delicate, rich in flavor. - The “Thistle” Brand stands at the head of all others because it belongs there.

Cigar Advertising

is like every other kind of advertising—it pays only when you back it up with quality in the cigars you sell. It would be foolish for me to misrepresent the quality of my "Pharaoh" and my "Pebble" Cigars. I am not throwing away my money for the purpose of misleading anyone who reads my advertisements.

In my "Pharaoh" cigar (which retails for 10c.) I can give you quality and workmanship that the most critical smoker in Canada cannot find fault with. In my "Pebble" cigar (which retails for 5c.) you will find that the quality never varies from the one standard that has made it famous—the trial order which I would like to send you represents this standard!

REAPING THE HARVEST

Throughout the land the farmers are busy gathering the results of their sowing. Much of its success depended upon the wise selection of the seed and careful planting.

Suppose the farmer had reasoned something after this fashion—"Wheat is only wheat anyway—by buying this cheaper kind I will be saving something worth while."

If he did, he is likely reaping a harvest of barren regrets now.

So with the business man if he dreams for a moment that anything but the highest quality of goods is going to yield a profitable harvest—he is making the same serious blunder as the farmer.

MOLINA ROLLED WHEAT is at the head of its class and its fast increasing sales are the result of its superior quality. It is packed in barrels of 100 lb., and in kegs of 50 lb. and made only by

CAUTION

To the Trade:

There are numerous cheap imitations of on the market. In many instances directions and other printed matter have been copied word for word.

GILLETT'S LYE is an article that has probably been imitated oftener than anything else. When you are told that BLANK'S LYE is just as good as GILLETT'S and cheaper, don't believe it. Be on your guard and have nothing to do with it. An article of as good quality CANNOT be sold cheaper.

BRITISH PESSIMISM ON TRADE MATTERS.

Andrew Carnegie, in "The Nineteenth Century and After," Holds that while British Trade has Reached its Limit it is not Declining—No Other Nation Compares with Her in Steel, even in the Aggregate—Great Britain can Work out Her Own Salvation by Adopting the Changes Required both by Employer and Workman.

FOR thirty odd years the writer has been visiting his native land, but never to find such despondency among his friends of the industrial world as this year. Even those are now pessimistic who have hitherto been staunch optimists, sound in the faith that the Motherland would "somehow or other muddle through" and brilliantly emerge from threatened disaster, as she often has before in her long, chequered and illustrious history.

There is obviously much in the present situation calculated to depress; but whether the true plucky Briton falls from optimism—his normal condition—to pessimism depends upon whether he looks backward or forward, as, when human society is viewed as a whole, a look forward to ideal conditions turns us to pessimists, bewailing its manifest short-comings, failures and proofs of barbarism; while the look backward reassures us that humanity has crawled upward, and must continue to rise, that all goes well, though slowly, and we are again healthily optimistic.

So with the anxious Briton just now in regard to industrialism. What a picture he gazes upon as he looks backward! He sees his country not only the greatest of all, but in many of the elements of power—in finance, in commerce, manufacturing, mining, weaving and shipping—contending successfully with all other nations combined. Britain in the one scale and the world in the other. It is only fifty-five years since she ceased to mine more coal than the rest of the world, and men still in active life have seen her manufacturing more iron and steel, weaving by machinery more cotton, woollen and linen cloth, owning more ships, and making more machinery than all others, and first in wealth and credit. The steam engine, bringing steamship navigation and railway transportation; the hot-blast and puddling furnace—the roots of modern ironmaking; the Bessemer, Siemens-Martin and Thomas processes—the foundations of steelmaking; Arkwright and Hargreaves, the founders of machine weaving—all these, and others of like importance in other branches of production, the work of this land alone, no other making any considerable contribution to manufacturing progress; Britain, the lonely pioneer who guided the world and led her to modern industrialism.

Turn now from the view backward, and behold present conditions, and, presto! What a change! the optimist exclaims. No longer Briton versus the world in anything, no longer even first among nations in wealth or credit, in manufacturing, mining, weaving, commerce. Primacy lost in all. In seagoing ships still foremost, but even there our percentage of the world's shipping growing less every year. It only increased 46,000 tons in five years from 1894 to 1899, and was 9,000 tons less in 1898 than in 1896. Worse than all, supremacy lost upon the sea in fast monster steamships—those unequalled cruisers in war, which now fly the German flag, all built in Germany; not one corresponding ship built or building in Britain, the field entirely surrendered to her rival. In ironmaking Germany has risen from 1,500,000 to 7,000,000 tons per year, while Britain has stood still, her highest product being 9,500,000 tons. The United States made 13,500,000 tons last year, to be exceeded this year, while we are making less than last.

In steel, the United States made 10,638,000 tons last year, and have made this year, so far, more than last, while we are falling back from our maximum of 5,000,000 tons of last year.

In textiles, Lord Mashman tells us in The Times that we are exporting less and importing more. In 1891 we exported 106 millions, in 1899, 102 millions sterling; in 1891 imported of textiles 28 millions, and in 1899, 33 millions sterling. His Lordship avers that Great Britain has not increased her export trade one shilling for thirty years.

Financially we are also rapidly losing primacy. The daily operations of the New York Exchange exceed those of London. Our loans at a discount find investors in the United States, which, so long our greatest debtor, is becoming our chief creditor nation. We offer everyone who has confidence to subscribe our national note for £100 if he will give us £93 14s. cash: Consols were at 113, and are now below 95; we spend in two years as much upon what was expected to be a mere parade as the reductions made in the National Debt for fifty years; and the war is still costing one and one-half million sterling per week, soon to be increased by new levies at increased pay. We have just added 11 millions per year to our taxes when America, by a singular coincidence, has just reduced taxes by that amount. Britain thus handicapped more, and our rival's weight lessened for the industrial race.

We shall not very long be allowed even the boast of having the largest city of the world, since New York has to-day three and one-half against London's four and one-half millions; and the population of the area now New York increased last decade 35 per cent., while London's increase is only one-fourth as great. At the rate of the increase for the last five years New York in 1910 will almost equal London—in 1915 outstrip her.

While we have stood still, United States exports of manufactured articles have trebled in five years, and now reach 80 millions sterling. Our total exports in 1890 were £263,531,800, and never again reached that sum until 1899, when by adding 6 millions for ships built for foreigners, not hitherto included, the exports were £264,660,000. Our imports increased during that period 65 millions, partly because we became more dependent upon foreign nations for food.

Until recently foremost in machinery making, our tramways and subways are now equipped not only with electrical devices, but with the huge steam engines required, imported from America. France shows exports of motor cars, etc., last year valued at one million sterling; we export none, and even buy from France.

The former optimist, now a miserable pessimist, continues his lament. As for ship-building, how long is primacy even in that to be left us when shipplates from America reach Belfast and Glasgow by the thousands of tons, and to-day America is building two 18,000-ton ships? The cable announces the launch of the first, and two others are contracted for, of 20,000 tons, equal to the monster Celtic.

Our industrial army proves as much out of date as our war army is acknowledged to be; our railways at home and in our colonies order their rails, bridges and steel cars from America. Our men either cannot or do not work like the American, as The Times Special Commissioner has proved, neither do our captains of industry compare with those in America.

Our military army system, having broken down, is to be reconstructed. The Times publishes a letter from Capt. Lee, M.P., ex-Military Attaché at Washington, and editorially says Capt. Lee declares that the American recruits are immeasurably superior to our ordinary recruits, both in physique and intelligence. Their average age is nearly 23; average height of infantry five feet eight and a half inches; all of them can read and write; special inquiries are made into their character; and Capt. Lee affirms that in peace and war they are practically free from serious crime, and that he has never seen an American soldier drunk. Lord Lansdowne finds 42,000 of our recruits unfit.

Such the choice morsels from press and magazine upon which the discouraged Briton feeds. There are many others of similar import; but having now quoted from a recent issue of The Times, we shall close the list, although the pessimist no doubt continues to dwell upon the contrast presented between the backward and the present view, meeting all that is offered in mitigation or explanation with Hamlet's exclamation, "Look here, upon this picture, and on this." He will not be comforted.

Yet comfort is near, which, with your readers' permission, we shall venture to offer; but before the proper stage of receptivity can be reached by our pessimistic friend one step is indispensable. He must adjust himself to present conditions, and realize that there is no use in these days dwelling upon the past; and especially must he cease measuring his one country with the forty-five countries of the American Union. E pluribus unum. It is out of the question to compare 41 millions of people upon two islands, 127,000 square miles in area, with over 500 people per square mile (England and Wales), with 77 millions upon three and one-half million square miles, unequalled in natural resources, with only 30 people per square mile.

Let us proceed, therefore, upon the only reasonable basis, that of man for man, and see what follows, taking up the pessimistic points in order.

First, loss of wealth and credit. Primacy of the world is gone in aggregate wealth only if the pessimist persists in measuring Britain and the American Union, which does not approach Great Britain in wealth man for man; with nearly double the population it has only one-fifth more wealth in the aggregate. No other nation is in the race for primacy with Britain, even in aggregate wealth. Not much cause for pessimism here, surely.

Loss of credit is serious; but what national credit except Britain's could stand an expenditure of four times more than its increase of revenue from the same taxes for twenty years up to 1896, and on top of that, for five years succeeding up to 1901, increased expenditure of no less than 28 millions sterling per year, when the taxes yielded only 16 millions increase. The strongest proof of British credit is that it is not destroyed; no other nation could have so recklessly disregarded the plainest dictates of sound finance, in the face of the warnings of successive authorities, none more stern than those of the present able and courageous Chancellor of the Exchequer. No matter how a loyal press may claim unimpaired credit, the lender says that six and one-half per cent. of the amount advanced must be deducted because credit is impaired. The Chancellor tells the world that the limit of present taxes is about reached, and that trade is not expanding.

Our packages are larger and more attractive in style than any others.

The quality of our goods is superior to anything else on the market.

The final reply to the pessimist here is that the British people will soon be compelled to change the policy of seeking increased responsibilities throughout the world, of provoking wars, and antagonizing not only the Governments, but—a new and portentous fact—the peoples of other countries, a policy which inevitably demands the increased expenditures which have already lost for Britain her proud boast of supremacy in credit—a loss of genuine prestige.

The back of the weary Titan was already bent when he decided to increase his burden by acquiring acknowledged paramountcy in South Africa. Two young republics certified to be dead were annexed, but the Titan still finds them struggling on his back. Whether the present war was inevitable or not is not here in question. If it were inevitable, so much more chary should Britain be in assuming responsibilities hereafter in distant parts of the world which carry in their train such tasks; for all must see that it is exposing Britain to dangers from other quarters which may at any time reverse the present figures of Consols. The wonder is not that these have fallen to 95, but that they have remained so high. With a return to the policy of peace and good-will towards other nations, and ordinary prudence in not awakening sleeping dogs, and also in expenditure, credit will soon be regained. No irretrievable disaster has yet occurred, but the danger signal is up.

Even in credit there is only the United States whose credit is better, as shown by the prices of its bonds; but were it to go one-half the distance on the road to financial troubles which Britain for years has traversed, it is improbable that even she could borrow upon the terms of the last addition to the British debt. Primacy in credit may yet be regained.

In mining, weaving, commerce and manufactures primacy has gone only if the pessimist persists, as before. In measuring Britain against the whole American Union. No other nation robs her of primacy in either of these departments, nor is likely to do so. She has still primacy in the aggregate, even against the Union, in weaving and foreign commerce, and in exports she is not much behind. Not much cause for discontent here, since against a Union of forty-five States she still holds first place in two, and is abreast in another department.

In foreign shipping, it is true, Britain's former huge percentage of the world's shipping declines. How could it be otherwise? But it still exceeds that of any nation twice over. Her lead is so decided that no man living is likely to see it overcome. She had 9 million tons of shipping in 1898; the American Union had less than 5 millions, Germany, 1,700,000, and France less than a million. No cause for lying awake o' nights mourning over the position of Britain in shipping.

So with the ship-building industry. It is true America is fast increasing, and is building monster war and merchant ships, and that Germany is also, and that both will prove competitors; but when Britain builds 865,000 tons per year (1898), and America only 249,000, and Germany—although figures are not at hand—certainly much less, probably not half, it is rather premature to take alarm. Britain needs and uses more ships than any other nation, having coal and manufactures to export and bulky food products and raw materials to import. She need not be pushed out of primacy in ship-owning, for, not needing to import so much, America is at a disadvantage with Britain, who has better loads for foreign ports throughout the world, out and home for her ships. Therefore, if Britain loses primacy in ship-owning, she will well deserve to lose it. In ship-building before long it is to be another matter. She must not fall asleep, for America, with her cheap steel and timber and surprising workmen, is finely equipped. Here, if Britain hold supremacy, she will richly deserve the prize.

As for the serious loss of the Atlantic express travel, a few words will explain why this was inevitable, keeping in view Britain's environment. The British steamship lines sailing between Liverpool and New York convey passengers to and from Britain only, with her 41 millions of people. The German lines sailing from Bremen, Hamburg, to New York, draw first from the whole of Northern Europe, then touch at Southampton, and draw part of the British travel, and, not content with this augmentation, crossing to Cherbourg, they draw from Paris and all Southern Europe. Thus three fine streams of travel feed their enormous fast ships; the 300 millions of Europe are tributary to them; and homeward from America to Germany they draw all who wish or have business with any of these millions, for the homeward ships touch also at Cherbourg, Southampton or Plymouth, and land passengers. Against this the British lines have only tributary to them forty-one and one-half millions of people who desire passage to New York, and, returning from America to Britain, only those Americans who desire to visit the forty-one and one-half millions for pleasure or business. It goes without saying that the German lines must inevitably lead in large fast steamers. But no cause for pessimism here, because British ship-owners are neither unenterprising nor inefficient; they only show their good sense by recognizing the situation, and will hold more of the profit of Atlantic travel for Britain than if they attempted the impossible.

In ironmaking, Germany's fifty-six and one-half millions of people may probably ere long equal Britain's make, as Germany is gaining in population rapidly. But this does not mean any reduction of Great Britain's output; it may even increase somewhat. Her make, man for man, will remain greater than that of any other country except the United States. What more can be expected. So with steel. Britain's 5 million tons product last year was nearly half as much as that of the United States, and not much behind, man for man, a remarkable fact taking conditions into account, showing the little giant that Great Britain is. No other nation compares with her in steel, even in the aggregate. No cause for pessimism here; but an unreasonable man can, of course, easily lament his country's decadence, because it produces 5 millions instead of ten and one-half, which half a continent produces.

We now come to the question, "Is British foreign trade declining?" This has been the subject of much discussion of late, without result, because the question has two parts, which disputants usually ignore. Exports are one branch, imports another: the former has decreased per capita, and the latter increased. The two combined show that British foreign trade is not declining. From 1889-98, ten years, exports per head declined from £6 13s. 11d. to £5 16s. 2d., and imports increased from £11 10s. 1d. to £11 14s. 1d. These were mostly years of low prices; quantities did not decrease materially. The recent rise in prices has swollen the value of both imports and exports, but as a rule material increase of quantities is not shown, except in greater imports of foreign food supplies. Even in these, however, higher prices account for some part of the increase.

year or that, the writer is satisfied that the true answer to the question, "Is British trade declining?" is that it cannot be affirmed to be either declining or increasing, imports and exports combined. It has apparently reached its limit, and is not expanding, having remained practically stationary for, say, ten years.

It surprises the writer that so much importance is attached in Britain to the monthly statement of exports and imports, as if increase or decrease in these were conclusive proof of prosperity or otherwise. Decreased exports may prove that home consumption is greater—the best of all conditions. Thus the steel exports of America this year will be less than last, because her own demands are greater. Happy country that can use its productive capacity for its own further development! Every ton used for additions or new undertakings is productive of more productive wealth. Exports decrease, but what goes abroad permanently develops directly the receiving nation, and only benefits the exporting nation temporarily by its manufacture. What is used at home develops the producing nation, and benefits it permanently. So with imports. A decrease in these may prove that the nation is more and more supplying its own wants. Happy nation that can do so! American imports are growing less and less for this reason, and reducing the volume of her foreign trade, a sign of continued development at which she rejoices. Last year was one of great prosperity for British manufactures. Exports of these in many lines declined, but the decrease in quantities of exports was the best proof of prosperity. There is another point often overlooked in considering exports, viz., that these are in the aggregate not to be compared with the amounts consumed at home. It is estimated that only one-eighth of Britain's production is exported. But if we consider only manufactured articles, we find that in pig iron 9 million tons are made and only 1 million exported. In coal, less than one-sixth goes abroad: 220 million tons produced, 36 million tons (average) exported. In textiles, of linen, one-fourth exported, £20,000,000 produced, £5,000,000 exported; in woollen goods, product £50,000,000, £14,000,000 only exported. In cotton goods alone does the amount exported reach the amount consumed at home. The total annual exports average £235,000,000; if we estimate 12 per cent. profit upon these, the gain is £28,000,000. The increase in national expenditures during five years, not including the present war cost, is just this figure; therefore, should such expenditure become permanent, the gain arising from all the exports of Britain has been absorbed chiefly in supposed Empire-making and its inevitable armaments. "The vast interests of Britain in China" are much in evidence at present, but shrink upon examination. The amount that China takes of British products is only £5,000,000 per annum. Little Holland takes one-half more, and so does Little Belgium; and the Brazilian and the Venezuelan republics each take more. A very big war can easily be stirred up there, costing thousands of lives and a hundred millions or two, which cannot well be spared, all in the cause of protecting a paltry five millions worth of trade, yielding perhaps, £600,000 to £700,000. per annum profit. Nor is Chinese trade likely to increase much, for the Chinese need little that is made by Western nations. Great increase of her consumption of British goods is not probable, in the opinion of the writer, who has some knowledge of that strange land.

It is pitiable to see so many lives lost and so much money squandered in pursuit of shadowy dominion over barren territory in far-off, sparsely populated lands, ostensibly to secure new markets for British products. The markets of uncivilized lands amount to so little, and Britain has no advantages from her nominal sway under the policy of free trade; for trade does not follow the flag—it follows the lowest price current. Loyal Canada buys three times as much from the United States as from Britain. Even her Union Jacks she buys in New York. If 2s. 6d. per year were added to the purchasing power of the British people for home products, the market would be enlarged to the extent of all its exports to China; less than 6d. per head would equal the profit. One pound per head would give Britain more new trade than her total exports to India and South and East Africa combined; or to Canada and Australia, China and Japan combined; to Germany, Italy and France combined; or to the United States, Brazil, Argentine and Canada combined, and equal to one-half of the total export trade to all British possessions, which is £80,000,000 per year. If the £28,000,000 of increased Government expenditure per year incurred during the past five years were stopped, and spent by the people at home upon British products, this would give a new market equaling that of Canada, South and East and West Africa, Foreign Africa, South and East, and the West Indies, Ceylon and Hong Kong. Conquering new territory for markets abroad is dropping the substance for the shadow—chasing rainbows. The case against this policy is closed. Trade has not increased. The true statesman will soon turn his attention to the bettering of conditions at home, for it is here that the greatest increase for British trade can most easily be effected.

Prominent speakers sometimes state that Britain is lightly taxed. Compared with Germany and the American Union this is certainly incorrect, and it is these countries which Britain has most to fear industrially.

The British Government's expenditure is now close upon £3 per head: that of the United States is £1,* the cost of the Spanish and South-African Wars being each included. Here is a load of about £80,000,000 per year for the United Kingdom, nearly $2 per head with which the forty-one and one-half millions of Britons are handicapped. This is nearly three times the total direct profit made at 12 per cent. upon Britain's entire exports. The German only pays £1 7s. 6d. per head.

The last fiscal year left the Republic with a surplus of sixteen millions sterling after paying ordinary expenditures and the Philippine War also. Hence the remission of taxes to the extent of eleven millions sterling. The Secretary of the Treasury is buying up Government bonds with his surplus revenues. The amount of gold in the Treasury was never so great—it recently approached a hundred millions sterling. After British employers and employed reach the American standard of economical production, Britain will still remain heavily handicapped in the industrial race

*In giving the expenditure of the United States Government at £1 per head the years previous to the Spanish War are taken. Taxes to the extent of £11,000,000 have since been abolished, equal to 3s. per head. It is but fair, however, to say that last year's permanent appropriations were greater than before the war, and annual expenditure will be somewhat over £1 to-day, notwithstanding the reduction of taxes named.

by the enormous load of taxation under which her producers labor as compared with America.

The debt of the States of the American Union is now only 202 million dollars in the aggregate, having fallen from 298 million dollars in 1880. This is less than a million sterling per State, and takes no account of the sinking funds, which in many cases almost equal the debt. The American is surprisingly careful about incurring debts, the States and cities being constitutionally prohibited from exceeding certain percentages upon the property assessment. He is a strong contrast to the Canadian and Australian in this respect.

The backwardness of Britain in electrical machinery and equipment, motor cars, etc., is due to the natural conservatism of the race. The French are more disposed to experiment with novelties, and the maker there sees a home demand, which is, as just stated, the surest foundation for capturing the foreign market. Britain may still overtake her quicker neighbor—her new plants should soon drive out the latest industrial invader; then exports will begin. It is not always he who starts first who ends first. The writer expects Britain soon to be in the front rank here.

Thus the industrial situation, sombre as it is, and dangerous as it might readily become, is not the chief source of danger to Britain to-day, because, after an awakening more or less rude, and in all respects salutary, it can well be left to work out its own salvation by adopting the changes required both by employer and workman, and which are quite within their power, to enable the country to maintain its trade in competition with others. It is the financial and political situation which is alarming, for it needs no prophet to foretell that a continuance of the aggressive temper which alienates other Governments and peoples, and which has mistaken territorial acquisition for genuine Empire-making must soon strain the nation's power and lay upon its productive capacity such burdens as will render it incapable of retaining the present volume of trade, which is essential to the preservation of Britain's position as foremost in the world, financially, commercially, and industrially (American Union, hors concours).

If ever a nation had clear and unmistakable warnings, as the writer thinks, that the time has arrived when it should henceforth measure its responsibilities and ambitions throughout the world with its resources, and cut its garment according to its cloth, it is the dear old Motherland of the race, with its trade stationary, an army of thirty thousand or more to be provided for in South Africa, even after peace comes, its expenditures and taxation increasing, and its promises to pay already at such a discount as to attract capital across the Atlantic. Rocks ahead, sure enough; but this does not mean that the officers of the ship of State are to drive it full steam upon them. On the contrary, it should mean that the rocks, being now in sight, will be avoided.

The prime quality of the race—its "saving common-sense," inherent in men of all parties—may be trusted to see that the good ship Britannia so steers her course hereafter as to insure her safety and to keep her strong for the many long and prosperous voyages she is destined yet to sail, not only for her own advantage, or that of the English-speaking race, but, as the writer has never ceased to believe, for the advantage of the world as a whole.

HAMILTON GROCERS' EXCURSION.

OVER 1,000 people attended the annual excursion and picnic of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association at Mohawk Park, Brantford, on Wednesday of last week, and, though the day was a sultry one and the trip was by train, all had a thoroughly enjoyable time.

The excursionists arrived in Brantford shortly before dinner time, and in a short while the park was a pretty scene, small parties being scattered in all directions in the park. As is the custom with the Hamilton grocers, tea, coffee and ice-cold milk and water were provided gratis to all excursionists, thus making the picnic luncheon an enjoyable feature of the day.

Soon after dinner the fun started. The first event was a baseball match between the grocers and the travellers. The teams were as follows :

Grocers—George Cann, c.; J. Smith, p.; J. A. Williamson, 1 b.; J. L. Brown, 2 b.; W. Galloway, 3 b.; A. Williamson, s.s.; E. Anderson, c.f.; J. Smith, r.f.; R. Almas, l.f.
Travellers—W. H. Norman, c.; W. James, p.; R. Moncur, 1 b.; T. Hunter, 2 b.; W. J. Jackson, 3 b.; A. Ballantyne, s.s.; R. B. Morden, c.f.; B. Hill, l.f.; T. Crowther, r.f.

The rivalry between the two teams was keen, and there was not much to choose between them. The travellers, however, eventually won out with a score of 10 to 7 runs.

Another event which aroused great interest was the old-time chase of a greasy pig. A good start was given the porker, and he was not caught until after a warm, exciting chase.

The athletic events resulted as follows :

100-yard foot race (Hamilton grocers)—J. A. Williamson, J. L. Brown and John Lampman.

100-yard foot race (grocers' clerks)—Robt. Kerr, J. Blair and J. Cochrane.

Three-legged race (grocers' employes, Hamilton and Brantford)—Wildman and Shaw, Blair and Brown, and Webster and Dell.

Sack race, 100 yards (grocers' clerks) Luke Coppie, J. Wallman and F. Wildman.

50-yard foot race (grocers' wives)—Mrs. J. Farr, Mrs. M. Helm, Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Galloway (tie).

100-yard foot race (Brantford grocers)—Roy Webster, W. H. Westbrook and C. Devlin.

Boys' race, under 14 years, 75 yards—Ed. Campbell, Oliver Street and Percy Dundy.

Girls' race, under 14 years, 75 yards—Ellen Mullins, Sarah Munday, Lottie Bowker.

Egg race, 100 yards (grocers' clerks)—F. Wildman, C. Devlin and W. Galloway.

Half-mile foot race (Hamilton and Brantford grocers and clerks)—J. Cochrane, C. Gibson and W. H. Westbrook.

Ladies' race, over 18 years, 50 yards—Miss Sarah Wilson, Miss J. Burkholder, Mrs. Hellene and Mrs. M. O'Connor (tie).

Fat men's race, 100 yards, backwards, 200 lb. or over—J. Spiddal, Brantford, and M. Cashman, Hamilton.

Catching the greasy pig—Caught by Wm. Powell, Ancaster.

5-mile bicycle race (time limit, 15 minutes), grocers' clerks, Hamilton—B. Whitney, M. Burkholder and C. Warmington.

During the afternoon the 13th Regiment band, which had been brought from Hamilton, added much to the charm of the park by its music, and in the evening gave a concert in the drill hall.

To the following committee and officials credit for the success of the day is largely due :

Starter—B. Hill.

Judges—W. J. Jackson, A. Ballantyne and F. A. Crowther.

Clerk of the Course—George H. Carley.

General Committee—J. Hunter, W. H. Norman, W. James, R. Moncur, B. B. Morden, John Stuart, A. Jarvis, Alex. Fraser, G. R. Atkinson and Cyrus King.

Excursion Committee—J. Ronan (chairman), W. R. Harvey (secretary), A. Ballentine, J. Boligan, C. Zremner, A. G. Bain, C. H. Peebles, J. Kirkpatrick, J. Muir, J. O. Carpenter and J. Forth.

MR. ARCHDALE WILSON.

MR. ARCHDALE WILSON, manufacturer of Wilson's fly-poison pads and Smith's fly-poison squares, has not long been selling to grocers, but in the wholesale drug business he was an old and well-known figure, having spent 40 years actively engaged at it.

Speaking of his retirement from the drug business, The Canadian Druggist says :

"In 1870, Mr. Wilson opened a retail business on his own account, and 10 years later commenced a jobbing trade. Since then, by strict devotion to business and with a perseverance which has contributed to the success which has been attained, the business has grown constantly, the last two years, we are informed, being decidedly in advance of any previous years in the firm's history. The business now has assumed large proportions, and is in a satisfactory shape—so much so that we believe the purchasers took the business over at Mr. Wilson's own figure, paying cash for it."

Mr. Wilson's confidence in the merits and selling qualities of the fly papers he intended to manufacture has well repaid him for selling out one of the best-established drug businesses in the country. The success of these fly-poison papers is, no doubt, greatly due to the scientific knowledge of the manufacturer, and to the fact that grocers prefer to handle such goods rather than an article put up by someone who knows no more about the ingredients of it than does the purchaser. It looks as though Mr. Wilson's success in this direction will shortly be as pronounced as it was in that from which he retired.

EARLY CLOSING IN ST. JOHN.

ANOTHER large and enthusiastic gathering was at the Currie Business University last night. The committee reported that the movement was at last crowned with success far in excess of their greatest anticipations. They reported that the number of groceries closed last night exceeded 115; in other words, in the short space of two weeks the number jumped from 5 to 115.

W. E. Nobles, of the McAlary Company, Limited, said he was in sympathy with the movement and happy over the result. He stated that it struck the north end like a whirlwind, only three stores in north end being open when he started for the meeting.

T. J. McPherson noted the fact that there was a large gathering of dry goods clerks present and wished them success in their Saturday half-holiday movement.

"The clergy," said Mr. McPherson, "are complaining that the pews are not filled on Sunday mornings. If the hours were shortened it would be the means of bringing a large number to church where they would be glad to be. He favored the agitation of workmen being paid earlier in the week and thought it would be a step towards temperance as a number of the workmen are more inclined to carouse on Saturday knowing that they had Sunday as a day free from work. He felt positive that the grocers' success was assured.

James Williams stated that in the city proper only three small shops on City Road were open, and, at his suggestion, it was resolved to keep up the agitation through the press. The grocers then gave way to the dry goods clerks.

There was a large number of dry goods clerks present. It was decided by them to appeal to the ladies, also to the hardware clerks and their wives. It was the feeling of the meeting that the proprietors might be induced to make a trial of closing on Saturday afternoons for the month of August, and a plan is expected to be suggested at a meeting to be called next week, of which due notice will be given through the papers. —Telegraph, St. John, N.B., July 26.

KINGSTON GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE annual picnic of the Kingston Retail Grocers' Association, which was held on Wednesday of last week, was a great success. Over 4,000 persons spent the day at the fair grounds, and fully enjoyed the extensive programme of sports prepared by the committee and the music provided by the 14th Regt. Band.

Great interest was centred in the baseball match, which was between two of the best teams in Kingston, the Granites and the Ponies. The former imported a battery from Toronto, but the local battery of the Ponies, after a fierce struggle, proved to be the stronger, and the latter team won out with a score of 5 to 4 runs.

The athletic events were keenly, but good-humoredly, contested, and afforded many exciting moments. The winners were as follows:

Newsboys' race—D. Hipson, R. McMahon, H. Cooke and J. Scrutton.

Quarter-mile foot race—E. A. Ferguson, John McEvoy and A. C. Singleton.

Half-mile bicycle race (grocers' employees)—O. Knott, H. Putman, John Brennan and J. Gardiner.

Half-mile trotting race (grocers' delivery horses)—D. Dennis and C. Campbell.

Half-mile bicycle race (open to young ladies)—Gertie Printer, Flossie Robinson, Gracie Greaves and Laura Hackett; Bertha Stratford, extra prize.

Half-mile foot race—Geo. Laturney, C. Burleigh, Sergt. Fowler and J. Hackett.

100 yards' dash (grocers' employees)—A. C. Singleton, H. Smith, G. Cooper and A. Lawlar.

Quarter-mile dog race—H. Shufflebotham, A. Robinson, A. Kemp and J. Pollitt.

Soap race—Mrs. Brundette, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Perryman, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. McWhinney, Mrs. Carling and Mrs. Lawson.

Two-mile bicycle race (handicap, grocers' employees)—G. Burleigh, O. Knott, H. Putman and B. James.

Soap race (extra, for girls)—E. Mercer, E. Babcock, O. Stratford and May Lawlar.

Half-mile trot (green horses)—D. F. Dennis, Jas. Redden and W. Nicholson.

Sack race—T. Flannigan, A. Turcotte, J. Hackett and R. Ohlke.

Quarter-mile foot race (grocers' employees)—A. C. Singleton, J. Hipson, H. Smith and J. Marshall.

Two-mile bicycle race (handicap)—B. Robinson, G. Burleigh and Geo. Marsh.

Shampoo contest—E. Hendry, W. Garrigan and V. McCarey.

Half-mile walking race—P. Haffner, Geo. Thompson, D. A. Shaw and T. R. Carnovsky.

Half-mile running race (policemen, mounted)—J. Naylor, H. McAdoo, R. Aiken and J. Graham.

Half-mile running race (grocers' delivery horses)—H. J. Wilkinson, E. Robbs and Jas. Robbs.

100 yards' dash (grocers)—A. McLean, Geo. Thompson and M. Corkey.

Wheelbarrow race—G. Laturney, A. C. Singleton, J. Hackett and J. Anderson.

100 yards' race (girls)—A. Pitt, L. Smith, A. Robinson and F. Milne.

100 yards' dash—W. Knowles, W. Laird and E. McEvoy.

Policemen's foot race—S. Arniel, J. Bateson, J. Ballantyne, N. Timmerman and E. Nesbitt.

The trotting race, the shampoo contest, the soap race and the girls' race were particularly exciting. Fully 100 girls entered in the race open to them, and at least a score of them were positive they had won a place for a prize.

The committee of the day were:

President—W. H. Dyde.

Vice-president—L. W. Murphy.

Treasurer—T. H. Johns.

Starters—Ald. Robertson and S. Harness.

Judges—D. Cooper, A. Martin, W. G. Craig, J. Carson, T. R. Carnovsky, M. Corkey, A. Davis, Geo. Thompson and L. Murphy.

Scorer—D. A. Shaw.

SALE OF A CANNERY.

The news published in The Colonist on July 14, that the Anacortes cannery had been sold, has been confirmed by Mr. Winch, of Winch & Bowers, who has just returned from Anacortes. Mr. Winch says that The Alaska Packing Co. paid into the Royal Bank of Canada to the credit of The Anacortes Packing Co. yesterday, July 17, $500,000.

Messrs. Fortman and Drysdale, president and vice-president of The Alaska Packing Co., paid over the money yesterday and took possession. The deal is said to be the largest single cash transaction which ever took place on the Pacific Coast in the salmon business. It is said that the idea of The Alaska Packing Co. in purchasing the Anacortes cannery is to secure enough canneries to put up a successful fight against the Puget Sound Morgan combine, which goes into effect next month, and to dictate the price of sockeyes in the markets of the world. The Anacortes cannery has a capacity of 8,000 cases daily, and the three canneries at Point Roberts, Anacortes and Blaine, now owned by The Alaska Packing Co., have a capacity of 28,000 cases daily, while The Alaska Packing Co., by the operation of all the canneries, will be able to put up about 1,500,000 cases, or about one-half of the pack of the world.—Colonist, Victoria, B.C., July 18.

OTTAWA GROCERS PREPARING FOR PICNIC.

The Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association met in Booth's Hall on Monday evening and made further arrangements for their first annual excursion to Stanley Island on Wednesday, August 14.

The excursion committee reported having made good arrangements with the Ottawa and New York Railway and the boat company at Cornwall. They have chartered the steamer Filgate for the day, whose capacity is 1,000, and if the weather turns out fine it is altogether likely that very few grocers and employees will be left in Ottawa that day.

The advertising committee are making good arrangements to boom the excursion. The musical committee have engaged the pipers' band for August 14 and for the Saturday night previous, when it is proposed to have a turnout through the streets for the purpose of advertising the trip.

The refreshment committee are making arrangements with a first-class caterer.

Altogether, everything points to a first-class excursion, and the committee look forward to the hearty cooperation of all grocers and their employees to make it a big success.

The tickets are out and on sale at all grocers' and the office of the O. and N. Y. Railway.

Any information in regard to the excursion can be had from the secretary of the association, Mr. H. C. Ellis.

THE TRAVELLERS' HOLIDAYS.

MONDAY next sees the start of the uniform holiday for the commercial travellers representing over 60 wholesale grocery, spice and woodenware houses in the chief business centres of Ontario west of Toronto.

Probably 600 or 700 travellers will participate in the holiday, and it is to be hoped that they will each and all have an enjoyable vacation.

No one is more entitled to a holiday than the average traveller. In some respects, he may have the advantage over the man in the warehouse, but in others he has not, particularly when home life and home ties are taken into consideration.

Some regret has been expressed that the biscuit manufacturers have not fallen into line with the other branches of the grocery trade, but it is perhaps not yet too late for them to at least partially do so. At any rate, it is to be hoped that next year they will be at one with the other interests in this matter.

Those houses that have agreed to give their travellers a holiday from the 5th to the 17th of August should be encouraged by the retail trade. And they can encourage them in two ways. The one is by ignoring any that should attempt to take advantage of the absence of the travellers who represent the houses that are parties to the agreement, and the other is by sending in letter orders for goods it is necessary they should have before the travellers are again on their respective routes. And, in pursuance of this, they should watch our advertising columns even more closely than usual, if that is possible.

We again append the names of the firms whose travellers will be off the road from the 5th to the 17th August.

THE OUTLOOK FOR NUTS.

Cable and mail advices recently received indicate that while some kinds of nuts on future account rule firm others again show a tendency to the opposite.

Tarragona almonds, for example, according to a cable advice, have advanced 3s. per bag. Filberts, on the other hand, have declined 1s. per sack for October shipment. New walnuts will cost less than last year, and it is probable Grenobles will be shipped at a price to enable retail grocers to sell as low as 15c. per lb., as they will likely be able to buy at about 12½c. per lb.

BUYING TEAS FOR ENGLAND.

ALITTLE more interest has been manifested in the tea market in Toronto during the past week or ten days on account of a demand for Indian and Ceylon black teas and China green teas for export to Great Britain.

The inquiries which have been received for Indian and Ceylon teas have not, as far as we are aware, yet led to any business, but China green teas, which were held in first hands, have been gathered up and shipped to the British market.

According to mail advices to hand, Indian and Ceylon teas are ½ to ¾d. higher in London. The Produce Markets' Review, in its issue of July 20, referring to Ceylon teas, said: "The kinds most affected were whole leaf teas under 7d., and these show a rise of fully ½ to ¾d. per lb., the lowest market quotation being now 4¼d. A hardening in these sorts has been apparent for the last few weeks, and now the upward movement has become an accomplished fact, a still further advance may be expected. The medium and lower grades of broken Pekoe were also occasionally dearer, but these were not affected to the same extent."

SHORT CROPS OF PRUNES.

Prunes promise to occupy a much stronger position during the coming season than was experienced during that which has about passed.

In California the crop is estimated to be less than one-half that of 1900, while in France the crop is about 40,000,000 lb. short of last year.

Advices from Chicago say that the price of Californian prunes there is ¼c. per lb. higher, but so far local quotations are without change.

While prices are likely to rule high during the season, the large carry-over of prunes in California will prevent them from appreciating as much as they otherwise would.

THE INDIGNITY OF LABOR.

The dignity of labor is all right. What is all wrong is the indignity of laboring long hours in badly ventilated stores with the temperature around 90 degrees, and not enough business to stir the atmosphere.

ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE AND SIR LOUIS DAVIES' RESPONSIBILITY.

THERE no longer seems to be any doubt about the retirement of Sir Louis Davies from the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries. When he is gone the Government will be relieved of one of its weak members.

At the time he was taken into the Government it was generally thought that the Premier had made a wise choice. He had a good reputation, as far as any man in politics can have a good reputation. It is possible he might have been over-rated. There might have been portfolios for which he was better qualified. But as Minister of Marine and Fisheries he has certainly proved a lamentable failure.

Under his regime marine disasters on the St. Lawrence route have multiplied, with the result that the travelling public fear it and the discrimination of marine insurance companies against it is more decided. And what has been done in this way will, we fear, take a long time to undo. In the meantime the trade and commerce of the country has to suffer.

Sir Louis is not to be blamed for storms that arise, for currents that prevail, or for rocks that abound. His sins are the sins of omission. Not at any time since becoming a member of the Government has he shown by any act of his that he fully grasped the importance of the duties devolving upon him, in as far as the St. Lawrence route is concerned. Less than a week ago, in an interview with a newspaper reporter in regard to marine disasters on that route, he said: "I have been so far unable to discover that the routes are to blame or that the aids to navigation are seriously at fault." What nonsense! If we had never anything else to judge him by, he has by his latest statement out of his own mouth proved his unfitness for the Department upon whose proper administration largely depends the reputation of our waterways to and from the sea.

Something certainly has been done under his regime for the improvement of the St. Lawrence route; but a great deal more should have been done. There has been too much of "soul take thy ease" about

Sir Louis. What is wanted in the Department of Marine and Fisheries is an aggressive, not a passive, policy. Sir Louis Davies, like Sir Richard Cartwright, does not seem to know what this means. And when he does do anything he magnifies its importance beyond all sense of proportion. The stress which he lays on the $40,000 spent on the new light at Belle Isle is an evidence of that.

If ever good judgment was demanded in the appointment of a Minister of Marine and Fisheries it is now. We fully realize the difficulties with which the Premier has to contend in making the appointment. Provincial jealousies crop up and sectarian influences arise. But, if the right kind of man is to be secured, none of these should be factors.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was wise in his appointments to several of the portfolios, such for instance, as that of Public Works, Post Office, Customs, Justice, and Agriculture. These are all occupied by men of a practical turn of mind and men who when they realize what ought to be done have the perseverance and ability to do it.

There is no finer or more delightful route to the sea than the St. Lawrence. It is not devoid of dangers; but where is there a route that is? There are none in this world. And properly buoyed and lighted it will be as safe as any other, while at the same time possessing scenic attractions that are equal to any and unsurpassed by no other route on this side of the Atlantic. But we must have a Minister of Marine and Fisheries with an aggressive policy before we can hope to have the St. Lawrence route put in the condition it ought to be in.

Tombstone advertising is doubtless done with a view to enlivening business.

SULTANA RAISIN CROP.

Although recent hot winds have done some damage to the Sultana raisin crop, there is every prospect of a fair yield, this week's advices stating that the experts are still adhering to their estimate of from 25,000 to 30,000 tons. It is the opinion, however, that prices will not be very low.

THE SALMON PACK.

SO far there is not much likelihood of the salmon pack in British Columbia being as large as it was a short time ago anticipated it would be.

The pack on the northern rivers and at Rivers Inlet, from which parts of British Columbia eastern Canada gets most of its supply, is seriously short and it will be impossible to completely fill all the orders which have been booked.

A steamer which arrived in Vancouver the other day from northern British Columbian ports brought the intelligence that the northern salmon pack will not be more than one-half of what it would have been with a regular run. The Skeena River canneries have only about 2,500 cases put up, and some not more than 2,000. The Rivers Inlet canneries are also short, averaging from 1,500 to 2,200 cases. Drainie's Cannery at Hamu has about the largest pack of the season, but even there the result of work is rather short.

In regard to the pack on the Fraser River, The Province, Vancouver, of July 25, said: "Salmon are scattered, and so far the catch has been very small. The fishermen operating on the river last night met with indifferent success, the average being less than five to the boat. There was quite a little spurt on Monday night, however, and some boats brought in as many as 70 and 80 fish. Some of the old fishermen on the river are of the opinion that this was one of the preliminary spurts of the season and that the main run will commence in a few days now. The indications are good for a big run and they expect that the pack put up this year will be as large if not larger than any previous year."

According to a United States authority, it is estimated that the total pack of salmon on the Pacific Coast (United States and Canada) will be about 3,850,000 cases, divided as follows: Alaska Packers' Association 1,300,000; Pacific Packing and Navigation Co., 750,000; British Columbia 800,000; independent canneries in Oregon, Washington and Alaska 1,000,000.

If common interests will not hold business men together, rules and regulations or financial penalties never will.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

A PRIVATE letter from Messina reports a favorable outlook there for the new crop of filberts and almonds. The advices state that little business has been done for future shipment, buyers showing little desire to speculate.

FLURRY IN CANNED GOODS.

A despatch from Baltimore says: "Following an advance in the price of tinplates, caused by the big strike and an advance in the price of tin cans, there is considerable of a flurry in the canned goods market.

"T. J. Meehan, a leading broker, said on July 26: 'Within 10 days there has been an advance of 15c. per dozen on corn, 15c. per dozen on saurkraut, 20c. per dozen on tomatoes and 40c. per dozen on gallon apples. All staple canned goods have gone up 10 to 40c. per dozen. The advance in cans has put the price of 3 lb. sizes $1 per 100 higher than they were in February. This means an increase of from 9 to 10c. per dozen in the cost of the packing. Besides the tinplate conditions, the market is affected by the drought in the West. Heavy orders are coming in by telegraph for supplies from that section, because the drought has reduced the quantity of foodstuffs. Only about 25 per cent. of the jobbers of the country have purchased their fall supplies of Baltimore canned goods, and among those yet to order are some of the biggest houses in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities. Advancing prices have not checked the buying, and the demand seems to grow from day to day, although for three weeks it has kept us working day and night.'"

SHIPMENTS OF CHINA TEA.

Gow, Wilson & Staunton, in a recent report, say: "The use of China tea in this country is now so small that it is of little importance in dealing with figures relating to consumption and production of tea. However, now that the British-grown tea is finding a firm footing in markets in other parts of the world, there is some interest in watching the shipments of China tea to countries outside the United Kingdom. The latest advices point to a considerable falling off in the amount of China tea available for export, and, although it is as yet early to hazard a figure, it may be safely said that the coming season's export of tea from China will be 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 lb. short of last year. This shortage, we understand, is brought about by the unremunerative prices which have been offered to the Chinese merchants. The season's crop is also reported to show exceptionally poor quality. It is, therefore, probable that the foreign markets will require larger supplies of teas from India and Ceylon, and, if such should prove to be the case, the home market may feel relief sooner than had been anticipated."

ADVANCE IN POTATOES.

A despatch from Chicago says: "In less than a week the wholesale price of potatoes in the local market has advanced as a result of the drouth from 70c. per bushel to $1.10, the closing figure to-day. This increase of 40c. per bushel in so short a time is said to be unprecedented. It brings the retail price to 35 and 40c. per peck at a season when potatoes are usually to be had here in abundance at 15c. per peck.

Encourage the Vacation Idea.

FROM August 5 to August 17 a number of wholesale houses and manufacturers give their travelling staff a vacation. THE CANADIAN GROCER hopes that merchants everywhere will do all they can to make this plan a success. It has been a hot summer, and the work of travellers has been unusually hard. If you agree with us that these men deserve every consideration, then be sure to send your orders that you would have given to them to their houses by mail. It will be appreciated very much. Latest special announcements of nearly all of the houses will be found in this and next week's issue.

"Reports from Southern Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, and other districts indicate that the recent rains came too late to save much of the potato crop in those sections."—July 26.

CANNED GOODS CONTROLLED BY SELLERS.

In all articles pertaining to canned goods, the market for the next 12 months will be entirely in the control of the seller; and packers, at present, should benefit by it, unless Dame Nature overdoes her partiality and burns the eastern crop up as she has done the western. Our advice at present to all packers of tomatoes, corn and fruits is to get as much as possible of them into cans, and to take advantage of any opportunity to secure them that may occur, because they are not only going to be of steadily increasing value, but that the crop may be entirely cut off before the middle of August. It will be seen from our market reports that tomatoes have already advanced about 10c. per doz. for No. 3 standards, during the past week in this city, and canned tomatoes may become a luxury before Thanksgiving Day.—The Trade, Baltimore, Md., July 25.

THE SITUATION IN CURRANTS.

The lower prices lately established for the better qualities of currants have caused an improvement in the demand from nearly all quarters. The total decline in values the beginning of June amounts to about 10s. per cwt. for Gulph and Vostizza, and about 7s. for Provincial. The price of the latter is now within 1s. per cwt. of that of the former, with the natural result that the commoner quality is neglected in favor of the better. The decline has been brought about in the first place by the anxiety of first-hand holders to clear their stocks to make room for new fruit, and has been accentuated by the fact that speculators have followed the tendency of the market, recognizing the hopelessness of any improvement under all the existing circumstances. All things considered it is a matter for satisfaction that the great difference between the market of two months ago and the probable prices of new fruit has been to a great extent bridged over during the existence of a very small stock, and that the consequent loss to all parties has been considerably subdivided. With the present new crop prospects and the small existing stocks it will be seen that the probable available supply for 1901-2, amounting to about 150,000 tons in all (from which the quantity of 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. to be retained by the Greek Government must be deducted), is by no means excessive to meet the universal demand. The actual exports from Greece in the last two years of normal production were as follows:

|                |              |
|----------------|--------------|
| Crop 1899..... | 122,500 tons |
| " 1898.....    | 136,000 "    |

So that in the event of a recurrence to normal consumption in the coming season, that of 1902 will again commence with bare markets. — Produce Markets' Review, July 20.

CANADA AND THE WEST-INDIAN TRADE.

THE CANADIAN GROCER had an interesting chat a few days ago with Mr. Charles Pickford, who has just returned from a six months' sojourn in the British West Indies in the interest of Pickford & Black, owners of the well-known steamship line that bears their name.

"Are the people in the British West Indies taking an increasing interest in the question of trade with Canada?" he was asked.

"Yes, they are. They want to do business with us. Our people here should take more interest in the West-Indian trade. They should, for instance, keep hammering away at the trade all the time, and not merely try to sell their products there when business is dull at home. Exporters in the United States keep steadily after the trade."

"What about the flour trade?"

"The Canadian flour trade with the West Indies is growing. During the first six months of 1899 our steamers carried 2,737 bbls. of Canadian flour to the British West Indies. During the corresponding period in 1900 we took 5,591 bbls., and this year 16,500 bbls."

"To what do you ascribe the fact?"

"I ascribe it to the fact that the people here are taking more interest in the trade, and also to the fact that the prejudices against Canadian flour are disappearing. The idea that Canadian flour will not keep in the West Indies is exploded. It will keep as good as any flour," declared Mr. Pickford, with some vigor.

Mr. Pickford deprecated the fact that a great many buyers in Canada of West-Indian products placed their orders through New York houses. Another thing that he spoke disapprovingly of was the methods by which some Canadian firms were represented in the West Indies. Some of the so-called representatives of Canadian houses actually did their business through New York commission houses. "What Canadian houses should do who want to do business with the West Indies," said Mr. Pickford, "is to send a special traveller and do business direct."

A number of Canadians had visited the West Indies during the past summer, but he regretted to say that the most of them went by way of New York, when they could have obtained equally as good service on the boats running out of Halifax.

In July, 1900, Messrs. Pickford & Black doubled the number of their steamers running to the West Indies, but notwithstanding this increase their boats have had full cargoes both ways. The service is a fortnightly one to the Winward Islands and Demerara, and a monthly one to Bermuda, Turk's Island and Jamaica.

Mr. Pickford, who will make Toronto his headquarters till September, when he again leaves for the West Indies, will have on exhibition at the rooms of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association samples of agricultural implements, nails, spikes and various kinds of tools such as are used in Demerara and other parts of the West Indies. The object is to allow manufacturers of these lines in Canada to inspect them and excite their interest in the West-Indian market.

TOOK THE PRIZE FOR PICKLES.

Gillard & Co., Limited, the Vintry Works, Walthamstow, N.E., received the highest award at the recent Universal Cookery and Food Exhibition, London, for their sauces, pickles, and other high-class household specialties. This firm, established in 1867, has been awarded no fewer than 12 gold medals at various exhibitions. They protect the retailer by having fixed selling prices for their goods, which are stated on the labels, and which are stated to produce to the retailer a clear profit of at least 25 per cent. — The Grocer, London, Eng., July 6.

GROCERY CLERK'S NEW PRESIDENT.

The grocery clerks at their July meeting elected Jas. McGrath president, as successor to A. V. Bradley who has gone into business for himself. Jimmy is a very popular clerk and has always taken a great interest in the Association. The clerks are planning a good programme for their fall and winter meetings and will welcome all the grocery clerks at their meetings. Constitutions can be had free from R. H. Hudson, 8 Denison Square, Toronto.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. L. Hunter, who travels for The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, in Northern Ontario, is spending a week in the sample-room of the firm.

Mr. William Moir, who is leaving T. A. Lytle & Co., Toronto, to take a position in Cleveland, was presented on Saturday by the employes with a handsome gold watch and chain, suitably engraved, as a slight token of their esteem.

Mr. D. S. Allison, representing The Alliance Coupon Co., of Indianapolis, was in Toronto last week. He placed his firm's agency in the hands of The Eby, Blain Co.,

Limited, Toronto, and Beauchemin Fils, Montreal, who will now carry stocks of cash coupon books of all values.

TRADE CHAT.

THE GROCERS' WHOLESALE CO., Limited, with a capital of $100,000, has been incorporated, with head offices at Hamilton. The members are: William Bremner, president; Henry Williams Zealand, managing director; Charles Bremner, Joseph Hanning Horning and Thomas Simon Ford, of Mitchell; Albert Scarsbrook, of Petrolea, and David Little, of Guelph, merchants.

The raspberry crop around Orillia will be short.

Rye harvesting has commenced near Dominion City, Man.

Johnson Bros., bakers, St. Thomas, Ont., are building two new ovens.

J. R. Baxter, grocer, Hintonburg, Ont., is building a vegetable cellar.

Charles Milne, grocer, Dawson, Yukon, is building a large storage warehouse.

W. D. McKenzie has opened out a fresh stock of groceries in his new store in Galt, Ont.

C. Aggett's cheese factory at Campbellford, Ont., has been destroyed by fire; loss $1,000.

About 70 of the leading grocers of St. John, N.B., began on July 22 to close their places at seven o'clock in the evening.

Advices from the Indian reserves of Manitoba and the Northwest show that the corn crop of the Indians is in the best of condition.

The grain crops in the vicinity of Horse Hills, N.W.T., are ahead of any previous year, and the yield, it is said, will be phenomenal.

The Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association have completed arrangements for their excursion and picnic to Cornwall and Stanley Island on August 14. Every effort is being made to make the occasion a success, as this is the first attempt of the Ottawa grocers to run an excursion.

The Guelph Salesmen and Clerks' Association held their annual picnic on July 25 at Berlin, Ont. They were met at Berlin by the acting mayor and a committee of the Berlin Clerks' Union, and given a hearty reception. A programme of sports and a ball game proved to be interesting.

The annual picnic of the Master Bakers and Bread Drivers' Association, of Montreal, held on July 23, at Gardner's Grove, Huntingdon, was a success in every way. A programme of games and sports was successfully carried out, and the strains of the Royal Scots' pipe band were thoroughly enjoyed.

Royal is the baking powder of highest character and reputation, the favorite among housekeepers. The cheapest to consumers, the most profitable for dealers to handle.

Those grocers who are most successful in business---who have the greatest trade, highest reputation, the largest bank accounts---are those who sell the highest quality, purest, best known articles.

It is a discredit to a grocer to sell impure, adulterated and unwholesome goods; nor is the sale of such goods, even though the profits on a single lot may be larger, as profitable in the long run as the sale of pure, wholesome, high-class articles at a less percentage.

Trade is won and held by the sale of the best, the highest grade, the most reliable goods.

If a reader of THE GROCER would think the matter out, he would give a prominent place in his business and cease handling Japans altogether. Why? Because it would give very much better satisfaction to his customers, he would be "up to the times" instead of "behind the times," and he would be striking a deadly blow at the tea peddler, whose backbone is Japan tea. Samples of Green, Black or Mixed sent on application.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, August 1, 1901.
GROCERIES.

THE midsummer trade is eminently satisfactory. There is no rush on any particular line, but the general demand is strong and the staffs of the wholesale houses are kept quite busy filling orders. Sugar is somewhat stronger, scoring a rise of 1 1/2 d. in Europe on Monday. The New York market as well as the Canadian is steady. Canned goods are not selling freely for immediate delivery, but few orders are being booked for vegetables for fall shipment. Salmon remains firm in a healthy market. Teas are quiet, and dried fruits remain in about the same position as last week. A strong market has developed in rolled oats, and wholesalers are selling at $4.30 to $4.40 a barrel, and $2.15 to $2.25 per bag.

SUGARS.

The sugar market does not show any great change. The European market is much firmer, scoring a 1 1/2 d. rise on Monday, and this naturally improves the feeling here. The New York market is steady, and local values are unchanged at $4.50 per 100 lb. for granulated and $3.85 to $4.45 per 100 lb. for yellows, according to quality. The demand is quite brisk, and seems to warrant a stronger market than we have.

SYRUPS.

The demand is seasonably slow, but few shipments having been made this week. Cane syrup is worth 1 1/2 to 2c. and corn syrup 3 to 3 1/4 c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market is quite firm, and jobbers are not eager to dispose of large lots, being firm believers in the stability of present prices. There are few transactions occurring.

CANNED GOODS.

There is no change to report in canned goods. A regular distributing trade of an assorting order is being done by the wholesale houses, but few heavy contracts have been placed. It would appear that canned goods at the present prices quoted by wholesalers ought to be good property. Tomatoes are worth 80c. on spot and 85c. to arrive. Corn is selling at 75c. on spot and 80c. to arrive and peas the same. Fruits are rather slow. Strawberries are worth $1.50 to arrive; raspberries, $1.40; gooseberries, $1.40; pears, $1.55 for 2's and $2 for 3's; Lombard plums, $1.20; greengages, $1.30; yellow peaches, $1.70 for 2's and $2.50 for 3's; sliced pineapple, $2.30 and $2.45 for grated; 3-lb. apples, 85c., and gallon apples, $1.90, red pitted cherries, $1.80 and whites, $2. Salmon is firm, sockeye being unobtainable under $6 for spot goods and $5 for futures. The run of Rivers Inlet and sockeye is now expected to be only fair. Quite a quantity of spring fish has already been packed.

THE ROSS TEA CO., - - TORONTO.

SPICES.

The spice market is rather quiet just now although sorting orders are arriving in fair quantities. We quote: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12½ to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

A fair inquiry is reported. Prices are unchanged. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in ½ bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10 bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in ½ bags; $3.10 in ¼ bags; and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¼c. per lb.

TEAS.

Japan teas have experienced a revival this week, and quite a few sales are reported. This is due to a desire on the part of Japan houses to operate, firm offers now being made. Heretofore this season, Japan teas have always been offered subject to confirmation, and in most cases where attempts have been made to purchase the confirmation did not come. While Japan houses are now more willing sellers, prices are held up firmly. The Indian and Ceylon market remains as low as ever, with little life shown.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—Prices are well maintained in spite of the prospects for a good crop. Arrivals are very light. Dealers are buying sparingly. Goods out of stock are worth 9½ to 10c.

RAISINS—At the low prices that fruit is now offering a good deal of business is being done. Quotations are decidedly irregular, varying from 3½ to 5c. per lb. for fine off-stalk.

PRUNES—The French crop has been seriously affected by the drouth, and it is likely that Californian prunes will be wanted for export. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5½c. for 90's to 100's; 6½ to 7½c. for 60's to 70's and 7½ to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.

GREEN FRUITS.

The most important change to notice this week is the continued advance in the price of lemons in sympathy with the New York market. Californian fruit has been arriving more freely, and is in good demand.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The warm weather has checked the demand somewhat and the local trading is in small lots. Cuddled fresh eggs are selling at 11½ to 12c. while fresh eggs to arrive are quoted at 10½c. The English market is improving, 6s. 10d. being about the selling quotation to day.

HONEY — There is now believed to be a good crop of honey of high quality. Sales of new clover honey have been made this week at 12 to 13c., while 11c. is the rule in lots of 500 sections. White honey extracted is worth 9 to 10c.

POTATOES—The size of new potatoes is improving but they have been very small. Sales of 15 to 25 bbl. lots are reported at $2.75 to $2.80.

S. H. EWING & SONS, 96 King St., MONTREAL

ASHES—The market keeps quiet, first pots having sold at $4.25 to $4.35 per 180 lb.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—The flour market is decidedly firm yet sales have made at very low figures. We quote: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $3.95 to $4.20; winter wheat patents, $3.45 to $3.70; straight roller, $3.15 to $3.40; in bags, $1.55 to $1.65 and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.90.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 76 to 77c. afloat July; peas, 80c.; rye, 56½ to 57½c.; No. 2 barley, 50 to 51c.; oats, 38c.; buckwheat, 56½ to 57c.; corn, 59½ to 60c.

OATMEAL—The market is much firmer, an advance of 15c. being recorded. The mills are asking $3.90 to $3.95 for oatmeal in wood, and the wholesale houses quote $4.30 to $4.40. In sacks, $1.90 to $1.95 is the mill quotation and $2.15 to $2.25 the jobber's.

FEED—Last week's rise has been followed by another still steeper. Sales of Ontario bran have been made this week at $15 to $15.50, and $16 is even asked. Shorts are worth $16.50 to $17, and mouillie, $20 to $25.

BALED HAY—A fairly good volume of business is reported, sales being recorded at $10 for No. 2. We quote: No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50, as to quality, and $11 for No. 1; clover, $9.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The market has ruled from steady to firm, sales of finest creamery having been made in this market by factorymen to dealers at 19½c., and resales to exporters at 19¾ to 20c. There has been a little more doing in seconds at 18½ to 19¼c.

CHEESE—Is very firm, but the export market does not warrant the high prices being paid at country points. Finest Western is being bought at 9¾c. on spot.

PROVISIONS.

Lard and pork are both firm and unchanged. Lard compound has been advanced ½c. per lb. and Cottolene ½c. per lb. on account of the strong cotton seed market. We quote: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.92 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.90 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.88 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; Cottolene, 9½c. per lb. in tierces, and 10½c. in 26 lb. pails, and 10¼c. in 50 lb. boxes, for Quebec.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

St. John, N B., July 31, 1901.

BUSINESS continues good. There is no very marked changes in prices, though cornmeal is very firm at the advanced figures. Lard is also firm, and compound has been advanced during the week. There has been quite a quantity of rice bought, owing to a special steamer being at Liverpool for St. John. The freight is much lower by these special boats. The visit of the Vice Regal party somewhat interrupted the week. St. John is full of visitors and the weather has been delightful, so pleasantly cool. More effort is being made each season to make it pleasant for the visitors. This year there is a permanent secretary to the Tourist Association, whose only business is to collect and supply information. An office has been provided in the Board of Trade Building.

OIL—In burning oil there is but little doing in the way of spot business, but orders for future shipment are freely taken. Prices are low. In paint oil the demand is dull, but prices are held quite firm. Though not as high as if sales were more active, lubricating oils are low, but the market seems more firm. Much of the new oil discovered in the United States is being used for fuel. In cod oil receipts are light.

and they will receive prompt attention*

Supplies are much later than usual coming to hand. Prices keep high. The market is likely to rule quite high. Wax is rather lower.

SALT—There have been no arrivals during the week of Liverpool coarse salt. There is a fair stock here. The market is firm at even figures. There is quite a little to arrive shortly. The demand is good. Large quantities are going into consumption at this season. In Canadian salt there is a steady sale at unchanged figures. We quote: Liverpool coarse, 50 to 55c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10 lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb. (Selected lumps.)

CANNED GOODS—There is an improved local demand. There is quite a stock of last season's goods held here, some having been bought low, so that for full orders prices are shaded. Peas are rather scarce and more firm than the other lines. New canned strawberries are freely offered. New goods are not being freely bought. Profits have been cut to such a figure there is a general feeling against stocking up at all largely. In gallon apples local packed goods are being bought. Blueberries are quoted and prices are rather higher than last season. Meats are sold close to present canners' quotations. There is a fair sale. Salmon are firm, though lower than at one time during the season. Present stocks are light. Spring fish are shortly expected. They are quite well liked. They will be sold below present figures. Local packed fish, such as haddies and sardines, are freely offered. Kipper herring will be scarce.

GREEN FRUITS—As usual at this season, this is a very active line. Californian fruit is of particular interest. Prices are rather easier. For some days stocks here were very light. Pears are the large sellers.

Barrelled pears are being received. The season is rather early. Apples have been very late this year. They are now quite freely received and prices tending lower. Oranges are in light demand. Lemons are as usual at this season, quite high. There is a steady sale. In pines there is a fair sale only. Watermelons have but a light sale. Nova Scotian cherries are about done. Prices were well maintained. Quality of stock is better than usual. In berries, strawberries are done. Raspberries are scarce and quite high.

DRIED FRUITS—Little interest is taken. Spot stocks move off slowly. Seeded raisins are rather lower. In currants, new goods for September shipment from Greece are offered. Prices are much lower than last year. The demand from the retail dealer is for cleaned stock. There is some interest in evaporated apples. Spot stock is not large, and prices tend much firmer. It is said new stock will open quite high. Dried are held rather higher. In onions there is a fair sale at slightly higher figures; is a man I have a great regard for, and wish his profit ten times greater than it is."

Poor Richard, 1739.

We agree with Poor Richard, and believe were he alive to-day he would advise the grocer to increase his profit by using the Bowser Self Measuring Oil and Gasoline Tanks, for there is no surer method of stopping loss and a consequent increasing of profits than by the use of these superb, up-to-the-minute, waste preventing, money saving, time saving and labor saving apparatus. Thousands of appreciative users among the representative merchants of the land willingly testify to the truth of this statement.

Egyptian are about out of the market. Peanuts are rather easier and prices have kept low during the season.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Cheese are rather firm. Local business is small. Factories are selling quite well up to output for export. Butter is rather higher. Good butter is hard to get and is in demand. There is not a large stock of any grade. Creamery is not generally handled by the wholesale trade. Eggs hold quite firm.

SUGAR—Prices are unchanged and low. There is considerable foreign granulated here and to arrive. This prevents much upward change. English yellows are offered.

MOLASSES—Market here continues quite well supplied. Chiefly Porto Rico is being received. While some has been stored, the bulk of the goods arriving have been shipped out. While market is generally firm, there is likely to be little change here. There is some Barbadoes and Antigua here. It sells slowly, though some of the Barbadoes is very good.

FISH—There continues but a fair business. The supply of fresh fish is light. A few salmon are still received, but catch is about over. In shad, few fish are being caught, but, those that are, are very large, nice fish. Supply will soon be more general. Some few mackerel were offered this week, but these fish are not caught here. In dry cod the price is still high. There are fair arrivals of new fish. In smoked herring, sales are light. Old goods are about off the market, and new are not yet to hand. Price is too high for general business. Pickled herrings are not in demand at this season, but a fair supply of new fish is to hand. We quote; Large and medium dry cod, $3.95 to $4.05; small, $2.45 to $2.50; haddies, 5 to 6c.; smoked herring, 11 to 12c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2½c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.50 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $1.75 to $1.85 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl.; $2.75 per half bbl.; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl.; $2.25 per half bbl.; salmon, 15 to 16c.; shad, 15 to 20c.; mackerel 10 to 12.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—In flour, while wheat is quite firm, prices show no change, but are quite low. There is some range in oatmeal, but prices are generally higher. Oats are rather higher. Beans are quite firm; yellow-eyes are scarce and high. Cornmeal is firm at the higher figures. Feed is higher and not so freely offered. The weather is good for haying, and a splendid crop is being gathered. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.75; best Ontario, $3.80 to $3.90; medium, $3.65 to $3.80; oatmeal, $3.95 to $4; cornmeal, $2.55 to $2.60; middlings, $2.2 to $2.3; oats, 40 to 42c.; hand-picked beans, $1.70 to $1.75; prime, $1.55 to $1.60; yellow-eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; blue peas, $1.25 to $1.40; pot barley, $3.85 to $4; hay, $12 to $13.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

John Sealy is offering new canned haddies.

C. & E. Macmichael are landing a shipment of Maconochie's pickles.

Northrup & Co. have received a large consignment of particularly fine dulse.

Geo. E. Barbour is offering "Boar's Head" compound lard bought before the advance.

The Maritime Spice and Coffee Co. have a shipment of Wheaton's pickles just arrived.

"Vim" is the name selected by Baird & Peters for their standard blend tea. They are putting a number of travellers on the road to push it along. They have taken the store in which they began business, and are using it exclusively as a tea warehouse.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 29, 1901.

THE city is already filling with visitors for the Industrial Exhibition and the grounds are like a beehive. The formal opening will take place to-day. There is some fear that the present demoralization of the train service will effect the attendance, but otherwise all signs point to the "largest on record." Business is good among the wholesale houses and there is much activity in produce lines, although in the latter prices are far from satisfactory.

FLOUR—The demand is good and the market steady. No change in price is reported for the week. Hungarian and Five Roses, $2; Glenora Patent and Red Patent, $1.85; Alberta, $1.65; Manitoba, $1.50; Medora, $1.45; Imperial XXXX, $1.20; XXXX, $1.15.

CEREALS—There has been a sharp advance in cornmeal, owing to the reported shrinkage in the crop in the United States. The jump is from $1.50 to $1.75 per sack. There has also been a material advance in rolled oats, and the supply from the United States has ceased. What amount has come in during the week has been from Ontario. Fresh stocks could not be laid down here for less than $2.35 per sack. At present, however, the quotations here are $2.25 to $2.30. Should the new crop of oats come on the market early and before the present stocks are exhausted it is possible that prices here may go no higher.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED FRUITS—The reports of a short currant crop are being sustained. Valencia raisins are reported a fair crop. Evaporated apricots have dropped nearly 2c. per lb. in California, and a fair quotation here is 11½ to 12c. To those who bought on a higher market there will be very little in the goods at these figures. Owing to the unfavorable reports re the apple crop of Ontario, evaporated apples are firmer and in better demand.

CANNED GOODS—Quotations on pitted cherries are almost nil and the price here, for the small supply obtainable, will be about $5. All reports from Eastern Canada go to indicate that the pack of corn and peas will be below the usual mark and that prices will unquestionably be higher.

MATCHES—An advance of 20c. per case on sulphur matches is reported on this market.

SUGAR—An active market with no change of price to record.

GREEN FRUITS—This market is not abundantly supplied and some lines have advanced sharply in sympathy with primary markets. Some retail dealers are complaining that the Exchange has advanced prices unduly, owing to the scarcity of fruit and rush of Fair trade, but this is not correct. The advances here are only such as have been made necessary by advances at point of purchase. It might be of interest to note that frequently the icing bill on a car from California is $125. We quote: Lemons, $7.50; oranges, $4.75 to $5.75; plums, $2 to $3; peaches, $1.75; bananas, $2.75 to $3.25; melons, $5; blueberries, 6 to 7c. per lb.; gooseberries, red currants and raspberries are practically out of the market.

BUTTER—The market for creamery butter is unsatisfactory being 15 to 15½c. at the factories. Dairy butter is practically a drug and prices are 10 to 11c., net Winnipeg.

CHEESE—Cheese arriving in fairly large quantities at 7¼ to 7½c., Winnipeg; 7c. has been paid during the week for some lots of inferior grade.

EGGS—Supply of desirable stock owing to the extreme heat has fallen short and fresh-case eggs are worth 11½ to 12c., Winnipeg.

NOTES.

On Thursday last 350 of Winnipeg's fair dames enjoyed the hospitality of the Winnipeg Commercial Club.

The Winnipeg Commercial Travellers' Association had a pleasant outing to River Park last Saturday afternoon. The programme of sports was particularly good.

TOOK THE CHEAPEST HOLIDAY.

YOU MAY NOT SELL MUCH VINEGAR !

There must be a cause. Has the vinegar you have been handling been up to the standard required by consumers of to-day? Has it been clear—free from sediment—of fine flavor—and full Government strength? If not, no wonder your trade is disappointing.

Or, perhaps you may not have given it that attention it merits. Think a moment. Your profit on vinegar is a good one, and it's trade that will increase if the right article is handled.

CURRENT MARKET QUOTATIONS

August 1, 1901.

This list is corrected every Thursday, and the quotations herein given are for the cities of Montreal, Toronto, St. John, N. B., and Halifax. The prices are solicited for publication, and are of such quantities and qualities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit. For Winnipeg market report and prices, see page 32.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices. All quotations for staple products are under the direct control of the Editors, who call daily upon all the leading houses in the principal centres.

BARBADOES MOLASSES.

A cargo of fine Barbadoes Molasses has just been received, and we are now delivering ex wharf all orders taken for July delivery.

We are ready to book orders (for Fall delivery) for canned goods of every description, all new pack, 1901.

We wish to advise the trade that there is a considerable quantity of last year's pack on the market.

Be sure when you order your winter's supply that you get 1901 goods, otherwise you may be served with old stock and displease your customers.

We offer nothing but fresh goods, and our prices are right.

The salmon canners' strike will not affect our trade. We are prepared to guarantee delivery of any orders we may accept, and hold contracts for large quantities of :

"Clover Leaf" Salmon, tall and flat tins.

"Horse Shoe" Salmon, tall and flat tins.

"Victoria" Salmon, tall and flat tins.

"Owekayno" Salmon, tall tins.

"Red Cohoes" Salmon, tall tins.

"Princess" Pink Salmon, tall tins.

We specially recommend the "Victoria" Brand as a very superior article.

"Pink" salmon should also be given a trial order. It will pay you, and is guaranteed to please your customers.

We respectfully invite our clients to send in their Fall orders for Richard's, Couturier's and Marionis Brandy before the 15th of August, in order to benefit by the direct steamship rates of freight.

Ship will sail about middle of September.

Don't forget that we are agents for Sir Thos. Lipton's famous Ceylon Teas.

We also keep in stock a full assortment of Japan Gunpowders and Black Teas which we can quote very low—try us.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—A View of the Provision Trade—Miscellaneous Notes.

A VIEW OF THE PROVISION TRADE.

THE packers are quite ready to take up any line of the products coming out from the hands of outsiders. There has been a good deal of lard and pork spilled out this week in the anxiety of the speculators to get into corn and wheat, as they have had more violent changes in prices. Towards the close, however, it rather looks as though the speculators were getting back in some degree in the provision deal.

The cash demands for the products have been very fair. The shipments out of the West have been large, both in the way of consignments and in the way of meeting wants of distributors. When the markets are clearly arranged to a basis upon which buyers can feel there is some reliance, it is quite probable that the export movements will enlarge. There is every indication that supplies are wanted in Europe and that the consumption there is well up to the average, despite the poor general business conditions there. A letter from Germany giving the imports of lard for this year against the previous season and the actually reduced stocks held, says that "it is proved that the consumption is about the same as last year, particularly as some lard had been imported from other countries, where, in the previous year, the supply had come from America exclusively. While the production and consumption are given as about the same as last year, the visible stock is much smaller, and considering that stocks decreased last year in July, August, September and October, and calculating an equal consumption for the coming autumn, that it would appear that stocks would be very moderate by November 1. Therefore, we believe that the tendency of the lard market is an unusually firm one, notwithstanding fluctuations which may occur occasionally. —National Provisioner, July 27.

BUTCHERS NEVER GET CONSUMPTION.

It is a singular fact that butchers are not addicted to consumption, "The big fat butcher" is not only a saying, but, taking butchers all through, he is large of stature and strong of build. It has been claimed that the meat-market man lives mostly on inoculation. He hangs over meat and feeds upon the air chemically charged with it. Anyhow, the big lunged fellows who swing the cleaver and draw the meat saw, rarely, if ever, die of consumption.

The butcher is healthy in spite of the fact that he is a devil-may-care fellow and takes very little care of himself. Instead of consumptives going to Florida and to the Hot Springs, they should go into a butcher shop or tackle a beef killing or meat-handling job. The marketman may get rheumatism, typhoid and other troubles, but consumption seems to give him a wide berth. They are immunes. — National Provisioner.

PRODUCE IMPORTS INTO LIVERPOOL.

According to the weekly circular of the Anglo-Canadian Produce Co., Limited, the imports of dairy produce and provisions into Liverpool this year up to July 19 and for the corresponding period last year were as follows:

COLD STORAGE NEEDED.

Advices from London say: The prolonged drought here, while not threatening absolute ruin to the farmers, has already entailed serious losses and upset a good many business calculations. The chief sufferers, of course, are the dairy farmers, one of the few branches of British agriculture in which money can be made nowadays. The pastures have been irretrievably damaged, and dear butter during the coming winter is assured.

At present butter is pouring into London from Russia, the United States and Canada, but the bulk of it has to be thrown immediately upon the market owing to the insufficiency of cold storage accommodations.

THE PROVISION MARKETS. TORONTO.

The demand is light, but well up to the mark of other seasons. Spring lambs are 1c. lower per lb., and calves have declined 50c. to $1 for best. We quote as follows: Dressed hogs, $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.; mutton, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $7.50 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, 10 to 11c. per lb.; beef carcases, $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8½ to 9½c. for best; fore quarters, 4½ to 5½c. for best; calves, $7 to $8 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

Pork products are in heavy demand and a big trade is being done at firm prices. We quote as follows: Long clear bacon, 11½c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 14 to 14½c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 13½ to 14c.; medium hams, 13½ to 14c.; large hams, 12½ to 13c.; shoulder hams, 11½c.; backs, 14 to 14½c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10¾c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11¼c.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

In pork there is a wide range in prices. Local packers are sold up, but Boston figures are quoted well below western prices. There is a fair sale for beef at even figures. Pure lard is still high, though one of the western packers sold a car rather under the market. Compound lard has been advanced.

WINNIPEG.

CURED MEATS—There has been a sharp advance on some lines and trade is active with a remarkably firm market. Hams, 13½ to 14c.; breakfast bellies, 14c.; short backs, 14c.; shoulders, 10c.; spiced rolls, 10½c.; dry salt long clear, 11½c.; smoked, 12½c.; square shoulders, 9½c. This is an advance of about ½c. on all lines quoted.

LARD—Pure lard is firm at $2.35 for 20-lb. pails, while compound has advanced 10c. and is now quoted at $2. Other grades are in proportion. It may be stated that all pork products are very high, heavy mess pork being quoted at $20 per bbl., the highest figure for a long period.

HINTS FOR MEN WHO ADVERTISE.

ADVERTISING FOR MAIL-ORDER BUSINESS

DOING business through the mails is reaching proportions in these days that makes valuable any suggestion as to better methods of management, remarks Business. It is not alone the houses that are known distinctively as "mail-order houses," but almost every merchant is striving in this age to reach beyond his local surroundings, and to a large number the mail order system proves the open door.

Advertising must necessarily play an important part in the expansion of mail-order business in whatever line. For this reason the following from a contemporary will prove of interest to the many concerned:

The element of persistency is the one essential to ultimate success in the mail-order business. There is little or no use in the new man in this field of action reaching down into his pocket and saying to himself: "Here's so much money; I will invest it in space to advertise my wares. All the results I obtain through the instrumentality of this ad. I will turn back into more advertising and gradually build up a business." A business cannot be established on this basis for the simple reason that one advertisement, even though it may be inserted in the strongest medium in the United States, will not bring in enough returns the first time to give sufficient capital to continue advertising upon a respectable basis. The reason for this is plain. Not one in one thousand of the readers of your ad. will investigate. It is simply read and left go over. In the next issue it is missing and the man you are after never thinks of it more, simply because the one reading has not fixed it upon his mind. You can safely count upon a large percentage of your money invested as lost on your first effort.

Start in, however, to make a success of the mail-order business by being prepared to spend a sum calculated to give you a lasting publicity. Make your advertisements pull by reason of the frequency with which they appear. Give your prospective customer some reasons for believing that you are a permanent fixture in the mail-order business by keeping before him persistently. Make him believe that you are doing a big business by reason of the stability of your advertisements; then if the articles you are selling have real merit and deserve public confidence, rest assured that you will have your returns a hundred fold increased.

A man (one of the "get rich quickly" stamp) once said: "I don't see how the numberless people advertising in the big mail-order monthlies ever stand the pace. I am sure they don't get returns for the amount they invest. I speak from a positive knowledge of facts, because I have tried the experiment."

"How much did you put up to prove this business a failure?" queried a friend.

"Well," he answered, "I blew $20 in on a so called successful mail-order publication and I didn't get more than half my money back."

There is a fellow who would drill a quarter-inch hole in the rock of Gibraltar and try to blow the whole thing up with two ounces of gunpowder, and he would get mad if he were to be hit in the eye with a small piece of stone, and upon opening the other eye find the rest of the rock still standing.

The mail-order business, like every other legitimate one, requires a certain amount of cash capital back of it, coupled with an ordinary amount of brain power and a good medium. Given these three elements and success is sure.

ADVERTISING AND SUCCESS.

Any good store will stand good advertising, no matter whether the store sells dry goods or liquors or cigars or drugs. No store can succeed without advertising of some kind. Do not misunderstand me. Advertising isn't necessarily printed in the paper. It isn't necessarily the distribution of circulars or the painting of signs or the posting of bills. The advertising may be done in the store itself, and this is the best of all advertising. If this kind of advertising isn't done all the other advertising is discounted. Advertising may be gained by the proprietor's large circle of acquaintances. When two men are introduced, the chances are that each will find out the business of the other before they part. If they do not, the friend who introduced them will be asked what business each is in. That is one of the first things a man wants to know about another. It seems easier to take a man's measure when you know what business he is in. You can classify him better.

I want to say again that no business can succeed without advertising of some sort, and the better the advertising the greater the success.—Chas. A. Bates.

MEASLES IN ADVERTISING.

The advertiser's individuality is not often expressed in the design brought in by the artist who has "had an idea" and offers to sell it for so much, says J. A. Richards in Profitable Advertising.

Designs are many these days. There's an epidemic of them. They are not fatal, but a man with the measles isn't worth much for business.

And an advertisement which is all broken out with an artistic design isn't very valuable for business purposes, either.

And when a lot of these sick-looking advertisements are grouped together in a magazine, why, the entire mass is speckled, spotted, ineffective.

But the advertiser isn't so much to blame for this epidemic as the artists and writers themselves, who have the disease chronically, and who run around and spread it among the unsuspecting.

The average advertiser is so constantly and almost abnormally looking for something to attract that when a man with a design comes along he doesn't see the measliness of it, and before he knows it he's caught the disease.

And this is the way it comes about. The design is attractive as it comes from the artist's hand.

It's more attractive when reproduced in quarter-page magazine size, as it stands all alone, an artist's proof, with a lot of white space all about it.

The next time you see it you know it's a case of measles ward of the magazine.

That is to say, there are scores more of such designs all around it, and instead of being good advertising it's good measles, that is, it's out all right.

You see, it isn't the single case of measles that disturbs the peace of the community, but the epidemic.

So it isn't the single design that offends in the advertising world; it's the multiplicity of such things which renders flat and ineffective the effort of the many.

We have been accustomed to hear of the great variety of talent displayed in the advertising section of the magazines, and it is true enough.

And yet, these epidemics do sweep over the community and paralyze for a time the effectiveness of the expenditure.

Perhaps there's nothing to be done but let the epidemic run its course, and perhaps, if it isn't measles, it's whooping cough or some other malady which simultaneously attacks the advertising community.

We certainly cannot quarantine the advertiser so afflicted. What then?

In the first place, if we were victims let's look at ourselves in the glass when the design disease is on us, and see how like the mischief and how unlike ourselves we look.

And then—

Well, we'll get over it.

If we haven't had the prevailing malady and don't want it, how shall we protect ourselves?

Why let's quarantine ourselves.

Let's not be affected by the prevailing craze for certain styles of advertising copy, but think deeply and clearly.

Write simply and concisely.

Illustrate appropriately.

And so we shall advertise in a healthy manner.

And yet, after all, it isn't every design that is measles. -

EUROPEAN RAISIN CROP.

The United States Consul at Malaga, Spain, write: "Reports from reliable sources estimate this year's Turkish crop at about 410,000 cwts. of Sultanas and 107,000 cwts. of Elemes.

"The Denia raisin crop of last year amounted to 600,000 cwts.; this year, a still better crop is expected. Upon the whole, this year's European crop, if present prospects are realized, might be roughly estimated as follows:

|               | Cwts.   |
|---------------|---------|
| Sultanas..... | 410,000 |
| Elemes.....   | 107,000 |
| Denia.....    | 650,000 |
| Malaga.....   | 250,000 |

Total..... 1,417,000

"Last year the failure of the Greek currant crop had a marked effect upon the Malaga raisin market in creating an extraordinary demand at fancy prices for the so-called seedless raisins of Malaga. As a matter of fact, these are not seedless, and it was found that they could not serve the same uses as Greek currants. Late reports indicate that the Greek currant crop this year will amount to 140,000 tons."

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

REAPING THE HARVEST

Throughout the land the farmers are busy gathering the results of their sowing. Much of its success depended upon the wise selection of the seed and careful planting.

Suppose the farmer had reasoned something after this fashion—"Wheat is only wheat anyway—by buying this cheaper kind I will be saving something worth while."

If he did, he is likely reaping a harvest of barren regrets now.

So with the business man if he dreams for a moment that anything but the highest quality of goods is going to yield a profitable harvest—he is making the same serious blunder as the farmer.

MOLINA ROLLED WHEAT is at the head of its class and its fast increasing sales are the result of its superior quality. It is packed in barrels of 100 lb., and in kegs of 50 lb. and made only by

AN ALL-CANADIAN TRAVELLERS' VACATION.

THE VIEWS OF MONTREAL WHOLESALERS.

IT SEEMS to be within the range of possibility that in time the idea of having a determined period for travellers' holidays will spread all over Canada. During the past week, THE CANADIAN GROCER has interviewed several of the leading houses in Montreal on the subject, and, while there are objections raised, the majority regard the Canadian holiday period of one or two weeks as an ideal worthy of attainment.

The subject has not yet been deeply considered, but the consensus of the first thoughts is decidedly favorable to the proposition, and several have expressed the opinion that it ought to be tested next year.

WOULD LIKE TO SEE IT TRIED.

Ald. Laporte took a comprehensive view of the matter: "I believe it would be a decidedly good thing for the travellers and a convenience for the wholesalers, if such an all-Canadian rule would be adopted. So far as I am concerned, I would be in favor of combining with the Quebec and Toronto Grocers' Associations and have a travellers' holiday week determined. It is something, too, which the Travellers' Association ought to interest itself in. I would like to see it tried next year."

NOT MUCH INTERFERENCE WITH BUSINESS.

Mr. L. E. Geoffrion, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, also expressed his approval of the proposal. "Our own firm," said Mr. Geoffrion, "gives its travellers holidays all at the same time now, and we would be willing, at least from a cursory view of the matter, to combine with the other firms to leave the territory open for 12 days."

"Do you find your trade much interrupted by the travellers' absence?"

"No, not a great deal. I suppose we do lose something, but our customers, as a general rule, send in mail orders, and if any of them are taken from us for the time being we regain them. Still, a few days' truce would make holidays safer and more enjoyable. A first glance at the proposal would lead me to favor it."

PREFER A FREE HAND.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie object to the proposition. Mr. Hebert said: "We prefer to be free in the allotment of holidays to our travellers. We want to fix the time that will best suit our travellers and ourselves. Consequently, we would rather not enter into a hard and fast rule."

"Do you find at the present time that the travellers leaving the road for a few days has injurious trade effects?"

"No. I suppose we do lose a little trade, but that does not bother us. We never lose our regular customers, even though we do leave the field open."

DIFFICULTIES COULD BE OVERCOME.

Lockerby Bros. favored the scheme. "There may be some difficulties in carrying the scheme through, but," said Mr. Lockerby, "I believe these could be overcome, and that adoption of the idea would be productive of good results."

Mr. Carter, of Carter, Galbraith & Co., and president of the Wholesale Grocers' Association, also expressed his approval.

"There may be objections from some houses who do not now give holidays," he said, "but if they could be induced to do as the other houses do in this regard, I see no reason why the holidays should not be given all at the same time."

"Do you think the Wholesale Grocers' Association should consider the matter?"

"It could do so, if some member would bring it up."

CHIEF DIFFICULTY TO UNIFORMITY.

E. D. Marceau was also approached with the question: "Do you consider this idea applicable to Montreal?"

"It couldn't be worked here."

"Why couldn't it?"

"You just try it and see."

"I can't try it."

"Well, the most serious difficulty I see is the fact that some houses do not give holidays. If these could be brought into line there might be some hope of success."

"Do you personally favor the idea?"

"I do."

A GOOD IDEA.

Mr. Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali, was the next to be interrogated.

"I myself think it a good idea," said Mr. Orsali, "and if the Travellers' Association and the Grocers' Association interest themselves in this matter, I see no reason why we should not get a 'Travellers' Holiday Week.'"

ALL RIGHT IF COULD BE ARRANGED.

S. H. Ewing & Sons are firm believers in giving holidays to travellers, and any proposal that has for its object the securing of a recreation for the Knights of the Grip will receive their endorsement. Mr. A. H. Ewing expressed himself thus: "If a hard and fast rule could be established, signed by all the wholesale grocery firms of Montreal, Toronto and Quebec, I believe that the plan would be eminently successful. It might be difficult however, to get all the important firms in." Mr. Ewing also explained how the present competitive system does not favor holidays, and said that some of their staff, like those of other houses, did not feel warranted in taking a vacation under existing conditions. If arrangements could be devised whereby this opportunity to take a rest could be improved, he would strongly favor it.

AN EX-TRAVELLER'S OPINION.

Mr. Samuel James Mathewson, of J. A. Mathewson & Co., did not see why the combination should not be applicable to Montreal. "I was on the road eight years myself, and I am a firm believer in holidays for travellers. If this scheme will improve their chances of getting them, then let's have it. Our travellers all get two to three weeks now, whenever they wish them. It would be a good thing if you could get the retailers to holiday at the same time that the travellers do."

A Montreal Witness correspondent points out one of the causes of Canadian cheese arriving in Great Britain in poor condition. He saw 60 boxes of cheese the other day on a C. P. R. truck with no tarpaulin protection from the sun, which must have lowered its quality to some extent.

A shipment of small fruits from Grimsby to Ottawa in a Hanrahan refrigerator car has proved a success, the fruit arriving in the best of condition. An authority says that if these cars were used generally by the fruit-growers of Grimsby they would be a quarter of a million dollars richer.

THE WORLD'S ALMOND CROP.

By the U.S. Consul at Malaga.

I HAVE been able to secure some figures concerning the world's almond crop, excepting the crop of the United States, which may be of interest just now to our dealers and growers.

The following table, carefully prepared from figures furnished by various statisticians and experts, shows the approximate productions of the various countries during the years 1899 and 1900, and the estimated production for 1901:

| Country.           | 1899.  | 1900.  | 1901.  |
|--------------------|--------|--------|--------|
|                    | Tons.* | Tons.* | Tons.* |
| Bari (Italy) ..... | 12,000 | 1,500  | 15,000 |
| Sicily .....       | 7,000  | 2,000  | 8,000  |

The new sweet Palma and Girgenti almonds have been offered from Messina at $34.25 per 100 kilograms (220.46 lb.) gross weight, for October shipment. It will be seen that Bari (in the province of Apulia, Italy) is the principal almond market of Europe. Concerning the Bari crop, I have seen a letter from an authoritative source, saying that this year it will be the largest ever known—possibly as much as from 18,000 to 20,000 tons. This is due not only to the favorable season, but to the great increase in almond-bearing trees.

The most recent sales of Bari almonds, according to the reports received here, were at 85s. ($21.90) per cwt. c.i.f.

The Malaga crop is now virtually assured and will, probably, be the largest in several years. This refers to all the almonds marketed here, the two varieties of which are commercially known as Jordans and Valencias.

The Jordan almonds are grown in the provinces of Malaga, Granada and Almeria, and are marketed exclusively at Malaga.

Nearly the whole crop, which is variously estimated at from 80,000 to 120,000 boxes of 25 and 28 lb. each, is exported to England and the United States. These are undoubtedly the finest almonds grown in Europe.

The almonds known commercially as Valencias are grown in the provinces of Malaga, Almeria, Jaen, Cordoba, Huelva, Cadiz, Murcia and Carthagenia, as well as in Morocco. The principal market is Malaga. The most recent sales of these almonds from last year's stock were at 22s. ($5 36) per box of 28 lb.

AN UNFORTUNATE MISHAP.

"J. M.," Nelson, B.C., writes: "Much sympathy is felt for our young firm here, McPherson & McCammon, grocers, and especially Mr. McCammon, the well-known grocery window-dresser, who had just finished his Dominion Day window, and, with pardonable pride, was giving it 'the last fond, lingering look,' when some of the flimsy material of which such windows are dressed caught the gas jet, and, in less than five minutes, what took a week to build up was a thing of the past. The firm's 'go-at-it' style was apparent the following Monday morning, when the card below appeared in the burned-out window:

Our decorations were so hot they went up in smoke on Friday night, but we
SAVED THE KING.

The portrait of the King was part of the dressing."

A suggestion is made by The Winnipeg Telegram that the municipal laborers should be sent out to help harvest the crops of the neighboring country. Laborers will be short and it is considered to be to the city's interest that the cut be as large as possible.

THE MAGIC OF SELF-CONFIDENCE.

A man's success in life is usually in proportion to his confidence in himself and the energy and persistency with which he pursues his aim. In this competing age there is little hope for the man who does not thoroughly believe in himself. The man who can easily be discouraged or turned aside from his purpose, the man who has no iron in his blood, will never win.

Half the giant's strength is in the conviction that he is a giant. The strength of a muscle is enhanced a hundredfold by the will-power. The same muscle, when removed from the giant's arm, when divorced from the force of the mighty will, can sustain but a fraction of the weight it did a moment before it was disconnected.

What miracles confidence has wrought! What impossible deeds it has helped to perform! It took Napoleon over the Alps in midwinter; it took Farragut and Dewey past the cannons, torpedoes and mines of the enemy; it led Nelson and Grant to victory; it has been the great tonic in the world of discovery, invention and art; it has helped to win the thousand triumphs in war and science which were deemed impossible.

The man without self-confidence and an iron will is the plaything of chance, the puppet of his environment, the slave of circumstances. With these he is king, ever master of the situation.—Success.

DUNN-MOONEY.

A happy event, and one of considerable interest to the grocery trade, was solemnized last Monday in Montreal, when Miss Ethyl Mae Mooney was married to Mr. Wm. H. Dunn, the popular manufacturers' agent. After the ceremony the bridal couple left on a honeymoon to be spent in New York, Boston and Old Orchard Beach. It gives THE CANADIAN GROCER pleasure to add our congratulations to those of his confreres in the trade.

VISIBLE AND INVISIBLE PROFITS.

C. R. RUST.

It is admitted that we are all in business for the profit there is in it, and not for our health or pleasure. Some of us, no doubt, in our experience, have found competitors who were apparently doing business for fun, and we were unable for the life of us to see where there was anything else in it for them. The goods handled were exactly the same in quality and the salesmen were equally bright and competent, so far as we could see. The fault was this—the goods were not bought upon the same basis. There is more real art and judgment in buying goods than there is in selling them. When a line of goods is owned by a jobbing house at a less figure than his competitors, you may well figure that you have already made a profit on them, although the amount made in dollars and cents does not yet appear upon your ledger as such.

Another source of profit is lost by every jobber in business, or such is the case at least with every jobber in the Northwest, where fully one-third of their sales are provisions, flour, cereals, dried fruit and produce, which are bought for net cash and sold on 30 days' time less a discount of one per cent. for cash in 10 days. It is not too much to say that hundreds of thousands if not millions of dollars are given away in this manner every year by the grocery jobber of this country. A change of system or business customs is needed to stop this leakage of profit. Either the discount of one per cent. and the time of 30 days should not be allowed the trade, or the provision trade, the cereal trade and others, should, by united effort on the part of the jobbers, be compelled to bill their goods on a per cent. and time basis. It would really inflict no hardship upon these several trades, for they would as soon sell flour at $5.05 less one per cent. as to sell at $5 net cash, or a barrel of pork for $15.15 less one per cent. for cash as to sell at $15 net, when the custom was once adopted. It would serve to raise the standard of cost and the invisible profit of cash discount would then materialize. To accomplish anything in this direction, united effort must be had.

Still another source of profit can be made by regulating the cash discount on teas. It has become customary with the jobbers to give 4 or 5 per cent. off for cash in 10 days on teas or four months' time, and upon about 50 per cent. of their sales to make an advance dating of from one to three months, the sale in such cases being subject to cash discount within 10 days from the dating.

The jobber secures only 3 per cent. in cash discount from the importer or middleman, and not infrequently he must give his four months' acceptance at once in settlement of his tea purchase without reaping any advantage whatsoever of the discount. Yet he will foolishly giveaway 1 and sometimes 2 per cent. to the trade on these goods. This may be termed an invisible loss if allowed or an invisible profit if saved. We again need united effort of the jobbers to correct this evil.

Much, however, can be accomplished by the buyers at the head of the departments to gain this profit in purchasing. The terms and cash discount are often overlooked almost entirely by the buyer, as he knows from the manner most of the jobbers keep their books that the cash discount does not enter into the buyer's profits, but goes to discount account, which, by the way, ought to be one of the most-carefully-looked-after accounts on the ledger. No jobber can afford not to discount all his bills, even if the discount is only one-half of 1 per cent. It is his first visible and sure profit. Volume of business is well enough and desirable, but profit, whether visible or invisible, is the vertebræ of any business, and without it there is no life.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB OF WINNIPEG.

(From our own Correspondent.)

OUR correspondent had the pleasure a few days ago of being shown over the "Commercial Club," by the President, Mr. William Georgeson, and thinks a description of it will be of interest to business men throughout the Dominion, as an evidence of Western enterprise.

The building purchased happens to be the only brown stone front in the city, and was erected about eighteen years ago—for the Ontario Bank—and when that institution have up business was occupied by The Manitoba and Northwestern Railway as general offices up to the time of its absorption by the C. P. R. The location is an ideal one for club purposes, being on the west side of Main street, immediately opposite the Northern Pacific, now the Canadian Northern depot, and a little more than half-way between the C. P. R. depot and the Hudson's Bay buildings, which mark the southern limit of the business district. The building is 40 x 120 feet, with three storeys and basement.

As you enter, the first object on which the eye rests, is a fine copy of Dendy Sadler's "Chorus," and the social good fellowship of that picture bespeaks the spirit of the club. To the left of the entrance hall is the office and a small reception or waiting room, furnished with most comfortable lounging chairs. From this you pass into the "strangers' room," a splendid apartment—the largest in the club—being about 30 feet wide, over 60 feet long, and with ceilings 22 feet high. The walls are covered in soft, deep crimson, the curtains are of old gold velvet, lined with crimson, the furniture, golden oak upholstered in black leather. The floor is covered with a cork carpet. There are wide sofas against the walls and every kind of chair, specially designed for resting tired humanity, scattered about the room. The pictures had not been hung at the time of your correspondent's visit, but they will be in keeping with the room, and when they are in place it would be difficult to imagine a pleasanter spot for a man to take a friend for an hour's chat over business, or anything else for that matter.

In the rear of the strangers' room is a small board room, the walls a soft, delit-blue, an open grate with white marble mantel. Crimson curtains and a soft rug of shaded crimson on the floor relieve the solemnity of the board room table and chairs, while just over the president's seat hangs a charming pastoral picture of a flock of sheep winding their way down the mountain at eventide. This room may be used by any member for specially private conversation, the members of the house committee having first privilege.

Returning to the hall, you ascend a broad staircase, at the head of which, on a handsome oak base, is a beautiful oxidized figure of Aurora. The walls of the hall and stairway are papered in a mingling of soft crimson and sage green, a most effective background for the magnificent collection of heads which adorns them, and all of which are not even yet in place.

The first room you enter on the second floor is the "silence room," devoted to reading and writing, and it is ideal for the purpose. The woodwork, cream white, the paper a handsome tapestry, with crimson the predominant shade, a deep pile Turkish carpet in shaded crimson, rich tapestry curtains shading the windows, the chairs and couch dreams of upholstered luxury, in dark, green leather, while down the centre is a mahogany writing table of the latest and most convenient design. (It is whispered that this single article of furniture cost $65.) The Auer and electric lights are so arranged that the light for reading is equally good in all parts of the room, while papers and magazines are arranged on convenient racks. The selection of pictures for this room is complete and they are in exquisite harmony with its air of quiet intellectual enjoyment, being fine copies of Sir F. Leighton's "Bath of Psyche"; Byam Shaw's "Love the Conqueror"; the "Roman Bath," and Alma Tadema's "A Reading from Homer," this last picture filling the space above the marble mantel.

On this floor also is the dining room, a spacious "L" shaped apartment with handsome oak grill and curtains, rendering the smaller portion semi-private if desired. The color scheme here is particularly happy, being a combination of old rose and moss green. The walls are done in ingrain, the shades of old-rose being deeper in the border above the moulding and in the ceiling. The velvet carpet shows the same shading, while the heavy velvet curtains on the windows and grill are moss green, lined with old-rose silk. A splendidly carved oak sideboard occupies the place of honor between the two open gates. The chairs and tables are all golden oak. The pictures are not yet complete, but such old favorites as "The Society of Friends," "His Last Acre" and "Beautiful Spring," are already in place. Coming from the glare of a July noon, the room, with its soft coloring, potted plants, snowy napery and glistening glass and silver, looked cool and restful, and yet one could easily imagine that with the lights ablaze over head and a ruddy glow from the open grates, the rose shades would give out a warmth of color equally charming, coming in from the crisp air of a Manitoba winter night.

From the dining room we went to the kitchen, which is a model of up-to-date convenience with its great coal and gas ranges, steam tables, sinks and patent tables.

The cold storage room is also a model with its separate division for each class of food.

The club have been particularly fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Paul Donath, a well-known New York chef, to take charge of the cuisine. Offices for the steward, linen and china closets, are also on this floor.

The third floor is devoted to the lounging rooms, billiard and card rooms. The lounging rooms occupy the entire front of the third floor, and there are three large rooms connected by archways. These archways are without curtains, but have especially handsome lambrequins. The walls are covered with a soft delit-blue ingrain with wild rose border, the wood-work is cream white, and the carpet a velvet pile in neutral tints; the curtains, rich tapestry. On either side of the building are open grates with handsome marble mantels, but the chairs are the special feature of these rooms. There are upholstered chairs, oak frames with leather seats and backs, rattan chairs with spring seats, but whatever the design and material they are the embodiment of comfort to lounge in these rooms, is to rest. The pictures here, also, are not complete, but a few were in place, among them "Highland Solitude," "Monarch of all I Survey," and "The Springtime of Love." From the windows of these rooms can be had charming glimpses of the river's "Long Red Chain" and historic St. Boniface.

Across the hall from the lounging rooms is the billiard room, running the entire width of the building, and is lighted from the ceiling. The walls of this room are done in a shade between salmon and buff, with borders shading almost to brown, the cork carpet of dull brown, the tints in the walls and the golden oak and green of the tables produce rather the effect of a beech wood in the shade of the glory of the autumn sunlight, with here and there a patch of vivid unchanged summer green. This effect will be somewhat lost when pictures are hung, but at present it is very pleasing, though somewhat novel. The billiard tables are the best English and American, one of each. Off the billiard room is a small but cosy card room. On this floor, also, is a comfortable bathroom. The electro and gasoliers are all of burnished brass, the designs being very graceful.

All the furniture, carpets, curtains and fixtures were specially designed for each room and in this way a most harmonious whole has been produced. Needless to say every article is the best of its kind that money could buy.

The basement, by the way, is entirely devoted to tiled and marbled lavatories.

Being a club of business men it is to be run strictly on business principles, and for the better carrying out of this, a very complete system of National cash registers is being installed in both buffet and dining room, the one in the buffet being arranged in such a way as to give the most absolute record of all the sales, charges and payments of the various departments.

The limit of membership is 400 and already that number is nearly reached. The house committee have spent $16,000 on alterations, furniture and fixtures, and at the end of the present month, with the exception of a small mortgage on the building, the club will be out of debt and with a comfortable assured income ample to meet all needs. The club is to be purely social, all discussion of political and religious questions being strictly prohibited.

The cordial reception given the idea of such a club and the energy with which the plans have been carried forward argue the filling of a long-felt want, and the style of the club cannot fail to very favorably impress strangers from other places who may enjoy its hospitality. At present the club have under consideration the arranging of a regular "Ladies' Day" weekly, and should this be done it will unquestionably be very popular.

INDIAN AND CEYLON GREENS.

THE recent annual report of the General Committee of The Indian Tea Association contains an interesting reference to Indian and Ceylon green teas, which "The Canadian Grocer" deems worthy of reproducing. It reads in part as follows: "As mentioned in last year's report, a bonus of 1 1-2 annas per lb. was offered to planters who were prepared to manufacture green tea for the American market, but the committee regret to say that few applications were received for the same, and it is not, therefore, as yet definitely ascertained how far tea of this description can be made in India to take the place of the China and Japan greens, now so largely consumed in America. A misunderstanding also arose in Calcutta as to the terms on which the gardens applying for the bonus were entitled to receive it, and the proposed 200,000 lb. were not made. The offer of a bonus at the same rate has been renewed for the present year, and it is hoped that in view of the great importance which attaches to the securing of this outlet for Indian teas, more advantage will be taken of the offer.

"The terms of the committee's resolution on the subject were as follows:—

"That 1 1-2 annas per lb., up to a maximum of 200,000 lb. to be manufactured this season, be allowed out of the funds of the levy on shipments of green tea to the American market sent there direct from India, such funds to be distributed as a bounty at the discretion of the Calcutta Committee, the definition of the term 'green tea' for the receipt of the bounty being taken to be tea made from the ordinary leaf plucked on the gardens such as would ordinarily be made into black tea, but which in its altered manufactured state would not compete with the sale of black tea in America or elsewhere. The bounty to be paid on the same quantity as before sanctioned, viz., 200,000 lb., until it is seen what success is attained in the manufacture of green tea.

"The Association in Calcutta to be requested to notify the committee promptly if a larger quantity than 200,000 lb. is likely to be specially prepared for shipment to America."

"In a report furnished by Mr. William Mackenzie in connection with a recent visit to America, he says that of green teas and partly fermented Oolongs and Formosas the imports are about as follows:—

|                          |                |
|--------------------------|----------------|
| Green Japans.....        | 36,000,000 lb. |
| Green China.....         | 15,000,000     |
|                          | 51,000,000     |
| Oolongs and Formosas.... | 17,000,000     |
|                          | 68,000,000 lb. |

"We have already got the market for 16,000,000 lb. out of an average consumption of 28,000,000 lb. of black teas. Not the taste of the consumer, but his indifference to quality of tea and the vested interests in the East of the old-established importers prevent us from rapidly acquiring the greatest part of the remaining 12,000,000 lb.

"Now, as to green teas and partly fermented teas, where the field is 68,000,000 lb. as against 28,000,000 lb. of blacks, I am more confident to-day of the ultimate success of Ceylon and Indian greens than I have ever been.

"I have had numerous mentions of its quality and merits from dealers able to judge. Of course, there are very strong obstacles—the strongest being the vested interests in China and Japan teas—of those who control the grocers as brewers do 'tied houses.'

"In New York I will only say that I was surprised by the favorable reception our green teas were receiving about the end of March, and I have had most encouraging news since I returned."

"To attain success, however, Mr. Mackenzie recommends a syndicate being formed in Calcutta and another in Colombo, to take over the green teas manufactured, and to blend and pack the same in uniform and attractive packages, making regular shipments to one or more firms in America, so as to insure continuous supplies of teas of standard qualities. The committee have advised that steps should be taken in Calcutta to carry out Mr. Mackenzie's recommendation."

REMEDY FOR TEA OVER-PRODUCTION

Mr. A. Cooke, the well-known Chota Nagpur tea planter, has formulated the following scheme for the welfare of the tea industry, and which he is anxious should be adopted is briefly this:—Assuming the yield of Indian tea this season to be 187 million lb., let there be a Government tea cess of 2 pies per lb.; this will produce Rs. 19,18,958. The actual cost of plucking, manufacturing, packing, and forwarding to Calcutta of one pound of tea he estimates at 2 1-2 annas per lb., or Rs.12 per maund. Instead of making 10 million pounds of tea less, as arranged for in the reduction of output scheme, make the full amount but sell the extra 10 million lb. to The Tea Distributing Agency at Rs.12 per maund for distributive and exploiting purposes in India and foreign markets. Instead of getting nothing, the growers will get Rs.15 lakhs (which will be the cost of 10 million lb. at Rs.12 per maund), and The Distributing Agency will have Rs.418,958, more or less, as a working capital. If this scheme is adopted, Mr. Cooke says that there can be no more over-production.—Planting Opinion.

WON 12 GOLD MEDALS.

Gillard & Co., Limited, of the Vintny Works, Walthamstow, London, N.E., are makers of high-class household specialties, which include Gillard's sauce, Gillard's pickle walnuts, onions, tomato ketchup, tomato chutney, pure mushroom ketchup, horseradish mustard, pure condensed coffee, etc. This old-established firm has been awarded no less than 12 gold medals at various exhibitions throughout the world for the high quality of their goods. They have also just gained the highest award at the Universal Cookery and Food Exhibition held during last month at Knightsbridge. The firm was also honored by an order from His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York, K.G., etc., for a supply of Gillard's sauce and pickles for the use of the Duke and Duchess during the Royal colonial tour.

Messrs. Gillard's articles are of the finest quality, and they have established a system of fixed retail selling prices, which enables the retailer to obtain a profit of at least 25 per cent.—The Grocers' Assistant.

BUSINESS LAWS AND BUSINESS MEN.

WITH all our boasted pride in the sterling quality of the judges of our law courts, there is a regrettable weakness in the legal machinery for the collection of debts.

As the conditions are to day, it does not matter how good a case a man may have, he has little chance of getting justice. It is not that he has any insurmountable difficulty in getting judgment. But judgment does not by any means always carry with it justice, which, as Webster defines it, is the "rendering to everyone his due, right or desert." In consequence of this state of affairs, he who attempts through the courts to collect his account is looked upon as little better than foolish.

The weak points are the complex character of the law and the heavy costs entailed. And, on account of these things, many merchants prefer to lose their accounts than to run the risk of being mulcted for a sum in excess of that which they are trying to recover.

Paradoxical as it may seem, this all comes from the creation of our laws being left so much in the hands of lawyers and other types of professional men.

Laws cannot be well constructed without the aid of lawyers to advise in regard to technical points. But, as far as the making of laws with a practical application to the requirements of the commercial community is concerned, they are perfectly at sea. At any rate, we know what they have given us, and one cannot ask for any better evidence than that. "By their works ye shall know them."

Business men's organizations of various kinds throughout the country have sought for reform, but what has come to them has come in homœopathic doses. And they are not without blame for this. The men who are in the House of Commons and in the Provincial Legislatures are the men they have helped to send there.

If the business men of this country would vote as they pray when sending up petitions for better and more business-like laws they would soon have a better and more practical class of men representing them. And more simple and practical laws would not be long in following in their wake.

LIGHT PACK OF FRUITS.

Judging from present conditions the pack of fruits in Canada this year will be lighter than usual.

Canners in the Niagara district say that the peach crop is one-third less than last year, and that the factories are paying double as much as last year for their fruit.

Reports from both east and west of Toronto indicate a light apple crop in many districts. In consequence of this there has been some inquiry for canned apples of last year's pack, but very few are held in first hands. Quotations have also been sought on new pack for future delivery, but, in view of the condition of the pack, the packers are not disposed to quote.

The pack of cherries is light, and, as already pointed out, that of strawberries and raspberries is also smaller than usual.

FEATURES OF THE TEA MARKET.

LONDON has been making purchases of Indian and Ceylon teas in the United States as well as in Canada. A few days ago 500 packages of Pekoe Souchongs were taken in New York at about 9½c. per lb. in bond for shipment to the British capital. We hear of no further transactions in Canada on British account.

The Indian and Ceylon tea market continues firm. At last week's auctions in London, teas for price were a trifle dearer, and in Ceylon teas the improvement noticed at the previous auction was fully maintained. Cable advices received from Calcutta reported that prices for low-grade teas were equal to 10c. per lb. higher, and that the shipments to date to the United Kingdom of low-grade teas were 5,000,000 lb. less than for the same period last year.

Samples of new season's Indian teas now arriving on the Canadian market show a full cent advance over the price ruling for similar teas of last season's growth now on spot.

THE CANADIAN GROCER READ IN SPAIN.

THE Export Number of THE CANADIAN GROCER seems to have found its way to the Seville, Spain, branch of Credit Lyonnaise, one of the largest banking institutions in the world, and one of the staff, O. G. T. Scarpa, is interested in Canadian trade and wishes to give up his position to represent some Canadian houses in Europe.

He says "that careful perusal of THE CANADIAN GROCER only confirms my faith in your country and strengthens my desire to work in connection with Canadian trade, a subject I became interested in during my stay in the London and Paris offices of this bank."

Mr. Scarpa is an Austrian, 24 years of age, knows six languages, learned in their respective countries, and he is thus conversant with almost the whole of Europe. He feels sure that in a comparatively short time he would master the difficulties of an eventual change of business and country.

SINGAPORE PINEAPPLE HIGHER.

Private advices received this week report an advance of 6d. to 1s. in the price of Singapore canned pineapple.

The importation of Singapore canned pineapple has been relatively large of late on account of the price at which it was offered being below that quoted by the home packers.

With the price higher the home manufacturers are hoping to be able to do a little more business.

MACHINATIONS OF A POLITICAL CLIQUE.

ALTHOUGH Lord Strathcona has denied any intention on his part of resigning his position as Canadian High Commissioner in London, there are still evidently friends of Sir Richard Cartwright who have not abandoned hope of his ultimately being appointed to that position.

There are none who recognize more than the friends of Sir Richard Cartwright, that he has been a failure as Minister of Trade and Commerce and that the sooner he gives place to a stronger man the better will it be for the Government, for a weak Minister is as undesirable as a weak link in a chain.

But, desirable and necessary as it is that Sir Richard Cartwright should vacate the portfolio of Trade and Commerce, it is equally necessary that Lord Strathcona should not vacate the High Commissioner-ship. And the position which THE CANADIAN GROCER has taken in regard to this matter has been endorsed by an influential part of the daily and weekly Liberal and Conservative press throughout the country. As far as we are aware there is not a newspaper in Canada which favors the proposal to send Sir Richard to London. But it does not follow because that is so that those who favor it may not succeed in their object when the opponents of it are not watchful.

Whichever political party is in power at Ottawa there is a sort of clique or ring among the politicians, who are always insidiously working schemes of various kinds. It is seldom in a hurry, but it is never idle. Now it is a Cabinet Minister that it is desired to remove or to elevate into a position of ease and comfort. At other times it may be a prominent official whom it may be desirable to remove in order that a vacancy may be created for someone else. Frequently the clique begins its operations by getting paragraphs worked into the columns of the daily press, whose purpose is merely to act as a feeler, whereby it may be guided in its further machinations. This clique now seems to be at work for Sir Richard Cartwright's benefit. No one, we think, will for one moment claim it is for the country's benefit.

Lord Strathcona is easily the ablest man Canada ever sent to London as High Commissioner. And since Sir Richard Cartwright became Minister of Trade and Commerce he has done nothing to recommend him for the position much more to permit his comparison even on an equal footing with Lord Strathcona as High Commissioner. And yet in many respects Sir Richard's attainments are superior to those of Lord Strathcona. But whatever energy he had seems to have departed from him, while if the present High Commissioner is anything he is energetic, while for practical business commonsense he stands head and shoulders over the man whom a small clique are desirous of supplanting him by.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has had occasion several times to point out the defects of the High Commissioner's office. But it has not been on account of any defects in the man who occupies the position. It has been on account of the system which expects him to perform as well the duties that should appertain to a commercial agent. But, if the Government, in spite of the representations of the business men and of the press of the country, persist in maintaining the system, the last condition would be made infinitely worse than the first by supplanting Lord Strathcona by Sir Richard.

INVITE ONTARIO AND QUEBEC MEN.

THE officers of the Maritime Board of Trade, which holds its annual convention in Chatham, N.B., from the 21st to the 23rd of this month, should invite the boards of trade at such centres at least as Montreal and Toronto to send representatives. In 1899, when the board met at St. John, N.B., they did so, but because their request met with no response it is no reason why efforts should not be made again.

The question of insurance rates is becoming a live one in the Maritime Provinces, if one can judge from the character of the meeting that was held in Halifax a few days ago, at which delegates were present from different parts of Nova Scotia. This subject can scarcely be ignored by the Maritime Board, and as it is a question in which the business men of every part of the country are interested, the more representative the gathering the greater will be the influence of the conclusions at which the board may arrive.

And then is it not possible that the presence of a few board of trade men from Quebec and Ontario may result in seed being sown from which shall spring up a Board of Trade for the Dominion?

But one thing at least would result from representatives being present from the Upper Provinces, and that would be the development of interest in the Maritime Provinces, one of the most beautiful and picturesque parts of the Dominion.

THE SALMON PACK.

THE outlook for the canned-salmon pack on the Fraser river has much improved during the last week or ten days.

British Columbian newspapers to hand report that the fish were beginning to run in large schools, and that, while some boats were only making small catches, others were making large ones. These papers bear the date of July 30. Since then, telegraphic advices say that the fishing has improved a great deal, and that the prospects are much better than they were a short time ago.

A steamer which arrived at Vancouver on July 30 brought the intelligence that each of the three canneries at Port Essington packed 800 cases on July 23. A letter to a prominent Vancouver cannery from the north stated that the northern canneries would put up from half to three-quarter pack. That the Rivers Inlet pack was a complete failure. On July 25, the Wau-nuck cannery had 4,245 cases packed, and Lowe Inlet cannery 1,200 cases on July 20. On the Skeena the Standard had 2,100 cases up on July 25, and the Cunningham 5,300 cases on July 24.

Even though the weather be hot it is necessary to keep cool in business.

B. C. FRUITS IN WINNIPEG.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MR. R. N. PALMER, of Victoria, B.C., special commissioner for the British Columbia Government, was in Winnipeg a few days ago in connection with an inquiry regarding the status of British Columbian fruit on the market, and, in conversation with a representative of THE GROCER, said:

"I am here on behalf of the Government of British Columbia, and more especially the Department of Agriculture, to see what can be done in order to open up a more extensive and permanent market for British Columbian fruit in Manitoba. I would like to correct a mistake which was unintentionally conveyed by the report of the remarks of Mr. Boggs at the meeting of the Western Horticultural Society on Thursday, re the obtaining of lower freight rates on our fruits. As a matter of fact, we have no complaint about the rates. The rate on plums from British Columbia to Winnipeg is $1 per cwt., while from Oregon and Washington, the States with which our fruit chiefly comes in competition, the rate is $1.25, and there is the addition of duty, which, on plums, for instance, amounts to some 12c. per case. The transportation difficulties which I am really trying to straighten out are better refrigerator cars and more rapid transit. The time taken in transit is one of the greatest difficulties we have to contend with, and, in this respect, our American cousins are far ahead of us. They can ship strawberries from Hood River to Winnipeg by fast freight in four days, while almost the best time our fruit has made is eight days, and this is a very serious drawback. Of course, we realize that our fruit export has hitherto been so small that the C.P.R. have probably not felt it of sufficient importance to make special efforts to favor it. However, I am in hopes that both the cars and the length of time will be remedied before long.

"I have had a meeting with your Fruit and Produce Exchange here, and found all of them most anxious to handle our fruit if it could only be guaranteed to reach here in good condition and capable of re-shipment to local points. Returning to the subject of rates for a moment, I would like to mention the very favorable express rates granted us by the Dominion Express Co.

There is a general blanket rate on fruit to Calgary and eastward as far as Winnipeg of $2.40 per cwt., and on lots of 1,000 lb. and upwards $2.25 per 100 lb. This rate is so satisfactory that any strawberries we ship to Manitoba will certainly come through by express."

Asked as to the growing of strawberries, Mr. Palmer stated that the chief points from which they would be shipped to Manitoba would be the Shuswap, Kamloop and Vancouver Island districts and certain points along the Fraser river. "You must remember," continued Mr. Palmer, "that British Columbia is 700 miles long, it is a country of mountains and valleys, and almost every valley has its own particular climate. This has been one of our diffi-gather the fruit, how to grade and how to pack it. The cars will eventually be started from New Westminster, where the great cold storage plants make it particularly easy to handle goods of this nature. I might also say that we never expect to compete with California in the matter of peaches, for instance, as, although good peaches can be raised in some parts of the Province, there will never be a sufficient quantity for export trade. The fruits we hope to ship are plums, prunes, pears, crabs and apples, and, in small fruits, all the varieties. Roughly speaking, I think British Columbia will be in a position to ship some 10 carloads of plums this season.

"One very great want is more fruit-growers. The question of labor is a serious one, particularly in the matter of small fruits, and what we want is a population in the shape of families who will have within themselves necessary help to handle a small fruit farm."

Encourage the Vacation Idea.

FROM August 5 to August 17 a number of wholesale houses and manufacturers give their travelling staff a vacation. THE CANADIAN GROCER hopes that merchants everywhere will do all they can to make this plan a success. It has been a hot summer, and the work of travellers has been unusually hard. If you agree with us that these men deserve every consideration, then be sure to send your orders that you would have given to them to their houses by mail. It will be appreciated very much. Latest special announcements of nearly all of the houses will be found in this and next week's issue.

culties, in the past there has been no discrimination in the points from which shipments were made. Now there are districts in British Columbia where they raise excellent fruit, but it will never be fit for shipment, because the climate is very moist and the fruit too soft. There are other districts, however, where the climate is much drier and the soil quite different, exactly resembling that of Washington and Oregon. These districts produce fruit of the very best shipping quality, as has been amply proved by the condition in which small shipments have come through. I think I may say that the districts from which fruit will be chiefly shipped for the future will be the Okanagan country, Kamloops, the Ascroft district and the islands. This season the Fruit Growers' Association, which derives its income from a Government grant, is employing an expert fruit packer from California to visit the various districts, show the people when to the influence that a combination of these houses could exert, the eventual adoption of this coin is entirely within the field of possibilities.

The bargain counter has come to be a feature of our end-of-the-century civilization. We do not think, however, that it is a particularly encouraging feature, and we believe that it will finally disappear. The present thirst for bargains is abnormal; the quest for bargains has been productive of physical and nervous debility; and the whole subject of bargains has become a monomania with hundreds of customers. The bargain is, indeed, one of the indications of a sort of temporary universal degeneracy that seems to pervade the human race, and changing conditions will crowd it out of existence. But in the meantime we may look for the arrival of the half-cent.

Some day, perhaps, we'll see this brief and tempting sign: "Price, only 98½, reduced from 99."

THE POSSIBILITY OF THE HALF-CENT.

A possible result of the development of the bargain counter is the introduction of the half-cent into our currency, remarks a writer in Profitable Advertising. There is no doubt that the department store would like to get things down to a half-cent basis if only the Government would consent to make it practicable; and, considering

APPLE INDUSTRY OF CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

ON Wednesday, Thursday and Friday this week, the National Apple Shippers' Association of America is holding its seventh annual convention in Toronto. About 150 delegates, representing the principal apple-producing centres of the United States and Canada, are in attendance.

The first session of the convention opened on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Mayor Howland was present to extend the greetings of Toronto and of Canadian shippers, but as many of the delegates had not arrived, his address was deferred till the evening.

C. G. Richardson, of Leavenworth, Kansas, president of the association, then delivered his annual address. Canada and the United States, he declared, stood pre-eminent as the finest apple-producing countries in the world, and were strong in competition in the markets of the globe. The comparative worth of American apples had been abundantly attested at the Paris Exposition, where a continuous fruit exhibit had been made by both Canada and the United States, and a great number of orders and inquiries had been received from remote parts of the world.

The apple had become the king of fruits in America. Over 2,000 varieties had been developed, and the aggregate crop was worth fully $300,000,000, or the same value as the cotton crop, and nearly as much as the wheat crop, which was valued at $320,000,000. The magnitude of the industry was an urgent reason why every precaution should be taken for its protection and its development. The growers should bestow the utmost vigilance in their care of the trees, to keep the insect pests down, and to deal promptly with fungus growth. The cost of handling inferior apples was greater than the cost of handling the superior qualities. The continuance of the diffusion of horticultural knowledge by Governments was of great advantage. The association might do much to improve the condition of the industry by making a strong effort to secure more equitable railway rates.

Wednesday afternoon was devoted to papers, which were largely of a technical nature. Senator H. M. Dunlap, Savoy, Ill., read a paper on "Commercial Orchardling." He believed that the industry had reached the stage that success was only to be secured as a result of intelligent and scientific effort. He explained the necessity of spraying, saying that shrewd buyers passed by orchards that they knew had not been sprayed. In referring to the disposition of the crop, he recommended sale by the barrel, which did away with guesswork and kept the price of good apples at a higher figure than the system of selling the crop outright on the trees.

Dr. James Mills, of the Ontario Agricultural College, read a paper on "Apple Growing and Shipping in the Dominion of Canada." He said that the apple was our most valuable fruit for household use. There was no other fruit in Canada to take its place. Apple growing was a profitable business when properly pursued. In the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia they would find a considerable number of the wealthiest farmers in that Province who did little else than grow apples, and all over this country, and especially this Province, apple-growing is a strong buttress of grain-growing, stock-raising and dairying. He proceeded to quote statistics illustrating the proportions of the industry in Canada. The apples exported from the Dominion in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1901, amounted to 4,181,038 lb. of dried, valued at $210,892, and 956,674 bbls. of green or ripe, valued at $2,578,853. The apple trees in Ontario in 1900 were 9,948,718, being 6,518,048 of a bearing age, and 3,430,670 younger trees, about 180,000 more than in 1899.

The orchards of Ontario, Dr. Mills stated, were not scientifically managed, as a rule. There was not proper spraying, and manuring and pruning were not done thoroughly. An attempt had been made to remedy these defects by the Government, first, through the Farmers' Institutes, while a demonstrator also had been sent around to illustrate the best methods of spraying. Still, he regretted to say that a very large proportion of our orchards were not sprayed. Apple shippers, he agreed with Senator Dunlap, should try to improve the quality of the fruit by their representations to the producer. The grower would always pay more attention to the buyers than to the paid lecturers of Government. There had been some pretty plain talking about Canadian packing in England lately. Improper packing did incalculable injury to our reputation in Europe. The Parliament of Canada, recognizing this, had passed a bill in order to crowd out dishonest dealers and packers, but the penalty for violation of its regulations was decidedly inadequate.

In the paper on "Methods," F. D. Cummings, Portland, Me., expressed strong condemnation of the methods of sale on the Liverpool market. Apples at that market could be inspected as often as desired, and were then graded and catalogued according to their condition and quality. But although all this was done, the buyer at auction had the option of rejection of barrels that he did not approve of. He thought that the auction sale should be final.

The discussion which followed Mr. Cummings' paper developed the fact that there was a strong feeling among the members against the Liverpool system. One delegate, Charles Forster, New York, believed that if the association took up the matter in earnest the desired change could be secured. By a large majority the meeting voted in favor of the association making an endeavor to secure a more satisfactory system in Liverpool.

On Wednesday evening, a reception was tendered the visiting delegates in the Pavilion. Mayor Howland welcomed them in his usual courtly way. In responding, Walter Snyder, Baltimore, Md., paid some fine compliments to the courtesy and open-heartedness of the Canadian people. During the evening, an excellent programme of music was rendered by the Grenadiers' Band, while the delegates enjoyed a prominence through the Pavilion and the adjoining conservatory, or sat down near the north entrance to partake of ice cream or other light refreshments.

MR. L. E. GEOFFRION.

MR. L. E. GEOFFRION, a partner in the wholesale grocery firm of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, of whose business he has the active management, is one of the leading public spirits of Montreal. Last week, he was unanimously elected to represent the Chambre de Commerce on the Harbor Board, a position reserved for business men of the highest standing. For two years he has been president of the Chambre de Commerce, and while he has occupied the chair the meetings of this French Canadian board of trade have always been fruitful. By his enterprise as much as by his ability he has earned his latest distinction.

Mr. Geoffrion has now been associated with the firm of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie for 25 years, rising from the ranks to his present position. Some time since, he was mentioned as one of the probable successors in the Senate to the late Senator Villeneuve.

new pack of canned goods, strawberries, and raspberries are the best sellers. Salmon is very firm. The values of currants are receding from their high position of the past year as a result of quotations on new crop received from Greece. The import price of fine Amalias will be about 5½c. so that this year retailers will be asked to pay 6½ to 7c. The feature of the tea market is the advance in the price of India and Ceylons, amounting on the lower grades to 1d. per lb. Japans are steady to firm. Californian dried fruits, such as apricots, peaches and prunes are said to be somewhat excited in view of an over-estimation.

SUGARS.

There have been no new developments in the sugar market. Prices are stationary, both at home and abroad. Montreal refiners quote $4.50 per 100 lb. for granulated and $3.85 to $4.45 per 100 lb. for yellows, according to quality. Naturally the demand is not light at this season, yet it is not as heavy as it is wont to be in August. Dealers, both wholesale and retail, are buying from hand to mouth.

SYRUPS.

Few orders have been received for syrups this week and this line is unactive. Cane syrup is worth 1½ to 2c. per lb. and corn syrup 3 to 3¼c., according to parcel.

MOLASSES.

The distributing trade is small, but there has been some business done between jobbers at much firmer prices. The supplies held here are calculated to be rather light in view of the low price this year. The ruling value in small lots is 29c. per gallon.

CANNED GOODS.

The feature of the canned goods market is the strong demand for new pack of strawberries and raspberries. The pack has been a light one, and every confidence is expressed in the prices. Strawberries are worth $1.50 to arrive; raspberries, $1.40; gooseberries, $1.40; pears, $1.55 for 2's and $2 for 3's; Lombard plums, $1.20; greengages, $1.30; yellow peaches, $1.70 for 2's and $2.50 for 3's; sliced pineapple, $2.30, and $2.45 for grated; 3 lb. apples, 85c., and gallon apples, $1.90, red pitted cherries, $1.80 and whites, $2. As for vegetables, there is not much improvement, in spite of the probable short crops of peas and corn and the probability of an advance by the syndicate. Some houses are still sacrificing their stocks, getting 80c. for tomatoes and 75c. for corn and peas. There are others, however, who are content to hold what goods they have, confident that they will prove good property when wholesale stocks are reduced. But little business is being done in futures; tomatoes are quoted at 82½c. and corn and peas at 80c. Salmon is stiff on spot at $1.25 to $1.30 for spring and $1 to $1.10 for pink. Sockeye is decidedly scarce, and unobtainable under $6 per case. In regard to the new pack, the Skeena river had about one-fourth of its pack put up on July 24; it is certain to be very short. Rivers Inlet is still worse, the total estimated pack to July 24 being 17,000 cases. Up to that time, no fish had been put up on the Fraser river, but the run had just commenced, and a fair pack was expected.

We quote as follows: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12½ to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

Prices are unchanged under a sorting demand. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in ½ bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in ½ bags; $3.10 in ¼ bags; and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¼c. per lb.

TEAS.

Some sales are again reported this week, but the demand is not active. The samples of Japan tea that have been received lately show the quality of tea this year to be excellent, fully equal to, if not better, than last year. The wholesalers expect, however, to see lower prices, as agents are now in a position to make firm offers. Cables received this week from London, Calcutta and Colombo all report a firmer market for Indian and Ceylon teas, the advance amounting to 1d. per lb. The cause of the improvement is said to be a shortage of supplies. Virtually, no consignments are now coming to this market.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS—The opening quotations on currants are 18s. for Provincials and 19s. for fine Filiatras. This means that spot prices must come down, although the light stocks do not warrant any immediate change. We understand that there has not been much business entered into yet as the ss. Escalona does not leave with the first shipments to this port for a month yet. Some goods will be brought in via New York previously. A very small trade is being done at 9½ to 10½c.

RAISINS—There is nothing new to report in raisins. Business is dull even at the low prices. Fine off-stalk is quoted at 5c., selected 5½c. and layers 6c.

PRUNES — Only a few boxes are selling. Late mails from California bring news to the effect that the Prune Association has sold all sizes on hand under 100. This has appreciably strengthened the market and the Association. Prices here are unchanged. Californian prunes are worth 5 to 5½c. for 90's to 100's; 6½ to 7½c. for 60's to 70's and 7½ to 8c. for 40's to 50's. French prunes are selling at 3 to 5c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—At the Coast the market is strong and advancing in apricots and peaches. The stocks of apricots are said to be well concentrated and the supply over-estimated. Higher prices are looked for in peaches.

GREEN FRUITS.

The market for green fruits is decidedly active, particularly in Californian fruits. Seven cars of this imported fruit were sold at good figures on Monday and three cars on Wednesday. Oranges are rather scarce, only a few late Californian Valencias being obtainable. Verdilli lemons are now on the market. Bananas are in good demand. We quote: Messina oranges, 200's, $4 per box; California Valencias, $4 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $4.25 to $4.50; 360's, $3.75 to $4.25 per box; Verdilli lemons, $4.50 to $5 per box; Californian apples, $3.25 per box; pineapples, 20 to 30c.; tomatoes, 50 to 60c. per 12-quart basket; apples, 35 to 50c. per basket; Californian plums, $1.75 to $2.50 per box; peaches, $1 to $1.25; limes, $1.50 per box; Ontario peaches, 50 to 60c. per basket; raspberries, 11 to 12c.; cocoanuts, $3.25 per bag of 100; Bartlett pears, $2.75 to $3.10 per box; blackberries, 8 to 10c.; watermelons, 20c.; bananas, No: 1, $1.75 to $2.25, and eight hands, $1.35 to $1.50.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

St. John, N.B., August 5, 1901.

IN spot business this is a rather quiet season. In the market there is considerable of interest. The general tendency is to higher prices. Sweets are rather an exception and so is fish. The chief interest of the week is in beans, prices having been advanced about $2 per barrel. Oats, oatmeal and feed, and particularly cornmeal, are higher. There has been increased interest in new canned goods, the report that peas would be advanced and the firmer feeling in corn, affecting the market. New Brunswick apples are offered. In spices, ginger holds at the higher prices. Cream of tartar continues rather easy, but there is no change in local prices.

OIL—In burning oil the business is in future shipments. Prices being very low dealers place their orders freely. It is a safe business for them, for they are protected against decline. There is still quite a steady demand for paint oils. Prices continue quite firm. Lubricating oils are steady, and the market is quite firm. There is but a fair business. Wax is low. In cod oil receipts are more free, but prices hold, as market is bare. Prices will, however, be lower.

SALT—There is quite an active business and several small cargoes are about due. When possible, buyers take advantage of the lower prices which rule while the salt is landing. The market is steady. The quantity of Liverpool coarse salt used here is very large. The present demand is good.

There are fair stocks in store. In fine the demand is for Canadian. Trade in dairy salt has been particularly good. We quote: Liverpool coarse, 52 to 58c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb. (selected lumps).

CANNED GOODS—There has been more interest in new vegetables during the past week, but still no large business has been done. The report that peas were to be advanced and that corn was particularly firm, was the cause. Stocks held are quite large, and some money may be made, but at present low prices ex-store are quoted. In fruits most of the orders have been placed. Prices are quite reasonable. The advance in beans has caused an advance in the price of American pork and beans and will no doubt affect Canadian prices if the market holds. In meats there is a steady business at even figures. In salmon, spot goods are scarce and holders are making a good, fair profit. New spring fish is daily expected when lower figures will be quoted. It is said the run of sockeye fish is large. Lobsters show quite a range in price, according to quality. The local demand is light.

GREEN FRUITS—Bananas are still the big interest. The market is well supplied. Californian pears have a large sale. Prices keep firm and quite high. Peaches are a good sale at fair figures, and the quality is good. Plums are not large sellers. In apples, our own New Brunswick stock are on the market almost as early as Western. The price is quite high, and while it will be lower it will rule quite full, as offerings will not be large. Oranges are about out of the market. They had little inquiry at this season. Lemons are in a fair demand. Raspberries and blueberries are both a light crop. In cultivated raspberries prices have kept high. Nova Scotian cherries are about done. Melons have a fair sale at firm figures. Pines are about done.

DRIED FRUITS—In raisins, the reports from California are that spot seeded are higher. At the low prices sales are large, the more so as new goods will be much higher. It is now said loose will open at about the high figures of last season. Prices on foreign fruit will be watched for with interest. The local market is dull. In currants new prices continue to be received. They are away below last season's figures. Many will be bought as usual cleaned from New York. In dates, prices are low. Prunes are rather firmer. Spot business is light. Prices on evaporated apricots and peaches have been received, and the market is a very firm one. In evaporated apples prices are higher and firm. Dried are also higher. Stocks are light, American onions now supply the trade.

DAIRY PRODUCE—In cheese prices are rather higher. Owing to factories selling for export local dealers find it much more difficult to get stock. Twins have the demand for local business. Butter is firm. The supply of best stock is light. Such goods as are held move slowly. Good stock

*The best selling tea in Canada today is Blue Ribbon Ceylon packed and sold by Blue Ribbon Tea Co.
 12 Front St. East - Toronto*

is in demand. Eggs are but a fair sale. The market is rather easy.

SUGAR—The market is rather dull. Prices are unchanged. Considerable foreign is still offered. The Guild regulations are expected to come into operation shortly. In return for the refineries holding up the price at which sugar shall be sold, the dealers agree not to buy other than Canadian sugars. It is said there is hardly a jobber outside the Guild.

MOLASSES—There is quite a stock of Porto Rico held here. It is largely in a few hands. They are not, however, agreed on trying to advance prices, but the price is kept down by the largest holders. Others hope for better things later. There is but little Barbados and Antigua molasses.

FISH—In dry cod, while prices are still high, lower figures are looked for. Later, stocks will arrive more freely. The present demand is not large. In pollock the market is unchanged and sales are light. Smoked herring are dull. No new goods are yet offered. In pickled herring, there is quite a range in prices. Sales are light. Alewives are hardly as high as last season. Some ten thousand barrels were packed. In fresh fish the market is light. Salmon is about done. Shad are so far a light catch. We quote as follows: Large and medium dry cod, $3.95 to $4.10; small, $2.50 to $2.65; haddies, 5 to 5 1-2c.; smoked herring, 12 to 13c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2 1-2c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.60 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $1.85 to $1.95 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl., $2.75 halves; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl., $2.25 halves; halibut, 10c., shad, 20 to 22c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—In flour, the market is rather dull. Some millers are inclined to ask rather higher prices. Oats are high and scarce. Oatmeal is dull, but firm at the higher figures. Cornmeal is higher than for years and is firmly held. Beans have sharply advanced, and stocks are not large. Feed is very scarce. Hay is a fair price. The export demand is still heavy. Split and round peas continue high and scarce. Yellow eye beans are very scarce. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $3.70 to $3.80; medium, $3.60 to $3.70; oatmeal, $4 to $4.10; cornmeal, $2.90 to $3.00; middlings, $22 to $23; oats, 48 to 50c.; H. P. beans, $2.00 to $2.15; primes, $1.85 to $1.90; yellow eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; barley, $3.90 to $4; hay, $12 to $14.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The Wm. Davies Co. have landed quite a quantity of pure lard here during the past week.

Geo. E. Barbour and Bowman & Angeline have shipments of "Beaver" hops to hand.

Mr. Andrews, representing The Barataria Canning Co., has been in the city during the week and in company with the local representative, Mr. Fred. Tippet, called on the trade.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, August 5, 1901.

THE fair has come and gone. It was one long week of gorgeous weather and great crowds, and much business was done; in fact, in reply to the query "Any change in prices this week?" the reply was: "No; we have been far too busy to change them." There is no doubt the volume of trade was greater than was expected. It is now felt that the grand crop is practically assured, and this no doubt led to the placing of orders that had been previously held in abeyance.

There is practically no market to report, cereals being the only article that has changed price. Rolled oats are still high and firm. Split peas are higher, being quoted at $2.50 to $2.60. Beans have advanced, and are now $1.90 to $2. Cornmeal still holds the high figure of $1.65 to $1.75.

The Japanese rice market is reported higher, but local quotations are unchanged.

GREEN FRUITS—Supplies continue somewhat short. The demand has been very active all week, with a rather short supply.

Cheese, butter and bacon are practically without change.

EARLY CLOSING ITEMS.

Practically all the grocers of St. John, N.B., now close at 7.30 p.m., Saturdays excepted, as do nearly all the merchants of that city except the clothiers and druggists.

As a result of a personal canvass, all the grocers in Fredericton, N.B., except two, have agreed to close their stores at 7.30 p.m., except on Saturdays, at least during August.

TRADE CHAT.

Mrs. Wm. Richardson has opened a grocery store on Manitoba street, St. Thomas, Ont.

Matthews & McCain, grocers, Fredericton, N.B., have dissolved and Vernon L. Matthews will continue the business in his own name.

The Montreal Biscuit Co. have entered an appeal in the Court of King's Bench against a judgment rendered in June by the Recorder's Court of Ste. Cunegonde, under which the Montreal Biscuit Co. was condemned to pay a fine of $15 and costs for delivering goods to customers in that town without paying a license and obtaining permission from the municipality to drive the delivery wagon through the streets of Ste. Cunegonde. The appeal will come on for hearing at the September term.

RAISINS HIGHER IN NEW YORK.

An advance of ¼ to ½c. was noted in New York on Tuesday in spot 3-crown loose raisins, with the sale of two carloads noted at, it is stated, a shade under 6c. Two and 4-crown loose are said to be practically cleaned up on the spot. It is stated also that telegraphic advices from the Coast report a considerably stronger feeling among the purchasers of the balance of the association's holdings, and that the lot of 2 and 3-crown grade, reported offering for mince-meat purposes on the basis of 4½c. f.o.b., has been withdrawn.

NEW YORK TEA MARKET.

Only a very limited amount of interest was shown in the market, and what little business there was transacted was strictly of a hand-to-mouth character. Prices ruling for new crop teas were 12½ to 13c. in bond up for spot Formosa and 11½c. do. to arrive; 10c. in bond for spot Congous and 8c. do. to arrive; 13c. in bond up for spot Pingsueys, and 27c. duty paid up for Japan. India and Ceylon were reported firmer for low grades, with 20c. duty paid quoted as inside figure for lines. The better grades were reported as meeting with a limited jobbing sale, but at low prices. At the close of last week London made an additional purchase of 500 packages Pekoe souchong at about 9½c.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, August 7.

AN AMUSING LETTER.

MR. CHARLES PICKFORD, of Pickford & Black, who is at present in Toronto, has in his possession an interesting and amusing letter which was handed to him just as he was stepping on board steamer at Antigua en route for Canada. It was written conjointly by two negroes who were desirous of securing a pass as they said to "New York or any of the environing cities." It reads as follows:

SANDY POINT, 24th June, 1901.

Dear Sir:

We the undersigned, have conjoindly purported by this applicative writ hereof tendered to lay before you in compended words the excessive diuturnity of our remotness from employment. Incredible as it may seem; yet, each does adjure to the fact, that we are, from the latter part of the past year seeking for work which has delphianly eloped from our reach. Our last voyage was from Roseau (Dominica) a couple months ago, where it's exceedingly dull. We thought of probation elsewhere, and so, pitched our tent in this land: but to our frustration, the 'trees' we have observed are searing daily: and in fine the entire place is equal to the prior named.

Adumbrating the perspective of our condition, we do kindly obtest you to intellectually view it;—think on it; and then, you may deem in what perplexity we now stand in a land like this. Why; the Cane Agriculture itself is canting, and the labourers are complaining and groaning of their exiguous hebdomadal stipend which has been reduced. O! it is truly grieving. Hereof, after consultation, we have both linked in the notion to venture another place where we deeply believe we will be able to reap a harvest.—This is New York or any of the environing cities. We are indeed fervent to get there: but O how pitiful it is to declare that we, through our own means, are unable to attain our desideratum: and conclude, kindly imploring you whom we have understood to have that power to favour, us with a grant passage to same place. We shall be very thankful Sir for this conference if it will favourably please you.

Yours Respectfully
ROACH & GUMBS

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

LINES THAT PAY THE GROCER.

Under the above title, Landor, Shutes & Co., West India Dock Road, London, have issued a small booklet which every up-to-date grocer in Canada should get. The lines referred to include "Dervish" sauce, "Raslim" relish, "Special" Indian relish, "Club" sauce, Worcestershire sauce, tomato catsup, plumato sauce, chutney, essence of anchovies, flavoring essences, non-alcoholic wines, cordials, lemonade and fruit syrups. As this firm have earned an enviable reputation on account of the quality of their goods, as the firm name is a prominent feature of all their labels, and as there is a liberal margin of profit to the retailer on their lines, it would pay the majority of grocers to send for a copy of this booklet, which will be sent postpaid to any dealer mentioning THE CANADIAN GROCER.

CARD-PRICE SUGAR IN ST. JOHN.

Our St. John, N.B., correspondent, writes:

"The Wholesale Grocers' Guild have about completed their work of equalizing freight rates and expect soon to be selling sugar by card price. It might almost be said the movement has the support of the entire trade. It is expected to practically shut out foreign sugars, as those in the Guild agree not to handle them."

AN INADVERTENCE.

Through some inadvertence the name of Mr. John Gilbert was omitted from the list of those who participated in the recent annual picnic of the Kingston Retail Grocers' Association. As Mr. Gilbert is the recognized father of both the association and the picnic, nothing but an inadvertence could account for the omission to couple the name of the parent with the offspring when the latter is abroad. The officers of the Kingston association are: W. H. Dyde, president; L. W. Murphy, vice-president; J. Gilbert, secretary; T. H. Johns, treasurer.

THE KENT CANNING CO., LIMITED

CHATHAM, ONT.

"E. R. M." says: We are adding green fruits and desire information pertaining to the buying and selling of fruit.

THIS will be a profitable addition to your business if you buy carefully and only the best quality of fruit. Money may easily be lost in this line owing to the perishable nature of the stock. If you have local growers buy from them, even if you have to pay more, because the fruit will be fresher and will keep longer. In foreign fruits, buy only from respectable fruit merchants who are well known to the trade. It is dangerous to buy fruit from men of whose character you know nothing, for, like other businesses, there are always some unreliable men engaged in it. I can vouch for those whose advertisements you see in this "Grocer." I know most of them personally and assure you of fair, honest treatment from them. At the same time, if you should be forwarded that which is unsatisfactory, do not be backward in making a complaint. If your claim is reasonable the honest dealer is always ready to make good any loss from causes for which you have a right to expect redress. During the last hot spell much fruit came in an over-ripe condition for shipping, thus causing many complaints from retailers. One firm explained these conditions caused a very serious loss to both the wholesale fruit merchant and the retailer and that in an honest claim for allowance they always did the best they were able to make the loss to the retailer as light as possible; also that this season had been exceptionally bad in this respect. For a man in the fruit business a very essential thing to know is, the many different varieties of apples, grapes, plums, peaches and berries, so as to be able to tell their flavor and keeping qualities. This difference, as one becomes educated in fruits, is wonderful, and this knowledge is worth considerable money to the dealer, and a protection to him in buying. In a brief way, to make this branch profitable:

Buy good stock.

Don't overbuy—better too little, than too much.

When it will not keep, sell it for what it will bring. The first loss is always the best.

Place your fruit in the most attractive way, i.e., pick out any spoiled; it hurts the sale of the good.

Have a proper place to keep your fruit. When selling fruit don't forget your customer will probably want jam jars and sugar, etc. Always know what variety of fruit you are selling, and how long it will keep; then sell the variety that spoils quickest first; remember this in regard to apples—it saves loss.

In reply to a number of questions re organization I have not anything new to add. If the clerks desire to advance themselves as a class they can do so much more effectively in organization than individually. Of course, we can get along and linger in the same old rut of indifference, but if there is a desire for betterment and advancement of our position, it can and will only be done by organization. That old saying, "United we stand; divided we fall," is very apropos and simply shows that nothing can be done without organization. In this way only can we keep abreast of the times. We have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Everywhere we hear of organization as the watchword of progress. Yet we sit idly by and let the other fellow do the progressing. This should not be. I am willing to do my part, will you do yours?

"A. F." wants to know how much vacation he is entitled to.

I cannot answer a question like the above. I do not know how long you have been employed in your present position. It may not be possible for your employer to give you any holidays. If you are well treated regarding salary and hours of labor you should not complain if circumstances are such you cannot have any vacation. This is a matter of generosity on the part of an employer. You are not "entitled" to any vacation. Most merchants endeavor to give their clerks, during the dull season, a holiday, believing it is beneficial to them, that they return with renewed vigor to their work and are refreshed thereby. But in most grocery stores in Ontario, I say "most," the clerks do not get any stated holiday other than the legal holidays. I believe it would be better for both merchant and clerk if the business were so arranged to permit each person connected with the store to have at least a week on our beautiful lakes, which travellers tell us are the finest in the world. I do not think the business would suffer, although I can understand how difficult it would be to get some of our merchants away from their stores for even a week. They would imagine things would go wrong, yet these are the very men who need a vacation most. I am glad our commercial traveller friends are having holidays and trust they will all enjoy them, returning to their work the better men for having spent even this short time with nature and their families. Now, if you are able to get a vacation, be thankful. If not, don't complain. I worked five years behind the counter without a holiday, other than the ordinary legal days.

"H. D." writes: Is there a Provincial law regulating the closing of grocery stores?

No; municipalities may pass a by-law regulating the hours of closing if petitioned by a two-thirds vote of those engaged in the business. I think if a law is required it should be a Provincial law as the present system is very unsatisfactory, although, as I said last week, the merchants now see the profitableness of early closing and in most cases this matter is satisfactorily arranged. If you read the papers you will be encouraged by noting the number of places where merchants agree among themselves to close at a reasonable hour. The public are in sympathy with this movement. It is a sign of intelligence, and the merchant and clerk both derive increased health and vigor from its adoption. In every place this movement is retarded by merchants who are afraid of losing some business. Some of the boys feel strongly toward these men, but I would ask them to be patient until, by a process of education, they fall into line. It is only a question of time, whereas saying hard things never helped any cause. On the contrary it only makes bad feeling and embitters a man toward you and the cause you represent. This movement is doing well in Canada. Small villages are the last, as a rule, to fall into line, owing to the prevailing custom to keep the stores open late, often more as a social club than a place of business. But I know of many small village stores that now close early. I have inquired from the merchants, who tell me they have had no falling off in business, while the extra time spent in relaxation has improved their health.

THE ORIGIN OF THE ROLLER MILL.

AT a recent meeting of The National Society of Agriculture of France, M. Lindet recalled the fact that last year a paper was presented to the society on the origin of grain mills. It then appeared that the history of roller mills, which have replaced millstones, is more or less obscure; and M. Lindet, without attempting to clear it up entirely, offered some facts that seemed to him to be of some importance.

According to him, the invention of the roller mill ought to be attributed to André Mechwart, an engineer of the Ganz establishment at Budapest, who, about the year 1875, conceived the idea of making rolls of a certain cast metal, hard enough to withstand the rapid wear and still soft enough to be fluted by a machine tool.

However, some inquiry has been made as to the predecessors of Mechwart; and it has been discovered that as early as in the eighteenth century certain inventors had conceived the grinding roll, but the metal used was too soft to be practical, being unable to withstand the wear.

About 1830 a miller of St. Denis, named Benoit, introduced into his mill grinding machines made of cylinders of millstone or other hard rock, with a face with furrows. A description of this mill appears in a treatise dated in 1862, by one Benoit (not the miller of that name, however), and in a treatise by Touaillon, fils, 1879, while a drawing of it appears in the album by Rollet in 1846.

MM. Regnault-Desrozières and Davilliers, millers of St. Denis, bethought themselves to make a search for the rolls in question in the old mill of Benoit at St. Denis, and fortunately recovered two of them. These they have offered for preservation in the collection of the National Agricultural Institute as relics of the first efforts in France toward an industry that is now of much importance. These stone "sabots" were, it appears, used in the construction of a wall protecting the water wheel of M. Davilliers' mill.—American Miller.

Some of the wheatfields about Ingersoll, Ont., are said to be in a poor condition, owing to the depredations of the Hessian fly. The hay crop is extra heavy, however, and is being stored in excellent condition.

Grocers who persist in mixing ever-varying teas, are unintentionally letting much of the tea trade slip through their fingers into the hands of bakers, butchers, druggists, peddlers and others offering brands of more uniform tea at popular prices.

The only way for grocers to effectually meet this competition is to recommend a brand of tea which they know to be pure and good.

THE CASH CUSTOMER AT A DISCOUNT.

OLD Ben Franklin, who was once the highest authority on this side of the sea on domestic economy, was the author of this maxim: "A nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling."

Dr. Franklin meant to express the doctrine that in business cash customers were better than credit sales, and, as he wrote in a time when the American States were British Colonies, and English money was then in vogue, he expressed his maxim in the terms of shillings and pence.

Times have changed since the days of "Poor Richard," which was the name over which Dr. Franklin's homely wisdom was given to the public, and, apparently, in great retail stores in cities the cash buyers are not particularly esteemed.

In an article on "Shopping in New York," in The March Century Magazine, by Lillie Hamilton French, the writer says:

Shopkeepers sometimes say that the "cash customer" is the profitable one, but fashion has already deserted those stores where cash payments are the rule. My corner grocer tells me that if each of his customers should insist on paying cash he would have to employ two extra men just to make the change. Certainly many of us could ill afford the time to wait for it. In the great retail stores women are sometimes detained 20 minutes until half as many cents in change can find a way back to them. There is, therefore, in large cities, where time has a value not attached to it in smaller places, a necessity for credits, for having bills and accounts, and a certain quixotic sense characterizes the conduct of those who declaim against the custom of accounts.

This statement seems to be true everywhere in cities. The cash customer receives no favors or special consideration when shopping, and is always looked upon as a stranger who would probably never be seen again in the establishment, while the shopper whose name goes on the books is well known and is an object of interest.

There is an old story to the effect that once a boat capsized in the river, throwing three persons into the water. A man on shore cried out in the most agonizing manner, begging the people to rescue the man with the red head. With difficulty the red-headed man was fished out of the water, while the other two were drowned. On being asked the cause of his intense interest in the party whose life was saved, the information was elicited that the red-headed man owed the other $11, and if he drowned, leaving no estate behind, his death would make the debt a total loss. In this case the two cash customers were allowed to drown, while the man whose name was on the books saved his own life by being in debt.

Another disadvantage suffered by the cash customer is that he has less chance than anybody else of getting credit. A person who has bought in the same place for 20 years and always paid money down, was, on one occasion when the purse had been accidentally left behind, refused credit for a trifling sum and was denied the benefit of a C.O.D. package, because the amount was too small for the trouble.

Nevertheless, the buying for cash has one advantage to the buyer. It saves peace of mind. By it the housekeeper escapes the sword of Damocles in the shape of debts hanging over her.

In the wholesale business, however, the cash buyer gets his innings. There is for him a premium on his cash, a discount which the credit buyer does not get. Here he is appreciated, and he is always the recipient of particular attention at the hands of the drummers and their employers. Cash in the wholesale business has not lost its attractions.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE SULTANA RAISIN CROP.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER,—Permit me to communicate a few words respecting our Sultana crop, and which may prove of some interest to your numerous readers.

Importers of Sultanas in Canada will probably remember how last year's crop proved a failure owing to a severe attack of our vineyards by the peronospora disease. Our crop, originally estimated at 40,000 to 42,000 tons, was gradually reduced down to only 17,000 tons. But it is curious to note that right at the eve of the gathering epoch there were always optimists (whether sincere or otherwise, we cannot say), and numerous they were, who still spread reports of a crop of 25,000 to 27,000 tons.

Personally, and for our justification, we must state that we were the first amongst the few to gauge thoroughly the extent of damage caused by the disease, as proved by our circular of June 20, 1900, estimating the crop at 310,000 quintals, equal to about 17,000 tons. We have since found by official returns that the past crop did not really exceed 17,000 tons.

Now, coming to prospects for the coming Sultana crop, we have, so far, acquired the following facts and knowledge:

1. That the original yield is much smaller than last year's, previous to the peronospora attack.

2. That the peronospora disease was not properly and thoroughly combated last year with the sulphate of copper solutions, and that this neglect on the part of growers has caused a fresh outburst of the peronospora microbe. The evil was happily checked by adverse atmospheric conditions, but only after it had caused a certain amount of harm in various localities.

3. That on July 5, the thermometer marking nearly 40 deg. centigrade at the shade, a most rare occurrence in this country, the fruit unprotected by the leaves of the vine trees was in some parts completely killed. Damages on this account have since been more or less ascertained, and widely differ in percentage, according to the districts, the average damage being about 15 per cent. on the whole crop.

Taking into due consideration the preceding facts, we feel justified in estimating presently the coming crop as follows:

|                                 | Tons. |
|---------------------------------|-------|
| Magnesia and Menemen.....       | 4,150 |

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Picnics of Pork Packers—Miscellaneous Notes.

PICNICS OF PORK PACKERS.

THE seventh annual picnic of the employes of The Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, Peterboro', Ont., took place on Friday per steamer City of Peterborough to Jubilee Point. Over 300, employes, their families and friends, partook of the hospitality of The Matthews Co., and all were united in saying that the outing was the most pleasant and enjoyable of the seven.

The annual picnic of the employes of the Ingersoll Packing Co. was held on August 1 in the grove on the flats southwest of the pork factory. A procession was formed at the market square at 1 o'clock. The Foresters' band headed the procession and a large number of the pork packers marched in line, each wearing a wide-rimmed straw hat and a badge. There was a very large crowd present during the afternoon, and a still larger one in the evening. Dancing was indulged in till a late hour. It was the largest picnic ever held under the auspices of that institution.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR THE INGERSOLL CO.

The frame hog barracks at the factory of The Ingersoll Pork Packing Co. have been removed, and a stone foundation is being laid for a new three-storey brick building to be used for the same purpose as the old one. It will be fitted up on a down-to-date plan with every convenience for receiving hogs from the cars and farmers' waggons, feeding and watering them, and passing them along to the killing-room.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Though the trade is small, as is usual during August, it is fully up to the average for this time of year. Prices are unchanged throughout. We quote: Dressed hogs, $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.; mutton, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $7.50 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, 10 to 11c. per lb.; beef carcasses, $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8½ to 9½c. for best; fore quarters, 4½ to 5½c. for best; calves, $7 to $8 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

The brisk demand for pork products is well maintained, and prices have stiffened throughout. Smoked backs are ½c. per lb. higher. We quote as follows: Long clear bacon, 11½c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 14 to 14½c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 13½ to 14c.; medium hams, 13½ to 14c.; large hams, 12½ to 13c.; shoulder hams, 11½c.; backs, 15c. Barrel pork — Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10¾c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11¼c.

MONTREAL.

Statistics for August 1, showing the stock of lard held at world's points, indicate that the supply has been more plentiful during the past month, the amount at the end being 229 029 tierces, against 207,127 a month previous. The increase seems to be due to the fact that a great many hogs have been sent into the markets because western farmers were not prepared to feed them, in view of the failure of the corn crop. A further increase may be shown during the present month, but the scarcity is expected to reveal itself again. Manufacturers are acting on this assumption. Price of pork is unchanged. Business is quiet. We quote: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.92 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.90 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.88 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; Cottolene, 9½c. per lb. in tierces, and 10½c. in 26-lb. pails, and 10¼c. in 50-lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

The local market is dull. Pork is very high. Beef holds quite firm, but does not show high figures. There is little doing. Lard is still very high, and a fair stock is held. There is a fair sale. Compound has a steady sale. Smoked meats are scarce.

LIVERPOOL.

A PLACE FOR THE DRUMMER.

One of the early effects of industrial combinations was the elimination of the travelling salesman, says The Marine Review. He went the way of all useless appendages, for assuredly he was useless when the firm which employed him merged its interests with its competitor. Things move in cycles, however, and the era of the travelling salesman is about to dawn again. The domestic field is largely closed to him, as it has been for some years past, but the foreign field is opening. The United States are producing a surplus which must be disposed of. Foreign markets cannot be successfully cultivated by circulars alone. Circulars can herald the advance of the salesman, but they cannot always sell goods. The magnetic personality and persuasive tongue of the salesman is needed. The foreign market is a difficult field to handle, and the demand upon the talents of the travelling salesman is great. He must be versatile, gentlemanly and educated. He must speak the language of the country to which he is sent. He must be a diplomat who has devoted his attention to business. The oversea market is the market of the future. It is the one market whose possibilities cannot be measured. To all practical purposes it is infinite. With proper cultivation, no end of trade will come out of it. It is idle to think, however, that this trade can be secured without personal representation. It cannot. Contiguous countries have the natural advantage which can only be overcome by a representative on the spot with full power to act. The logical conclusion is that that army of workers which did so well to develop internal trade when there was need of them will, when transferred to Europe and the Orient, do the same thing for the foreign trade of the United States.

MOISTURE IN COLD STORAGE.

BY L. C. CORBETT.

BESIDES the temperature in a cold storage room the degree of moisture is of considerable importance.

It is neither necessary nor desirable that the storage room should be absolutely dry; on the contrary, it may be too dry as well as it may be too damp. If the room is too dry it will favor the shrinkage and drying out of certain goods. If the room is too damp goods are liable to spoil and become mouldy, etc. For this reason the moisture should always be kept below the saturation point. This condition can be ascertained by the hygrometric methods described in the chapter treating on water and steam.

There is little danger that the rooms will ever be too dry; on the other hand, they are not required to be absolutely dry, and as to chemical dryers, such as chloride of calcium, oatmeal, etc., they are probably superfluous, with proper ventilation and refrigerating machinery properly applied.

Generally the artificial drying of air is considered superfluous in cold storage, as the air is kept sufficiently dry by the condensation that forms on the refrigerating pipes. In this way the moisture exhaled by fruits, etc., is also deposited. Special care, however, is to be taken to remove the ice from the coils from day to day as it forms, in which case it is readily used in storage houses refrigerated by artificial refrigeration. Freshly burnt lime is sometimes used in egg rooms.

In cold storage houses operated by natural ice, chemical or physical absorbents, such as oatmeal, slaked lime, chloride of calcium and chloride of magnesium are frequently used. The latter substance is the principal constituent of the waste bittern of salt works, which is sometimes used for drying air in the cold storage of fruit.

The waste bittern is spread out on the entire surface of the floor, and, if needed, on additional surfaces above it. One square foot of well exposed bittern, either in the dry state or state of inspissated brine, will be enough to take up the moisture arising from two to six bushels of fruit, varying according to its condition of greenness or ripeness. The floors of the preserving room should be level, so that the thick brine running from the dry chloride may not collect in basins, but spread over the largest surface. The moisture from the fruit taken up by the absorbent varies from about three to ten gallons for every 1,000 bushels of fruit weekly. The spent chlorides or the spent waste bittern may be revived by evaporation, by which they are boiled down to a solid mass again.

The waste bittern is also used as a crude hydrometer by dissolving one ounce of the same in two ounces of water and by balancing the shallow tin dish containing the mixture on a scale placed in the cold storage room. If the scale keeps balanced, it indicates the proper state of dryness, but if the weight of the mixture increases the moisture of the room is increasing and the means for keeping the air dry should be put in operation.

DRY AIR FOR REFRIGERATING PURPOSES.

To produce a dry air by mechanical means, St. Clair considers the entire absence of any condensing or refrigerating surface in the space to be refrigerated absolutely necessary. The rapid circulation of the air in the room is also of vital importance; and in such circulation no contact of the incoming cold air with the outgoing warm air to cause condensation is the result aimed at. To insure these conditions, he places the refrigerator at the highest point, and has communicating air shafts from the bottom of the same to the rooms to be cooled. Like shafts ascend from the top of the rooms cooled to top of refrigerator. The refrigerating coils in the refrigerator are kept at a temperature of zero to 15 degrees below, and a small stream of strong brine is allowed to drip over the coils to a pan underneath, being pumped back to the upper drips as fast as deposited. This brine will have a temperature ranging from zero to 4 degrees below. The action is said to be simple and effective; all moisture is either condensed or frozen instantly as it comes in contact with such low temperature, and absolutely dry air descends in the air shafts to the rooms to be cooled.

COLD STORAGE TEMPERATURES

Generally speaking, the temperature of cold storage rooms is about 34 degrees F. For chilling the temperature of the room it is generally brought down to 30 degrees F., and in the case of freezing goods from 10 degrees F. to 0 degree F.

The temperature and other conditions best adapted for the cold storage of different articles of food, provisions, etc., have been compiled in the following paragraphs, which reflect the views of prominent and successful cold storage men.

STORING FRUITS.

The temperatures for storing fruits are given in the following table:

| Fruits.               | Remarks.                 | Degrees F. |
|-----------------------|--------------------------|------------|
| Apples .....          |                          | 32-34      |
| Bananas .....         |                          | 34-36      |
| Berries, fresh..      | For 3 or 4 days..        | 34-36      |
| Cantaloupes..         | Carry about 3 weeks...   | 32         |
| Cranberries .....     |                          | 33-34      |
| Dates, figs, etc..... |                          | 31         |
| Fruits, dried .....   |                          | 35-40      |
| Grapes .....          |                          | 33-36      |
| Lemons .....          |                          | 34-40      |
| Oranges .....         |                          | 36         |
| Peaches .....         |                          | 35-45      |
| Pears .....           |                          | 33-36      |
| Watermelons..         | Carry about 3 weeks .... | 32         |

Apples when stored in barrels should not be stored on ends, but perfectly on their sides. A temperature of 32 degrees is considered most favorable.

In general, green fruits and vegetables should not be allowed to wither. Citrus fruits and vegetables should be kept dry until the skin loses its moisture, then the drying process should be immediately checked. For bananas no rule can be made. The exigencies of the market must govern the ripening process, which can be manipulated almost at will.

Fruits, especially tender fruits, should be placed in cold storage just when they are ripe. They will keep better than if put in when not fully ripe.

Pears will stand as low a temperature as 33 degrees. Sour fruit will not bear as much cold as sweet fruit. Catawba grapes will suffer no harm at 26 degrees, while 32 degrees will be as cold as is safe for a lemon.

The spoiling of fruit at a temperature below 40 degrees F. is due to moisture. In storing apples eight to ten cubic feet storage room space is allowed per barrel, and twenty to twenty-five tons daily refrigerating capacity per 10,000 barrels.

STORING VEGETABLES.

| Articles.         | Degrees F. |
|-------------------|------------|
| Asparagus .....   | 34         |
| Cabbage .....     | 32-34      |
| Carrots .....     | 32-34      |
| Celery .....      | 33-35      |
| Dried Beans ..... | 32-40      |
| Dried Corn .....  | 35         |
| Dried Peas .....  | 40         |
| Onions.....       | 32-34      |
| Parsnips .....    | 33-34      |
| Potatoes .....    | 34-36      |
| Sauerkraut .....  | 35-38      |

Asparagus, cabbage, carrots and celery are carried with little humidity; parsnips and salsify same as onions and potatoes, except that they may be frozen without detriment.

CONTRACT NOT TO ENGAGE IN BUSINESS.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia held, in the case of Love et al. vs. Stidham, reported in The Washington Law Reporter, that where the contract executed by the two members of a partnership for the sale of a retail grocery business conducted by them contained a covenant that "the party of the first part" (the vendors) "shall not engage in the retail business for the period of five years within one mile of the store building located as herein set forth," a violation of such covenant by one of the former partners was a violation by both, for which both were liable; that in order to show a breach of the covenant it was not required to be shown that the defendant had a regular store, or that he retailed all the articles kept and retailed from the store sold the plaintiff, but that the retailing by the defendant within the prescribed limits of a material and substantial part of such articles would constitute such breach, provided it came within the definition of a retail grocery business; that the defendant was responsible if he served customers within the prescribed limits, although he might have no residence, shop or place of business within such limits, and that what constitutes a retail grocery business is largely a matter of fact to be determined by a jury under proper instructions by the court as to the meaning and construction of the contract.

FILLING FOR NAIL HOLES.

The following method of filling up nail holes in wood is not only simple, but said to be effectual: Take fine sawdust and mix into a thick paste with glue, pound it into the hole, and when dry, it will make the wood as good as new. Frank Christin, jr., in Stoves and Hardware, says he has followed this for 30 years, with unvarying success in repairing bellows, which is the most severe test known. Often by frequent attachment of new leather to old bellows frames, the wood becomes so perforated that there is no space to drive the nails, and even if there were, the remaining holes would allow the air to escape. A treatment with glue and sawdust paste invariably does the work, while lead, putty, and other remedies always fail.

BARBADOES MOLASSES.

A cargo of fine Barbadoes Molasses has just been received, and we are now delivering ex wharf all orders taken for July delivery.

We are ready to book orders (for Fall delivery) for canned goods of every description, all new pack, 1901.

We wish to advise the trade that there is a considerable quantity of last year's pack on the market.

Be sure when you order your winter's supply that you get 1901 goods, otherwise you may be served with old stock and displease your customers.

We offer nothing but fresh goods, and our prices are right.

The salmon canners' strike will not affect our trade. We are prepared to guarantee delivery of any orders we may accept, and hold contracts for large quantities of :

THE MAKING OF LAMP CHIMNEYS.

AN interesting article on the manufacture of lamp chimneys appeared in a recent issue of The Scientific American. After a few introductory words the writer of the article says:

"Perhaps the most important feature in the manufacture of lamp chimneys, or, indeed, of any form of glassware, is the mixing of the ingredients. As in the case of plate glass, the body of the mixture consists of a sand which is as nearly pure silica as can be obtained. The sand is quarried from silica rock, then thoroughly ground and sifted through a 40-mesh screen, the material being received at the works in the prepared condition. The second most important ingredient is litharge; while potash and soda are used as fluxes. When the above mixture is used for the best quality of lamp chimneys, about 50 per cent. of the total is silica. The sand is melted in what is known as the 'furnace,' a large conical structure which is fired by gas from beneath and contains some 14 to 16 large melting pots, which are molded from a very specially prepared and carefully kneaded pot-clay. The melting pots are generally 44 in. in their largest diameter and 50 in. in height. They are arranged in a circle within the furnace, each one opposite a door. It takes 24 hours to melt the contents of a pot of the size just described. Ordinarily the contents are made up of part of the prepared mixture and part 'cullett,' i.e., glass left over from previous days of operations.

"The blowing is done with a long iron tube, known as the blow-pipe, which has a mouth-piece at one end, and is swelled out and thickened into a bell-mouth form at the lower end. In the process of blowing, the operator dips the thickened end into the melting pot and twists it around until it has gathered up a ball of molten glass of the desired size. The blow-pipe is then withdrawn from the furnace and the ball of glass is rolled out to a conical shape on a plate and slightly inflated by blowing through the tube. The blow-pipe is then handed to the second operator, who completes the operation of blowing. The bubble, if we may so call it, of glass, is thicker and heavier at its lower end, and, to secure the elongated form necessary to lamp chimneys, the operator swings the blow-pipe to and fro, thus causing the bubble to stretch by its own weight. By thus alternately swinging and blowing he brings the bubble to the required length, and approximately to the required diameter, and then places it within a hinged mold, which is opened to receive it, either by himself or one of his assistants.

He then twists the pipe and blows at the same time, thus pressing the glass against the inner walls of the mold. The tube with the molded chimney attached is then withdrawn from the mold, and handed to another operator, who, with a pair of spring tongs, forms the flaring top of the lamp chimney and marks a sharp depression just outside its base where it is to be broken away from the blow pipe. Although a large amount of blowing is done by hand and mouth, increasing use is made of what is known as the Owens blowing machine, which substitutes mechanical for hand power. This consists of a vertical stand, at the base of which is a vertical table, carrying half a dozen of the hinged molds already referred to. After the first operator has blown and elongated the ball of glass to the desired shape, the blow-pipes are placed in the mold, with the upper ends of the tubes secured in a clamp near the top of the stand. To each of the tubes is connected a rubber hose, which is supplied with air from a small air-pump located on and forming a part of the machine. The table with its blow-pipes is rotated, and air pressure is applied through the hose, half a dozen chimneys being thus blown and molded at the same time.

"The chimneys are next carried to the annealing furnace. This is constructed with a metallic belt conveyer that passes through the furnace from end to end. The chimneys are piled up thickly upon this belt and carried through the furnace. The conveyer moves sufficiently slowly to subject each chimney to the heat of the furnace for from 12 to 24 hours. After annealing, the chimney is cut down to length. This cutting is done by rotating the chimney horizontally above two fine transverse slits, through which a thin stream of hot air impinges on the glass at the point where it is to be cut through. The strain set up by this local heating is sufficient to enable the girl who attends the machine to break off the ends with a slight bending pressure. The chimney ends, after cutting, are sharp and rough, and it is necessary to give them the proper finish. The mouth of the chimney is smoothed by 'glazing,' which is done by exposing it to the blast of a small gas-fired furnace until fusion of the edge takes place, the result being the smooth, rounded edge which characterizes the lamp chimney. In the case of chimneys with crimped edges, the crimping is done in a special machine which slightly flares and crimps the edges at one operation. The base is squared and smoothed down by grinding it upon a circular, rotating, cast-iron table, whose surface is covered with sand and water. The lamp chimneys are stood on end in small pockets formed in smaller discs, answering to the 'runners' of a plate-glass grinding machine, and are loaded with weights to give the proper pressure. After they have been ground, they are taken to a stamping machine, where the maker's name is stamped on with a hydrofluoric acid preparation known as 'white acid.'

"The chimneys are then taken to the labelling and packing-room, where they are labelled, wrapped in paper, placed in separate cardboard boxes, and finally delivered to the packers. Such chimneys as are not shipped in boxes are packed loose with straw carefully worked around them."

THE DOMINION MOLASSES CO.,

Halifax, N.S.

Dear Sirs,—I beg to advise receipt of the car Molasses, which came to hand in good order and condition, and, as a proof I am satisfied with the quality, now offer same figures for two cars same grade.

This is an extract from a letter received a few days ago referring to a carload of Barbadoes shipped to one of the largest cities in the Province of Quebec.

We have some more of this grade to offer, and the price is low.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

DUNN'S PURE MUSTARDS

GIVE UNBOUNDED SATISFACTION.

The reason is—They are profitable to dealers and satisfying to consumers.

SALT

"Educate your customers in regard to quality."

This is especially true with regard to Salt. You want your customers to buy Salt that will bring them in a good return—by producing the finest butter and cheese. You likewise desire to sell Salt to housekeepers that will not set hard in the salt cellar or dredger, and that possesses the pure, sparkling, white color that first-class Salt alone can have.

Educate them thoroughly by advising them to buy Coleman's or Rice's Salt, and the results will give them confidence in your judgment forever after. These Salts are pure—they do not cake—certain to please.

That woman who asked you for Stower's Lime Juice found out afterward that the reason you advised her to buy some other brand was because you made more money out of it. And now she's trading at your competitor's, across the street. Worse still, she told five friends of hers just what you had done! It pays to get what a woman asks for even if you don't happen to have it in stock. She'll find you out if you try to substitute!

DON'T SUBSTITUTE!

You can substitute some other brand of Macaroni for Codou's, if you want to, but when you do it you are not "fair to yourself"—you cheat yourself out of a woman's confidence. There is no Macaroni quite as good as Codou's—quite as white, tender and delicate. "Be fair to yourself" next time when a woman asks for Codou's, and if you don't happen to have it on hand it will pay you far better to get it than to try to convince a woman that

COMPARATIVE VALUES OF ONTARIO WHEATS FOR BREAD-MAKING PURPOSES.

By R. Harcourt, B.S.A., Associate Professor of Chemistry at Guelph Agricultural College.

DURING the last few years, there have been many complaints from both farmers and millers regarding the poor quality of flour that is made from Ontario-grown wheat. Farmers say that it is impossible to make as good bread from flour ground out of their wheat as they made a number of years ago. Millers declare that, where formerly the flour from home-grown wheat was in great demand, it is now a drug on the market and that they can sell only by underbidding their competitors. This deterioration in strength of flour is, no doubt, largely due to the depletion of the soil in nitrogen, and to the extensive growing of larger yielding but weaker varieties of wheat. It is undoubtedly desirable that those varieties of wheat should be grown which will give the largest returns to the grower. These may or may not be the varieties that give the greatest number of bushels per acre. It is true that at present, while some varieties are shunned by the buyer, practically the only difference made in the price is that of buying according to the weight per bushel. As the heavier wheats are usually the best, this is to some extent paying according to quality. But, beyond all this, has not the extensive growing of some of the weaker and larger-yielding varieties lowered the general price of wheat in the Province? Considerable attention has been given to the question of yields per acre; but it is almost equally important that we have definite knowledge regarding the quantity and quality of the flour the different varieties will produce; for, other things being equal, it is the quality of the flour that determines the value of the wheat.

Recognizing the importance of such information, we have during the last three years given some attention to this subject. Prior to the fall of 1900, the work done was with varieties grown on the College farm and experimental plots. It was then thought that similar trials should be made with the same varieties of wheat grown in a number of different sections. Accordingly, letters were sent out to a number of millers in the western part of the Province, asking them to collect ten-bushel lots of the following varieties: Michigan Amber, Genesee Giant, Early Red Clawson, Dawson's Golden Chaff, and, where at all possible, the Scott and the Treadwell. In the eastern part of the Province, the Fife, White Russian, Colorado, and Thickest were asked for. The instructions were that the samples sent should be pure, true to name, and each a fair representative of the variety as grown in that particular district. In many cases the ten-bushel samples were not taken from one load, but gathered, two bushels at a time, from different wagons, as wheat was delivered at the mill. In some sections where these varieties are grown in considerable quantities, no samples were sent, because they could not be got pure, while a few were received which are not mentioned in the list. Altogether 37 ten-bushel lots were gathered, all of which were harvested in 1900 in Ontario, with the exception of one lot of Turkey Red, which was imported from Kansas.

The samples collected were ground during the latter part of November and December in a regular roller process mill, by the same millers and under as uniform conditions as possible. No attempt was made to obtain large yields of flour; for it was ground fairly high to give all the strength possible to the flour. Less than two per cent. of low-grade flour was removed. Hence it was practically what is known as a "straight."

By using ten-bushel lots of wheat, and saving the flour from the last part of the run for the subsequent tests, the miller was confident that perfectly accurate samples were obtained from the different lots ground; but it was found to be impossible, with small quantities of wheat, to get any defingluten," after which it was dried to constant weight in a water oven and weighed as "dry gluten." The per cent. of "water absorption" was determined by taking a definite weight of flour and measuring the amount of water required to make a dough of a standard consistency. The figures represent the per cent. of water the flour will absorb. In the determination of the yield of bread, principally ten and fifteen-pound lots of flour were baked independently by two of the most experienced bakers in Guelph. When their results did not agree closely, a third trial was made. The bread was then scored on the basis of 100 points for ideal bread.

The results of this work will be found in the following table, where the different lots of wheat tested are arranged according to the variety:

ite figures regarding the yield of flour in any particular case.

In the study of the quality of the flour, the figures given in the table were obtained as follows: The nitrogen was determined by the regular Gunning method and multiplied by 6.25 to give proteids, or flesh-forming constituents, of the flour, fully 90 per cent. of which is gluten. The gluten was obtained by doughing up ten grams of flour and allowing it to stand for one hour, when it was washed in a small stream of water over a fine copper sieve until free from starch, care being taken to recover all the gluten. It was then dried as much as possible in the hand and weighed as "wet

HEAVY VERSUS LIGHT WHEAT.

It will be noticed that the heavier the wheat per measured bushel, the better the quality of the flour. Yet there are some marked exceptions, as in Nos. 22, 28 and 34. A heavy wheat usually contains a high per cent. of nitrogenous matter, and has a dark, gluey, translucent appearance, which becomes more apparent when the kernel is cut through. Such a wheat contains a large proportion of gluten of a good quality. A light wheat, that is light weight per measured bushel, usually has a characteristic "weak" color, and a cross section of the grain presents a white, starchy appearance, and lacks the gluey-ness which is seen in a "strong" wheat. Of course, some varieties are naturally heavier and "stronger" than others; but soil and season have a very marked influence on the weight per bushel, and also on the quality of the flour that can be made from any given variety.

GLUTEN.

It is gluten which gives strength to flour. Many are familiar with it in the form of gum made by chewing wheat. It is of an elastic nature, capable of being strung out very thin. In the baking of bread, the gases, formed through the action of yeast, in rising up through the dough, come in contact with this elastic substance, which spreads out and retains the gases in small cavities, thus causing the bread to rise. Other things being equal, the more gluten there is in flour, the better the bread rises and the larger the yield. The preceding table shows that the amount of water absorbed by a flour varies somewhat with the per cent. of gluten, yet there are indications that quality in gluten is a factor as well as quantity. Some glutes are firm and elastic, others are soft and sticky; the former absorb more water than the latter, and consequently give a larger yield of bread. In the table, quality of gluten is indicated by the difference between the wet and dry gluten. The gluten of Turkey Red wheat is of better quality than that of the Michigan Amber, and the Dawson's Golden Chaff better than Early Red Clawson.

YIELD AND QUALITY OF BREAD.

The final test of the quality of the different flours is the yield and quality of bread they produce. For the sake of clearer comparison on this point, the average yield of bread from one hundred pounds of flour and the average quality, as indicated by the number of points given to each, have been placed in the following table:

*Only one lot of wheat was ground.

The Turkey Red gave the largest yield of bread; that from the Fife was, however, superior in quality, it being the only one among all the varieties which received the maximum number of marks for quality. The Turkey Red made a well-raised loaf, the crumb of which was flaky and had a rich cream color; the crust was soft and thin and had the glossy, brown appearance that is so much desired in a good loaf of bread. It was a little inferior to the Fife in texture. Both the crust and the crumb of the bread from the Genesee Giant were very light in color; otherwise the bread was good. The Dawson's Golden Chaff gave 16 lb. less bread from a hundredweight of flour than the Turkey Red, the lowest yield among the fall wheats, but it was not the lowest in quality. It rose fairly well in the pan and the crust was good, but the crumb was somewhat open in texture and dark in color. The flour from Early Red Clawson wheat made a decidedly inferior loaf in every respect. It did not rise well and lacked color in both crust and crumb. In the latter respect it resembled the Genesee Giant; the crust, however, was thicker and much harder and always broke across the top during the baking. The Diamond Grit, Colorado and Thicket all made bread which was very thick in the crust and coarse-grained.

QUALITY AFFECTED BY BAKING.

A marked difference was apparent in the fermentation in the various doughs. Some "worked" much faster than others; and if not taken at the proper time for the different steps in the process of bread-making, a poor loaf of bread was invariably the result. One of the fastest, if not the fastest, working flour among those tested was the Dawson's Golden Chaff. It was found that with care a good loaf of bread could be made from this flour; but if abused in any way, it always yielded a flat, coarse-grained, dark-colored loaf. To bring out this point more clearly, a strong and a weak flour, Turkey Red and Dawson's Golden Chaff, were baked separately, every possible condition favorable to the production of a good loaf of bread having been given in each case. Second lots of the same flours were then treated with the same fermentation and given the same amount of work, but less care was taken in the details of the work. For instance, the temperature of the liquor used in making the dough was a few degrees higher, and the dough was allowed to stand a little too long in the pans before being put into the oven. The result was that the bread from the strong flour was equally good with the two different treatments, while with the weak flour, good bread was got in one case, and a poor, coarse, dark loaf in the other.

There is, no doubt, much truth in the old saying that "anybody can make good bread from a strong flour, but that it takes a skilful baker to make good bread from a weak flour." To get the best results, it is essential that the baker understand the nature of the flour he has to deal with. During the fermentation process, the dough made from a strong flour will rise up and "drop" and rise again a second and even a third time, whereas, the dough from a weak flour, if allowed to "drop" once, will not rise again. It must, therefore, have more careful attention throughout the whole of the bread-making process. It is, no doubt, true that some flour is spoiled during the process of manufacture, and by the length of time and the manner in which it has been kept; but it is equally true that many flours are spoiled in the baking, because the baker does not understand the peculiarities of the particular flour on hand.

GROCERS' COMBINE DOUBTED.

A Philadelphia paper says: Wholesale grocers say the announcement that a $100,000,000 combination of the more important wholesale firms of the United States is in course of formation is premature, to say the least. The belief is generally expressed that such a combination cannot be effected, and that if it were it could not be effectually maintained, because the grocery business is open to all and easily entered upon with moderate capital.

J. N. Schnucker, head of a large Philadelphia house and President of The Grocers' and Importers' Exchange, was given as authority for the statement that this combine was contemplated. When shown the published report he said:—

"The whole thing is in the air, with nothing tangible about it. We have not been approached to go into any such trust, and I know of no grocer in Philadelphia who has. There was some vague talk about a combine to take in a large number of wholesale grocers, and in small towns to close all save one in each, but there is not and never has been anything definite about it so far as I have heard. In fact, the more the matter is looked into the less the probability of its being carried out. Combinations are only successful where at least partial control of the market is possible, and that is impossible in the grocery trade. I believe the wholesale and retail trade will pass into fewer and stronger hands. Old established concerns in this trade who follow modern methods of doing business, handling the right goods, keeping in close touch with their customers by judicious advertising and promoting the bright young men in their employ to be junior partners or shareholders, will have a greater monopoly than any combination ever can secure."

SCARCITY OF CANS FOR CANNERIES.

A press despatch from Sacramento, Cal., says: It is feared by the fruit canners here that the strike may have the effect of closing the local canneries for failure of the supply of cans. The two canneries here are of large capacity, each employing 600 hands, and both are running at full blast. The local supply of cans is very short, and would probably be exhausted in a single week. Each cannery is using about 40,000 cans a day. Other canneries up the valley are in a like condition.

INSPECTING WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

"M.D." writes: We have just been visited by the weights and measures inspector. He found everything all right, and stamped our weights and measures according to the law, collecting $2.80 for a very few minutes' work. Now, I think this is an injustice to us and the expense excessive. Don't you think it is?

THERE is no doubt in my mind, but the grocers are wronged by the Government in this Inspection Act. Why any Government should charge a merchant this amount for a few minutes' work when the inspector finds everything right, is more than I am able to understand. Scales need inspection, I'll admit; but why charge so much for it? Then, I am told nearly every merchant pays 25c. or 50c. cartage fees as well as inspection dues. This is also wrong. All our merchants want, and what they are entitled to, is fair, just treatment. Some inspectors are much better than others in this inspection fee business. I have had the same scales and weights inspected by different inspectors and found the expense varied considerably. I know there is a regular tariff, but one man would take all the law would allow him while another would be just, for they have latitude in this matter. The grocery merchants are, as a rule, paying enough taxes without having any more placed upon them in this manner.

When in a store with an inspector, the merchant said: "I will be buying in a few days a new set of coal oil measures." "Very well," said the inspector. "I will not stamp these." Had he stamped them it would have cost the merchant 20c., and they were worn out. Now, in this case the inspector treated the merchant fairly.

LEAKY VINEGAR TAPS.

"R. K.": We are always bothered with leaky vinegar taps. What tap would you recommend?

This is a trouble most grocers have to contend with. As a rule vinegar taps are not long in use before they commence to leak, and then they are a constant source of trouble. There is one thing, they are not costly. It pays to buy them continually. I cannot recommend any particular make of tap, but this is another of the things that a clerk has to watch in the grocery business in order to save loss. The reason they leak seems to be a wearing or a shrinkage of the cork lining.

EASTON BEACHAM'S SAD DEATH.

There has just come to me one of the severest shocks I have experienced for years in the drowning at Newcastle, Ont., of Mr. Easton Beacham, of New York, a Canadian grocery clerk who has become famous in New York as the manager of Park & Telford's immense retail grocery store of 72nd Street and Columbus Ave. You may remember my referring to him in my New York letter. Poor fellow, cut off in the prime of life! And I heard of his death just as I received a letter from him saying he intended to call on me Saturday night last. He was well up in the grocery business, and had a knowledge of his trade far beyond that of most men. I shall try and tell you more about him in our next issue. To-day I cannot.

KNOWING IT ALL.

"MCT."—There is a part of your letter I do not like—where you refer to me as "knowing all about the grocery business." No man ever carried under his own hat, all about any business. Things are divided up pretty well in this life. We all know a little, and we are always learning more. The most youthful clerk can tell us oftentimes things we did not know. There is true wisdom displayed in sifting out that which is of practical use and being of likely value to us. I am always glad to hear from any of my friends on any subject pertaining to the business. That is what this department is for, and I hope you will all feel free to write at any time.

SCARCITY OF GOOD CLERKS.

Another grocer writes me of how difficult he finds it, to get a good clerk. He says he can get ten poor or indifferent clerks for one good, reliable man. Recommendations they all have, it's ability they lack.

I do not know if my friend is one of the kind that is very hard to please, but others have told me the same story and I cannot see why it should be so. Young men who profess to be good grocery hands are plentiful. I wonder what qualification we lack most as a body? Nearly all can tie up a good package, and keep themselves neat and clean, are polite to customers, but from what I have heard, that which we lack most is a genuine interest in the business.

depend on his clerks, he should try and impress upon them the responsibility they carry.

My own idea always has been, wherever you find indifferent clerks it is because they are treated by their employers in a cold, formal way. It is a very poor nature that could not respond to a kind word of advice given in a proper way at the right time.

I often think for a few minutes early in the morning or after trade is over, if the head of establishments would do as the Heinz Pickle people do with their salesmen, talk with them about the sales and the business generally, a kind of private company talk in which the feeling was that each person present held stock in that company.

There are new points coming up all the time, which any man might profitably discuss with his clerks, and the business generally would be helped thereby. Trade is changing in this respect, and any establishment, no matter how long in business, must change with the times, in order to keep up with younger houses. Neglect to do this is the cause of failure, and the reason some old houses with a grand reputation have had to step down and out, regretted by all, is that they simply did not keep up with the ever-changing conditions.

So must the clerk of the present not be a time-server, whose only aim is to just do enough to hold his position, and draw his salary. His day of usefulness has passed if he ever had a day or an hour. He must give way to the ever-alert man, who feels a personal responsibility in the welfare of the business, whose only thought is how he can increase his worth to his employer and be "a profitable servant who bringeth his master much gain." This is the new order of things and it is our duty to try and attain unto them.

A JAPAN TEA HOUSE.

For the past few months, Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, who represents the Japan Central Tea Traders' Association in this country,

A Japan Tea House.

Sometimes I feel the fault is not all with the clerk. If the merchant would only take time to talk with the clerk on matters pertaining to the business; make him feel that he is part of the establishment, that he is depending on him to so look after his department that trade will be drawn to the store. Because every merchant must have been in Japan. While there he took quite a number of snapshots of the beauties of the "Flowery Kingdom," one of which we reproduce this week. The scene contains a Japan tea house, Tokio, and is illustrative of the surroundings in which Japan tea is packed.

Hot days are yet to come—a profitable side line is “Sovereign” lime juice, raspberry vinegar and fruit syrups, low-priced fast sellers, quality A-1,—in stock with The Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, says that his first shipment of “Condor V.” which came in some time ago with “Condor LX.” in 1 and 1-2-lb. lead packages, has all been delivered. His second lot of “Condor XXXX.” is just in and all orders will now be filled. The first shipment of “Condor XXX.” is now on the way.

“Tropon” cocoa and chocolate is the great food remedy for consumption. The Cowan Co., Limited, Toronto, are the sole manufacturers of it, and they state that the demand is increasing rapidly. The more it is tried the more convinced are those who use it of its great efficiency in building up consumptive and debilitated persons. The whole secret is the concentrated nutrition and the ease with which it is digested and assimilated.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Cyril L. Marshall, of Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, has returned from a week's fishing at Stoney Lake.

A PORK-PACKERS RETURN.

Mr. George Matthews, senior member of The Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, Ottawa and Peterborough, has just returned from his annual trip to England.

This is upwards of 30 trips across the Atlantic for Mr. Matthews, and he always combines business with pleasure, by looking after the firm's interest in their export business.

In speaking of this season's business, he said: “The high price of hogs which has so steadily prevailed here has made the export business unprofitable. While the market in England has been steady at good prices, yet it has not been high enough in comparison with the extreme prices packers have been paying for hogs. The quality of the bacon from Canada going to England has been improved, and with the exception of that prolonged heated spell, which caused some shipments to turn out a little shiny, the product has opened up in first-class condition.”

It is the intention, so it is said, of The Matthews Co. to open up another packing house in Belleville.

LUMSDEN BROS'. NEW WAREHOUSE.

Lumsden Bros., of Hamilton and Toronto, are erecting a new warehouse at Hamilton costing $10,000. This building is being erected to keep pace with the demand for “Jersey Cream” yeast cakes. When completed, they claim they will have the finest yeast factory in the Dominion.

DO NOT WANT MORE TRADE.

BUSINESS, like goodness, is something of which most people desire more than they possess. We say most people, because there are some who, at any rate, profess that they have all they want.

He who would make bold to tell us that he was as good as he wanted to be would be quickly set down as being in a rather bad state. What different conclusion, therefore, can we come to when a manufacturer or merchant declares he has all the business he wants, and refuses to try and get more? He may have a large surplus in the bank and many orders on his books, but if he is really honest in what he says, it is evident that the seeds of business degeneration are beginning to sprout.

A gentleman who has interested himself a great deal during the past couple of years in the West-Indian trade informs us that he has been repeatedly met with the remark, when broaching the subject of West-Indian trade to Canadian manufacturers, "Oh, we've got all the business at home that we want. We are not looking after foreign trade." And yet, at the same time, their confreres in the United States, busy and all as they are, still evince solicitation for the trade of the West Indies, and are steadily sending products there which might just as well be sent from the mills and factories of Canada. And what applies to the West Indies applies to our trade with other countries as well, to a greater or less extent.

There are plenty of manufacturers and others in Canada who, when the home market is dull, are only too anxious to do business with other countries. But how can they expect to compete for that trade when at certain times they cut all connection and allow their competitors in the United States and other countries full swing? It is contrary to all business experience to expect it.

Whether the trade is foreign or whether it is domestic, it can only be successfully exploited when the connection is maintained. We often fear that Canadian manufacturers are not in their generation as enterprising as their confreres in the United States. And when we hear of some of them refusing to make an effort to secure a promising trade, when held out to them, our fears are certainly not diminished.

By steadily, and not spasmodically, courting their trade, the aggregate foreign business of the United States with the British West Indies during the fiscal year ending June 30 last was $21,723,859, of which $12,853,307 were imports and $8,870,552 exports. Including Bermuda and British Honduras, the aggregate was $24,624,515.

Now, our aggregate trade with the same British possessions in 1900 was valued at $2,577,574, of which $1,698,957 were exports and $878,617 imports. In other words, our aggregate trade is about 10½ per cent. that of the United States. Taking exports alone, the Canadian figures are about 15 per cent. of those of the United States.

FOREIGN TO CONDENSED MILK.

While the scientists are disputing as to whether the bovine and human tuberculosis intermarry, one thing we can be assured of, and that is that neither can find a resting place in condensed milk.

WILL BUY AS WELL AS ASSAY GOLD.

THE Dominion Government has decided to buy gold outright at the Vancouver assay office, thus making it a purchasing office as well as an assay office. This means that the bank charges of three quarters of one per cent. which the banks had been getting for cashing the assay office certificates and shipping the gold to Seattle will be done away with, and that instead the assay office will give a cheque on the bank of Montreal, payable at par.

In other words, the same rate as that made at Seattle for assaying and minting (one per cent.) will be charged at Vancouver, while the miner will receive at Vancouver one per cent. rebate on the mining royalty, which rebate is not, of course, granted at Seattle. The result of these regulations is to make the price paid for gold at Vancouver exactly one per cent. higher than is paid by the United States authorities at Seattle.

It is expected that this will do much to induce miners and others to take their gold to Vancouver rather than to Seattle, a consummation devoutly wished for by the business men of British Columbia.

Klondike gold has been flowing into the sub-treasury at New York quite freely of late. In one day last week $1,200,000 worth was received, and in four days $4,500,000 worth.

Now that the silver question has been declared dead, it is to be hoped no one will try to revive it and declare it as good as gold.

HEAVY DEATH CLAIMS.

President Paton, of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, tells us that the death claims on the association have been very heavy this year, amounting, so far, to $31,000, against $25,000 as a total for 1900.

Speaking financially, however, it is fortunate that it is mostly among the older members that death has made its ravages, four of the deceased being over 70 years of age.

A good bargain is a reduction in price; a bad bargain is a deterioration of quality—no price will make a bad bargain good.

WILL WE EXPORT CANNED VEGETABLES TO THE STATES?

IT is within the range of possibility that the present year may see the exportation of a quantity of canned vegetables to the United States.

As most of our readers are doubtless aware the drought has been quite decided in the United States, and a heavy shortage is feared, particularly in canned tomatoes, in which there has been a veritable boom during the past few weeks. Purchases of spot stocks at Baltimore and other centres have been remarkably heavy, while prices have been steadily advancing.

A Baltimore, Md., dealer, writing a few days ago, said: "The crop conditions for the week have not shown sufficient improvement to justify packers in taking more than a limited amount of business, in addition to orders entered prior to this week. Inquiries for futures, on the other hand, have been way beyond the volume of last week, with the result of forcing sellers' ideas from 80c. a week ago to 85c., and even at this figure a limited quantity only can be picked up." The same authority says that the present week will likely see 90c. quoted for good standard 3's.

It is because of this condition of affairs in the United States that there is a possibility of a market being found in the United States for Canadian canned vegetables. And what makes it possible is the fact that inquiries for prices and other information have been received by packers and brokers in this country during the past few days from dealers in the United States. They evidently, however, want pretty close figures, and stipulate that the tins must be free from labels, it being the intention of the contemplated purchasers to affix their own labels.

Our export trade in canned vegetables is an insignificant one, and France took more from us last year than the United States, $1,520 worth going to the former country and $1,413 to the latter. Our total export of canned vegetables was nearly $18,000, of which $13,687 went to Great Britain.

Between the United States and Canada a great gulf has been fixed, so that under ordinary normal conditions we can neither go to them with canned vegetables nor they to us. The duty in the United States is ad valorem and specific, according to the vegetable described. On peas and beans, for example, the duty is 2½c. per lb., while on other kinds of canned vegetables it is 40 per cent. In Canada the duty on tomatoes, corn and other kinds of canned vegetables is 1½c. per lb. Except on peas and beans, therefore, our duty is higher than that of the United States on canned vegetables, being somewhere in the neighborhood of 70 per cent.

In Canada so far this season the pack of everything is light. What has so far been packed are strawberries, raspberries, peas and beans. Corn and tomatoes are yet to come. On account of the agreement with the syndicate, the pack under the most favorable of conditions is to be 30 per cent. smaller than in 1900. If, therefore, any quantity should be exported to the United States, we may expect to see high prices rule during the ensuing year.

The conditions this season are, so far, exceptionally favorable to the syndicate, and with the high prices which are likely to rule some of the canners are regretting that they made any agreement with the syndicate. Others again, while realizing that it would have been more profitable had they been left with a free hand to pack as much as they chose and to sell at what price they liked, say they are glad someone stands to make money out of canned goods this year.

THE CROPS IN ONTARIO.

The report of the Ontario Agricultural Department, dealing with conditions up to August, shows that the fall wheat crop has suffered from Hessian fly in Lake Erie district, but in other districts is in good shape. The yield should run from 5 to 40 bushels per acre. The spring wheat crop, while poor in some sections, is, on the whole, a fair crop; barley, a fair to good crop; oats, light crop (suffered by heat in July); peas, from 10 to 30 bushels per acre; beans, an excellent crop; hay and clover, unusually good; corn, good; potatoes, fair; roots, light to fair; honey, not over 60 lb. per hive; pastures, dried up in July but are improving; apples, between 35 and 40 per cent. of average crop; pears, good crop of fair quality; peaches, light in Niagara district and fair in Western Lake Erie section; plums, failure in some sections, average crop in others; cherries, light; grapes, good.

The wheat acreage is considerably smaller than last year; barley, larger; oats, smaller; peas, smaller; beans, larger; hay and clover, larger. No comparison is made in respect to other acreages.

CANADIAN OATS FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

THE British War Office has placed orders for nearly 1,500 tons of oats in Canada for the use of the army in South Africa. These orders have been accompanied by special directions and precautions, for, although a fair quantity of oats have been shipped from Canada to South Africa (the exports in that direction in the year 1899 1900 being 33 934 bushels) this shipment is practically an experimental one as far as the War Office is concerned, an experiment the success of which depends almost altogether upon the condition in which the grain arrives at Cape Town.

The war in South Africa has undoubtedly been of some service to Canada, in opening, as it has done, such a respectable trade in many lines. Canadian hay, meats and jams have been purchased extensively, almost from the outbreak of hostilities. Already this season there has been a good, steady movement of hay to South Africa from the Maritime Provinces. The addition of oats to the War Office's list of purchases should be fully as satisfactory to both buyer and seller as has been the case in respect to the other articles mentioned.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, which opens at Chatham, N.B., on Wednesday next, promises, if one can judge from the intimations that have come to Secretary D. G. Smith, to be one of the most important yet held. Arrangements have been made whereby delegates will obtain transportation at one fare over railway and steamship lines.

Among the leading subjects for discussion will be the admission of Newfoundland into the Confederation.

SALMON PACKING OPERATIONS.

SALMON canning in British Columbia is being prosecuted under circumstances a great deal more favorable than they were a short time ago.

On the Fraser river the run of fish has been excellent, and the boats have averaged 300 to 400 fish some nights. Many are said to have obtained as many as 600 and 700.

Besides what has been caught by their own fishermen, the canneries on the Fraser have been bringing sockeye salmon from Point Roberts, United States territory. They were caught there in traps and brought to the Canadian side in scows. One steamer brought 9,000 on August 2. The price per fish is about 2c. less than is paid to the home fishermen, and, while there is a Customs duty of  $\frac{1}{2}$ c. per lb., practically the whole of it is refunded when the fish are canned and exported.

There are more fish running into the United States traps than the canneries there utilize. It is said that never in the history of salmon-packing at Puget Sound has there been such an enormous run as has been experienced this season. It is declared that the traps of one company alone would yield about 500,000 salmon per day if all the fish were taken and used. It is no wonder that a strong sentiment in favor of constructing traps in Canadian territory is developing among the cannerymen of British Columbia.

A Victoria paper, of August 6, says that the steamers which had just returned from the northern part of British Columbia reported that the run of fish was good when they left. On July 7, the Wannuck cannery had a catch of 5,100 cases; the Rivers Inlet and Victoria canneries had 4,200 cases; the Lowe Inlet cannery, 1,800 cases; the Standard, 2,800; Cunningham's, 6,600 cases, and the Windsor, 6,700 cases. These were among the best catches reported, and indicate that although the season began poorly that the cannerymen will yet come out with fair profits for the season's work.

GOOD NEWS FOR ST. JOHN.

A Montreal despatch says that the differences between the Canadian Pacific and the Intercolonial Railways over the transfer of westbound freight from the Maritime Provinces have been settled.

This will be welcome news to the shipping and mercantile interests of St. John, N.B. It will be remembered that one result of the dispute between the two railroads was that the winter port business of St. John was considerably curtailed, as the Canadian Pacific made little effort to obtain cargoes for steamers, claiming there was no money in hauling cargoes east and they taking empty cars west while the Intercolonial was hauling westbound freight.

When interviewed in Montreal regarding the matter, E. G. Russell, manager of the Intercolonial, stated: "Difficulties between the two roads have been settled, and St. John will do a heavy shipping business this winter. Both the railways and the steamship companies are making preparations for it. The C.P.R. is enlarging its track room at West St. John, in the vicinity of the wharves, and making preparations which indicate that it anticipates a heavy winter's work. The Intercolonial is also extending its yard and siding accommodation to St. John."

EXPORTS OF CEYLON TEA.

EXPORTS of tea from Ceylon continue to increase. During the first six months of the year they aggregated 75,441,861 lb., compared with 72,917,366 lb. for the same period in 1900. The following table gives the exports during the first six months of each of the three years named and the countries to which the tea went:

Among the quantity exported during the six months of this year was 427,695 lb. of green tea, of which 314,703 lb. went to the United States and Canada and 93,449 lb. to the United Kingdom. The latter was probably reexported to green tea drinking countries.

GOOD ADVICE FOR APPLE EXPORTERS.

THE convention of the National Apple Shippers' Association, which was held in Toronto last week, should be productive of good results to the apple-growing industry of this country.

The criticism has been frequently made that Canadian shippers were not careful of their honesty in packing apples; that this fruit was received from Canada, and especially from Ontario, faced with much better apples than the body of the barrel contained, that sometimes hay, old boots, etc., were stuffed into the barrels. The complaints have been so numerous that it was generally admitted that the demand for Canadian apples in Great Britain was in danger of being injured, but never has the matter been brought home to the trade so forcibly as was done at this convention.

Speaker after speaker, including Professor Robertson, Canadian Commissioner of Agriculture; Professor Mills, of the Ontario Agricultural College, and several of the largest exporters, stated in clear, emphatic language the opinion that there must be honesty in apple-packing if the industry is to maintain its status.

The Dominion Fruit Marks Act, which went into force on July 1, was commented upon as good legislation. By it every person who packs fruit in a closed package intended for sale is compelled to brand it plainly with his full name and address, the name of the variety and the designation of the grade of the fruit. Packages are not to be exposed for sale or sold unless so marked, and a penalty is imposed for false marking of packages or fraud in packing.

Packers were counselled to assist in every way the enforcement of this law, and to make it a guarantee of honesty in apple-packing in Canada.

Prof. Robertson, in his address on Thursday, referred to another important matter. Shippers, he declared, should make it their business to teach growers what varieties should be grown and how to take care of them. The seller always paid attention to his customer: therefore, the apple-buyer could influence the grower as no one else could. The shippers soon find out what kind of apples prove most suitable for the export trade. They should do everything in their power to influence growers to grow these varieties, and to study their culture in order to get the best results.

grinding in transit, or 83½c. Toronto and west. Ontario wheat is quoted at 70c. at outside points, middle freights. There is not much doing on the Toronto street markets, where prices are steady as follows: Wheat, white and red, 70½ to 71c.; goose, 69c.; oats, 38 to 40c.; rye, 52 to 52½c.; barley, 47c.

FLOUR—The market has stiffened in sympathy with the rise in wheat. Manitoba flour is 10c. and Ontario flour 20c. higher. We quote on track, Toronto (bags included) as follows: Manitoba patents, $4.15; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85; Ontario patents, $3.70 to $3.80; straight roller, $3.40.

BREAKFAST FOODS—The demand is good. Rolled wheat is 10c. higher. Other lines are unchanged. We quote: Standard oatmeal, $3.70 in bags, and $3.80 in bbls.; rolled oats, $3.60 in bags, and $3.70 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.35 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.75; split peas, $4; pot barley, $4.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There is a good supply, but offerings are readily absorbed. We quote as follows: Cowhides, No. 1, 7½c.; No. 2, 6½c.; No. 3, 5½c. Steerhides are worth 1c. more. Cured hides are quoted at 8½ to 9c.

SKINS—Prices are steady throughout. The movement is moderate. We quote as follows: No. 1 veal, 8-lb. and up, 9c. per lb.; No. 2, 8c.; dekins, from 55 to 60c.; culls, 20 to 25c.; sheepskins, 90c. to $1; lambs and pelts, 35c.

WOOL—There is a good demand, but at low figures. Our quotations are: Combing fleece, washed, 12 to 12½c., and unwashed, 7½ to 8c.

MONTREAL, August 15, 1901.

GROCERIES.

BUSINESS shows a little more animation this week. Sugar has developed a weaker tendency, and yellows are 10c. per 100 lb. lower. One of the features of the week is the improved demand for spot canned goods; orders for small lots are numerous, showing that stocks in retailers' hands are light. Tomatoes and corn are still being sold at very low values. The likelihood of a poor crop of apples has excited the spot apple market, both for gallon and evaporated apples. New quotations are out on currants, raisins, figs, dates and nuts. Valencia almonds are lower. The pack of all kinds of salmon is now certain to be at least a fair one. Canadian macaroni and vermicelli have been reduced ½c. per lb., being now quoted at 4½c. in boxes. Patna rice is ½c. per lb. higher, due to a rise of 9d. to 1s. per 112 lb. Dealers report a difficulty in securing sufficient supplies of fine salt. Foreign kippered herrings are very scarce. There is now on the market a stock of good hard-cured codfish, which has been scarce for some time; the ruling price is 5c. Payments are first-class and money is plentiful.

SUGARS.

The weakness in the sugar market which we mentioned in our last report, developed at the close of the week into a decline of 10c. per 100 lb. on all grades of yellows. This change was made in sympathy with New York. The demand both here and in the United States seems to have been disappointing this year, as at a moment when sugar is usually strong, it is this year extremely weak. New York is again reported quiet and easy, with centrifugal, 96 test, quoted at 4½c. Continental quotations are bullish, Tuesday's coming at 9s. 7½d., an advance of 4 to 5d. on the week. Local quotations are $4.50 per 100 lb. for granulated and $3.75 to $4.35 per 100 lb. for yellows, according to quality. City, 5c. extra.

SYRUPS.

Business in this line is at a standstill. Quotations are unchanged, but the high price of corn cannot be without its effect. Cane syrup is worth 1½ to 2c. per lb. and corn syrup 3 to 3¼c., according to parcel.

MOLASSES.

The market shows no new features this week, the firmness we have mentioned in previous issues being well maintained. The wharf has been the scene of some transactions, but trading is now limited. In small lots molasses is quoted at 29c. per gallon.

CANNED GOODS.

During the past two weeks there has been an extraordinarily strong run on tomatoes, corn and peas. The low prices would lead one to think this was speculative, but it appears only small lots are called for, showing that the goods are going into consumption. Tomatoes are still selling at 80c., corn at 75c., while peas are higher, in sympathy with the decision of the canners to advance prices on the new pack, which is said to be only 60 per cent. of that of last season. For futures there is said to be a little better demand from retailers, but there is still that indifference noticeable. New tomatoes are offered at 82½ to 85c., corn and peas at 80 to 82½c. Fruits are selling in fair quantities at unchanged quotations. Strawberries are worth $1.50 to arrive; raspberries, $1.40; gooseberries, $1.40; pears, $1.55 for 2's and $2 for 3's; Lombard plums, $1.20; greengages, $1.30; yellow peaches, $1.70 for 2's and $2.50 for 3's; sliced pineapple, $2.30, and $2.45 for grated; 3-lb. apples, 85c.; red pitted cherries, $1.80, and whites, $2.

At present wholesalers find it impossible to make contracts for gallon apples, offers to canners of $2.25 having been turned down. No spot goods are obtainable at $2; two months ago bargains were being offered at $1.65 to $1.75.

The latest telegraphic advices from the Coast say that the salmon run on the Fraser, Skeena and Rivers Inlet, have vastly improved and there is now a certainty that all contracts will be filled. Prices are steady and unchanged. Spot sockeye continues very scarce. Foreign kippered herrings are also almost unobtainable. There is talk of an advance in baked beans; white pea beans are now quoted at nearly $2 per bushel; the new crop may relieve the strain.

SPICES.

A good trade is passing in all kinds of spices at current prices. We quote: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12½ to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

Imported Patna rice has advanced 9d. to 1s. per 112 lb., and jobbers here have advanced prices ½c. per lb. Otherwise there is no change. The demand is fairly good. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in ½ bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10-bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in ½ bags; $3.10 in ¼ bags; and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¾c. per lb.

TEAS

Latest advices from Japan report an easy market on all grades below finest. Although the depreciation in values is scarcely noticeable, dealers here look for better bargains than are going and are content to wait for them. A better demand has set in, however, and several good sales have been reported. Statistics show that to date shipments to Canada have been higher this year than last; this must mean that goods have been coming into the United States through our ports for imports to the East have certainly been light.

Indian and Ceylon teas of low to medium grades continue firm. In London, the average price of sales of Indian tea during July was 7½d. per lb., against 7¼d. per lb. for the corresponding month last year, which means that the market is vastly improved. "Quotations for the commoner grades have been much over the low figures ruling lately. Ceylons do not show as much improvement, the average of public-sale prices being 6½d. per lb., against 7d. per lb., July, last year. The market is looked to improve still further in blacks. China blacks on the local market are in good demand and fair shape. In fact, it looks as if the tea business were to improve all around.

direct steamer. Two shillings are added for earliest shipments via Liverpool. This will enable the wholesaler to sell his new currants at 6½ to 7c. per lb. Spot currants are good property at 10c. for sound fruit.

RAISINS—Valencia raisins have opened at 20s. c.i.f.; at this figure Spanish firms expect to effect shipments about August 22. To the retail trade fruit will be sold at about 6½c. There is still a quantity of last year's fruit to be disposed of; prices are rather easier, 4½ to 4¾c. being a fair value for fine off-stalk, 5½c. for selected and 6c. for layers.

SULTANA RAISINS—The opening prices on the new crop of Sultanas are very high, being 42s. 3d. for 2-star, 39s. 3d. for 3-star and 34s. 9d. for 4-star, allowing the wholesalers to sell them at not less than 12, 11 and 10c. respectively.

DATES—Low prices and early shipments are being offered in dates. One firm is guaranteeing to have goods delivered here by November 1, selling to allow the wholesaler to quote 4½ to 5c. Shipments by first tide will mean a saving of ¼c.

FIGS—Comadre figs are quoted by one broker at 10s. 3d. c.i.f. for the first half of September, allowing the wholesaler to quote 3¾ to 4c. This is certainly a low figure.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—The market for evaporated apples is cited, holders asking 7½ to 8c. for fruit worth only 6c. some weeks ago. Goods are very scarce on this market.

NUTS.

Grenoble walnuts have opened at 75 francs c.i.f., early November shipment. Valencia shelled almonds are lower, selling now at 28c.; first arrivals will sell at 25c. There are no pecan nuts on the market.

GREEN FRUITS.

Again we report a brisk market in green fruits, a firmness being added to the activity. Six cars of Californian fruit have sold this week, and prices are higher. We quote as follows: Messina oranges, 200's, $4 per box; California Valencias, $4 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $4.25 to $4.50; 360's, $3.75 to $4.25 per box; Verdilli lemons, $4.50 to $5 per box; pineapples, 20 to 30c.; tomatoes, 50 to 60c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian apples, 25 to 35c. per basket; Californian plums, $1.75 to $2.50 per box; peaches, $1.50 to $1.75; limes, $1.50 per box; Ontario peaches, 50 to 60c. per basket; raspberries, 11 to 12c.; cocoanuts, $3.25 per bag of 100; Bartlett pears, $2.75 to $3.10 per box; blackberries, 8 to 10c.; watermelons, 20c.; bananas, No. 1, $1.75 to $2.25, and eight hands, $1.35 to $1.50.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—As yet the egg market is steady dealers paying 11c. for fresh candled stock, but there is an impression abroad that prices must go up. We quote: Candled stock, 12 to 12½c.; straight receipts, 11 to 11½c.; and No. 2, 9½ to 10½c. per doz.

HONEY—Supplies of new honey are now more liberal, consisting of splendid quality, both in comb and extracted; sales of the former have been made at 10 to 10½c., and for the latter, in tins, 8 to 8½c.

POTATOES—Receipts are increasing, but the price is still $1.75 in bbls.

ASHES—The market keeps steady under light receipts and a fair demand, last sales reported of first pots being at $4.25 to $4.35.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—In sympathy with the advance in wheat the flour market is decidedly firmer, and western millers are again demanding more money. In spring wheat flour there is also a firmer feeling. We quote as follows: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $4.00 to $4.10; winter wheat patents, $3.55 to $3.80; straight roller, $3.20 to $3.40; in bags, $1.60 to $1.65 and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.80.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 76 to 77c. afloat July; peas, 81c.; rye, 57 to 58c.; No. 2 barley, 51½ to 52c.; oats, 38 to 39c.; buckwheat, 56½ to 57c.; corn, 61 to 62c.

OATMEAL—The market is steady at the late advances. The demand for export is good and prices here are well maintained. Car lots are worth $4.05 to $4.10 on the track and $4.15 to $4.20 for jobbing lots.

FEED—There is still a good demand for bran and the supply continues to run light. Car lots of Ontario bran have sold at $15.50 to $17, shorts $17 to $18, and mouillie $19.50 to $24.50, as to quality.

BALED HAY—There is still a good busi-

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

CHEESE—The cheese market has inclined to be heavy, the transactions in Quebec cheese showing a decline of  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{8}$  c. in last week's level, goods selling at  $9\frac{1}{8}$  to  $9\frac{1}{4}$  c., the ruling price. Finest western is worth  $9\frac{7}{8}$  to 10 c.

BUTTER—While last week  $20\frac{3}{4}$  to 21 c. was obtainable for finest creamery, this week the highest bid was  $20\frac{1}{2}$  c. Western dairy has sold at 15 to  $15\frac{1}{4}$  c.

MARKET NOTES.

Eggs are firm and advancing.

There is a scarcity of fine salt.

Foreign kippered herrings are scarce.

Currants have advanced 6d. in Greece.

Imported Patna rice is  $\frac{1}{8}$  c. per lb. higher.

Yellow sugars are 10 c. per 100 lb. lower.

Indian teas of low to medium grades are higher.

Valencia raisins on spot are being marked down.

Californian peaches are 50 c. per box higher.

Macaroni and vermicelli are  $\frac{1}{2}$  c. per lb. higher.

Valencias are lower on spot in consequence of price of new goods.

The market for gallon apples and evaporated apples is excited.

The St. Lawrence Distillery Co. have decided to discontinue business in Montreal.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., August 15, 1901.

Business during the week has been but fairly active. Prices in the main tend upward, but in a few cases, of which dry fish is one, rather lower figures rule. The weather is dry and has been so, though there are signs of a change. Berries and potatoes have been much affected. The latter are very high for the season. The fine weather has resulted in a good crop of hay, particularly on Prince Edward Island. It is, however, affecting the pastures, and also the supply of milk going to the cheese factories. So far this season, however, the cheese output has been ahead of last season.

OIL—In burning oil, the low prices continue, and a large business for future shipment is the result. There are now reports of fine oil being found in the Northwestern States. Much of that lately found in the south and and southwest is used for fuel and gas, and so does not so much affect that of the older producing States. In paint oil, sales are light. Lubricating oils are but a limited demand. Cod oil is more freely received. Price is still quite high.

SALT—There is a good sale for Liverpool coarse salt. Prices this season have been held firm and at quite full figures. There is considerable to arrive shortly. In Canadian there is the usual summer business. Prices are unchanged. We quote as follows: Liverpool coarse, 52 to 58 c.; English factory-filled, 95 c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl., 20-lb. wood boxes, 22 c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 14 c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60 c. per 100 lb. (Selected lumps.)

CANNED GOODS.—There is quite a firm feeling in new vegetables. Dealers have been slow in buying, though there have been a good many orders placed, peas being bought quite freely. In fruits, this is not a large market. Prices are unchanged, except in gallon apples, which are more firmly held. In salmon the bare condition of the market has been relieved by the arrival of spring fish. Spot prices are quoted lower. Our market is using a rather cheaper grade of salmon than formerly. They are said to give general satisfaction. The pack of sardines will be large, but kippered herring will be short. Lobsters are more freely offered this season. Blueberries, it is thought, will be scarce.

GREEN FRUITS—New Brunswick apples are being freely received. The crop is a light one. While prices are rather easier, they are still high. In all fruits the supply seems light. Californian fruits are firmly held, particularly pears, which are the sellers. Watermelons are more freely offered, and are rather lower. The sale here is not large. While wild raspberries and blueberries are in short supply, quite large quantities are being shipped, chiefly to Boston.

DRIED FRUITS—Old Californian fruits have all been advanced on the Coast. The low prices having resulted in a large business, particularly in seeded raisins. It is said new raisins will open at the same price as last year. If they do it is difficult to see how they can have any large sale in Canada with Valencia and Malaga fruit quoted as at present. It looks as if Valencias would be quite low. It is expected first shipments will be made this week from Denia. Apricots and peaches, the first Californian fruits to be quoted, are quite high, particularly apricots. There is but a fair sale here. All spot goods move slowly. New peels will come on a bare market. Dried apples are firmer and evaporated are higher and scarce. New are expected to be high.

DAIRY PRODUCE—In cheese, while the output has been large it has been shipped away. Local stock is light. Twins are needed and higher prices are obtained. Eggs show little change, and there is a fair sale. Butter is rather firmer. Good butter is scarce.

SUGAR—Prices are unchanged. The low figures continue. There is much interest in the effort of the wholesale grocers of the three Provinces to arrive at an agreement with the Canadian refineries in regard to prices. The terms of the agreement have been accepted both by the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia associations. It is said the regulations will in a few weeks go into effect. The chief features are equal prices at all points and the shutting out of foreign sugars. The latter point is one of main interest. One or two dealers object to this and remain outside. It is expected the Canadian refineries will refuse to sell them.

MOLASSES—Market is unchanged. The outside country has been well supplied and sales are now light. Low prices still rule.

FISH—There has been little change, though the tendency is to lower figures. This is most noticed in dry codfish, the price having been higher than the conditions warranted. Freer receipts have caused a drop. In fresh fish the variety is again getting limited. Shad comes to hand slowly. For pickled and smoked herring the season is early. We quote; Large and medium dry cod, $3.75 to $3.80; small, $2.50 to $2.65; haddies, 5 to 5½c.; smoked herring, 12 to 13c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2½c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.60 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $2.15 to $2.25 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl.; $2.75 per half bbl.; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl.; $2.25 per half bbl.; halibut, 10c.; shad, 10 to 22c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour is unchanged, and there is but a fair business. It is expected firmer figures will rule. Feed is scarce, and is high. Oats are scarce. Oatmeal, while but a fair sale, is firmer in price. Beans are higher and stock light. The trade were taken by surprise. Cornmeal also surprised the trade, the advance finding light stocks. Split peas and blue peas are firm at full figures. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $3.70 to $3.80; medium, $3.60 to $3.70; oatmeal, $4.00 to $4.10; cornmeal, $2.90 to $3; middlings, $2.2 to $2.3; oats, 48 to 50c.; hand-picked beans, $1.95 to $2; prime, $1.85 to $1.90; yellow eye beans, $2.40 to $2.60; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; barley, $3.90 to $4; hay, $12 to $14.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

J. Hunter White called on the wholesale grocers of Moncton this week in the interests of the N. K. Fairbank Co.

New salmon, "Red Clover" brand, was received this week and was distributed to the trade by the local broker, E. T. Sturdee.

C. H. Clerke, St. Stephen, called on THE GROCER this week. While in the city Mr. Clerke bought quite freely from the local brokers, including a large purchase of foreign sugar.

A. I. Teed, of St. Stephen; F. P. Reid and J. H. Harris, of Moncton; A. Randolph, of Fredericton, and other representatives of the wholesale grocery trade of our Province, were in the city the past week attending the meeting of the Guild in the interest of the sugar regulations.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Man., August 12, 1901.

THE week has been marked by almost perfect weather for the season. Harvesting operations have begun in all parts of the Province. In fact, the first fields of wheat were cut on the 29th of July, and the first threshing was done on the 7th of August. The crop is surprisingly well forward considering the weight of the straw and heads. The anxiety as to harvest help is materially relieved by the arrival of 7,000 harvest hands of an excellent standard of efficiency. The time at which August frost is feared has passed and the only thing that now worries the farmer is whether the railroad strike will be over in sufficient time to get the crop to the lakes.

Trade is good in all lines and the general tone of business is in very marked contrast to the corresponding period of last year, when the drouth was being followed by a wet harvest. There are few changes in prices, and the majority of these are in the shape of advances in cereals.

FLOUR—Trade is good and prices are unchanged: Hungarian brand, $2; Five Roses, $2; Glenora Patent, $1.85; Red Patent, $1.85; Alberta, $1.65; Manitoba, $1.50; Medora, $1.45; Imperial XXX., $1.20; XXX., $1.15.

CEREALS—The market in all lines is high and firm. White beans have made the sharpest advance and are quoted at $2.10 to $2.15; this is a jump from $1.90. Rolled oats are remarkably firm at $2.25 to $2.30 per 80-lb. sack. Cornmeal is firm at $1.70 to $1.75; split peas have advanced and are now $2.50 to $2.60. Demand in all lines is fair.

RICE—Is higher and is expected to further advance owing to a reported shortage of Japan. The advance in the primary markets is fully 1 cent per lb.

CANNED GOODS—There is every indication that all lines of newly canned vegetables will experience a sharp advance before August 15. It is evident that the syndicate are controlling peas, corn and beans. Fruits, on the contrary, seem to be offered at such prices as suit the canner, there being no agreed price. As far as this market is concerned things are no more satisfactory than they have been at any time during the past year, nor is there any indication of improvement.

SUGAR—The demand is excellent, but yellow sugars show a drop of 10c. since last writing. No cause is assigned for this.

EVAPORATED AND DRIED FRUITS—Reports are to hand that there has been a further advance of 1-1c. on apricots in California. This makes an advance of 1-1c. during the past ten days. No change has yet taken place in prices here, but an advance is expected. Reports also indicate that all the small prunes have been bought up and that prices are likely to be advanced.

GREEN FRUITS—The first Ontario tomatoes are to hand this week, and, as so frequently happens, the quality was anything but up to standard. Supplies of fruit have been somewhat limited on this market all week owing to the extremely hot weather to the South, but more plentiful supplies are looked for in the next few days. Prices are higher than is usual at this season. Plums, Cal., $2.25; Washington, $2; primes, $2.50; peaches, $1.75; Pears, Washington, $3; Californian Bartlett pears, $4; apples, Washington, $2.75; grapes, in 8-lb. baskets, 80c.; bananas, $2.50 to $3; oranges, $1.75 to $5.75; lemons, $7.50; tomatoes, in 1-basket crates, $2.25.

CURED MEATS—The market is very firm with a good demand. Sugar-cured hams, 14c.; sugar-cured bellies, 11c.; sugar-cured backs, short, 14c.; sugar-cured shoulders, 10c.; dry salt, long clear bacon, 11-1-2c.; smoked, long clear bacon, 12-1-2c.; shoulders, cut square, 9-1-2c. Lard is also firm at $2.35 for 20-lb. pails.

BUTTER—Creamery butter is dull but the price still remains at 15-1-2c. to 16c. factories, and there is more movement in the western market than was noticeable last week although there will probably not be room for more than an odd car until about September 1. Shipments east are not very satisfactory. Dairy butter is dull and prices range from 8 to 11c. point of shipment. There is little or no demand and stocks are going into cold storage.

CHEESE—The demand is fair and prices are 7-1-1 to 7-1-2c. Winnipeg, for the best grades of cheese.

EGGS—Are firm and in good demand at 12 to 12-1-2c. Winnipeg.

The "Salada" Tea Co. say that last week was the largest on record for Ceylon greens.

Falsely described teas are very numerous. They all bear the name Ceylon, but it is a fact that, with the exception of Ross's High Grade, they are all more or less adulterated with China or other teas.

The packers who make the greatest claims are the greatest sinners in this respect.

We ask the grocer to investigate this matter for himself.

UNIVERSITY COMMERCIAL COURSE.

AS a result of a communication from The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the University of Toronto has decided to introduce a commercial course, providing two years of study, leading to a diploma in commerce. If the experiment proves satisfactory a further term of one year will probably be added, leading to the reception of a degree. To enter the course the curriculum prescribes an examination equivalent to that of the junior matriculation, in the following subjects:—English, modern history and geography, mathematics, and any two modern languages. Like any other course, however, it is important to note this one can be entered without any preliminary examination. A student who successfully passes the examination at the end of the first year will be presumed to have been able to pass the entrance.

The subjects of study in the first year are: English, and two of the four modern languages, viz., French, German, Spanish and Italian; application of mathematics to commerce; elementary inorganic chemistry; elementary physics; elementary economics (of the second year-honors); drawing (optional). In the second year the subjects required are: English; any two modern languages of the second year, with exercises in commercial literature; economics (including economic geography, economic history, banking, public finance, and transportation); commercial law; geology and mineralogy of the second year; or applied chemistry; or history and principles of architecture or electricity, with laboratory work; or mechanical drawing. The course of drawing in the first year will lead naturally to those of architecture and mechanical drawing in the second year.

ally to those of architecture and mechanical drawing in the second year.

The Toronto Board of Trade has offered $250 to be given as scholarships. This sum will likely be divided into two sums of $200 and $50, to be competed for by students of the second year.

Another departure of much interest to the industrial classes is the formation of a branch of The British Chemical Association by Prof. Lang, of the chemistry department of the university. The members of this association will be chiefly the chemists of the large manufacturing firms of the country. They will meet at fixed times, and papers will be read and open discussions held upon subjects of practical interest and importance to them in their business. Demonstrations and experiments also will take place, and everything will be done to render the association of great value to those interested.

TRADE CHAT.

John Smiley has opened a new grocery store at Eilershouse, N.S.

On Saturday night the large roller flour mill at Battersea, Ont., belonging to G. S. Wakeford, was completely destroyed by fire. Nothing was saved.

Orangeville, Ont., passed a by-law last week granting a loan of $10,000 to H. F. G. Pett, on condition that he operate a biscuit and confectionery factory in that town.

An Owen Sound, Ont., despatch says that on Monday the alteration of the largest of the C. P. R. elevators at that place, to a huge cornmeal mill was commenced. The mill will be operated by Chandler & Co., of Richford, Vermont. Corn will be brought from Chicago and other ports, ground here in bond and shipped to the Eastern States at the rate of 2,000 barrels a day. Large cooper shops will be erected to supply the barrels.

N. Messier & Cie., grocers, St. Henri de Montreal, Que., have assigned on demand of Laporte, Martin & Co., wholesale grocers, the principal creditors being The Gunn, Langlois Co., $234, and Laporte, Martin & Co., $859.

The delivery horse of J. B. Ridge, grocer, 172 King William street, Hamilton, Ont., ran away on Friday last. Mr. Ridge's son was thrown out and narrowly escaped serious injury. He is up and about now, however.

The output of the Manitoba Government creameries, though reduced in the spring by bad roads, is expected to be fully as large as last year. About 750,000 lb. will probably be made. This goes principally to British Columbia, the Yukon, China and Japan.

A large part of the business section of Armstrong, B.C., was burned Saturday. The total loss will be $90,000; insurance, $23,000. The origin of the fire was incendiary. A half-wild man named Eagles started the blaze with the aid of coal oil. Eagles confessed his guilt, was arrested and is now in jail.

Ramsay Bros. & Co., wholesale candy and nut dealers, Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., intend to erect a $20,000 factory in that city for the manufacture of all kinds of biscuits, ship's bread, etc. At the present time large quantities of biscuits and crackers are imported into British Columbia from the east and during last year over 12 railroads were imported from one house alone, while one dealer in the city is said to have sold some $20,000 worth.

CURRENT MARKET QUOTATIONS

August 15, 1901.

This list is corrected every Thursday, and the quotations herein given are for the cities of Montreal, Toronto, St. John, N. B., and Halifax. The prices are solicited for publication, and are of such quantities and qualities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit. For Winnipeg market report and prices, see page 4.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices. All quotations for staple products are under the direct control of the Editors, who call daily upon all the leading houses in the principal centres.

Reforms in Railway Travel.

A World reporter met a prominent business man yesterday who spends a great deal of his time between Toronto and Montreal. Said he:

"A revolution has been effected as between Toronto and Montreal by the Grand Trunk Railway in connection with the fast express, the International Limited, both ways, between the two cities."

"How is that?" inquired The World.

"In this way, that there are now lots of business men who spend a day, or a portion of it, in one city and the next day, or a portion of it, in the other, and who spend only one night on the train. For instance, I am in Montreal, say, this Monday night, and take the 10.30 train for Toronto, arriving here at 7.15 a.m. I go to a hotel and have breakfast by 8, and from 8 to 11.15 a.m. I have a business conference with two or three men in Toronto. I have especially come to see, and then take the International Limited at 11.30 and pull into Bonaventure Station, Montreal, at 7 o'clock sharp that evening. I can sleep in Montreal that night in my own home, if I have my home there, or I can return to Toronto and be here next morning. Or, going the other way, I can leave Toronto at night and be in Montreal in the morning, have some time for business and be back in Toronto at 4.15 in the afternoon, although this latter train is not so good for the purpose as the other one. What the whole thing goes to show is that a man can now do business in Montreal or Toronto with a day and a night trip instead of a one day and two nights trip. The new way is cheaper, it saves time and it gives a man an extra night in his own bed."

Continuing, the same gentleman said: "It is a remarkable fact that railways like the Grand Trunk can now run from 50 to 60 miles an hour without trouble. Fast trains early in the morning or late at night will knock a large amount of night travel between cities separated by three or four hundred miles into a cocked hat, and people will make the trip in five or six hours, either early in the morning or late at night, or one journey at night and one by day, and in that way save at least one sleeping-car fare. For instance, journeys between New York and Chicago will, for some time at least, still involve a night on the train, and so will between Toronto and Halifax, but more and more there is a large class of travellers who want to go from Toronto to Montreal, Montreal to New York, or Toronto to New York, or Toronto to Chicago without taking a sleeper, and the new class of 50-mile an hour trains will enable them to do this. The Grand Trunk's International Limited is the first of this class of train to appear in Canada, and it has met with splendid recognition from the travelling public."—Toronto World.

Factory: Fort Wayne, Ind.

When you are in the market for an oil tank it will pay you to look around you and to observe the "Earmarks" which each bears. If the tank is simply a round uncased galvanized iron can, that is an "Earmark." It is unprotected and liable to be SMASHED and INJURED by the first oil barrel rolled against it, and these things will happen. If it pumps but a small quantity at a stroke, that is an "Earmark." That indicates that it is SLOW. If you must stand a five-gallon can upon the floor outside the tank and use a connecting pipe to run the oil into it, that is an "Earmark." It is not cleanly and the oil is likely to overflow and run on the floor.

If the cabinet is big and clumsy, that is an "Earmark" that indicates that it takes up more floor space than is necessary, which is useless. There are a great many "Earmarks" which serve as unerring guides so that he who runs may read.

A word to the wise man is sufficient.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—The Argentine Frozen-Meat Trade—Miscellaneous Notes.

THE ARGENTINE FROZEN MEAT TRADE.

THE exports from the Argentine Republic, both of live stock and frozen animals, are very large. For 1899 these two items represented 62.5 per cent. of the total exports of the country. Early in 1900 the outbreak of the "foot-and-mouth disease" closed English and other European ports to live stock from the River Plate regions (Argentine Republic and Uruguay), which caused a great reduction in the exports of live animals. This had the effect, however, of increasing the exports of frozen beef. For the past three years the exports of frozen meats from the Argentine Republic have been as follows:

| ar.       | Mutton.Pounds. | Beef.Quarters. |
|-----------|--------------------|--------------------|
| 1898..... | 123,300,000        | 65,000             |
| 1899..... | 124,300,000        | 113,000            |
| 1900..... | 118,600,000        | 261,000            |

The greater part of these exports were to British markets, as can be seen from the following table of weights and valuations for the years named, according to the official statistics of the United Kingdom:

| Year.     | Mutton.Pounds. | Value.     | Beef.Pounds. | Value.   |
|-----------|--------------------|------------|------------------|----------|
| 1898..... | 110,620,000        | £1,357,926 | 10,828,800       | £149,341 |
| 1899..... | 114,120,000        | 1,490,076  | 15,036,300       | 200,531  |
| 1900..... | 111,480,000        | 1,689,078  | 41,226,200       | 667,298  |

The figures represent the following valuations in decimal currency:

| Year.     | Mutton.     | Beef.      | Total.       |
|-----------|-------------|------------|--------------|
| 1898..... | $6,608,347 | $ 729,201 | $ 7,437,548 |
| 1899..... | 7,251,555   | 975,884    | 8,227,439    |
| 1900..... | 8,176,100   | 3,247,406  | 11,423,506   |

There are, according to the Monthly Bulletin of the Bureau of the American Republics, three firms engaged in the frozen meat industry in the Argentine Republic, of which the River Plate Fresh Meat Co. controls the greater part of the trade. This company owns immense works near Buenos Ayres, on the Parana River. During the past three years there were shipped from these works 2,389,982 frozen wethers and 106,472 quarters of beef. In 1898 the shipments were 852,692 frozen wethers; in 1899, 790,758 frozen wethers and 28,338 quarters of beef; in 1900, 746,532 frozen wethers and 78,134 quarters of beef. The capital of the company is £350,000 ($1,703,275). In 1896 its profits were £51,540; in 1897 its loss was £7,435; in 1898 the profits were £33,683; in 1899, £49,320, and in 1900, £44,865.

CANADA'S PRODUCTS IN BRITAIN.

Prof. Robertson, Dairy Commissioner, who recently returned from Great Britain, addressed the members of the Montreal Butter and Cheese Association on Monday, giving a review of his experiences in connection with the butter and cheese and also the egg trade. Mr. Robertson stated that Canada's trade in food products with Great Britain was increasing very fast. Wheat and flour had in the last ten years increased 16 times, butter 15 times, cheese had been doubled and bacon more than 20 times. As regarded the cheese, he found everywhere that more attention was paid to the body than to the flavor, and the flavor objected to was what was known as heated flavor. The cheese that sold best were those cured at a low temperature. Cheese cured in a high temperature had done Canada a great deal of damage.

With regard to transportation, he found in some shipments that while the main body had firmness and solidity, it had begun to ooze at the edge of the boxes. This was largely due to the heat experienced on the railway cars, and he could always point out the through shipments compared with those which had been in cold storage in Montreal. Then there was always a generated heat to be contended against, and which made the cheese rancid at the top. In this connection he stated that not only was a perfect and complete ventilation required, but a forced circulation of air in every part of the ship where apples, eggs, butter or cheese were carried. All the steamship lines, with one exception, were putting in electric fans with this object in view, as a result of representations made by the Department. The cost of these was about £1,000 per steamer, and the Government had offered to pay one-half the cost.

Prof. Robertson also urged the necessity of better boxes and the proper stenciling of the weight. Speaking of butter, he urged that it should be shipped in exactly 56-lb. packages. But here, while the cold storage system was in successful operation, he had to find fault with the receiving agents on the other side. Butter had been left 28 hours, and even 52 hours, on the wharf, while agents went around with samples to intending purchasers, the result being that it had melted to the depth of three-quarters of an inch.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

There has been an improvement in the demand for dressed meats, but prices are unchanged throughout. We quote as follows: Dressed hogs, $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.; mutton, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $7.50 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, 10 to 11c. per lb.; beef carcasses, $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8½ to 9½c. for best; fore quarters, 4½ to 5½c. for best; calves, $7 to $8 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

There is an excellent trade doing in pork products, and, as stocks were much smaller than was the case last year, the market is decidedly stiff. We quote: Long clear bacon, 11½c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 14 to 14½c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 13½ to 14c.; medium hams, 13½ to 14c.; large hams, 12½ to 13c.; shoulder hams, 11½c.; backs, 15c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 10¾c.; tubs, 11c.; pails, 11¼c.

MONTREAL.

A fair trade has been done in smoked meats, but mess pork is quiet. The market is firm throughout. We quote as follows: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.92 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.90 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.88 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; Cottolene, 9½c. per lb. in tierces, and 10½c. in 26 lb. pails, and 10¼c. in 50-lb. boxes, for Quebec.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Pork is scarce and high. There is a limited sale. Beef is quiet. While prices are firmer they are not high. Lard is firm at the higher figures. There is a fair stock.

AN INTERESTING EGG CASE.

An important decision was given at Osgoode Hall by Justice Ferguson of the High Court of Justice in the case of Saunders v. the Ontario Bank the other day. The action was to recover $315 damages upon a warranty of 4 500 doz. eggs sold by defendants to plaintiffs at Ottawa for 13c. per doz. The alleged warranty was that the eggs were in good condition and of good quality and equal to sample. It was shown that while the sale, which was made by defendant's agent, O'Reilly, was a "sale by sample" the eggs in the sample box were good eggs, and not frozen at all, but at the time the sample was exhibited a large proportion of the bulk was frozen eggs. The result was that plaintiffs, who paid $585 for the eggs, had to sell them for what they would bring, which was $270, leaving a direct loss of $315. The principal is answerable for every such wrong of the agent as is committed in the course of the agency or service, and for the benefit of the principal, though no express command or privity of the principal is proved, and in this respect no sensible distinction can be drawn between the case of fraud and the case of any other wrong. O'Reilly was acting in the interest and for the benefit of the defendants. The defendants are liable to the plaintiffs for the loss they have sustained by reason of the eggs being frozen, which, on the evidence, is $315. Damages for loss of profits on a resale of the goods are too remote. Interest cannot be allowed, because the damages were unascertained and unliquidated.

Judgment was given in favor of plaintiffs for $315, with costs on the High Court scale.

A RIPLEY FIRM SELLS OUT.

Marquis Bros., general merchants, Ripley, Ont., have sold out to D. N. McDonald, formerly in business at Belmore. Marquis Bros. have been in business in Ripley about six years. C. E. Marquis, who has been the sole partner for the past four years, is enjoying a well earned holiday at Pickering, his old home.

"I have always found THE CANADIAN GROCER helpful to me," said Mr. Marquis, when passing through Toronto, "and not only to me, but to my clerks as well."

REDUCING WEIGHT.

"Gazzam has been going without his breakfast for a month to reduce his flesh," said Twynn.

"With what effect?" asked Tripplett.

"He is losing two pounds a week and is very much tickled over it."

"Well, if he keeps on at that rate, he'll be tickled to death."—Detroit Free Press.

LARD

Orders can be filled by any of the leading jobbers in Canada or direct.

No hog lard is as pure and wholesome as Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound. This brand is the oldest on the market, commanding the preference of consumers everywhere.

Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound commands a better price than hog lard at times when hog lard is cheap; at present our "Boar's Head" Brand is sold at 1½c. to 2c. per lb. less than hog lard.

Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound is composed chiefly of vegetable oil, and on account of its purity and wholesome quality is preferred to hog lard by those who have tried it. It will go further in cooking than any hog lard.

Write for quotations on Fairbank's "Boar's Head" Standard Refined Lard Compound. It will give satisfaction to your trade and increase your profits. We guarantee the quality.

MORE FUN FOR TORONTO GROCERS.

THE chief topic of interest at the regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association on Monday evening was the report of the excursion committee. There was a good attendance at the meeting, which was presided over by the president, Benj. Panter.

The excursion committee reported that, while the excursion had not been as well patronized as in previous years, owing to the fact that it was by train, there would be a balance of about $200 when all expenses had been met. They also stated that, owing to the relay race and two other contests not having been run off, there were prizes to the value of about $40 left over. They had, in consequence, decided to have another afternoon's sport on Wednesday, September 11, at Exhibition Park, when the following programme of sports will be given:

Half-mile relay race, eight men a side—East End grocers vs. West End grocers.

Half-mile race for grocers' horses, trotting or pacing; best two heats in three; sulkies barred—horse to be owned at least 30 days and driven by grocer.

Half-mile running race for grocers' horses; best two heats in three—horse to be owned at least 30 days by grocer and ridden by himself, his son or his clerk.

Baseball match—Teams to be decided later.

Quoit tournament—Open to grocers and travellers.

A warm discussion ensued as to whether these events should be made open to all grocers in the city or restricted to members of the association. It was ultimately decided that as the fee for membership in the association is so small, and as the association is working for the good of the trade of the city generally, it would be best to restrict entries to members and to allow grocers outside the association who wished to enter the events to join the association in the meantime.

President Panter, Vice-president Sykes and J. G. Gibson were appointed a committee to look after securing officials for the horse races.

D. J. Kelly and Jerry Burns were appointed to look after the East End relay team, while J. Nolan and F. Thorne will organize the team from the West End.

The baseball game will be under the direction of D. W. Clark, J. W. Sanderson and D. J. Kelly.

As it is desired to have a large attendance present, no admission will be charged, though, as one of the members expressed it, "Why, it looks as if there would be more fun there than we had at Oshawa!"

The secretary reported that a challenge had been received from the Wholesale Fruit

Dealers for a game of baseball at the picnic of the Toronto Retail Fruit Merchants' Association on Wednesday, and that it had been accepted by the baseball committee.

A report was made by Secretary McKinnon of the action of the council at its last session before the summer vacation, when it decided not to give the final reading to the trading-stamp by-law and to the amendment to the early-closing by-law, but had given both these by-laws a first reading. It was considered advisable to take no further action, except to use influence with individual members of council—at least until after the September meeting.

QUALITY OF ASSAM TEA.

McMeekin & Co., in their latest tea report say:

"It is reported from Calcutta that the quality of tea being made, especially in Assam, is very satisfactory and some excellent Darjeelings are now in transit to London. The quantity exported to the end of July is 5,500,000 lb. below the total at same date of last year, so it is evident that either by natural causes or by artificial means the output is being restricted. The moderate increase in deliveries during June and July is a satisfactory feature, as showing that the extremely low level of prices is having its customary effect in increasing the consumption both at home and abroad, although part of the increase has been at the expense of Ceylon tea."

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

AN INTERESTING BOOKLET.

The industrial department of the Lackawanna Railroad, in charge of William B. Hunter, and having its headquarters at 26 Exchange Place, New York City, has just issued a 300-page booklet under the caption, "Industrial Opportunities." This work treats of every town on the line, showing its population, its distance from New York and from Buffalo, its railroad facilities, its leading industries, its leading shipments, its rate of taxation, cost of labor, rent of houses, how lighted, whether it has water-works, principal power, approximate cost of steam coal, approximate value of lands, and describing vacant lands or factories as available for manufacturing purposes. In the introduction the aim of the Lackawanna Railroad is set forth as follows:

1st. To give assistance to manufacturers in the selection of the most favorable sites for their industrial enterprises.

2nd. To help cities, towns and villages along the line to expand and broaden through the location of new industries.

Advantages of this line in the mining regions of New Jersey and Pennsylvania and the agricultural districts in the State of New York are fully set forth. Copies of the book will be forwarded on application to the Industrial Department, 28 Exchange Place, New York.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

The Auer Gas Lamp

Money-Back Style.

Makes its own Gas.

OUR No. 8 is the best all around lamp on the market for either the store or home.

IT IS FITTED with an up and down adjuster so that the burner can be lowered two feet. You can hang it on a hook or screw it up—we supply a hook and a screw plate with it.

IT GIVES a light of a 100 candle power and is a fine lamp to show goods with.

THE COST of running it is less than an oil lamp and there is no smell or smoke from it.

Stephens' Pickles and Malt Vinegar.

The great volume of business handled by John Stephens, Son & Co., Limited, of England, enables them to sell first-class goods at low prices. Their pickles are always sound and well packed. They are preserved in absolutely pure Malt Vinegar, brewed by the Messrs. Stephens. Two styles of bottles; one, plain corked Imperial Pints, the other, Lever-Top bottles, Imperial Pints. The labels are showy and artistic.

Stephens' Malt Vinegar is brewed from absolutely pure English Malt, in one of the largest Breweries in England. Nothing superior can be produced. It is sold in bulk or in bottles, as you prefer. It is always the same genuine Pure Malt Vinegar that has made the name of "Stephens" famous the world over.

Your wholesaler can supply you with the above if you insist.

Payne's Pharaoh Cigar.

The first profit you make from the sale of my Pharaoh Cigar is simply the stepping-stone which leads to other profits—because the Pharaoh has never yet failed to satisfy the most critical smoker. It has a clear Havana filler (each cigar is the same clear Havana) and the choicest Sumatra wrapper that money can buy. It burns freely and is sweet down to the last whiff.

The customer who is once a buyer of the Pharaoh pays you a steady profit, because, after that, he will buy no other.

It pays to sell the "Pharaoh."

What He Said } about MOLINA

(The Wheat Breakfast Food)

We just received a letter this morning (August 19th) which shows once more the steadfast loyalty with which the friends of "High-Quality" goods stand by them. We would publish the name of the writer (but have not had time to ask his permission) who is one of the most successful grocers in Western Ontario. This is what he writes under date of August 17th:

"We were under the painful necessity of removing a Gent. from our shop a few days ago, who claimed to be offering a much better Rolled Wheat than 'TILLSON'S.' We protested against the slander of so good an article, and were told we did not know what we were talking about, hence, the cause of asking the offender to take a walk—he left.

"Yours truly, _____"

A PRIZE WINDOW DISPLAY.

THE accompanying cut shows the window of William Hunter & Co., Nelson, B.C., which was awarded the first prize in the Dominion Day competition. The window was arranged by Charles Longhurst, the firm's head clerk. "J. M." sends the following description of the display :

"Color scheme, red, white and blue. Background, plaited bunting trimmed with tissue paper. Centrepiece, canopy made of plaited bunting, at back of which was hanging a map of Canada, under the canopy a female figure pointing to the map and representing Miss Canada ; card fastened to the map with these words, 'Canada our Country.' Right-hand side of window was a display of Canadian vegetables, and on left-hand side of window a display of Canadian fruits, while along front of window the new forces which science is constantly placing at the disposal of capital. In fact, the British merchant is said to be behind the times, and that Americans are making good their boast to "lick creation."

The British merchant himself does not appear to be very much concerned about the matter, but some of his friends have apologized and explained, without being convincing. They say the position of the British merchant, if he is behind his competitors in the world's market, is due to restriction imposed by the law of the land and of labor. If labor were more docile, and paid more consideration to the risks of capital, and less to the dividends, and if the law of the land did not interfere with child and woman's labor, and—if competition were not so keen—the British merchant could still whack the foreigner.

there are manufacturers in this country, and connected with the grocery trade, too, who have demonstrated beyond cavil that scientific methods applied to manufacture and the conduct of an industry may be safely undertaken with advantage to capital and to labour and the consumer in every respect. Pre-eminent among these is the firm of Messrs. J. and J. Colman, Limited, of London and Norwich, proprietors of the Carrow Works, and the founders of Carrow Colony.

This stupendous business, whose products are known, and favorably known, all over the world, was established in 1777. Its history shows a continuous growth, not merely in the volume of trade, but in its methods. No new idea, contrivance, or useful invention, that could be utilized has ever had an unwelcome reception at the Carrow Works. For three-quarters of a mile its factories extend along the river front, and cover 32 acres of ground. The commodities prepared are, chiefly, mustard, starch, blue and self-rising flour, but none of the by-products of the raw material used are neglected ; even the husks of the mustard seed are made into a salable article, after the oil has been extracted. Mechanical appliances to lighten the human labor are used for every practical purpose. Boxes and casks are made and filled by machinery, and packets of starch are wrapped by machines. Feed them and they will go on for ever. The same watchfulness that is shown to secure and apply every new improvement that science can provide or experience can suggest, is shown in all matters affecting the conditions under which its nearly 3,000 employees perform their duties. This is the tradition of the Carrow Works, and it is unquestionably the secret of its success.

Mr. Jeremiah Colman, the chairman of the company, would, if his own inclinations only were consulted, prefer a much quieter life than a sense of duty permit him to enjoy. The owner of a historic estate at Gatton Park, which, in the prereform days, returned two members to Parliament, he is never so happy as when he can snatch a few hours away from the responsibilities and anxieties connected with business or country duties, and feel literally at home surrounded by his family circle, able to study and enjoy matters horticultural and agricultural, and the recreations becoming the life of a country gentleman, but no man can occupy such a position in commercial circles as is his, without having to take a place in the public life and duties of his country.

He is a Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Surrey, and one of His Majesty's Lieutenants for the City of London. He has been High Sheriff of his county and Master of the Worshipful Com-the words 'Welcome to Nelson,' with oranges. Encircling the window were colored electric lights."

MR. JEREMIAH COLMAN.

From Grocers' Assistant, London.

WE have heard a great deal lately about the British manufacturer that is not greatly to his credit. The organs of public opinion have lectured him with the gusto due to such superior "copy," and tolerant as the "O.P.O.'s" generally are to conservatism in its political aspect, they will have none of it in business, if it undermine the commercial supremacy of Britain.

The British merchant is, so they say, slow, very, very slow, to avail himself

What is the truth of this matter? When has labour organized or unorganized, sought to prevent capital from providing more scientific methods to lighten labour, and make it more productive? It were a sacrilege to use the power of Science to increase the burden on labour, and to increase the horror intensity of the worker's life. The application of the utmost scientific knowledge to the process of manufacture and the conduct of every industry is imperative, if the sum of human happiness is to be increased. The merchant or nation of merchants that do this will attain a supremacy in a wider world than the world of commerce.

In spite of the croaking of the pessimists,

Our packages are larger and more attractive in style than any others.

The quality of our goods is superior to anything else on the market.

pany of Skinners. He has been chairman of the Court of Governors of the Tonbridge and other schools, and is vice-chairman of the Commercial Union Assurance Co., Limited. He succeeded the late Viscount Oxenbridge as president of the Redhill Literary Institute. He is an advocate of technical and secondary education, and believes that England's commercial prosperity depends upon a development of our educational system. In his university days he was captain of his college cricket eleven—surely a diversity of interests and activity. In politics a Liberal, the way he has used his great influence outside the House of Commons leaves no regret that he has, so far, refused to stand for election to that assembly.

Mr. Colman has opinions on the question of what contributes to success in life. He attaches importance to method, exactness, punctuality—thoroughness, in fact. He sympathizes with those who fail, but thinks that failure is more often due to lack of application than to lack of ability. He dislikes unbusiness-like ways in business matters, and likes to have a concise statement—the exclusion of irrelevant matter. "Consider carefully what has to be accomplished; when the facts before you are weighed, decide to the best of your judgment, and act firmly and promptly," is the sum and substance of Mr. Colman's advice to those seeking the road to success.

A man of wide views, unostentatious, tolerant and generous; a prince among merchant princes.

INQUIRIES AND ANSWERS.

PURCHASERS OF ASHES.

An inquiry for the names of purchasers of wood ashes in car-load lots appeared in last week's issue. D. Richards, of the Oxford Soap Works, Woodstock, Ont., writes that The Bowker Fertilizer Co., Boston, Mass. and Munroe Bros, Oswego, N.Y., are the largest purchasers of Canadian wood ashes, and Mr. Richards says that last year over 6,000 car-loads were exported to

New York and to the New England States. The following, he says, sell wood ashes in bags, barrels or bulk: F. R. Lalor, Dunnville, Ont.; A. P. Joynt, Seaforth, Ont.; John Joynot, Lucknow, Ont.; Fred Richards, Culloden, Ont.; H. Richards, Bothwell, Ont.; Thomas Potts, Brantford, Ont.

PROPOSAL REGARDING CANNED GOODS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER,—It does not require abnormal perspicacity to see that the wholesale and retail grocery trade are heartily sick of the canned goods business. Several times during the past few months we have heard men in the business say that they were so disgusted with the line that they were inclined to drop it altogether. They seemed to have lost all hope of a remedy for the depression that has been the chief feature of the market for some years. They have seen fall down one by one every scheme that has been formulated to bolster up values, and now they are disheartened.

Last year opened out well, and several firms stocked up exceedingly heavily while everybody purchased freely and with confidence. But what happened is known to everyone in the trade. The market went to pieces, and early in January wholesale values descended below cost. Even so far back as that there were travellers ordered not to push canned goods. Managers had concluded that they would sooner not deal in the article at all than turn it over at a sheer loss in payment for interest, insurance, freight and other expense charges.

It was not as if it were a speculative loss. Such are bound to come at times, and can be faced as such. But this came out of the constitution of the market, and it has been realized that that constitution must be changed ere gains can be made. Naturally the wholesalers blame the canners, and in reply the latter say the distributors cause their own losses by throat-cutting.

At all events, some radical change is necessary. Canned goods have come to be the staple article in the grocery trade around which price-cutting centres. Other articles have been in similar positions. Sugar was once a profitless commodity. Rice, starch and other necessities were exactly the same bugbears to the wholesalers at one time. They threatened to eat the insides out of the business. Yet all this has been changed. Then, why not work the same change in regard to canned goods?

I believe that it can be done—simply by putting canned goods on a fair wholesale combine basis. Previous to this year the plan has not been feasible, for the canners have been apart and the large number of brands were an insurmountable barrier to a uniform price. But now all packs are placed upon the same footing and the canners' syndicate are in the same position to set the wholesale prices as well as their own, just as the Sugar Refiners' Association does in regard to sugar, or as the Canadian rice mill does in regard to rice, or the starch firms with starch. The idea has been worked successfully in ten or a dozen different lines; why not in canned goods? I believe the matter merits the earnest consideration of the canners' syndicate, and any scheme it might devise along this line I believe would receive the unstinted approbation of the wholesale and retail trade.

It is not as if it would be an attempt to extort exorbitant prices from the consumer. Last summer and fall wholesalers were selling "futures" in canned goods at a profit of 1, 1½ or 2½c. per dozen. This was the highest rate of profit. How can a healthy business be conducted on such a margin? It's simply impossible. I believe that 8 to 10 per cent. is the least profit that should be allowed. Let the canners force the wholesalers to take this much and they will remove the sickness of an unhealthy market and set a crippled business on a better and firmer footing.

TERMS AND DATINGS.

(By M. A. Dean.)

It is only at the close of the fiscal year, when the inventory has been taken and the books balanced, that the jobber comes to realize that somewhere, or somehow, something has entered into the conduct of his business which has materially affected the net results, and which does not appear either in the merchandise or expense account. This invisible disturber of the profit account has doubtless appeared in all our balances, and has caused more serious thinking than we like to admit; and it is a dangerous element in business, for the reason that it trifles with the fundamental principles of good merchandising, and whenever these are disturbed, the cost can hardly be estimated.

The topic under consideration, viz., "Terms and Datings," is an important one, for the reason that it represents one of the sources of disappointment when the balance of the profit account is taken, and these, when recklessly abused by any jobbing house, not only seriously disturb the business of that house, but affect trade quite generally.

In speaking of "Terms," we mean that rule in business which governs the time for which credit is given for goods bought and the discounts allowed for anticipated settlements.

By "Datings," we refer to the arbitrary method by which dates are fixed on in-voices or contracts without regard to time of purchase or delivery of the goods, and by means of which additional time is granted without remuneration.

Inasmuch as time or discount, or both, are factors in nearly every transaction by which goods are bought and sold, it is important that the jobber ascertain as closely as possible the amount of discounts secured on his purchases and those allowed on his sales, in order that he may adjust his terms without loss to himself and yet with fairness to the trade. While an equitable basis may have been reached in the earlier days, when more liberal discounts were obtained by the jobber than are now secured, we are compelled, by a careful estimate, to admit that to-day we are sufferers from our indifference to the extent of many thousands of dollars, even on the basis of strict adherence to our present terms; and where concessions have been made the loss has been increased to that extent.

For the purpose of illustration, let us take a business employing a capital of $200,000:

|                                             |             |
|---------------------------------------------|-------------|
| We estimate yearly purchases.....           | $1,000,000 |
| Bought for net cash, 15 per cent.....       | 150,000     |
|                                             | $ 850,000  |
| Average per cent. discount, 1½.....         | 12,750      |
| Annual sales.....                           | $1,100,000 |
| Average per cent. discount allowed, 1½..... | 16,500      |
| Loss.....                                   | $ 3,750    |
| or ½ per cent. on the capital.              |             |

There is an apparent discrepancy in the figures showing percentage on sales as compared with purchases; but it must be borne in mind that in the grocery line, for instance, net cash sales are too limited to be considered, and the discount allowed on tea and other goods in excess of the percentage received, will make the average percentage nearly as shown.

It is not intended to suggest amendments or changes in terms, but we appeal to the credit men to destroy, if possible, the practice of allowing all manner of terms and datings as an inducement to trade. No permanent advantage can possibly accrue from a violation of terms, and a strict adherence to them will not only save us this invisible enemy, but will enable us to conduct business on a basis that will be more satisfactory to the trade and more in harmony with true business principles. The temptation is strong when a salesman sends in an order from a desirable customer showing a nice profit, to overlook the extra one per cent. discount or the additional thirty days' time, or the dating of the invoice the first of the following month, as allowed by the salesman; for are we not all desirous of increasing our sales and striving hard to secure our share of the business? But let us always have in mind that here is one of the dangerous leaks in the dykes; and the credit man who will refuse to pass such an order will help to turn back the tide, which threatens to become serious if not checked.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

GALLON apples are decidedly firmer in London, England, and very few parcels of choice quality now remain on that market.

New crop Denia onions for prompt shipment from the other side are offered on the basis of 2s. per crate c. and f. There seems little disposition among buyers here to speculate in the article at that figure. Crop advices report the outlook favorable for a large crop.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

PRICES FOR PRUNES.

A press despatch from San Jose, Cal., says: "President Woods, of The Cured Fruit Association says that the 24,000,000 pounds sold to The California Packers' Company was believed to be for members individually. The packers have raised prices considerably over the purchase price. With prices $30 to $40 per ton on green prunes the new crop will have better prices this year than ever before."

PUGET SOUND SALMON PACK.

Coast advices, reporting on the salmon run on Puget Sound, say: "In some canneries there was a scarcity of help, which caused an advance to be paid so as to handle the fish. The pack shows a most decided increase over that of 1900. Press accounts of the run are highly colored, as they usually are, yet it is the biggest since 1897. The canneries on the Puget Sound can pack with a good run 50,000 cases a day. This can be increased if there is plenty of help. Whether this number of cases has been turned out in any one day since the big run set in we are not advised."

CERRANTS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The market for currants remains steady for the better qualities, but there has been some further decline in Provincial. The latter is less inquired for than the former, but the general volume of trade is satisfactory for the time of year. The supply of Vostizza and Gulph currants is shrinking rapidly under the heavy demand made upon it, and this fact, when viewed in conjunction with a revival of the demand from the outports, would seem to indicate that a further decline in prices can scarcely be hoped for in the immediate future. A strictly hand-to-mouth policy of buying would, however, appear to strongly recommend itself, as new Provincial fruit which, according to reports, will be of excellent quality, can be bought to arrive early in September at prices some shillings below the cheapest quotation for common Gulph fruit of the present season, with which it will probably compare favorably in appearance. Unless some unlooked-for development should arise to cause an important increase in the price of new Provincial, holders of this growth of the present crop are doubtless well advised in disposing of their stock as quickly as possible as the new fruit will in all probability be immensely superior in quality to the old and at the same time much cheaper.—Produce Markets' Review.

BALTIMORE PEACH PACK.

Mail advices in New York from Baltimore on new pack of peaches report the following quotations subject to confirmation, regular terms f.o.b. Baltimore: Standard, 3s., pie, 70c.; do gallon pie, unpeeled, white, $2.25; do gallon, yellow, $2.50; second 2s., white, 72 1-2c.; do 2s., half yellow, 75c.; do 2s., all yellow, 77 1-2c.; white 3s., pie, peeled, 85c.; yellow 3s., pie, peeled, 90c.; second 3s., white, 95c.; do 3s., half yellow, 97 1-2c.; do 3s., yellow, 81; standard 2s., white, 90c.; do 2s., half yellow, 92 1-2c.; do 2s., all yellow, 95c.; fair standard 3s., white, $1.10; do half yellow, $1.15; do all yellow, $1.20; good standard, 3s., white, $1.20; do half yellow, $1.25; do all yellow, $1.30; extra standard 3s., white, $1.40, and do yellow, $1.50.

It is understood that these prices are somewhat speculative. Packers' prices, so far as can be learned, have not been named as yet. The basis indicated is considered rather high for the new pack, in view of the reports as to the new crop prospects, although it is conceded in late advices that the output will not be over two-thirds of that of last year. Estimates as to the probable yield place the total for the Maryland and Delaware sections as not over 2,700,000 baskets, against about 4,000,000 baskets last year.

CANNED SALMON IN LONDON.

There is no improvement in the demand for salmon, and quotations are rather easier. The daily reports of the salmon catch on the Skeena and Fraser rivers are noted with interest, for on the out-turn of these, valuations for the coming season practically depend. Up to the time of writing, the catch has been small, but it is too early to give an opinion whether the pack will be large or small, as the fishing on the Fraser will not end until about the 25th of August.—Produce Markets' Review.

CALIFORNIAN ORANGE CROP.

Regarding the new crop of Californian oranges mail advices from Redlands report: "As the orange season draws to a close, we are all interested in the coming crop, and, although it is very early to tell very much about it, we can get an idea as to the approximate amount by comparing the amount of new oranges set in the trees with the amount a year ago. Different districts make different reports regarding this, a few shipping points claiming that they will have considerable increase over last year. But the majority of the districts report the prospective crop no larger than last year, and possibly not as large. Taking all districts into consideration, prospects are that navels will run a lighter crop than last year, while seedlings will show some increase. In all probability, the natural increase occasioned by the trees getting older will make up for the lighter crop, and we expect to see just about as many oranges shipped next season as will be shipped this season."

OUTLOOK FOR NEW PRUNES.

A private telegram from the Coast states that The Cured Fruit Association is offering old-crop prunes on the 3 1-4c. basis for the four sizes. The advices state that sizes 50s. to 80s. only are offered. For 50s. to 60s., 4 1-2c.; 60s. to 70s., 4c.; 70s. to 80s., 3 1-2c., and 80s. to 90s., 3c. f.o.b. the Coast in bags, with the usual advance for 25-lb. bags. One agent here has been advised to sell only subject to confirmation of prices. It is intimated also that the association will open higher than the 3 1-4 cent basis for the four sizes on new crop.

A report is current here also that sales of new crop have been made in this market on the basis of 3 1-2c. for the four sizes f.o.b. the Coast. We were unable to confirm this report and the statement is received with reservation in many quarters. It could not be learned that any important business had been done in this market on old crop fruit at the prices just made. It is generally believed, however, that new crop will open up to that basis if not higher in view of the short crop of apples both here and abroad and the short crop of prunes in France. Late advices figure on a crop of not over 35,000,000 pounds in France. The spot situation is undoubtedly very strong, and the most conservative dealers here look for a favorable business in most lines of dried fruits, prices it is believed being high enough to prevent any heavy purchases at the outset.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

COAST SALMON COMBINE.

A press despatch from Seattle, says: "The Pacific Packing & Navigation Company opened general offices at Seattle to-day. T. B. McGovern being in control pending the election of officers by the full Board of Directors. Delafield, McGovern & Co. have been made selling agents for the present season. Philip F. Kelly will represent all selling interests at Seattle, and efforts on Western export business will be a special feature."

The following prices for domestic trade were made to-day: Alaska red, talls, 95c.; medium red, 85c.; pink, 70c.; sockeye, talls, $1.10; flats, $1.25; halves, 85c.; spring, talls, $1.25; flats, $1.40; halves, 92 1-2c.; cohoes, talls, 90c.; flats, $1.05; halves, 72 1-2c.; humpbacks, talls, 70c.

The company's Alaska canneries report a full pack, with red fish and heavier percentage. Puget Sound canneries have a full pack of sockeye, but the run has partly quit."

INQUIRIES REGARDING CANADIAN TRADE.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the High Commissioner's office in London, England:

1. A fruit salesman and commission agent in Leeds desires to correspond with exporters of Canadian fruit and poultry who require representation.

2. An agent in London, who is conversant with the provision and fruit trade, is open to take up the agency of Canadian shippers who can utilize his services.

3. Inquiry is made for particulars of partly opened out copper claims in Canada for development purposes.

Mr. Harrison Watson, curator of the Canadian Section of the Imperial Institute, London, England, is in receipt of the following inquiries regarding Canadian trade:

4. A London house desires names of Canadian producers of graphite who can offer supplies.

2. A London timber merchant intends visiting Canada in September with the object of arranging for regular supplies of shooks for fruit and egg cases, and would like to hear from manufacturers in a position to furnish same.

3. A house doing business in the United Kingdom and South Africa wishes to arrange for exclusive agencies for the latter country in Canadian flour, leather, woodenware, lobsters, cheese, furniture, doors, etc.

[The names of the firms or individuals making the above inquiries will be furnished on application to the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.]

A CANNED GOODS BOOKLET.

ONE of the most practical and, at the same time, attractive booklets of the season has been issued by The Simcoe Canning Co., Simcoe, Ont. The principal feature of the booklet is a detailed list of the various lines put up at the several factories operated by this company, including canned vegetables, sauerkraut, baked beans, catsups, canned fruits in syrup, fine fruits in glass, jams, jellies, fruit pulps, canned meats and soups, mince meats, plum puddings, evaporated fruits and vegetables, etc. Inasmuch as this booklet is intended for distribution at the Pan-American and Glasgow Expositions, a unique feature is a five-page article dealing with the progress, prosperity and natural advantages of Canada. The agricultural, lumbering, fishing and mining industries of the Dominion are briefly but interestingly described. The following extract setting forth the capabilities of Canada for fruit-growing is worth repeating: "As to the fruits and vegetables grown in the Dominion of Canada, whether in the great fruit belts of Ontario, in the classic Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia, or in British Columbia, these being all north of the 48° of latitude, it is generally conceded that the flavor and fibre of such varieties as are grown in any part of Canada are superior to those grown further south. This may, however, be merely the whim of a Canadian packer of these fruits and vegetables, but, if so, it is superinduced by the fact that expatriated Canadians in the Great Republic send us letters and inquiries as to where our goods can be purchased in that country. We would therefore close this article on Canada with a suggestion that one or more of the large and enterprising wholesale dealers in the business centres of the United States might find it profitable to themselves and satisfactory to their customers to order a supply of our goods, as notwithstanding the duty that has to be paid on them they could still be sold at a profit to the dealer."

A P. E. I. TRAVELLERS PLAINT.

THE recent arrest in Charlottetown of a commercial traveller, under the P. E. Island Commercial Travellers' Tax Act, has aroused indignation in the breasts of the "Knights of the Gripsack." Our versatile friend, W.S.L., champions the cause of his fellow travellers in the following verses. Travellers' Rest, a way station on the P. E. Island Railway near Summerside, has evidently appealed to his imagination as a quiet place where the 10,000 commercial travellers of Canada might assemble for a picnic were the fear of arrest removed.

The particulars of the arrest were given in The Charlottetown Guardian of June 5.

WELCOME TO P. E. ISLAND.
Tell me not in mournful numbers
That that tax will always be
For the visit of our travellers
Helps our Island—should be free.
All enjoyment, and not sorrow
Is the Knight of Gripsack's way;
Friendly always—and, to-morrow,
Bargain counters bright and gay.
Life is real, life is earnest,
And the Jail is not our goal;
Leaders Farquharson and Gordon
Do not force us pay that toll!
In the world's broad field of battle
P. E. Island's business life
Wants the bargains travellers offer:
Welcome all without the strife.

Travellers' Rest is nice and pleasant;
Let the dead past bury its dead.
Sawing wood in plenty, present,
Peace and quietness, God o' Head.
Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime;
Perhaps Sir Louis ere he leaves us
Will abolish Tax and Fine.
Law is long and time is fleeting,
And our hearts though stout and brave,
Hate a law suit, rather greeting
Islanders to buy and save.
Sister Provinces we greet thee—
Travellers o'er our Island main—
Twenty dollars in your pocket
Seeing—shall take heart again.

Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for travellers' fate,
Still achieving, not pursuing,
Learn to labor—and to wait.
WILL S. LOUSON.

A MEDICAL REPORT ON CANNED GOODS.

A DESPATCH from Ottawa says some time ago the Department of Inland Revenue sent out circulars to 4,348 medical men in the Dominion, asking whether any cases of illness, apparently attributable to the use of tinned goods, had come under their notice within recent years. Out of 1,313 replies received 1,059 answered in the negative and 254 in the affirmative. From Ontario came 112 affirmatives and 466 negatives, and from Quebec 66 affirmatives and 22 negatives.

The Department now recommends the adoption of the following precautions in the interest of the public health:—Imported canned goods should also be subject to inspection. Vessels of glass or earthenware should be used instead of tins or cans. The date of filling and the name of the factory and its proprietor should be stamped on the tin itself.

Purchasers should use up the contents of cans within 24 hours after opening. The sale of canned goods should be prohibited after a certain lapse of time from the date of their manufacture. The periods suggested vary from six months to two years.

Canned goods should be kept in cold-storage and never stored on grocers' shelves or exposed to the sun's rays or any high temperature. Such treatment of canned goods should be prohibited by law.

Judging from the replies received from physicians, the number of cases of disease apparently attributable to the use of tinned goods would average about 128 per annum in Canada in an average period of about seven years. A total of fifteen cases terminated fatally. From a close analysis, the Department finds there is nothing in the canned salmon trade to justify newspaper strictures which have been brought to its notice.

We extend a hearty invitation to all our friends to make our offices your headquarters while visiting the "Industrial Exhibition."

P. C. LARKIN IN LONDON.

WE understand that Mr. P. C. Larkin, of Toronto, whose labors in popularizing British-grown green tea in Canada are well known and appreciated, will arrive in England by the Oceanic on the 31st inst., says The Home and Colonial Mail, London, Eng. Mr. Larkin's object in coming here is to meet the members of the Indian Tea Association, and the directors of the leading Indian tea companies in London to discuss the manufacture of Indian green teas for the American and Canadian market, some parcels of these teas having recently arrived in the Dominion. Of these teas Mr. Larkin, in some letters we have seen, expresses the highest opinion. As compared with Japanese, he pronounces them infinitely superior in quality. Mr. Larkin also expresses the opinion that, by comparison with these Indian green teas, those of Ceylon suffer, and that the makers of Ceylon will have a difficulty in holding their own against them. Mr. Larkin mentions that two samples of Indian green teas were superior to a fancy Japanese tea, which was considered unmarketable because of its high price. He prognosticates that if Indian producers will only push their teas their growth will be in universal demand sooner or later throughout the American continent, and whether it be a matter of four years or forty before these teas are in general consumption, depends on the enterprise of the grower.

CANNERY COMBINE COMPLETED.

The work of consolidating about 30 salmon canneries on Puget Sound and in Alaska was completed to-day, and The Pacific Packing and Navigation Co. paid over about $5,000,000 in cash and distributed stock to the various cannerymen who have come into the combination, says a Portland despatch. The firms who constitute the new company follow: Pacific-American Fisheries Co., Pacific Steam Whaling Co., Ainsworth & Dunn, Fairhaven Canning Co., Quadra Packing Co., Icy Straits Packing Co., Taku Packing Co., Chilcoot Packing Co., Thlinket Packing Co., Chatham Straits Packing Co. and Boston Fishing and Packing Co.

E. E. Ainsworth, the manager of the company, said: "The pack of the company should be 1,500,000 cases. As far as this year is concerned, it would be poor management to attempt to revolutionize things, and I am content to have the canneries run along as they have been since the season opened."

The Pacific Packing and Navigation Co., this afternoon, purchased all the canneries of Hume Bros. & Hume, of San Francisco. —Vancouver Province, August 13.

WANT TO PROHIBIT TRADING STAMPS.

A deputation from the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association waited upon the Market, Police and Jail Committee of the Hamilton Council on Monday, asking that a by-law be passed by that council prohibiting the use of trading stamps. A. G. Bain, who addressed the committee, said that the association was a unit in desiring the prohibiting by-law passed. The method, he claimed, was unfair, inasmuch as only one merchant in each trade could use the stamps in a certain locality. He also claimed the customers were being deceived and that the merchants using the stamps were not satisfied.

The committee instructed the city solicitor to report on the matter. Until this report is made no action will be taken.

TRADING STAMPS IN WOODSTOCK.

The Woodstock, Ont., City Council have passed a by-law to prohibit the giving, receiving or selling of trading stamps under penalty of a fine not exceeding $50. The by law does not prohibit merchants or manufacturers from issuing coupons that they redeem themselves.

THE HEAVY SOCKEYE SALMON RUN.

One of the heaviest runs of salmon that has ever ascended the Fraser River is passing up at the present time.

When the fishermen went out last night it was soon seen that the waters were swarming with myriads of fish, for in less than an hour some of the boats returned to the shore loaded to the gunwales with sockeyes.

Nearly all the boats were in by 9 o'clock, and there is scarcely a craft of any kind fishing on the river to-day.

The reason is that the canneries have placed a limit of 200 on the boats, and the boats, with scarcely an exception, landed more than this number during the short period they were out last evening. It would therefore be useless to take any more until to-night, for they could not be used.

The Columbia Cold Storage Company, of New Westminster, have purchased a good many of the surplus salmon and are freezing them. —Vancouver Province, August 13.

PERSONAL MENTION.

QUALITY FIRST.

IT rests to a large extent with the grocer if he will cater to a cheap class of trade or to a custom that is willing to pay a fair price for reliable goods. Any man who habitually extols the virtue of his low grade goods to customers who are accustomed to using a better class is making a most serious mistake, and one very detrimental to his business. There is no salesmanship required to sell cheap goods. The price is their strong point, and too often after the goods are sold there is a considerable explanation necessary to convince the customer that he has had value for his money. There is no such trouble for the merchant with standard, well-known goods made by reputable firms. He may not have the opportunity to make people believe he is giving them a wonderful bargain, but he has the satisfaction of knowing there will be no complaints to attend to afterwards. A demand for cheap goods is always a poor trade, yet many men seem continually striving after cheap trash, simply because they are able to sell it to their customers at a low price, thus pandering too much to the lower-grade portion of his trade. So the quality of groceries in some sections has steadily decreased owing to the grocers' folly of continually advertising cheap goods.

Educate your clerks in the profitableness of pushing the sale of the better goods, because they please and give you more margin. Tell him any person can sell pickles at 10c. per bottle that cost $1 per dozen, but it requires salesmanship to sell good goods at 25, 30 or 35c. per bottle. This same thing applies to other goods sold by the grocer, such as biscuits, soaps, teas, etc. How much 25c. tea is sold by our merchants who might easily only sell half what they now do and increase the sale of 40 and 50c. tea? Now, when people who are able and willing to pay the price for good goods want them, where do they go for their groceries? To the man who has the name of selling cheap trash, or to the reliable man who has the reputation for quality first? A demand developed for standard goods will always remain with a man, because it is built on the rock of well-known value, while that for cheap goods you never know when you have it, for it will run anywhere for a matter of a few cents. Which pays to push, reliable goods or cheap trash? There can be no question of the wisdom of talking "quality first, last and always."

The idea of a uniform holiday for travellers may now be considered a fixture as far as Western Ontario wholesale houses are concerned. The travellers never had a better fortnight "off" than from August 5 to 17, 1901.

THE FRUIT CROP OF ONTARIO.

The prospects for the crop of the larger Ontario fruits, with the exception of apples, are somewhat better now than appeared to be the case a month ago. Pears are going to be this season the biggest crop in recent years. Peaches are fair, a little, if anything, under last year's production. Plum trees are yielding well, and the crop will average good, though it is a failure in a few small districts. Grapes are bound to be a big crop.

It is not likely, however, that prices will be low, as the scarcity of small fruits and the shortage of apples is bound to make the demand for these fruits active. Pears will probably be cheap, but fairly good prices should be paid for all other fruits.

It is expected that by the end of August an army of 20,000 Canadians will have been transported from this side of the great lakes to conquer the grain fields of Manitoba. And yet we are told Canada is not a military nation.

BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY IN ONTARIO.

ALTHOUGH the lane which leads to the establishment of the beet-sugar industry in Canada is a long one, there are indications that we are at last nearing a point which is believed to be not far from the turn which shall bring us to the actual realization of our hopes.

A company has been organized at Wallaceburg, Ont., and it is proposed to erect a factory at a cost of $600,000. Capital stock to the amount of $300,000 has been subscribed.

The Walkerton Provisional Beet-Sugar Co. is another concern which is being organized with a capital stock of $500,000, divided into 50,000 shares of $10 each.

A third company being promoted is The Ontario Sugar Co. This company is to have a capital stock of $1,000,000, and the 10 per cent. necessary to be subscribed under the Ontario Companies Act, before incorporation can be secured, is being raised.

There is one feature about this proposed company that is worthy at least of a passing notice, and that is, there will be no water in the stock. No shares will be given to promoters, and no one can secure a share without paying for it in cash. This feature is so unique in these days of company organization that the company deserves to be congratulated.

Another feature worthy of note is the class of men who are lending financial assistance to the enterprise, among the charter members there being such well-known business men and capitalists as Messrs. Hugh Blain, Robert Jaffray, M. J. Haney, M. McLaughlin, W. J. Gage, Colonel Pellatt, Arch. Campbell, James Fowler and N. B. Nash.

It has not yet been determined as to where the factory shall be located.

DISCOUNTS AS ENCOURAGEMENT TO CASH PAYMENTS.

A PETITION is being circulated among the retail grocers of Brantford pledging the signers thereof to pay no discounts after January 1, 1902, on cash payments.

Retailers' profits are no doubt small, but the proposal to do away with discounts for cash payments hardly seems business like.

The retailer, and properly so, demands a discount off for cash from the wholesaler from whom he buys his goods. And that which he expects the wholesaler to do to his customers he should be prepared to do to his own.

The most satisfactory way to do business is on the cash basis. We do not think anyone will deny that whatever difference of opinion exists is in regard to the condition of the public mind towards the cash system. There are some places in which it would be folly to inaugurate the system, simply because the time is not opportune.

Reforms are only successful after the people have been educated sufficiently to accept them. And the greater the reform the greater usually is the effort necessary to do the educating.

Those who are advocating the cash system are champions of a reform movement. Ten years ago there were not nearly as many merchants doing business on a cash basis as there are to day. But the proportion of cash to credit merchants is still small indeed, showing that there is a great deal of educating yet to be done. And in regard to the cash system, as well as in regard to practically everything else, the best way to educate is by example.

Get consumers to recognize that the cash system is profitable to them as well as to merchants, and there are few of them who will not soon get into the habit of buying for cash instead of on credit.

Instead of educating the people to pay cash the proposal of the Brantford merchants will have a tendency in the opposite direction.

It is impossible to sow seed of one species and from it produce species of another and distinctly opposite type.

Then it is, it has always seemed to us, unfair to compel the cash customer, who is, as a rule, the best customer, to pay the same price as he who takes more or less time to pay for his goods.

Not the least among the arguments in favor of the cash system is the increased opportunity it gives the retailer to compete with the departmental stores. The merchants who are competing most successfully with those stores are the merchants who, like them, are doing business on the cash basis.

Let any merchant ask himself the question: What stage of development would the department stores have reached if they had followed the old rut in regard to the credit system? And from the answer he will gather a pretty good idea, if he never has before, what the cash system means to the department store.

Had there been no cash system there would have been no department stores, at any rate as we know them to-day.

The promoters of the petition in Brantford would be wise if, instead of trying to effect an agreement for doing away with discounts for cash payments, they would circulate a document pledging the subscribers to employ them. It would have an excellent educative effect on customers.

A LIGHT CROP OF BEANS.

After several weeks of uncertainty the market is in receipt of definite information regarding the Ontario bean crop, though the reports so far received are not final and conditions may be changed somewhat before the crop is entirely gathered.

Reports, covering practically every section of the counties of Essex and Kent, the home of the bean in Canada, indicate that, owing to the extreme heat when the beans were in blossom, they did not "set" or "pod." The result is abundance of straw, but few pods.

This condition, in face of the fact that the demand for export has been so great that the market is now practically bare, has caused an advance of from 50 to 75c. per bushel.

Prices have not yet reached a steady basis, as the opinion of buyers varies greatly as to values. For carload lots $2.20 has been quoted this week in Montreal. In Toronto dealers quote the range of values to be from $2 to $2.25 for carload lots, and from $2.25 to $2.50 for smaller quantities.

AN INDEPENDENT CANNING FACTORY.

One result of the formation of the syndicate which now has the control of the canned goods output of Ontario is that a new independent factory will be established in Hamilton by Lumsden Bros., wholesale grocers. Hamilton and Toronto.

This firm have already secured premises. The building they will occupy was at one time used as a Baptist church, but was some years ago converted into a foundry.

It is intended to furnish the works with modern canning appliances, and so arrange the output that the premises will be continued in operation all year around. A full assortment of canned vegetables, fruits and meats, as well as jams, jellies and marmalade, will be packed. The brands will be "Jersey," "Standard" and "Old Church."

As Lumsden Bros. are an enterprising firm and have a sound, strong connection, this new concern will surely be a factor in the canned goods market in the years to come.

CHANGE IN PAPER BAG DISCOUNTS.

At a meeting of paper bag manufacturers held in Toronto last week the schedule of prices on paper bags was so changed that the discount is now 5 per cent. greater on all quantities than it was formerly. The quotations are now as follows:

|                       | Bags.   | P.C. |
|-----------------------|---------|------|
| Over .....            | 300,000 | 55   |
| From 150,000 to ..... | 300,000 | 52½  |
| " 50,000 to .....     | 150,000 | 50   |
| " 20,000 to .....     | 50,000  | 47½  |
| Under .....           | 20,000  | 45   |

The cause of the reduction is the competition of imported bags, which have been sold in rather large quantities here lately, though they are not considered to be of as good quality as the Canadian article.

WILL BROOM CORN ADVANCE?

It is reported by United States exchanges that the extreme heat this summer has affected the broom-corn crop, and that, as a consequence, brooms will be advanced this season. Some of the largest Canadian manufacturers state that they have not yet been informed of serious advance in broom corn, so are not changing their quotations on brooms.

THE CENSUS AND CANADA'S DEVELOPMENT.

ALTHOUGH the people of this country had been somewhat prepared, through the paragraphs which appeared from time to time in the daily papers, for the failure of the census returns to come up to expectations, the publication of the official figures has been none the less palatable.

Canada is deeply disappointed over the fact. There is no question about that. We had been counting on a population of at least 6,000,000, while the actual number is 5,338,883, or over 600,000 below the lowest ruling estimate.

At no time since Confederation can we really be said to have had a census which has shown a satisfactory increase in population. The first census of the Dominion was taken in 1871. This was two years before Prince Edward Island was admitted into the Dominion, but counting it as if already a part thereof, we find that in the 30 years the population of the Dominion has increased only a little over 46 per cent. But this was at a faster ratio than during the past 10 years, being about 15½ per cent. each decade, as compared with less than 10½ per cent. The increase between 1881 and 1891 was proportionately larger than during the past decade, being 11¾ per per cent., and it was disappointing enough. The increase between 1871 and 1881 was nearly 19 per cent., counting the Province of Prince Edward Island as though part of the Dominion in 1871.

It is significant that the periods covered by the last two census returns have been the most satisfactory industrially in the history of the country. Population cannot, therefore, be considered the best test of either a country's greatness or of its prosperity.

In the past decade, which has proved so disappointing to us in respect to population, the Dominion has made extraordinary strides in nearly everything that goes to make up the material wealth of a country, while her position among the nations is infinitely more enviable.

In no particular has Canada shown her development during the last 10 years more than in her foreign trade. The extent of this development may be gathered from the following table giving the foreign trade of swelled from 13,222,568 in 1891 to 21,500,175 in 1900. The freight carried by the out-going ocean vessels nearly doubled, being 2,100,987 tons in 1891 and 4,163,404 tons in 1900. The number of vessels engaged in the coasting trade was 125,564 in 1891 with a tonnage of 24,986,130 compared with 143,229 in 1900 with a tonnage of 33,631,730. In inland navigation there was also a substantial gain, there being 19,008 vessels in 1891 with a tonnage of about 4,000,000, while the freight carried was 715,861 tons. In 1900 the figures were: vessels, 21,195; tonnage, 6,300,000; and freight carried, 817,971 tons.

Another evidence of the increased wealth of the people is the amount of money on deposit in the savings banks, and we find that in 1891 the amount per head was $10.39 and $12.75 in 1900.

While it is to be regretted that the census returns do not show as large an increase in population as desirable, what is to be regretted infinitely more is the disposition on the part of certain newspapers to set the racial pot boiling afresh. Nothing scarcely that we can conceive of is likely to produce more deplorable results. As no one stands to lose more than the business men of the country from such an untoward state of affairs, it is to be hoped they will exercise all their influence in making abortive the efforts of the strife-makers.

Racial strife does not unite nations; it dismembers them. Neither does it help to develop the natural resources of a country or to expand its trade and commerce.

The census in regard to the manufacturing industries of the country has not yet been completed, and, as it is being based on a somewhat different unit from that of the census of 1891, we do not see how it will be possible to make a very reliable comparison. For example, in 1891 that concern which employed (3) three or more persons was constituted a factory. Under the census now being taken by special commissioners, that is constituted a factory which employs five or more persons.

Winners in the Coffee Essay Contest.

THE judges having completed their labors, we are able, this week, to give the names of the successful essayists in the coffee contest. The result is as follows:

First Prize—C. L. Marshall, 41 Gwynne avenue, Toronto.

Second Prize—Wm. Rhodes, Brockville, Ont.

Third Prize—R. H. Hudson, 8 Denison Square, Toronto.

The five essayists who are entitled to honorable mention and to receive for one year a copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER, are:

W. C. Forman, Ingersoll, Ont.

Herbert Le Roy, Tabor, Morris County, N.J.

James H. Connal, Peterboro', Ont.

Harry Cooper, 31 Front street east, Toronto.

S. A. Brubacker, Berlin, Ont.

The judges were Mr. Henry Swan, a retailer of over 40 years' experience, and Mr. William Ince, jr., of Perkins, Ince & Co., the oldest wholesale grocery house in Toronto. They have given the essays a great deal of attention and thought and THE CANADIAN GROCER feels under a great compliment to them. The names of the essayists were unknown to the judges, as they only had access to the manuscripts.

The prize essays will be published in a special number of this paper on September 6.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, August 22, 1901.

GROCERIES.

THERE have been several changes in prices during the week, the most important being a reduction of 10c. on all grades of sugar. In canned goods, the feature is an advance in peas of 2½c. per doz. For tomatoes, corn and fruits a brisk demand is still in evidence. The Fraser River salmon catch is reported to be exceptionally good. Walter Baker & Co. have advanced prices on chocolates and cocoas 2c. per lb. The price of beans has advanced from $1.95 per 60 lb. to $2.10. As high as $2.75 has been asked for gallon apples, but no transactions at that price have materialized. Generally speaking, the grocery business is in a very satisfactory condition, with one or two exceptions.

SUGARS.

The weakness noted last week has culminated in an all-around reduction of 10c. The market is now steadier, and some wholesalers are advising their customers to buy in anticipation of an advance. Local quotations are $4.40 per 100 lb. for granulated and $3.65 to $4.25 per 100 lb. for yellows, according to quality. City, 5c. additional.

SYRUPS.

There is very little doing in this line at the present time. Quotations are as before, namely: 1½ to 2c. per lb. for cane syrup, and 3 to 3¼c. for corn syrup, according to parcel.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market continues very firm; 29c. per gal., in small lots, is the price still quoted.

CANNED GOODS.

The most important feature in the canned goods market this week is the advance that has taken place in the price of peas of 2½c. per doz., the quotation now being 85c., as against 82½c. last week. Quotations on tomatoes are as before, viz., 80c., and for corn, 75c. A good demand for canned fruits is reported at the following prices: Strawberries, $1.50; raspberries, $1.40; gooseberries, $1.40; pears, $1.55 for 2's and $2 for 3's; Lombard plums, $1.20; greengages, $1.30; yellow peaches, $1.70 for 2's and $2.50 for 3's; sliced pineapple, $2.30, and $2.45 for grated; 3 lb. apples, 85c.; red pitted cherries, $1.80, and whites, $2.

It is now a certainty that the Fraser River salmon pack will be very satisfactory, and there is no fear of prices going higher. However, there may be a scarcity of cheaper salmon. It generally follows that when there is a good catch of Fraser River salmon there is a lack of the cheaper kinds. Then, again, on account of the scarcity of tin, the cans are being used altogether for the better pack.

SPICES.

Pickling spices are a little higher this week, with a good demand. Pepper should advance, as stocks on the rise are not very large, and a rather poor crop is reported. We quote as follows: Nutmegs, 35 to 65c. per lb., as to size; Penang mace, 45 to 50c. per lb., as to quality; pimento, ground, 12½ to 15c.; cloves, 15 to 25c.; pepper, ground, black, 17 to 20c., according to grade; white, 25 to 27c.; ginger, whole, Cochin, 15c.; Japan, 10c.; Jamaica, 20c.; ground, Japan, 15c.; Cochin, 20c.; Jamaica, 25c.

RICE.

Last week we noted an advance in imported Patna rice of 9d. to 1s. per 112 lb., no other change having taking place in the meantime. The demand is fairly good. We quote in combine district: B rice, in bags, $3.10; in ½ bags, $3.15; in ¼ bags, $3.20; in pockets, $3.25. In 10 bag lots an allowance of 10c. is made. CC rice, $3 in bags; $3.05 in ½ bags; $3.10 in ¼ bags; and $3.15 in pockets. In the open territory prices are about 10c. less. Patna rice is worth 4¾c. per lb.

COFFEE.

Coffees have never been so cheap as they are now, and there is no sign of improvement.

TEAS.

Lower grade Japans are a little easier, especially in Kobo teas, but higher grades remain much as before. Cable reports show that the 3rd crop of teas now coming in are of very good quality. The Indian and Ceylon tea markets for low to medium grades still show a firm feeling. There is nothing of particular importance to report this week. Still, the tea business is in good condition and the demand continues to be steady.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

RAISINS—As reported last week, Valencia raisins have opened at 20s. c.i.f. and shipments are expected to be made about August 22. This fruit will be sold at 6½c. Of last-year fruit, there is still a considerable quantity to be disposed of at the following prices: 4½ to 4¾c. for fine off-stalk, 5½c. for selected and 6c. for layers.

SULTANA RAISINS—Prices for the new crop of Sultanas are high, the following being the quotations; 42s. 3d. for 2-star, 39s. 3d. for 3-star and 34s. 9d. for 4-star. This does not permit wholesalers to sell at less than 12, 11 and 10c.

DATES — The features in this line to be noted are low prices and early shipments.

Prices and particulars from the Agents

SNOWDON & PATERSON
449 St. Paul St., MONTREAL.

Wholesalers will likely quote  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to 5c. on goods delivered here November 1.

FIGS—Comadre figs are quoted by one broker at 10s. 3d. c.i.f. for the first half of September. This will enable the wholesalers to quote  $3\frac{3}{4}$  to 4c., which is a low price.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—As noted in these columns last week, goods of this kind are scarce. Holders are asking  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c. whereas 6c. was the price a few weeks since.

NUTS.

Valencia shelled almonds are lower, selling price now being 28c. First arrivals will sell at 25c.

GREEN FRUITS.

The green fruit market continues active, and prices are generally firmer. Tomatoes are 25c. per basket lower. We quote as follows: Californian Valencias, $6 per half box; Messina lemons, 300's, $4.25 to $4.50; 360's, $3.75 to $4.25 per box; Verdilli lemons, $4.50 to $5 per box; pineapples, 20 to 30c.; tomatoes, 20 to 25c. per 12 quart basket; Canadian apples, 25 to 35c. per basket; Californian plums, $1.50 to $1.75 per box; peaches, $1.50 to $1.75; limes, $1.50 per box; Ontario peaches, 40 to 60c. per basket; Ontario plums, 40 to 60c.; raspberries, 11 to 12c.; cocoanuts, $3.25 per bag of 100; Bartlett pears, $3.25 to $3.50 per box; blackberries, 8 to 10c.; watermelons, 20 to 25c.; bananas, No. 1, $1.75 to $2.25, and eight hands, $1.35 to $1.50.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand is fairly good from local buyers for small lots. The market is steady. Quotations are much as before, viz.: Canded stock, 12 to  $12\frac{1}{2}$ c.; straight receipts, 11 to  $11\frac{1}{2}$ c., and No. 2 canded stock,  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to  $10\frac{1}{2}$ c. per doz.

HONEY—A good business is being done in honey, and prices are unchanged at 10 to  $10\frac{1}{2}$ c. for white clover comb and 8 to 9c. for strained.

POTATOES—An active trade is being done in potatoes, owing to a steady demand from American buyers. The price is as before, $1.75 in bbls.

ASHES—This market is without feature. We quote: Firsts, $4.25 to $4.35; seconds, $3.85, and pearls, $6.75 to $7.25 per 100 lb.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

CHEESE—In spite of the stocks of cheese on the other side being light, English buyers are holding off in expectation of a heavy fall make, which they are evidently depending upon. As a consequence of this, the cheese market cannot be said to be in a very good condition. Prices for finest Western are  $9\frac{3}{8}$  to  $9\frac{1}{4}$ c., as compared with 11 to  $11\frac{1}{4}$ c. the same time last year:

BUTTER—The butter market is quiet but steady. Some 400 packages sold during the week at  $20\frac{1}{4}$  to  $20\frac{1}{2}$ c. Quotations rule at  $20\frac{1}{2}$  to 21c. for finest, and undergrades from  $18\frac{1}{2}$  to  $19\frac{1}{2}$ c.

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR—The market is featureless. A fair trade is being done in oats for local consumption. We quote: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $4.40 to $4.10; winter wheat patents, $3.55 to $3.80; straight roller, $3.20 to $3.40; in bags, $1.60 to $1.65 and Manitoba strong bakers', $3.50 to $3.80.

GRAIN—We quote: No. 1 spring wheat, 76 to 77c. afloat July; peas, 81c.; rye, 57 to 58c.; No. 2 barley,  $51\frac{1}{2}$  to 52c.; oats, 38 to 39c.; buckwheat,  $56\frac{1}{2}$  to 57c.; corn, 61 to 62c.

OATMEAL—Prices are still being well maintained. Car lots are worth $4.05 to $4.10 on track and $4.15 to $4.20 for jobbing lots.

FEED—Demand continues good, but offerings are small. Ontario bran has sold at $16 and shorts $17 to $17.50 per ton in bulk. Mouillie, $20 to $25 per ton, as to quality.

BALED HAY—Supplies on the local market are pretty well cleaned up, and Beans have advanced from $1.95 to $2.10 per 60 lb.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., August 22, 1901.

BUSINESS has been rather quiet. There is, however, considerable buying being done for fall. Markets are firm with a general upward tendency. This is particularly noticed in beans and oatmeal. In canned goods, peaches, peas and apples are held for higher prices. The card price on sugar is expected to come into use about September 1. There was a meeting of the committee representing the three Provinces in the city this week and everything is moving smoothly. When it is remembered that sugar represents about one-third the turnover in a grocery business, and that it has been handled at a loss, there is little wonder that the trade wanted a change. Even at the prices which will be charged the profit will be small. But there will be, as there has not been, a margin of profit.

OIL—In burning oil, business begins to be more active. The low prices are still quoted. Paint oils are quiet and unchanged. Lubricating oils are quite firmly held. Shipments are light. There is a small inquiry for wax, but candles are dull. Prices are unchanged. Cod oil, for which this is a receiving port, is more freely coming to hand. Prices are still held quite high. Much of this oil is further refined here.

SALT—Further arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt are daily expected. Prices are quite firm. Sale continues good. In fine salt, Canadian has steady demand at even figures. We quote as follows: Liverpool coarse, 52 to 58c.; English factory-filled, 95c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 per bag; cheese and butter salt, bulk, $2.40 per bbl.; 5-lb. bags, $2.85 to $2.90 per bbl.; 10-lb. bags, $2.70 to $2.75 per bbl.; 20 lb. wood boxes, 22c. each; 10 lb. wood boxes, 14c. each; cartons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; English bottled salt, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz.; mineral rock salt, 60c. per 100 lb. (Selected lumps.)

CANNED GOODS—New goods continue to arrive. Several brands of new peas are on the market. The past week has shown quite a call for new goods, because of a stronger feeling manifest in prices. Gallon apples have been more freely bought. Peaches have been advanced in the west. This is quite a large market. Other fruits are lightly handled. New spring salmon, which are here, have a ready sale. Lobsters are not sellers, the high prices of late years killing the demand. It has also brought a quantity of second-grade goods on the market. Domestic sardines have been advanced 25c., but the price is still low. Kipper herring and haddies are short. Prices are firm.

GREEN FRUITS—The market is active. Fruit is rather scarce and prices are quite high. Apples are freely received. The New Brunswick crop is short and prices are firmly held. Californian fruit has a large sale. The quality of fruit is very fine and prices keep high. Pears are the big sellers. There is a large sale for Georgia peaches. Quality A1 melons are small sellers and dealers make no money on them. Bananas are in excellent demand. Oranges, though high, sell quite freely. The quantity imported is small. Lemons are rather easier. They are in fair demand. Delaware grapes have a fair sale.

DRIED FRUITS—There is little spot business and it is chiefly for seeded raisins. Stocks in all lines are getting well cleaned up. There has been no money made. New currants have shown quite an advance during the week. Some should be received in a few weeks. Apples and peaches are the only new Californian fruit quoted. The week shows advanced figures. Some should be received early in September. It is expected first shipments of Valencias are on the way. The outlook for raisins is unsettled. Spot Californians—old fruit—have advanced in the west, and it is thought new will open at quite full figures. Prunes also are firmer, and prices for new stock will likely be quite near last year's figure. Evaporated and dried apples are firmer. Spot business is light. New goods will rule quite high.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Eggs are rather firmer but there is little if any change in prices. Strictly fresh bring extra figures. In butter good stock is scarce. Prices keep low. Right goods would move freely. Cheese are a light stock in local markets. Twins are demanded. Prices keep quite high though perhaps not as firm.

SUGAR—Low prices continue. Some of the best granulated sugar seen is Dutch. If the sugar agreement is to be a success the local refinery wants to be careful of the quality of sugar it turns out. And this depends much on the trade. They should refuse to accept poor sugar.

MOLASSES—There is nothing new. Further receipts of Porto Rico are expected. The low prices are held and little prospect of any change. Sales are light.

FISH—Dry cod are easier. There are fair receipts and a fair sale. Pollock are unchanged. They are a summer fish.

Smoked herring are dull. Stocks are light. The new pack not yet received. Prices keep quite high. Pickled herring are rather higher and are likely to sell firm. Fresh fish are scarce. There should be shad at this season but none are being received. Pickled shad are likely to be high. We quote as follows. Large and medium dry cod, $3.75 to $3.80; small, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, 5 to 5½c.; smoked herring, 12 to 13c.; fresh haddock and cod, 2½c.; boneless fish, 4 to 5c.; pollock, $1.60 to $1.65 per 100 lb.; pickled herring, $2.05 to $2.15 per half bbl.; Canso herring, $5 per bbl., $2.75 halves; Shelburne, $4.50 per bbl., $2.25 halves.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—There is but a fair business. Flour is tending higher, particularly Ontario. Little change is yet noted in local prices. Oats are very scarce and high. Oatmeal, while high, shows a wide range in price. Business is light. Beans continue to climb. The advance is about $4 per bbl. Peas are likely to continue high. Good quality stock is hard to get. The high prices in cornmeal are firmly held. Feed is about impossible to get. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $3.70 to $3.80; medium, $3.60 to $3.70; oatmeal, $4.20 to $4.30; cornmeal, $2.90 to $3; middlings, $22 to $23; oats, 48 to 50c.; hand-picked beans, $2.30 to $2.45; prime, $2.20 to $2.25; yellow eye beans, $2.80 to $3.00; split peas, $4.10 to $4.15; barley, $3.90 to $4; hay, $12 to $14.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Northrup & Co. is finding a steady sale for Cottolene—both pails and tins.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade opened in Chatham, N.B., on Wednesday, and will continue in session Thursday and Friday.

L. C. Archibald, of The Canada Milk Condensing Co., Antigonish, N.S., was in the city this week. Dearborn & Co. have been appointed their agents here.

W. D. Hooper introduced the Canadian manager for "Sunlight" soap to the trade this week. Mr. Hooper, the representative for New Brunswick, has worked up a nice business.

Baird & Peters have still some Porto Rico molasses to arrive, and buyers would find it an advantage to have their orders placed so as goods could be forwarded while landing.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, August 19, 1901.

BUSINESS has been very good all week, and prices are, in almost every instance, firm and steady, or with a tendency to advance.

FLOUR—No change of price has occurred during the week. The demand is highly satisfactory to the millers.

CEREALS—Market very firm. There is a dearth of rolled oats, and they are very high and hard to obtain. The price is still $2.25 to $2.30 per sack. Split peas firm at $2.50; pot barley, $2.30 to $2.40; pearl

EVAPORATED FRUITS—Apples are very scarce and the few remaining of last year's crop are held at very high figures. Apricots are 12½ to 13½c. and latest advices from California indicate that all but about 60 cars are out of the growers' hands. Peaches—There has been an increased activity but regular prices are hard to quote. Cables from Greece indicate the damage by rain to the currant crop as serious and the market is firmer in consequence though prices have not advanced. The balance of Valencia stocks are steady but there is a growing eagerness on the part of holders to dispose of the balance of their stocks.

RICE—The report of advance in the price of Japan rice is confirmed this week by cable from Kiobe, Japan, the advance being fully ½c. per pound. No real reason is given for the advance.

TEAS—Congous are coming in rapidly farmers mostly trading it out at country stores for groceries.

CHEESE—No further change recorded in cheese, the market remaining steady at 7¼ to 7½c.

EGGS—Fair supply, but of inferior quality. Price, 12c. Winnipeg.

NOTES.

The first few loads of the new crop of wheat are on the market and in quite a number of instances the threshing is well under way. The grainmen and millers estimate that about one-half the wheat crop is now cut. One farmer on the Portage Plains yesterday finished cutting his wheat crop of 2,700 acres and will begin threshing on Monday.

There are too many harvest hands coming into the country and many of them are of an undesirable sort. There is beginning to dawn on the minds of the people here the idea that the C.P.R. are making use of the harvest to bring in men to ultimately take the place of the striking trackmen.

Fruitmen are already complaining of the falling off in car service at the Northern Pacific depot since it was taken over by the Canadian Northern. In the days of the Northern Pacific a particularly good service was given on fruit trains. This week, a car of bananas was held here on the track for nearly 24 hours before the houses to whom it was consigned could get delivery, with the result that the fruit missed the Friday branch-line trains, and was so ripe it had to be put on the market here at a reduced figure in order to clear it out. A deputation from the Fruit Exchange waited on Mr. Shaw to-day asking for a remedy of the grievance.

HUDSON BAY COMPANY'S PICNIC.

The employees of the Hudson Bay Company, Winnipeg, held their annual outing on Thursday, August 15 (Civic Holiday). The weather was absolutely perfect. Commissioner C. C. Chipman invited them to his summer home, the historic Lower Fort Garry, about 20 miles down the Red River. The employees and their friends, to the number of 400, went down in a special train.

Inside the high stone walls of the old fort gaily-colored marquees were erected. There was an abundance of choice viands, fruits of all sorts and every kind of soft drink known to man.

The velvet turf furnished an excellent place for the races and games. The event of the afternoon was a baseball match between a picked team of the employees and the team of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

The outing had but one fault, it was all too short for the many pleasant things there were to see and do. The employees feel specially grateful to Commissioner Chipman for the courtesy extended.

Sacred Mountain near Tea-producing District, Japan.

barley, $3.75 to $4; white beans, $2.05 to $2.10; cornmeal, $1.65 to $1.70.

SUGAR—Firm and unchanged. Granulated, $5.20; yellow, $4.35; lumps, $5.70 barrel; boxes, $5.80.

CANNED GOODS—Situation is practically unchanged. Syndicate continue to control the vegetables, and prices are very stiff. Quite a few sales have been effected, but whether routing instructions have been given is unknown. The 4c. per 100 allowed by the factories is not satisfactory to the jobber here, and there is no question that some other and better arrangement will have to be made to interest the Winnipeg merchants. In fruits, pitted cherries have arrived, but the price is almost, if not altogether, prohibitive, being $4.90 to $5 for Bowlby's goods. Reports are circulating freely as to the partial failure of the Ontario peach crop, some reports putting it at 50 per cent.

for the last two weeks and the quality so far is excellent.

SOAP—There has been an advance along some lines of soap and further sharp advances may be looked for owing to the increased price of all soap materials.

GREEN FRUITS—The supply of all lines from California and Washington are scarcer than last week, plums and peaches being almost unobtainable. However, fruitmen are hopeful that the coming week will be productive of better things. No changes are reported in prices for the week. Ontario tomatoes are arriving in small quantities by express and sell for $1.75 per basket. The quality is excellent. Southern apples, in barrels, arrived this week and are quoted at $6.

BUTTER—There is little or no change in the situation. Several purchases this week have been made at 16½c. factories. Dairy butter is not arriving in large quantities, the

TRAVELLERS' PICNIC AT LONDON.

THE members of the Canadian Order of the Knights of the Grip are so fond of "the road" that when they did get their holidays, from August 5 to 17, many of them spent a good part of the time "on the move." Several parties visited the Pan-American Exposition during the fortnight, and it would take a good judge to decide who had the largest time, according to reports. On the last day of the fortnight a trainload of them went up from Toronto to London to hold the second annual picnic of the order in company with their London brethren.

Practically every branch of trade was represented in the Toronto party, and as the majority of them were veterans in both years and experience, many a good story was told and many interesting experiences related.

The reception at London was what might be expected when travellers welcome travellers. After luncheon, a procession was held through the main streets, after which cars were taken to Springbank Park, where the games were conducted.

The Toronto and London travellers were pitted against each other in three contests—a tug-of-war, a baseball match, and a game of rounders. The baseball game was well contested, but the London men seemed to have had more practice, and won out with a score of 9 to 5. The London men also won the tug-of-war. The game of rounders was not only interesting but at times exciting. Owing to one of the heavy-weights sitting on the ball and bursting it, the game had to be left unfinished. This was aggravating to several of the Toronto players, as the score was 13 to 12 in favor of London, and they felt confident that they could pull down that small lead and ultimately win out.

Another exciting event was the chase of a greased porker. In fact, its capture was the climax in the fun for the day. Several thousand people witnessed the games. The winners of the day were as follows:

100 yards' race; travelling men only—1, H. A. Turner; 2, R. Ripley.

75 yards' four-legged race; badge-holders—1, G. Hamilton, H. A. Hamilton and R. Ripley.

25 yards' wheelbarrow race, travellers only—1, B. Lind and Johnston; 2, F. Carnall and Russell.

100 yards' race, wholesale employes and travellers—1, R. H. Chapman; 2, E. Best.

25 yards' and return, jockey race, open to badge-holders—1, Obernesser and Obernesser.

50 yards' race, travellers over 50 years of age—1, W. J. Anderson; 2, B. S. Switzer.

100 yards' race, hotelmen only—1, J. Obernesser; 2, R. J. Thompson, Strathroy.

20 yards' race, rolling the barrel—1, Russell; 2, Carnall.

75 yards' race, travellers over 200 lb.—1, T. Mortimer; 2, J. W. Couse.

50 yards' obstacle race, employes of wholesales and badge-holders—1, F. Carnall; 2, W. J. Obernesser; 3, H. Peel.

75 yards' race, committeemen only—1, H. Southam; 2, H. Turner.

50 yards' race, all aboard, travellers only—1, M. McDougall; 2, S. Mannes.

50 yards' race, girls under 15—1, Carrie Fitchett; 2, Flo. Hardy; 3, Helen McNiff.

75 yards' race, boys under 15—1, Chas. Clark; 2, Fred Arsott; 3, C. Brennan.

Tilting the ring, wholesale employes and travellers—1, Hyman and Buttery; 2, Matthews and McDonald.

50 yards' race, egg and spoon, badge-holders—1, T. Hamilton; 2, A. F. Hamilton.

100 yards' race, square heel and toe, judges only—1, Hyman; 2, Pocock.

Catching a greasy pig, open to the world—Frank Robertson.

CLEMES BROS. REMOVING.

Clemes Bros., wholesale fruiterers, Toronto, have decided to remove into larger premises. They have secured the large building at the south east corner of Church and King streets, and hope to occupy these premises about October 1. The business will be continued as a strictly wholesale concern.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

W. H. Gillard & Co. are showing exceptional value, they state, in cheap pickles of excellent quality.

"Condor" mustard, to be obtained from E. D. Marceau, is giving excellent satisfaction. Those who have tried it are well pleased with its merits.

John Sloan & Co. are getting into shape for handling a big quantity of "Boston Luxury" coffee this fall.

Gallon apples and evaporated apples, the latter in 50-lb. boxes, are being offered by W. H. Gillard & Co. at advantageous prices.

John Sloan & Co. have received a car of molasses put up in the neatest and cleanest packages they have ever sold.

E. D. Marceau reports his "Condor LX" tea, in 1-lb. and ½-lb. packages, to be selling fast, the second lot now being almost all delivered.

B. Trudel, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, left that city on Saturday for Sault Ste. Marie, Winnipeg and British Columbia. They ask their friends to wait for him as he has many bargains to offer.

WASHED AND UNWASHED COFFEE.

A WESTERN subscriber writes: "I would like to know what washed coffee is, the process, and how does it affect coffee. Some claim it damages it, while others say it improves it."

We judge that the contradictory statements which our friend refers to come from salesmen or other people interested in one line of coffee as against another. We do not think either statement is based on exact knowledge of the changed quality of a coffee prepared for market in one case with washing and in another case without. Few people have a chance to make a proper test of this sort, as the coffees which come to us from a given plantation are always either washed or unwashed, depending on the abundance of water at that particular place.

If the planter has plenty of water he washes his coffee, for the simple reason that this gives a product which will command a higher price. It doesn't matter to him, or to the dealer, whether the washing helps the coffee or hurts it. It certainly helps the price; and this, of course, means that most buyers think the washing process is really a benefit to the coffee.

Washing certainly improves the appearance of a coffee very much, giving it a better color, a better surface, and, particularly, a white centre which shows out very prettily in the roasted beans. Perhaps the whole demand for washed coffees is based on this improvement in appearance. The general idea is that the drink quality also, is improved, but this, as we said before, is usually merely an impression, and is not based on comparative tests of the same crop of the same coffee, washed and unwashed. Some coffee men think there is no improvement in quality by washing. We do not know that any good judges consider that washing really hurts the quality of a coffee.

As to details of the washing process, these differ greatly in different countries and plantations. The older method was to treat the coffee in a big trough or vat, water being run in at one end and out at the other. Now washing machines are often used, consisting of a long cylinder with a revolving shaft through the centre carrying discs or paddles by which the coffee is thoroughly stirred through the water, both coffee and water passing through the cylinder from one end to the other. These machines operate on coffee which has already been pulped. Ripe coffee cherries are pulped by means of a revolving disc working in a fixed hopper, into which the coffee is fed, and with it, usually, a stream of water. This operation breaks the cherry open and in the subsequent washing the pulpy matter which envelops the seeds is further loosened and partly carried away. It is this wet separation of the sticky pulp from the seeds, instead of allowing it to dry on them and be removed later with the parchment in the hulling operation, which makes the distinction between washed and unwashed coffees. The dry method must be followed in most plantations because water is scarce; and the coffee so finished seems to be perfectly good, though not so attractive as when washed.

If the pulping is done with a good stream of water, even if there be no regular washing afterwards, the coffee may get something of the improved appearance sought for by washing, and it is sometimes difficult to tell whether a coffee has been regularly washed or only pulped with a liberal water supply. The judge of coffee has no trouble, however, in telling the difference between a washed coffee and one that has had the pulp removed dry.

One improvement in the quality of many washed coffees, prepared by the earlier method, was the separation of light berries by the skimming or floating of them off from the washing tank. This gave the washed coffees a reputation for soundness and uniformity, and freedom from quakers, which they may not have a right to when treated in the newer washing machines.

Whether coffee is washed or not it has to be dried, and there is a sort of fermentation which goes on during washing and drying, about which coffee planters have various ideas, just as is the case in the curing of tea leaves. There is no reason to doubt that this fermentation in the separation of the coffee pulp has an important effect on the drink value of the coffee beans, and this is the point probably which needs to be studied most carefully—by tests which are really scientific—in order to arrive at the very best method of producing dried, parchment coffee.

A great part of the coffee crop is still dried in the sun on a paved court or "patio"; but where the coffee is machine-washed, it is more common to use a steam dryer, and, preceding this, to use a centrifugal separator to throw off the loose water mechanically.

A considerable part of the coffee crop is now washed, though we do not know of figures giving the exact proportion. Perhaps it is as much as 10 per cent. of the whole. Nearly all Central American coffees are washed, Guatemalas particularly; also most of Bogotas. Washed Mexicans show equal improvement, but lack of water causes most Mexicans to be shipped unwashed. The great part of the Brazil crop is not washed, but the percentage of washed coffee is increasing, because practically any sort of coffee so treated commands a better price.—The Spice Mill.

A TEA GROWER'S SOLILOQUY.

Tea Trust, or no Tea Trust? that is the question. Whether it is wiser for us all, to suffer The kicks and claims of exacting Jobbers, Or to combine and ship 'em what we please Obvious of their growls. To taste—to smell, No more, but lie in chairs and smoke, Or go to Nikko like the Diplomats, And let experts and the Japanese Do what they d—d well please. 'Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished. To smoke, to sleep—to sleep, perchance to dream! Ay, there's the rub, for in that sleep What dreams may come, of Ceylon Teas And China Greens out-knocking fair Japans? And then to wake and find that "Trust," And "Bust," have rhymed, and all our hard-won Trade has vanished. Then the sad Tea Man Will his quietus make with a bare teaspoon! Who would not join a Trust, then grunt and sweat At matching teas that never can be matched, But that the fear of something by and bye: That plausible promoters may depart and seek The undiscover'd country, from whose bourne They never will return—puzzles us all, And makes us rather bear the ills we have, Than fly to others that we know not of.

Perhaps you haven't yet had the opportunity of getting acquainted with our "LORD ROBERTS" CEYLON TEA. It is a winner, and, while it retails at only 25c., you would really think it worth 40c., to look at it, and if you drew it your opinion would not change. It is not a Blend, just a straight tea, in 90-lb. chests. It has been a leader with us for 12 months, and the success we have had is great. If you should be a little doubtful about your 25c. bulk tea, give this a trial.

"YELLOW" means a newspaper that unduly exaggerates.

It could also be applied to some packers of tea with out losing any of its force.

We have not got the largest sale of tea in "the world," but we do claim to put up the only Pure Ceylon tea in Canada, and everybody knows that "Ceylon" is the best tea sold.

THE PROVISION TRADE.

The Markets—Winnipeg Provision Man Dead—Miscellaneous Notes.

WINNIPEG PROVISION MAN DEAD.

HERE died in Winnipeg last week one of the most familiar figures among business men in that city—P. Gallagher, sr., of P. Gallagher & Sons, wholesale and retail meat merchants.

Mr. Gallagher, as his name indicates, was an Irishman by birth, but had spent nearly all his life in Canada. He came to Winnipeg in the year 1880 from the Maritime Provinces, where he had been in the same line of business. From the first he was very successful. He was known from one end of the country to the other as a shrewd, careful and fair buyer. He handled large contracts for the Government and also for railway and other contractors.

Mr. Gallagher was an ardent Conservative in politics, and had been a life-long friend and supporter of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. Having the ready wit and the gallantry of speech so common to his countrymen, he had many friends. He leaves a widow, six sons and four daughters to mourn his loss. The funeral was one of the largest in the city for some time.

BARREL PORK FOR CANADIAN LUMBER CAMPS.

"One result of the shortage of barrel pork in Canada," said a Toronto provision dealer this week, "is that United States packers are here trying to get a share of the lumber-camp-supply trade. The market here is so high that, notwithstanding the duty on United States meats coming into this country, the large packers from the other side find prices here more satisfactory than they can get elsewhere. The United States pork is not as fine an article as that packed here, but that makes little difference. Canadian prices have to be adjusted to meet the competition of United States houses, and it looks now as if the latter would find a good market even after the Canadian stock is all well cleared out."

HOW TALLOW IS CONSUMED.

A leading tallow dealer is reported by The New York Journal of Commerce as stating that practically no tallow comes from the slaughter-houses or packers any more, as the packing house uses up all but its refuse beef fat for edible purposes, such as oleo oil and stearines, instead of soap stock. The chief supply of tallow now comes from butchers' trimmings, which are taken by the beef houses and rendered. Even the best of this is put into oleo oil and stearine.

Hence the supply of soapmakers' tallow is growing smaller all the time as packers stop selling the product for that purpose since they started manufacturing oleo products. Armour has not sold any tallow for some years.

THE UNITED STATES HOG MARKET.

The total packing of hogs in the United States last week was 420,000, as compared with 425,000 for the preceding week, and 340,000 for the same period last year. Since March 1, the total pack amounts to 1,071,000, against 1,001,500 one year ago. Prices during the week ruled at 70c. above last year's quotations.

HOW TO VALUE TALLOW.

In answer to an inquiry as to how to value tallow, The Oil and Colorman's Journal says: "The commercial brands of tallow are (1) rendered tallow, (2) pressed tallow, and (3) premier jus. Tallow is valued—its color, smell and taste—by the titre test, that is to say, the solidifying point of the fatty acids as determined by Dalican's method, the higher the solidifying point the greater is the percentage of solid fatty acids. Moisture is determined in the usual way, and gross adulteration by filtration of the melted fat at a steam heat. The harder the tallow and the freer it is from fatty acids and impurities the more valuable it is."

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The market is quiet. There is a fairly good trade doing in beef, but, as the offerings of both dressed hogs and calves are light, the high prices are maintained and the movement is small. Hogs are 25c. per cwt. higher. Lambs are 1c. per lb. lower. We quote as follows: Dressed hogs, $9.50 to $9.75 per cwt.; mutton, $6 to $7 per cwt.; yearling lambs, 7 to 7½c. per cwt.; spring lambs, 8 to 9c. per lb.; beef carcasses, $7.50 per cwt. for best and $6 to $7 for mediums; hind quarters, 8½ to 9½c. for best; fore quarters, 4½ to 5½c. for best; calves, $8 for best and $6 to $7 for mediums.

The market for pork products continues to stiffen. "Everything points to a continuance of present quotations for some time to come," said a Toronto packer on Wednesday. "Any changes in the next two or three months will be upwards. This is due not only to the good demand here, but to the stiff markets both in Europe and the United States." An advance of ¼c. is noted in lard. Breakfast bacon and medium hams are ½c. higher. We quote: Long clear bacon, 11½c. Smoked meats—Breakfast bacon, 15c.; rolls, 12c.; small hams, 14c.; medium hams, 14c.; large hams, 13c.; shoulder hams, 11½c.; backs, 15c. Barrel pork—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21; lard, tierces, 11c.; tubs, 11¼c.; pails, 11½c.

MONTREAL.

An advance in Chicago clear pork from $22.50 to $23 is about the only change that took place this week. We quote as follows: Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork, $20.50 to $21.50; selected heavy short cut mess pork, boneless, $21.50 to $22.50; family short cut back pork, $20.50 to $21.50; heavy short cut clear pork, $20 to $21.50; hams, 13c.; bacon, 14c.; lard, pure Canadian, $2.30 per pail; refined lard compound (Fairbank's), $1.92 for 1 to 24 pails; $1.90 for 25 to 49 pails; $1.88 for 50 pails and over; Snow White and Globe compound, $1.65 per pail; Cottolene, 9½c. per lb. in tierces, and 10¼c. in 26 lb. pails, and 10¼c. in 50-lb. boxes, for Quebec.

WINNIPEG.

The cured meat market here is decidedly firm. Hams ranging in size from 12 to 14 lb. are quoted as high as 15c. All other prices are the same as last week. We quote: Sugar-cured hams, 14 to 15c.; sugar-cured bellies, 14c.; sugar-cured backs, short, 14c.; sugar-cured shoulders, 10c.; dry salt long clear bacon, 12½c.; shoulders, cut square, 9½c. Lard is also firm at $2.35 for 30-lb. pails.

ST. JOHN N.B.

There is little business. Local packed pork is about out of the market. The American continues to advance, and very high prices rule. Beef, in comparison, is very reasonable. Lard continues very high.

CEYLON GREEN TEAS IN CANADA.

By William Mackenzie, in The Home and Colonial Mall.

I WROTE to a Canadian broker, pointing out the difficulty I had as to advising the making of Ceylon greens, whether in large or small quantities. This is his reply:—

"I can quite understand the difficulty you experience in advising your friends on the green tea business, and also their discouragement at the uncertainty of the demand for it. However, it is some consolation to us to know that we are not alone in our vagaries on this matter, but that a market like New York is acting in a similar manner. This looks as if there was some good reason for our peculiar actions, if such they can be called, seeing they are only business methods.

"I think the discouragement your friends feel is entirely due to their not appreciating the difficult position of these teas in our market. They evidently believe that when a broker (say myself) sells a jobber a line of Ceylon green, it is simply because that jobber wants the tea, and is looking for it, whereas the fact is that I have perhaps talked Ceylon greens to that man for weeks, and at last got him to try, say, twenty or forty packages. He has then to 'enthuse' his travellers on the goods, and out they go to sell them. The jobber then buys a few more, and repeats this until the travellers, having sold every customer whom they can induce to handle them, the demand in that quarter stops, and you cannot place another package with that man until those customers begin to buy again. When this will be is very uncertain. The country retailer here is not a pushing character. The Ceylon green has been squeezed on to him, and he had often neither the brains nor the energy to get it off his hands in the same manner as it came on to them. His customers are likely Japan tea drinkers; no one asks for Ceylon greens, and he is not going to argue with them as to the better value of the Ceylon, and it goes off very very gradually. This occurs in hundreds of cases. In the meantime there is a lull all round, and reports go abroad that the demand has stopped; this reaches the growers, prices drop a little, and they stop making and the whole business feels upset. There will be for some time to come periodical spurts and periodical lulls in the demand, but each spurt will be a little larger than the previous one, like rings from a stone thrown in the water. The growers have got to recognize the fact that they have entered the lists against Japans, which have been in use here for thirty or forty years, and it must necessarily be a hard fight, with many discouragements to all that are engaged in it. But I confidently feel that if the Ceylon green tea is persistently pushed it will come to be a great business with us."

OTTAWA GROCERS' FIRST PICNIC.

THE Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association is to be congratulated on the success of their first annual picnic, which was held on Wednesday last week at Stanley Island, Ontario. The excursion proved a grand success from every point of view, over 300 employers, employees, their families and friends partaking of the hospitality of the Association and all were united in saying that the outing was the most pleasant and enjoyable spent for some time.

The route taken by the excursionists was by the Ottawa and New York Railway to Cornwall and from there by the steamer Filgate to Stanley Island. It was a most exceedingly popular one. After leaving Cornwall it presented a remarkable variety of scenery which included many scenic and historic resorts. The train left the Central depot at 8 a.m. arriving at Cornwall 10 a.m. The excursionists were then transported over to the wharf by the Cornwall electric cars where they took the steamer. The trip down the river was commenced at 11 o'clock and all agreed that it was impossible to find words wherewith to sketch the varied splendors of the St. Lawrence River and Lake Francis with their numerous islands. The effect of the scenery that presents itself is a sensation never to be forgotten.

Directly opposite Cornwall lies Cornwall Island, the home of that large and prosperous population, the St. Regis Indians, to whom attention has lately been drawn by the uprising of one of their chiefs, Jake Skin, who has just spent twenty days in jail for insubordination. From all appearances the island is well cultivated. Colquhoun Island, some three or four miles farther down the river, presents another pleasant spot. It is situated almost in the middle of the river and has a number of attractive residences built on it.

The steamer instead of stopping at Stanley Island continued its course on down the river, in order that the excursionists might view the beautiful scenery, to a point called Lancaster Light Cairn in Lake St. Francis, nearly opposite the village of Lancaster. This particular spot is a small island built of stones by the United Empire Loyalists about a hundred years ago.

At this point the steamer turned around and returned to Stanley Island, one of the most favored summer resorts on the St. Lawrence. It is a grand island, a fisherman's paradise, a source of water supply; in fact, a real natural sanitarium. The island is about a mile from the mainland, and affords a splendid view for miles both up and down the river as well as across Lake St. Francis in both directions. It has an area of about 75 acres, and fully one-half of it is laid out as a park, which is traversed by paths and walks which, to the eye of an onlooker, are most pleasing. It has a bicycle track nearly two miles long, golf links, tennis and croquet grounds.

On arriving at the island, the excursionists were escorted by the committee in charge to the Algonquin House, where dinner was served to over 200. This is an excellent hotel, and is becoming better known and more generously patronized every year. The excursionists were all loud in their praises of its situation and its many attractions. Its situation is one of the most charming features. The picturesque scenery visible from the hotel is a great attraction.

The committee expressed entire satisfaction with the manner in which Mr. J. R. Duquette, the popular proprietor, treated the excursion party.

Dinner over, the excursionists devoted the time until 6.30 in the evening in swimming, fishing, bowling, sailing and viewing the natural beauties of this charming summer resort.

During the afternoon Mr. Duquette took a number of the excursionists over to Hamilton's Island and then crossed over to Hopkin's Point in his yacht, The Ivey. The trip was much enjoyed by the party.

The return trip was commenced at 6.30, the excursionists arriving in the city at 9.55.

NOTES.

The picnic was such a success that it will henceforth be an annual affair.

The committee in charge were: W. J. Eastcott, president; J. G. Stewart, vice-president; H. C. Ellis, secretary; Wm.

York, treasurer; and the following excursion committee: M. H. McVeity, H. W. Booth, Charles Prevost, George J. Miller, W. Hand and J. Phillip.

The Ottawa and New York Railway received much praise for the systematic arrangements they had made for the excursion. Mr. Hamilton, assistant passenger agent, and H. K. Gays, assistant general manager, accompanied the excursion to see that all arrangements were carried out. Mayor Campbell, of Cornwall, who is also president of The Montreal and Cornwall Navigation Co., boarded the boat at Cornwall and was of valuable assistance in pointing out scenes of interest to the excursionists.

The Ottawa Pipe Band, who were engaged by the association, contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the day. Their selections were much appreciated, not only by the excursionists, but by all the guests at Stanley's Island.

Among the representatives of wholesale houses present the following were noted: J. D. Larose, Canada Biscuit Co., Limited; G. W. Hunt, Ottawa Fruit Exchange; R. B. Whyte, J. G. Whyte & Sons; E. W. Richardson, Cochrane & Co.; L. McCurdy, McCormick Biscuit Co.; Van Gilchrist, Borthwick Fruit Exchange; W. G. Reilly and C. F. King, local representatives of The Copeland, Chatterton Co.; W. C. Thorp, Ross Tea Co.; F. E. Convery, Fleishmann's Yeast; C. E. Plain & Co.; J. D. McCusker; H. N. Bate & Sons; Provost Bros.; D. McIntosh; G. Matthews & Co.; Sunlight Soap Co.; J. Campbell, Chaput Fils, Montreal.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch.

Your idea may be that all starch is starch and that your customers won't detect even a slight difference in quality. You may think that because there is a cent or two extra profit on "Mushroom" brands (that come and go), you can retain the confidence of your trade—it doesn't pay to trifle with the confidence that a customer has in you and your goods.

Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch is as staple as flour. In the name there is the fame of nearly half a century. In the making there is the skill of long experience combined with honesty of purpose and unequalled manufacturing facilities. Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch represents the highest type of perfection there is or can be in starch. Kegs of 100-lbs.—handsome enamelled horse-shoe tins holding 6-lbs.—handsome 1-lb. packages that give a touch of life and color and "go" to a grocer's shelves.

THE DOMINION MOLASSES CO.,
Halifax, N.S.

Dear Sirs,—I beg to advise receipt of the car Molasses, which came to hand in good order and condition, and, as a proof I am satisfied with the quality, now offer same figures for two cars same grade.

This is an extract from a letter received a few days ago referring to a carload of Barbadoes shipped to one of the largest cities in the Province of Quebec.

We have some more of this grade to offer, and the price is low.

Offices Throughout the Civilized World.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information, no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

"As a Twig is Bent So Grows the Tree."

Plant a seed—bend the first tiny root that comes up and as it is bent it will grow. Plant another seed and give it tender care—what does your earnest help produce? Read the answer in the vigorous growth that surely comes.

Sell nameless goods and—watch your competitor forge ahead. Sell goods that bear a standard name and watch your business grow. Hustle, bustle, activity everywhere—money flowing in. Start right, because "as a twig is bent so grows the tree."

Standard Goods.

*Stower's
Lime Juice.*

It draws trade, there's no question about it. 20 per cent. stronger than any Lime Juice made—economical—no musty flavor—keeps perfectly in any climate, even after the cork is drawn. And the Lime Juice Cordial and the Lemon Squash that Stower makes are also "Standard Goods."

*"Thistle" Brand
Finnan Haddies.*

We have sold them for seventeen years. They are cured, cleaned and packed right at the water side, in one of the most perfectly equipped and cleanest factories of the kind on the Atlantic Coast. Real Haddock, without a particle of dirt or slime. The rich, delicate flavor is retained in all its natural freshness.

Stephens' Malt Vinegar.

Genuine English Malt Vinegar of the highest quality there is or can be. Stephens' Brewery (John Stevens, Son & Co., Limited) is one of the largest in all England, and the oldest. No adulteration—nothing but absolutely pure vinegar. Sold in bulk or bottles—they are standard goods and "standard goods are best to handle."

JONAS' FLAVORING EXTRACTS ARE PROFITABLE FOR THE DEALER, BECAUSE THEY GIVE SATISFACTION TO THE USER.

There are a great many articles being sold over the counters of some grocery stores in which there is little or no profit, because they fail to satisfy. Among such are a certain class of extracts put up in large, attractive-looking bottles, the contents of which is weak, colored and impure. They are unprofitable in the extreme, because careful and skilful housekeepers have no use for such stuff. They will go to the store where they can get the stronger, richer and purer kind --- JONAS' FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

The most successful grocers in Canada have learned from experience that the choicest and most reliable Extracts to sell over their counters are Jonas' Flavoring Extracts, behind which is thirty-one years of experience, which guarantees their quality to be unequalled. They are the kind which give entire satisfaction. They make regular and profitable customers, and create a demand for other less-known lines. Stick to Jonas' Flavoring Extracts and your customers will stick to you.

"Puffs of Profit."

Every puff a man takes of Payne's Cigars strengthens the friendship between him and your store. It pays to sell Payne's Cigars. But that is not all—I can save you money if you'll only give me the chance and let me send you a trial order of a thousand or more.

I can give you better quality (and quality that never varies) for less money than you have ever paid before. This is a pretty bold statement to make, but I can back it up if you'll send for that trial order. I'll pay the freight on it. Money back if not satisfied.

THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

Seventh Annual Convention in Chatham, N.B.—A Report of the Proceedings—Sydney the Next Place of Meeting.

ONE of those who were fortunate enough to be in attendance at the seventh annual convention of the Maritime Board of Trade, which was held in Chatham, N. B., on Wednesday and Thursday, August 21 and 22, are likely to have anything but the most pleasant recollection of it. The weather was delightful. Not a cloud obscured the summer sky, and the gentle breezes which came from the broad and beautiful Miramichi River, on the shores of which Chatham is situated, made the temperature ideal. The weather, it might be said, was not ordered specially for the occasion. The summer weather on the Miramichi is among the best on the continent, its normal condition being dry, moderately cool and invigorating. The people in the towns and villages of the Miramichi are proud of both their river and their climate. And the delegates to the Maritime Board of Trade, after their experience, are probably not one whit behind them in this respect.

The unique and important character of the Miramichi district naturally tended to interest the delegates, particularly in view of the fact that they were practically all business men. And when, in addition, one considers the hearty manner in which the local board of trade, the town council and Senator Snowball, head of the milling firm bearing his name, contrived to entertain the delegates it is no wonder they had a good time.

The delegates, however, worked hard as well as enjoyed themselves thoroughly, as the subjoined report of the proceedings will show.

OPENING OF THE CONVENTION.

The place of meeting was the imposing town hall. By 9.30 o'clock on Wednesday morning a number of delegates had gathered, and 30 minutes later business was under way, with President W. E. Loggie in the chair.

THE DELEGATES PRESENT.

Although a number of affiliated boards had not sent delegates, the attendance at the convention was fairly good. The delegates present during the whole or part of the convention were as follows :

KENTVILLE—G. De Wolfe and Geo. E. Calkin.
HALIFAX—J. A. Chipman, F. K. Warren, F. C. Simson, Geo. E. Boak, J. E. De Wolfe and W. A. Black.
CHARLOTTETOWN—W. H. Aitken and G. D. Longworth.
MONCTON—J. H. Harris, C. P. Harris, F. P. Reid, J. Flanagan, A. E. Holstead, E. G. Russell and F. W. Sumner.
CHATHAM—W. S. Loggie, Mayor W. B. Snowball, M. S. Hocken, D. G. Smith, Senator J. B. Snowball, Geo. Watt and Alex. Burr.
SYDNEY—E. C. Hanrahan.
TRURO—C. E. Bentley, Dr. D. H. Muir.
NEWCASTLE—Mayor D. Morrison, G. A. Lounsbury and P. Hennessy.
ST. JOHN, N.B.—W. S. Fisher, W. M. Jarvis, Frank O. Allison and W. G. Robertson.
MIDDLETON, N.S.—N. H. Parsons.
SUSSEX, N.B.—H. P. Robinson and H. H. Parlee.

VOCATION OF THE DELEGATES.

In debating power and in businesslike method of conducting the proceedings of the convention the board was strong. As a result there was a gratifying promptness in the conduct of business. Senator Snowball, during a pleasure trip down the river, said that while he had sat in both the House of Commons and in the Senate he had never sat in a body stronger in deliberative ability than that of the Maritime Board of Trade. And his tribute had reason for its basis. Nearly every delegate was a practical business man, and was able to express himself in a way that everybody understood him. This may be gathered from a glance at the following, although not a complete list :

M. S. Hocken, Chatham, one of the town's aldermen.

G. D. Longworth, lobster packer, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Alex Burr, Chatham, dry goods merchant and an ex-alderman.

D. G. Russell, Moncton, manager of the Intercolonial Railway.

George Watt, Chatham, insurance agent and one of the town's aldermen.

Fred B. Reid, of Reid & Co., wholesale grocers, Moncton and Campbellton.

Frank O. Allison, secretary of the St. John Board of Trade and financial agent.

J. H. Harris, of the wholesale grocery firm of J. H. Harris & Co., Moncton.

F. C. Simson, manufacturer of fruit juices, etc., and wholesale druggist, Halifax.

Ex-President C. E. Bentley, Truro, N.S., of Blanchard & Bentley, dry goods.

W. G. Robertson, St. John, N.B., district freight agent of the Intercolonial Railway.

W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown, P.E.I., managing partner of the wholesale grocery firm of Caverhill & Co.

Ex-President W. M. Jarvis, St. John, N.B., fire insurance and financial agent of 35 years' experience.

Senator Snowball, senior member of the Chatham lumber mill firm of The J. B. Snowball Co., Limited.

J. A. Chipman, Halifax, wholesale flour and meal, a keen board of trade man and an eloquent speaker.

E. C. Hanrahan, a business man by profession and deputy-mayor of Sydney, C.B., by choice of the people.

J. Flanagan, a dry goods merchant of 34 years' standing in Moncton, N.B., and the last delegate to leave Chatham.

George E. Boak, of the firm of George Boak & Co., Halifax, wholesale grocers and specialists in West-Indian goods.

Dr. Muir, president of The Truro Condensed Milk Co., Limited, Truro, N.S., and an ardent board of trade man.

J. E. De Wolfe, sole member of the old firm of T. A. S. De Wolfe & Son, Halifax, ship agents and commission merchants.

President W. S. Loggie, Chatham, N.B., general merchant, canned goods packer, brick-maker, and vessel-owner.

Fred W. Sumner, senior member of The Sumner Co., owners of a retail hardware store at Moncton and a large lumber mill at Bathurst, N.B.

Ex-President M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville, N.S., retired general merchant and one of the most enthusiastic members of the Maritime Board of Trade.

W. B. Snowball, Chatham, manager of The J. B. Snowball Co., Limited, mayor of the town, chairman of the school board and an enthusiastic young Canadian.

George E. Calkin, Kentville, N.S., retired hardware merchant and at present enjoying life on a fruit farm and holding the secretaryship of his local board.

C. P. Harris, retired merchant, Moncton. Mr. Harris was one of the original founders of the Moncton cotton factory, the sugar refinery and the local street railway.

Donald Morrison, a native of Burnt Church, but now a resident of Newcastle, where he carries on business as dry goods merchant and blueberry packer, besides which he is mayor of the town.

G. A. Lounsbury, Newcastle, N.B., where he has been in the agricultural implement business during the past 10 years. He has at present in course of construction a fine new business block.

W. A. Black, of Pickford & Black, Halifax, owners of the famous line of steamships running to the West Indies and warm champions of closer trade relations between those colonies and Canada. Mr. Black has also had some Parliamentary experience, having sat in the Provincial Legislature.

W. S. Fisher, member of the wholesale hardware firm of Emerson & Fisher, St. John, N.B., and of the Enterprise Store Co., Sackville, N.B., besides being financially interested in other commercial enterprises, to say nothing of his presidency of the St. John Tourist Association.

A THOUGHTFUL SECRETARY.

Secretary Smith, who is the publisher of The Miramichi Advance, had the minutes of the last annual meeting neatly printed and these were distributed among the members. This avoided the tedious task of reading the minutes, and on motion they were taken as read.

Mr. George E. Boak, of Halifax, said that he noticed that his name had been omitted from the minutes, and on motion of Messrs. W. M. Jarvis and J. A. Chipman, the secretary was instructed to rectify the error.

COMMITTEE ON BUSINESS.

A committee to arrange the order of business was appointed as follows: Messrs. M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville, N. S., chairman; W. M. Jarvis, St. John, N.B.; J. A. Chipman, Halifax; W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; J. H. Harris, Moncton, N.B.; H. P. Robinson, Sussex, N. B.; E. C. Hanrahan, Sydney, N.S.; C. E. Bentley, Truro, N. S.; Mayor Snowball, Chatham, N.B.; Mayor Morrison, Newcastle, N.B.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A number of communications were read. Among them were the following:

I regret very much that an accident which prevents me walking makes it impossible for me to attend the meetings of the Board as I have expected to do. Mr. Troop also finds himself prevented from going at the last moment, but I feel sure that our representatives will make up in quality what they lack in numbers. I hope you may have a thoroughly successful and profitable meeting, and that some practical good may result from your deliberations. With renewed regrets for my enforced absence, believe me,

Yours truly,

G. S. CAMPBELL,
President Halifax Board of Trade.

Halifax, Aug. 20.

Replying to your favor of recent date I regret being unable to do anything with our business men re. Board of Trade. I trust in the near future that something in this direction may be done, as I feel it is a necessity.

JOHN A. FLETT.

Campbellton, N.B., Aug. 2.

I am very sorry I have so much on my hands at present that it is difficult to get away. W. J. Hemming has promised to go down and I will arrange for two other delegates, possibly A. A. Davidson and, if possible, myself. You can depend on our board being represented by two if not three delegates.

D. MORRISON,

Secretary Newcastle Board of Trade.
Newcastle, Aug. 20.

Mr. Morrison, however, did find time to put in an appearance, and when he did he could not find time to get away.

Secretary Smith said the Fredericton Board had informed him that it could not see any benefit to be derived from affiliating with the Maritime Board. When it could it would do so.

REVISION OF BY-LAWS AND CONSTITUTION.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe said that the committee appointed at the last annual meeting composed of business men, the matter was disposed of in a businesslike way. And when the meeting adjourned for luncheon the by-laws and constitution with certain amendments had been passed through the customary stages and adopted. As adopted the by-laws and constitution read as follows:

CONSTITUTION, RULES AND BY-LAWS OF THE BOARD OF TRADE OF THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

1. This Board shall be known as The Maritime Board of Trade.

2. It shall be composed of delegates from the various Maritime Boards of Trade, on the basis of 10 per cent. of each Board's membership.

3. It shall deal with all matters affecting the interests of trade and commerce in the Maritime Provinces, as well as in the whole Dominion.

4. The Officers shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, each representing one of the Maritime Provinces, a Secretary-Treasurer, a Corresponding Secretary and an Auditor, to be elected at the annual meeting of the Board. Any vacancy occurring through death, resignation or otherwise, may be filled by the Council until the next annual session of the Board.

5. There shall be a Council composed of one member from each affiliated Board, who shall be elected by the respective Boards immediately after the annual session of the Maritime Board, five members of which shall form a quorum. The President, Vice-Presidents, Secretary-Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary of the Maritime Board shall be ex officio members of the Council.

6. The Council shall meet once each year, on a date and at a place to be fixed by the President. It may meet at other times on the request of the President or of the two Vice-Presidents, or of any three of its other members. Special Council meetings shall be held at such times and places as may be designated in the calls therefor, which calls shall be printed or written notices delivered or mailed to the post office address of each member of Council or to the secretary of such affiliated Boards of the current year as have not sent notices of the election of their members of Council, and all such notices shall be issued by the Secretary-Treasurer.

7. The annual session of the Board shall be on the third Wednesday of August at such place as may be selected by the Council, unless the place for holding such session shall be fixed by resolution of the Board.

Any such session may be adjourned to any subsequent date by the members present.

8. Special General Meetings of the Board may be summoned at any time by the President, the two Vice-Presidents, or the Council.

9. Each affiliated Board shall pay annually to the Secretary-Treasurer towards the expenses of the Maritime Board an amount in the proportion of a per capita tax of 15c. each on its membership.

RULES AND BY-LAWS.

1. The President, Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer shall be elected by nomination and ballot separately.

2. The order of business shall be as follows:

(1) Roll Call.

(2) Reading of the Minutes of last meeting and amendment or approval of the same.

(3) Appointment of Committee on unfinished business.

FEATURES OF CHATHAM AND OF THE MIRAMICHI.

The town of Chatham is prettily situated on a gentle declivity of the south bank of the Miramichi River, and is the commercial centre of the district. Its history is concurrent with the early history of the Province. Its distance from the ocean is less than 30 miles, and transatlantic steamers and square-rigged barques come to its port during the summer months to load deals for the European and other markets.

There are about 13 lumber mills on the Miramichi River, the greater part of them being of large capacity, and their aggregate export trade is over $1,000,000 per annum. Chatham has two or three of these mills, and one of them, that of the J. B. Snowball Co., Limited, is the largest on the river. Besides its lumber, there are its fishing and canning industries and its pulp mills.

Of the fishing industry of the Miramichi, the most important is that of smelt catching. Every year no less than about 1,000 tons, or about 100 earloads, are caught and frozen and exported to the United States. The lobster industry on the Miramichi and adjacent coast line is estimated to be worth about $200,000 annually. Another important industry in the Miramichi district in the canned goods line is that of blueberry packing. One of the firms engaged in this industry alone has this season taken orders for 100 earloads.

THE RESIDENTIAL PART

of Chatham is a fair criterion of the prosperity of its people, the dwellings of the business men being neat, roomy and attractive, while the gardens and lawns that surround many of them are particularly spacious, well kept and handsome.

THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS

would be a credit to a much larger town. The post office is built of brown stone, and is modern in its appearance and appointments. The town hall is a fine imposing building of red brick. In educational matters the town takes a lively interest, and one of the evidences of this is the fine and substantial high school building which is nearing completion on an eminence overlooking the town. The building is of grey stone and will cost the town $40,000. Another evidence of the fact that the town is not asleep is the sewerage and waterworks systems which are now being put in at a cost of $150,000. The source of the water supply is three artesian wells, which have been bored just outside the western limits of the town. The pressure from these wells is about 80 pounds to the square inch. The official census relating to the town has not yet been issued, but it is estimated that it will show a population of about 6,000.

of the Board was prepared to report. He moved that the report be received and laid on the table. Mr. Jarvis seconded the motion, which was carried.

Mr. J. A. Chipman said that if the proposed amendments to the by-laws were taken up as the next order of business it might materially assist in advancing the business of the convention.

On motion of Secretary Smith the suggestion was concurred in, and the constitution and by-laws as amended by the committee were read by Secretary Smith.

The discussion of such subjects are usually long and tedious, but, the meeting being

(9) Election of Officers.

3. At the opening of each annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the reading of minutes, the President or other Chairman shall appoint a Committee on unfinished business to consist of one delegate from each affiliated Board represented at the meeting. Such Committee shall forthwith proceed to arrange the order in which the various subjects for consideration shall be taken up, providing as far as possible, that each affiliated Board, in order of larger membership, shall have priority as to one such subject only. The Committee on unfinished business shall report the order of subjects to the Board for confirmation as soon as possible after their appointment, and shall report any other subjects proposed for consideration from time to time throughout the meeting.

4. All questions relative to the priority of business shall be decided without debate.

5. The Chairman shall preserve order, and shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal to the Board.

6. All motions shall be made in writing, when required by the Chairman; no debate shall be allowed except on a motion regularly before the chair, but a motion may be prefaced.

7. When two or more members rise at the same time, the Chairman shall name the member who is first to speak.

8. A member being called to order, shall immediately sit down unless permitted to explain.

9. If any member appeal from the decision of the Chair, the Board shall decide such appeal without debate.

10. Any member may of right require the question under discussion to be read for his information at any time during the debate, but not so as to interrupt a member while speaking.

11. No member shall speak more than twice, or longer than 10 minutes on any one question without leave.

12. Every member, wishing to speak, shall rise and respectfully address the chair; he shall confine himself strictly to the matter under discussion.

13. No motion shall be put or debated, unless the same be seconded; when seconded, it shall be stated by the Chairman before debate.

14. After a resolution is stated by the chairman, it shall be deemed in possession of the Board, but may, by permission of the Board, be withdrawn at any time before decision or amendment.

15. When a question is under debate, the only motions in order shall be—1st, to adjourn; 2nd, the previous question; 3rd, to lay on the table; 4th, to postpone indefinitely; 5th, to adjourn to a certain time; 6th, to refer; 7th, to amend. The previous question, when moved, must be seconded by at least five members. When the previous question is moved and seconded, it shall be put in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" If this is carried, all further amendments and debate shall be excluded, and the question put without delay. If the question has been amended, the vote shall be taken on the amendment first. If more than one amendment has been made, the last made amendment in order shall take precedence in the vote. It shall not be in order to reconsider the previous question.

16. A motion to adjourn the Board shall be always in order, except—1st, when a member is in possession of the floor; 2nd, while the yeas and nays are being called; 3rd, while the members are voting; 4th, when it has been decided that the previous question shall be taken, a motion to adjourn simply cannot be amended, but a motion to adjourn to a given time may be, and is open to debate.

17. A motion to lay a question on the table simply, is not debatable, but a motion to lay on the table and publish, or with any other conditions, is subject to amendment and debate.

18. A motion to amend an amendment shall be in order; but a motion to amend an amendment to an amendment shall not be entertained. An amendment modifying the intention of a motion shall be in order, but an amendment relating to a different subject shall not be in order.

19. A question may be reconsidered at any time during the same meeting, on a motion made and seconded by members who voted in the majority, and when once made and decided in the negative, shall not be revived before the next meeting of the Board; and no question shall be reconsidered more than once, nor shall a vote to reconsider be reconsidered.

20. No member shall be eligible for the office of President or Vice-President for more than two years in succession.

21. The Secretary-Treasurer shall duly record in a book, all minutes, or resolutions, decisions, and other proceedings of the Board, entering therein all accepted reports, orders and resolutions, and shall notice reports, memorials, and other papers submitted to the Board only by their titles, or a brief description of their purport. He shall also keep proper books of account and submit the same for audit at the annual meeting and whenever called on by the President or the Council so to do.

22. The payments from affiliated Boards shall fall due on the third Wednesday in August in each year, and no delegate shall have the right to take part in the annual meeting until such payment from the Board he represents shall have been made.

23. The foregoing By-Laws shall likewise govern the proceedings of the Council, in so far as they are applicable.

24. The Constitution and By-Laws may be added to, repealed or amended by a vote of two-thirds of all the members present at any general meeting of the Board, notice of such amendment having been given at a previous general meeting and entered upon the minutes, or sent in writing to the Secretary at least once a month before the general meeting at which it is to be considered. If any such notice shall be received by the Secretary he shall forthwith send a copy of the same to each affiliated Board.

THE DISCUSSION OF THE CONSTITUTION

The modifying of the style of the organization from the "Board of Trade of the Maritime Provinces" to "The Maritime Board of Trade" was the result of a suggestion of Mr. O. Allison, St. John. "In writing it, we nearly always say 'Maritime Board of Trade,'" he suggested.

The constitution has hitherto only allowed for the election of one secretary, and the provision in the revised by-laws was inserted by the suggestion of Secretary Smith, who, in moving its insertion, explained that it was done in view of the contemplated election of a permanent secretary. The new corresponding secretary would reside in the same town as the president.

Secretary Smith wanted the word "session" inserted in the constitution in place of the word "meeting" wherever the latter occurred. He thought it would be more Parliamentary, but his suggestion was not concurred in.

THE COUNCIL.

The consideration of the clause regarding the meetings of council induced quite a little discussion. He said that the council had not met for some years and he thought it should meet at least once per annum, and that the time of meeting should be fixed. He suggested some date in February.

Mr. G. D. Harris said it would be difficult for the Prince Edward Island members to attend a meeting in February owing to the uncertainty of navigation.

Secretary Smith suggested that the clause be adopted without the month being fixed.

Mr. J. A. Chipman thought the date should be left with the president.

A member: "What about June?"

Mr. Harris: "That would suit us in Prince Edward Island."

Someone suggested that the council should have two meetings during the year.

Mr. Fisher did not approve of the suggestion of two meetings.

Mr. Black thought two meetings of the council would be a good thing if it could be worked, as it would tend to increase enthusiasm in the Maritime Board of Trade matters.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe said he desired to correct the impression that seemed to obtain in regard to nothing being heard of the Maritime Board of Trade between the annual meetings. "When I was president," he said, "the secretary was instructed to send out circulars about every two months bringing to the attention of the boards matters appertaining to the Maritime Board." He said that since the formation of the Maritime Board only two meetings of the council had been held, one at Truro and another at St. John. To have a fixed date on which to hold the meetings of the council would be a great help to the president and officers of the board.

Mr. Jarvis said he endorsed what Mr. De Wolfe had said. "There is just one other thing to which I wish to refer," he said, "and that is that we are indebted to the president for his efforts and to the prominence which has been given to Maritime Board of Trade matters by THE CANADIAN GROCER, whose editor is with us to-day." (Applause.)

EXPLANATION FROM THE PRESIDENT.

"Before putting this motion," said President Loggie, "I wish to say that I have felt some diffidence about calling the council together, knowing that its members were busy business men, and especially as there was nothing of importance appertaining to the Maritime Provinces demanding attention. I think the suggestion of calling the council together at a fixed time a good one.

The motion fixing the date as printed in the constitution and by-laws as above, namely, June, was ultimately adopted.

A FINANCIAL QUESTION.

Mr. Fisher raised the point as to whether the per capita tax was sufficient, particularly in view of the proposition to appoint a permanent secretary. "Then," he said, "I do not think it is fair for us to ask the officers of the Board to travel here and there on the business of the Board at their own expense."

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe pointed out that at the last annual meeting the financial statement showed the receipts to be $117 and the expenditure $32.50.

WELCOME FROM CHATHAM.

During a slight lull in the proceedings Mayor Snowball, of Chatham, grasped the opportunity of welcoming the delegates on behalf of the town of which he is chief magistrate. "I would like," he began, "to welcome you on behalf of the town of Chatham. We feel proud that you should have selected this place for your annual meeting. We cannot claim any particular advantage, except that we have the liveliest town in the Provinces. (Applause.) We have a magnificent climate and a beautiful country and I hope you will carry away with you the most pleasant recollections when you depart." (Applause.)

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

President Loggie, before presenting his annual address, requested Vice-President Dr. Muir, of Truro, to take the chair. The address was as follows :

GENTLEMEN OF THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE :

Another year has passed and another century has closed since last we met in annual session.

Remembering, as I do, the exhaustive addresses of my immediate predecessors, Mr. Jarvis, of St. John in 1899, and Mr. De Wolfe at last year's session. I am indeed conscious of my inability to do justice to the important matters affecting the mercantile interests of the Maritime Provinces.

I am, however, justly proud of this opportunity of welcoming the representative business men of the Maritime Provinces to the Liverpool of the North Shore of New Brunswick.

We meet in the second commercial centre of the Province, whose activities in the lumbering and fishing industries are of the greatest value and importance to the mercantile interests of the Maritime Provinces.

There is here one of the most magnificent rivers, ranking second in the Maritime Provinces, and our town, the principal distributing centre of Northern New Brunswick.

You will observe our streets do not present as unencumbered an appearance as we would wish ; but you will notice that the general condition of obstruction is due to our town authorities being engaged in supplying Chatham with a water and sewerage system and other improvements ; so as to place us on a footing with the most progressive cities and towns.

MEETING OF COUNCIL.

Although no matter of a Maritime character has been brought to my notice that required a meeting of council during the past year, I am persuaded it would be to the advantage of the Board that the by-laws provide that there shall be a meeting of council, six months after the annual meeting, it being optional with the president to convene other meetings of council as necessity might require.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

The matter of revising the constitution and by-laws was referred to a committee, consisting of the president, secretary and M. G. De Wolfe, Esq.

But, under the constitution itself, no alteration could be made without notice being given at a previous general session, or twenty days' notice before the session at which the alterations were proposed to be made. The secretary has in his hands alterations prepared under the twenty days' rule, and they may be made effective.

COLD STORAGE.

It is apparent that more attention must be given to the ocean-carrying trade of perishable commodities.

Professor Robertson, since his return from England, is impressing on us the necessity of delivering perishable products to markets in the best possible condition. It is important that steamers be fitted up with the most improved cold storage system, so that all deterioration possible of perishable goods be avoided. It would be in order for this board to memorialize our Federal Government on this important matter, and urge the fitting up of necessary steamers to overtake the increasing trade in this class of goods, that justice may be done and shippers encouraged by having the best equipments possible, to secure the Mother Country markets.

SOUTH-AFRICAN WAR.

During the year that has passed we have been welcoming home our heroes of the South-African War. They have acquitted themselves as the "bravest of the brave," and won laurels that we, representing the mercantile community of the Maritime Provinces, should be proud of.

Although war at any time is a most deplorable thing, we are persuaded that the one now, we believe, nearing to a close, and adding another patch of red to the British Empire, was a just and most righteous one, and was a means of binding the Colonies themselves and the Mother Country closer together.

The Maritime Provinces have been prominent in the supplying of hay and horses for the great undertaking, and more steamers have cleared for South-African ports from St. John and Halifax, during the past year than ever before.

TOURIST TRAVEL.

This subject is always important, and, although much has been done to have our Provinces known as desirable summer resorts, there is still a wide field of usefulness in this direction.

The Maritime Merchant suggests that if large, plainly furnished and well ventilated rooms, also plain food, well cooked and nicely served, with everything spotlessly clean, were more generally available, such boarding places would encourage tourist travel. When attending our last annual meeting I was greatly impressed with the extent of tourist travel in the "Land of Evangeline" and wondered why the Miramichi did not attract more American tourists.

DEATH OF OUR BELOVED QUEEN.

The whole British Empire has mourned the loss of "Victoria the Good," and we of the Maritime Provinces have expressed our sympathy.

It becomes us, at our first meeting under our new Sovereign, King Edward VII., to express our loyalty to him, who, we believe, will rule us as wisely and justly as did his beloved and lamented mother.

CENSUS.

Another decade has gone and we find our Dominion has increased in population over half a million.

We regret that the increase in the Maritime Provinces is not as much as we would like it to be, and we realize that, as representing the mercantile community, it behooves us to encourage industries indigenous to our Provinces, and foster them as far as we can, so that our young men and women may find employment at home, instead of in our neighbors' cities.

RECIPROCITY WITH THE UNITED STATES.

We are pleased to note the change of opinion by our respected neighbors as regards the desirability of securing freer trade relations with Canada.

It is expected the Joint High Commission will soon meet, and we fondly hope the territorial dispute has been in the meantime discussed and an equitable finding arrived at, so that the important matter of trade relations may be taken up and put into effect.

There is, in the New England States, a growing desire that freer trade relations shall exist

It is gratifying to know that the importance of our trade with our neighbors is now being to some extent realized by them, and they are putting forward, through their chambers of commerce and trade journals, that it is now their turn to sue for freer trade relations, as is illustrated in the following editorial paragraphs from "The Dry Goods Economist, which is the leading trade journal representing the manufacturing of fabrics and wholesale trade in the same :

"To-day, however, when the Administration at Washington is committed to the policy of reciprocity, and clearer ideas prevail as to the best mode of treating our neighbor, the question of commercial union with Canada is again coming to the front, and, it is to be hoped, with better prospects. It is becoming every day more clearly recognized that with no country is reciprocity more desirable than with Canada, and there is reason to believe that a strong effort to obtain legislation to this end will shortly be made. This time, however, the overtures will be made by the United States.

"It is to be hoped that Canada will not prove coy as to the results of our rejection of her former offers. At any rate, it is gratifying to note that such an energetic and prominent organization as the Merchants' Association of New York has taken up this matter of reciprocity with the Dominion, and, as stated in our news columns, has adopted resolutions calling for early action on the part of Congress."

I am sure this important matter will receive at the hands of this Board the consideration it deserves. While it is of great importance to all Canada, it seems to me to be especially so to the Maritime Provinces, as that is the natural outlet for many of our products.

WINTER EXPORT TRADE FROM CANADIAN PORTS.

We are all delighted to learn that the differences that last fall existed between the authorities of the I.C.R. and C.P.R. regarding the winter export trade from St. John have been mutually arranged, and relations are again most friendly.

The wheat crop in Manitoba is an abundant one, above the average, and we may look for an active shipping trade at our winter seaports. This especially interests St. John and Halifax.

But when the Maritime Board discusses winter export trade from Canadian ports, fire insurance rates, import and export traffic over the I.C.R., fast Atlantic service and kindred subjects, then surely it is rendering service to Canadians generally by discussing and considering these broad subjects and making known their views and conclusions for the general benefit.

LOCAL BOARDS, ETC.

The subject of permitting defaulting ratepayers to vote in elections for the mayors and aldermen of incorporated cities and towns has been brought forward in New Brunswick, at least, for Legislative action, which has so far been deferred. I am of the opinion that the matter is one upon which this Board might properly express its judgment, and I therefore commend it to your attention.

The St. John Board has made itself felt during the interim by the active work it did in opposing the proposed legislation regarding restrictions on lumber deckloads.

I am pleased to inform you that Digby Board and Newcastle Board have become affiliated with the Maritime Board, and that Woodstock and Moncton have appointed delegates to attend this meeting.

CLOSING REMARKS.

In closing this address, I commend to your consideration the important subjects that are in the secretary's hands, who has arranged with the greatest care all the details for the expeditious consideration of the items to be taken up.

I trust the findings that shall be arrived at will be of lasting benefit to our fair Dominion, and especially so to our Maritime Provinces, and pray you to overlook where I have come short in the proper fulfilment of my official duties during the interim.

I trust your visit may be pleasant and profitable, and that those of you who have never before visited the Miramichi may have kindly remembrances of this one.

I welcome you one and all.

Loud applause greeted the president as he sat down, while Dr. Muir remarked: "It has been a very profitable address, and I have listened to it with a great deal of pleasure. I consider it is one of the best addresses we have ever had before the Maritime Board of Trade." (Hear, hear and applause.)

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe: "Last year when you elected Mr. Loggie your president and Mr. Smith your secretary, I said you made an excellent choice, and what I said has turned out to be true. There is only one thing I regret and that is the president's modesty." He was pleased with Mr. Loggie's devotion to Chatham and expressed the hope that every delegate would return home inspired with the desire to do all he could to promote the interests of his own town.

A committee composed of Messrs. Black, Longworth, J. A. Chipman, W. S. Fisher and G. D. Harris was appointed to consider the address and report on the same.

The meeting adjourned at 12.30 o'clock, while the committees on order of business and the president's address convened.

The convention resumed business at 3 o'clock with President Loggie in the chair.

ORDER OF BUSINESS DISCUSSION.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe, on behalf of the committee on order of business discussion read the following report:

1. Reduction of Postage on City Drop Letters.
2. Canadian "Old Home Week" and Tourist Travel.
3. Discriminating Rates on the Intercolonial Railway.
4. Wharf Extension and Improvements at Pictou and Georgetown, P.E.I., and its relation to Communication with P.E.I.
5. Import and Export Traffic over the I.C.R.

6. Telegraph Grievance of P.E.I.
7. School Question; its present curriculum.
8. Should Civic Tax Defaulters in towns and cities vote at Civic Elections?
9. Fire Insurance Rates.
10. Government Inspection of Bridges and Culverts.
11. The Extension of the Indiantown Railway to Blackville
12. Marine Insurance Rates.
13. Preservation of our Forests.
14. Cold Storage for our Transatlantic Shipments.
15. Preferential Rebate on goods from Great Britain imported direct to Canada.
16. Trade with South Africa.
17. The advantages to accrue to Northern New Brunswick, P.E.I., and Cape Breton by the Government encouraging a Transatlantic line of steamers between the Miramichi and London or Liverpool, calling at Charlottetown and Sydney.
18. Fast Atlantic Service.
19. More permanent materials for Public Wharves and Brakwaters.
20. What can be done to preserve the Lobster Fishery?
21. Bay of Fundy, St. John and Digby Steamship Service.

Mr. J. A. Chipman thought the number of subjects too numerous and wanted the report to be referred, but it was pointed out by Mr. Jarvis that, as in the past, it was not likely that all those who had the introducing of them would be present when they were called and would therefore not take up the time of the Board. The report was then, on motion of Dr. Muir, adopted.

CITY DROP LETTERS.

Mr. Geo. E. Boak, in introducing the subject of "City Drop Letters," explained that he did so at the request of the Halifax Board of Trade. The resolution read as follows:

Resolved, that the Maritime Board of Trade urge upon the Dominion Government the desirability of reducing the rate on drop letters to 1c. per oz.

ALTERED CIRCUMSTANCES.

Continuing, he said that at one time it was not possible to ask the Government to reduce the rate on drop letters, but he felt we now can do so in view of the surplus that was shown to exist at the last session of the House of Commons. The business men pay the largest portion of this tax. The largest portion of the drop letters that are posted in the cities are posted by business men, and he hoped the members here would join Halifax and St. John in bringing about a 1c. rate.

99 PER CENT. BUSINESS LETTERS.

Mr. W. S. Fisher expressed his belief that 99 out of every 100 business letters are put in private boxes in the office in which they are posted. In some of the larger business centres the merchants were having their letters distributed by errand boys at a much less cost than that charged by the Government.

The resolution was carried unanimously. "OLD HOME WEEK" AND TOURIST TRAVEL.

The subject of "Old Home Week" was introduced by Mr. W. S. Fisher, President of the St. John Tourist Association. "This tourist business," he said, "is money in our pockets. It provides a source of revenue which, in my mind, has no equal. The question is, what have we to offer as an attraction to tourists? We have

A GLORIOUS CLIMATE,

excellent hunting and fishing, and beautiful scenery. Perhaps we are lacking in accommodation. We have an object lesson in the State of Maine. It seems almost fabulous to look upon the figures that they claim from the average receipts from the tourist travel that enters that State. Two or three years ago the Government made an investigation as to the REVENUE DERIVED FROM THE TOURIST travel annually into that State and it was placed at between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000. As the tourist travel is confined to about six months in the year it means that the amount coming into the State of Maine during that period is about $60,000 PER DAY.

"The wealth per capita in Maine is higher than in any other State in the Union.

"That estimate was made two or three years ago and since then there has been an increase. In our own city we have a tourist association. Halifax has a similar organization, and I believe in all justice that it has done better than ours. Fredericton has followed us. Montreal has tried to do something, having last year formed a business man's league. Ottawa has formed a tourist association and Quebec and Toronto were considering the matter. Vancouver, too, is

GETTING INTO LINE.

"These people are recognizing that there is money in this thing. It is a business matter and ought to be looked after in a business-like way. What industry or what number of industries gathered together are capable of bringing into the country $60,000 per day for six months, or, taking it for a year, $30,000 per day?

A COMPARISON.

"What have we in this country in comparison with the State of Maine? We have a glorious climate; we have beautiful rivers and excellent hunting and fishing. The hunting privileges in these Provinces are equal to those in the State of Maine. The gentlemen who come down here to hunt moose pay the Government $30; while it is estimated that every moose taken out of the country costs the hunter from $200 to $500. Under the protection of the Government, moose are becoming more plentiful, so much so in fact, that the farmers are complaining of their encroachment."

Proceeding, Mr. Fisher said that not only would those who visit the Maritime Provinces tell their friends what a good time they had, but they would the NEXT YEAR BRING THEIR FRIENDS with them, and who knows but that they or their friends might eventually invest their capital in openings which appeared to them promising.

"The tourist travel in New Brunswick has NEVER BEEN SO LARGE as this season. The International Steamship Co. say they have had all they can do to take care of the traffic, and next season will be compelled to increase the number of their steamers.

NO BETTER FIELD TO EXPLOIT.

"There is no better field to exploit than this tourist travel. The tourist pays cash and the money he spends is spent widely. There is no industry in which it is so widely spent.

"The question is: What can we as a board do to help along an effort of this kind? It seems to me that we can at least encourage the formation of local tourists' associations in these Provinces, and that have attractions for tourists to improve their accommodation so that those who once visit them will not only come again themselves, but will bring their friends with them. I do not think the question should be looked upon in a narrow way. We want to look upon this thing in a broad and a maritime way. In St. John our association has not been looking after St. John alone. We have been looking after the Province as well, and in pursuance of this we have tried to ADVERTISE EVERY BEAUTY SPOT.

We have spent money in the hope that it would benefit, not only St. John and New Brunswick, but the whole of the Maritime Provinces." (Loud applause.)

Before taking his seat Mr. Fisher moved the following resolution:

That, in the opinion of the Board, it is desirable that all possible steps should be taken to develop tourist travel in the Maritime Provinces.

That the annual setting apart of an "At-Home Week," during which former residents of the Provinces might be able under special railway and steamboat facilities to visit their former homes, would materially assist in such development.

That the various local boards of trade be requested to take this subject into serious consideration.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis: "I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution. Let me say this: There is no man in the Maritime Provinces who has done so much in promoting the question of tourist travel as Mr. Fisher. ('Hear, hear,' and applause.) As I understand it the is this: The word home is very dear to us all. It has unfortunately happened in the past that a good many of our people, in order to better their position or to attempt to do so, have sought homes in other parts of the American continent. They have gone to the United States and they have gone to the West. They have struggled there for a living, but they still think of home and its surroundings, and they have heart yearnings to see it once more before they die; but some of these people have not the means to do as they would like, and it would be a good thing for this board to and steamship companies to induce them to reduce their rates for a certain week so that those people would be again able to visit the scenes of their boyhood.

"Look at it from another standpoint. The people whom we induce to visit us will many of them bring with them their wives and children, while some of them will bring friends. This will mean not only the expenditure of money in our midst, but who knows but that some of them may not see openings for the investment of capital here more favorable than in their own homes." (Applause.)

TRIBUTE FROM MR. FISHER.

"I would like to say another word," said Mr. Fisher, "and that is to pay a tribute to the efforts that have been made on behalf of tourist travel in the Maritime Provinces by THE CANADIAN GROCER, whose managing editor is with us to day." (Loud applause.)

GOOD WORK OF THE ST. JOHN ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Allison, secretary of the St. John Board of Trade: "I would like to say one word. Although not actively connected with the Tourist Association, yet, as the association has its offices in the Board of Trade building, I have opportunity of seeing the good work it is doing. I have seen almost day after day a stream of tourists coming into the office seeking information, and I have afterwards seen many of them come back and thank Mrs. Olive, the lady in charge of the work, for the assistance she had rendered them. I think a resolution passed by the Board will stir up places to establish similar bureaux of information for tourist travel."

A DIFFICULTY.

Mr. Geo. Boak expressed the fear that difficulty would be experienced in getting the railways to reduce fares at a season when they were already taxed to their utmost to take care of the tourist travel.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe thought the time had come when they should do what the State Board of Trade of Maine had done, and that was start a publication for the dissemination of information for the benefit of tourists. "We have reached a stage when we ought to and bring stronger pressure to bear, not only upon the railways, but to educate our people to the importance of providing the necessary accommodation for tourists and travellers. The trouble is, our people are not providing facilities fast enough."

RAILWAY DISCRIMINATING RATES.

The subject of "Discriminating Rates on the Intercolonial Railway," was introduced by President Loggie, whose place in the chair was in the meantime taken by Vice-President Dr. Muir. Mr. Loggie said that for a long time the town of Chatham had been endeavoring to get the SAME RATE OF FREIGHT

as Fredericton. On flour, for example, the rate to Fredericton from the west was 6 to 11c. per barrel lower than to Chatham, although the latter place was only about 11 miles from Chatham Junction, while Fredericton was 90 miles. He explained that he had been appointed by the local board to wait upon the Canada Eastern Railway in regard to the matter at the request of the Grand Trunk Railway to see if a 2c. arbitrary could not be obtained. The manager of the Canada Eastern offered to

REDUCE THE ARBITRARY

by ½c., making it 2½c. instead of 3c. But since then they had asked to have the matter stand in abeyance on account of the high price of coal. This condition of affairs of Chatham in competing with Fredericton for business. There was some talk of trying to get one of the line of steamships running between Montreal and Prince Edward Island to make Chatham a port of call, but Mr. Loggie said he did not favor this proposal as long as there was a chance of coming to terms with the railway people, especially as there is not enough business for both railway and steamship. Before taking his seat he moved the following resolution:

HANDICAPPED THE MERCHANTS

Resolved, that this Board recognizes that the existing through rates on carload shipments from the west to Chatham and Newcastle, which are large distributing points for other centres of trade and industry on the north shore, operate adversely against the merchants of those towns, and desires to impress upon the Intercolonial Railway the desirability and equity of removing the discriminating rates, so as to place them on the same basis as Fredericton, Moncton, Halifax, St. John, etc.; and that a copy of this be sent to the Minister of Railways by the secretary.

AN ABSURDITY.

Secretary Smith, in seconding the motion, said it was absurd that the merchants of Chatham could not get at least the same through freight rate from the west as could those in Fredericton, who were nearly 100 miles farther than Chatham from the main line of the Intercolonial Railway.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe: "I would like, with your consent, Mr. President, to ask Mr. Russell why the railways carry freight longer distance for lower rates than they do for shorter distances?"

A QUESTION OF DUNNAGE.

Mr. E. G. Russell, who is the new manager of the Intercolonial Railway, said he would not like to answer the question from a railwayman's standpoint. (Laughter.) "At any rate the matter of freights does not come within my department," he added amid renewed laughter. He explained, however, that it was due to "dunnage." There were commodities which the railways had to carry which did not pay them, or that did not fill the car, and it then came to the question of "dunnage" or filling up. The freight which they took with which to fill up was necessarily taken at a low rate. It was the same with steamship lines as with railways.

Mayor Morrison, Newcastle: "I cannot understand how it is that freight can be carried cheaper over some roads for longer than for shorter distances. I think we should do as the people of Halifax do, and that is, tell the railway people that we will bring our freight in by water until the railways are prepared to make better terms with us, for we have nearly as good facilities for doing so."

Mayor Snowball, Newcastle: "This has been a live subject for many years, and I think we have not been successful because we have

NOT HAD AS MUCH PLUCK

as the people of Halifax. I cannot see where dunnage comes in. Before this discriminating rate came into existence we had a large portion of the trade between here and Boiestown, which we have now not got."

Mr. F. W. Sumner, Moncton, said it seemed to him that the railways

HAD GOT THEIR HEADS TOGETHER

and that the C.P.R. had the other end of the string. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. F. P. Reid, Moncton, said that other places had been kept back by St. John and Halifax. "Some years ago," he added, "we at Moncton were placed on unfavorable terms with St. John. We got that remedied by being put on equal footing, but they have now got us on the hip again."

P. E. I.'S GRIEVANCE.

Mr. W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown, P.E.I., declared that the people in his Province had a greater grievance against the Intercolonial Railway than any other part of the Dominion. "It is all right as long as navigation is open," he said, "we pay a rate of 5 to 6c. on certain commodities, but in the winter the rates are jumped to 15 and 16c. We have tried for several years to get redress, but without avail. On through goods from England we get a rate of 15 to 16s. per ton in the summer, but we have got to pay 27s. 6d. to 30s. when in the winter we get our freight over the I. C. R. via Halifax." Another complaint he made was that the people of Prince Edward Island could not compete with grain coming from Ontario for shipment from Halifax.

DID NOT WANT THE I. C. R. TO PAY.

Mr. F. W. Sumner declared that they did not want to make the I.C.R. a paying institution any more than they did the canals in the west. "That is the reason," he said, "we come here to-day and say we want to be placed on a basis that will allow us to compete. Prince Edward Island stands a little out from us. They get their goods shipped cheaply enough in the summer, and they then care nothing about the railway. We, at Moncton, made an arrangement with the railways whereby we get a rate for all the year around. That is what the people of Prince Edward Island should do."

Mr. E. G. Russell: "I fear you are going to run against a snag with that resolution."

Mr. Loggie's motion was put and carried, and the following, moved by F. W. Sumner and seconded by J. H. Harris, was also adopted:

Resolved, that in the opinion of the Maritime Board of Trade, now in session at Chatham, that the ports of Moncton, Chatham and Newcastle are entitled to the export rates on flour and mill stuffs from the west intended for distribution by water from those ports, and also to terminal rates on other merchandise for local distribution, and Further resolved, that a memorial be prepared, or copy of this resolution be forwarded, to the Hon. Minister of Railways and Canals praying they be accorded.

When the question of wharf extension and improvements at Pictou, and Georgetown, P.E.I., were reached, Mr. Aitken asked permission to withdraw the subject, Mr. Russell, the manager of the I.C.R., having informed him that the necessary arrangements were being made to provide the required accommodation.

TELEGRAPH GRIEVANCE OF P.E.I.

The subject of Prince Edward Island's telegraph grievance was introduced by Mr. W. H. Aitken. He said that as the matter had been brought before the Maritime Board of Trade at a previous meeting, he did not propose to go into it at any great length. The particular trouble was that the telegraph offices connecting with the cable system to the mainland were closed at 8 p.m. and not opened until 9 o'clock the next morning. Mr. Aitken moved the following resolution:

Resolved, that this Board again urge on the Federal Government the prompt improving of the telegraph connection between the mainland and Prince Edward Island, the necessities of which have already been fully set forth to the Government.

OF GENERAL IMPORTANCE.

Mr. C. E. Bentley, Moncton: "I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution. The question is not only of importance to Prince Edward Island, but it is of importance to every Province."

Mr. Geo. E. Boak, Halifax, as one having occasion to use the telegraph service between Prince Edward Island and the mainland, testified to the inconvenience of the practice of closing the offices thirteen hours of the day.

Mr. E. C. Hanrahan, Sydney, said he remembered that the matter was brought to the attention of the Hon. Mr. Blair some years ago and as one who had been absent from the Maritime Board of Trade meetings for two or three years, that the evil still existed.

HE WAS SURPRISED,

Mr. Aitken explained that the telegraph company had a monopoly and received a subsidy of $2,000 a year from the Federal Government. "Our Minister, Sir Louis Davies," he said, "has done all he can to remedy matters, but has failed. Sir Louis, however, is of opinion that the claiming that it has broken its agreement with the Government." He also referred to the charges of the telegraph company. The charge to Boston is $1 for ten words. "In fact," he concluded, "the company can practically charge just what it chooses."

MONOPOLY CAN BE TAKEN AWAY,

BELIEVED IN GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

Mayor Snowball: "I think franchises of this kind should be in the hands of the Government or of the municipalities. (Hear, hear.) While travelling in England and on the Continent I have had opportunity of seeing the advantage of having franchises of this kind in the hands of the respective Governments. I would like at some future stage of the convention to see the question of public franchises brought up for discussion."

The resolution was carried unanimously.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CURRICULUM.

"The School Question; Its Curriculum," was introduced by Mr. Geo. E. Calkin, of Kentville, N.S. He said it would be conceded by all that there was no more important question confronting the community, than that of proper, sufficient and efficient education. "The most progressive nations of the world, and those which are aiming at and achieving the highest results of both material and moral civilization are indisputably those in which education has attained the highest standing."

"Now, I take it," he continued, "that nowhere in the world is there a finer country capable of illimitable development and possessed of unequalled natural resources of the field, the sea, the forest and the mine than this Canada of ours, and nowhere in the world can that 'knowledge which is power' be better employed or turned to more immediate natural advantage."

Proceeding, he disapproved of the system in vogue in Nova Scotia, and introduced a resolution asking for the appointment of a commission by the Nova Scotia Government to investigate the subject.

AN UNCALLED-FOR INDICTMENT.

Mr. C. E. Bentley, Truro, N.S., declared that, from his own personal knowledge, such an indictment of the Public School system of Nova Scotia was not true.

Mr. N. S. Fisher, St. John, was rather disappointed that Mr. Calkin had not said something in reference to the Lloyd system of manual training. It had been introduced in Fredericton, and he hoped to see it introduced in many parts of the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. F. W. Sumner, Moncton, N.B., said he agreed with some things that Mr. Calkin had said. "Most of the boys who came out of the public and high schools cannot write well, cannot spell well, cannot measure a yard of stone," he said. "I hold it is the duty of the State to and then provide technical education. It should teach them what to do in the ordinary run of life. What in thunder do we want of lawyers, doctors and professional men? (Laughter.) We often turn the boys out of our public schools possessing practically nothing. I have had men who could scarcely read or write who knew more than those who knew it all; or at least pretended they did. I have tried to get boys out of the high schools that were some good, but I have seldom succeeded. I have a son of my own who went through the high school but he came out just like the rest. (Laughter.)

"Do not think for one moment that I would disparage education. Give me a boy that can row a boat, reef a sail and harness a horse. Give such a boy education on the top of that and you will have a boy worth something."

Mr. C. E. Bentley declared it would be very difficult for the Maritime Board of Trade to point out to the Government of Nova Scotia any weakness in its educational system. They had among other things the Lloyd system of manual training, and experimental farms.

NO SECONDER.

As Mr. Calkin's motion failed to find a seconder it fell to the ground.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Mr. W. S. Fisher, on behalf of the committee to whom the matter was referred, reported in favor of entering the president's address in the minutes of the board. He and Mr. M. G. De Wolfe moved to that effect, and the meeting concurred.

TAX DEFAULTERS AND CIVIC ELECTIONS.

On motion of Mr. W. M. Jarvis, seconded by Mr. George Watt, the following resolution was adopted:

In the opinion of this Board, no elector in default for payment of civic or municipal taxes should be permitted to vote in civic or municipal elections.

The discussion was brief and altogether in favor of the resolution. Some of the speakers gave examples of the benefits that had been derived by municipalities which had such a law in force, the effect being to quicken slow-paying citizens to meet their obligations in order that they might not be deprived of their votes.

The president announced that the delegates had been invited by the local board to a trip down the Miramichi River on Thursday afternoon, on a steamer kindly placed at their disposal by Senator Snowball.

The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

The evening session was opened at 8.30 o'clock, and after routine Mr. C. E. Bentley introduced the following resolution, which, after being seconded by Mr. George E. Calkin, was carried unanimously and without discussion:

The Maritime Board of Trade desires to place on record its deep appreciation of the continued efforts of the various boards of education to encourage education of a practical nature, and wish to express their warm thanks to Sir Wm. Macdonald for his assistance in introducing the Lloyd system of manual training in the public schools of the Maritime Provinces, and would urge upon the respective Governments of the Maritime Provinces the great importance to the business community of further encouraging and assisting education of this practical character.

INSPECTION OF BRIDGES AND CULVERTS.

When the subject of "Government Inspection of Bridges and Culverts" was reached, Mr. F. O. Allison, Secretary of the St. John Board of Trade, said he was sorry that Mr. Hathaway, who was the father of the proposal to bring the matter before the Board, was unable to be present.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

Mr. W. S. Fisher: "This is an important matter, especially in New Brunswick, where there have been a number of serious accidents and loss of life through defective railway bridges and culverts." He moved the following resolution:

In view of the number of serious accidents that have occurred during the past year or two through defective bridges and culverts, this Board recommends the local Governments to consider the advisability of appointing an official whose duty it shall be to examine and report upon their condition.

THE STATE OF AFFAIRS IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis explained that the matter was of more importance to New Brunswick, because in that Province there was a greater railway mileage owned by private corporations. He said there were, at least, 10 or 12 railways which were not under Government control. "It is said that some of the roads are in such a dangerous condition that one or two passengers are kept on the outside of the train in order that they may be able to help out those who are inside in case of an accident. (Laughter.) I have myself been on railways where the rails have spread and it has been necessary to get poles with which to pry the engine on the rails again."

CAUTION URGED.

Senator Snowball: "Many of those roads are in straitened circumstances and very little would stop them altogether. If the Dominion Government were to undertake the inspection many of the private roads would be closed down, for there is not enough money in them for capitalists to go in and take them up. To stop these roads would be a serious loss. I am perhaps crying 'danger,' and then saying 'do not touch them.' I would urge that the very mildest caution be taken with the companies. If the Dominion Government took hold the chances are that they would compel the railways to replace the wooden bridges with iron or steel. It is an evil and a growing one. Most of the railway bridges are wooden and have not had any repairs for years. What I would ask is that the Board be very cautious indeed."

MAKE THEM PART OF THE I. C. R. SYSTEM.

Mr. Geo. E. Calkin: "There are about 10 roads in New Brunswick that scarcely pay. Why not ask the Dominion Government to take them over and make them part of the Intercolonial system?" (Hear, hear.)

Mayor W. B. Snowball: "I think the delegate from Kentville has hit the nail on the head. It would be a good thing for the Government to take over the roads, and I think something along that line might be placed in the resolution before us. There are roads in this Province which are closed during the winter, much to the detriment of trade and of the people in this part of the country."

Mr. Fisher's resolution was carried unanimously.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, Halifax, in introducing the subject of "Fire Insurance Rates," said: "It is well known that the fire insurance companies propose another advance in rates. I think Mr. Jarvis can tell us that it was proposed to raise the rates in St. John, but this had been deferred on account of opposition. We have found in Halifax that the BETTER THE PROTECTION THE HIGHER THE RATES.

We were told that after we had made certain improvements in the fire protection system the rates would be reduced. We made the improvements and, instead of being reduced, the rates were raised 20 per cent. The question we have got to face is this: In the event of the fire insurance companies increasing their rates, what are we, as a Maritime Board of Trade, to do? I think a protest from this Maritime Board of Trade would have more effect than a protest from any one district. I would like an expression of opinion from this Board in regard to the matter."

FIRE PROTECTION MAKES NO DIFFERENCE.

Mr. E. C. Hanrahan, Sydney: "It does not make any difference what protection you have against fires. It seems to me the fire insurance companies have made up their minds to increase the rates no matter what classes of buildings you may have. We were told in our town that the water pressure was not strong enough. We improved it, and have now a water pressure of 75 lb. to the inch. Besides this we have a new fire engine, and still the insurance companies will not guarantee that the rates will not be raised. I would like to ask how the rates are in Halifax and St. John compared with those in Cape Breton?"

Mayor Snowball, Chatham: "What rate do you pay on your principal business streets?"

Mr. Hanrahan: "Three cents."

Mayor Snowball: "That is what we pay on Water street, our chief business street."

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe: "We have come to the conclusion that we have to pay for the losses in the west and elsewhere."

AN INSURANCE MAN'S VIEWS.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis said that he occupied a somewhat delicate position, representing as he did The Liverpool and London and Globe, one of the largest British fire office for the Maritime Provinces, and, at the same time, appearing here as a delegate from the St. John Board of Trade. Under the circumstances he should ask leave to retire while this subject was under discussion.

Before doing so he wished, however, to say that the important company he represented had in no way intimated to him any dissatisfaction with the current rates of insurance in these Provinces, or with the business he had transacted for them.

SWEEPING ADVANCE IN RATES UNCALLED FOR.

This was all he could say for his company, but for himself he did not hesitate to express his personal opinion that sweeping advances in rates in the Maritime Provinces were uncalled for, and he would further add that if any companies had steadily lost money and urged those advances, the cause of such losses should be looked for in the management of their business, and charged rather to their own representatives than to the business community.

The business was one that called for the exercise of great caution and discretion. If companies accepted business indiscriminately and did not take proper pains to avoid of unprofitable properties, or accepted too much liability in congested districts, there could be but one result. That result need not be incendiarism. It must be loss, either through the development in the property owner of a carelessness or even recklessness, or from excessive liability in proportion to the premiums received.

In one section of the Provinces an indiscriminate canvass for business had been made by a certain company or companies some 15 years ago. Fires continually occurred over the territory until the agent ceased to act. On making up the statistics it was a fact that the fires in that district during the three years, 1898-1900, were only about one-third in number of those which had occurred during a like period 10 years before when the canvass was going on.

Regarding Fire Insurance Boards.—Their proceedings were necessarily confidential since, if it were otherwise, agents might be continually accused of influencing increased rates, or of making use of the boards to advance their personal ends. But it might as well be understood that the Liverpool and London and Globe was no blind adherent. His company, it was well known, had been outside the Nova Scotia Board from 1893 to 1898, and outside in Prince Edward Island from May 1899 until April last.

But it was a serious matter for an important company to have these boards and so weaken the influence which they really exercised for good. Unfortunately, in the pursuit of increased business facilities, hazards were continually being introduced which were unheard of in former days. When the boards penalized these by higher rates they were acting in the best interests of the community.

GASOLINE AND INSURANCE RATES.

He would instance gasoline and remind the board of the accident at Chatham railway station three or four weeks ago, or the more recent fire at The Tribune printing office at Windsor. Gasoline was a most dangerous vapor product. If it came into common use both property and life must be endangered. Hence the boards forbid its use.

DANGER OF VARNISHED WOODWORK.

Then, again, there was the use of varnished woodwork for floors or ceilings. If a fire caught in such a case it spread with lightning rapidity, and gave off a black smoke which drove everyone from the building, or stifled those who could not escape. Instances were the Bamstead and Sutherland fire at Halifax and that in Police Magistrate Ritchie's dwelling at St. John. An extreme case might, however, arise where such a course even was preferable to consenting to some action which might cause serious injury to the community, and eventually to the company itself. He saw it stated in the Halifax newspapers that advances in rates were contemplated in that city. He was not here to say how far this was true, and how far not. But since he had come to this meeting he had been told by an influential merchant that some of the very agents who were claimed to be urging an advance of rates at Halifax, to take effect in the near future, were now urging insurers to place with them all the insurance they could at the current rates, so that the incidence of the expected advances might be postponed in their cases for a year at least.

If this were the case it formed on the course which it was said was being pursued and showed a strange inconsistency on the part of the companies concerned.

A STRANGE COMMENTARY

He held in his hand a copy of The Universal Mercantile Schedule, admittedly in its principles one of the best authorities on fire insurance, although its rates and penal charges were suited to the latitude of New York, where the Schedule was prepared, rather than to that of the Maritime Provinces. He had with him, also, a letter from Mr. T. C. Moore, the president of the Continental Fire Insurance Co. and author of the work. Mr. Moore stated that in his calculations of rates he allowed only 5c. in each dollar of premium for profit and 5c. more for conflagration or extraordinary risk. The balance of the premium should go for reasonable expense charge and for actual loss. If the previous record for a wide territory for years together showed the rates under such conditions excessive, this should be taken into consideration, and proper reductions should be made. If it proved them to be insufficient, no one surely could complain of some necessary advance.

CARELESSNESS AS A CAUSE OF FIRE

It continually happened that owners of property were increasing the hazard through thoughtlessness of the fire risk involved. If they did this, some increase of rate became a necessity, in the interests of the careful insurer. Of such special advances he did not see how anyone could reasonably complain. But it was a different question if sweeping advances were pressed upon the Maritime Provinces only because disproportionate losses had happened elsewhere where there was less of carefulness shown. It was well known, and he did not care to conceal it, that he was determinately opposed to such advances until it could be fairly shown that, in the actual experience of the Maritime Provinces in recent years, they were required.

He would now ask permission to withdraw while this subject was under discussion.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe: "We would like to hear from some of the mercantile gentlemen here." He said that he had a building on one of the wharves at Halifax which had been used for junk purposes. The rate he then paid was 1½c. When he replaced this building by one of a better class his rate was increased.

TRURO'S EXPERIENCE.

Mr. C. E. Bentley, Truro, N.S.: "The matter has been thoroughly threshed out. We all admit that there is a grievance; but what are we going to do about it? There are places in the Maritime Provinces where the rates are deservedly high because they will not provide proper fire appliances. There are others in which the proper appliances have been provided. In Truro we have more than complied with the demands of the insurance companies, and yet we are threatened with an increase in our rates. Twenty years ago, before we had electric lights and before we had a fire department and our stores were lighted by oil lamps and stovepipes were everywhere, our fire insurance rates were 100 per cent. lower than they are to-day."

Mr. Geo. E. Calkin urged that more care should be exercised in trying to prevent fires, and held that the insurance companies were not making money.

EXPERIENCE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Mr. W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown: "We have a good waterworks system in Charlottetown. We were told that our rates would be reduced. Instead of that, however, they have increased them, and the insurance companies have made a large sum of money out of Charlottetown. They told us we had to pay for the heavy loss that occurred outside Charlottetown. We will have to cancel a large portion of insurance. We cannot afford to pay it. We do not know where it is going to end. We will have to carry our own insurance to a great extent."

THE SENATOR BLAMES NEEDY AGENTS.

Senator Snowball: "We live in the district in which in 1825 was the greatest fire since the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. I refer to the great Miramichi fire whose smoke, it is said, could be smelt 700 to 800 miles away. Instead of saying where is the remedy, I would say, where is the evil. The trouble is there are too many needy people going about the country trying to make a living out of insurance premiums. The companies pay too much in commissions. I cannot say whether any of them get 20 per cent., but I know some of these agents get as much as 15 per cent."

"I believe," he continued, "that more than half the fires in the Miramichi districts during the last 50 years have been due to carelessness. Out of the lumber mills on the Miramichi river the fire insurance companies have made a handsome profit. I do not think I am exaggerating when I say they have made 100 per cent. The old Cunard mill was in existence for 50 years, and during all that time regularly paid insurance rates. True, it was eventually burned down, but consider the amount of money that had been taken out before that took place. As I said before, there are agents who take too many hazardous risks. You should combine to expose them. That is the remedy."

MARITIME PROVINCES AND LOSSES IN THE WEST.

Mr. Geo. Watt, Chatham: "It is in the western part of the country where the fires take place, and the Maritime Provinces have to pay for them. I believe the rates would be a great deal lower if the fire insurance companies who do business in the Maritime Provinces had their business in those Provinces managed therein, instead of from Montreal or some other point." (Hear, hear.)

THE EXPERIENCE OF CHATHAM.

Mayor Snowball, Chatham: "The President of the Maritime Board, being at that time Mayor of Chatham, will remember that the insurance companies promised to reduce our rates. They wanted us first to get more hose, then patent harness, and now they tell us we will get a reduction of 20 per cent. if we put in a waterworks service, which you will notice from the appearance of our streets that we are doing, but it remains to be seen whether we shall get any reduction in our rates. Chatham has not had a fire of any importance for several years. Last year the Macdonald factory was burned, but that was due to lightning. The rate on our mills is 6 per cent., which is too high."

Dr. Muir suggested that perhaps a remedy might be found if business men would carry a part of their own insurance.

BRING IN U. S. COMPANIES.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe: "Somemight be able to do this and others again might not. I would suggest that we write the insurance companies, urging that an increase in rates was not warranted, and that in the event of their doing so we would do all we could to bring in United States companies, and would also, as far as we are able, take stock in new local companies."

Secretary D. G. Smith: "I would suggest that further consideration of this question be deferred until to-morrow morning."

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe: "I beg leave to move that the chairman appoint a committee of three to draw up a resolution dealing with this matter."

Mr. Muir: "This is a burning question—(laughter)—and I think it would be a good thing for a committee to be appointed to draw up a resolution and present it to the convention to-morrow morning."

This idea was concurred in, and Messrs. J. E. De Wolfe, E. C. Hanrahan and C. E. Bentley were appointed a committee to prepare the resolution.

A brief discussion followed in regard to the necessity of retailers carrying sufficient insurance, but no motion was presented, and the matter dropped.

The convention adjourned shortly after 10 o'clock.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

When the convention opened at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning the attendance was rather smaller than during the previous day, several members, on account of business pressure, having been compelled to return to their homes.

AN INVITATION FROM SYDNEY.

Shortly after the meeting opened the secretary read a letter from the Sydney Board of Trade extending a hearty invitation to the Maritime Board to hold its next meeting in that town. The reading of the invitation was greeted with applause.

SECRETARY-TREASURER'S REPORT.

Secretary Smith presented his annual report, which read as follows :

The address of our president so well covers the points relating to the business of the Board that I have little to add that is of interest to you.

Although during the year I have endeavored to ascertain the status of different trade centres in regard to the continuation of boards which once existed or of new boards formed, the RESULTS HAVE NOT BEEN SATISFACTORY, and, like my predecessors, I am not in a position to positively report the number of active local boards within our field of operations.

Such matter as I have had to distribute with the view of promoting interest in the Maritime Board of Trade has been sent to about 43 places in the three Provinces, but my best information leads to the conclusion that there are only about 30 active boards of trade amongst these.

DIGBY HAS ORGANIZED

and affiliated, but I regret to say I am in receipt of a note from the secretary intimating that the board of that enterprising town will not be represented at this meeting.

The different resolutions passed at our last meeting were forwarded to the bodies and individuals to whom they were directed to be sent, but I have had few responses, although action has been taken in directions desired by some of them.

PERMANENT SECRETARY RECOMMENDED.

My experience leads me to the conclusion that our Board requires a permanent secretary, resident in one of the large commercial centres, and whose occupation keeps him in touch with work such as that by which the objects we seek can best be attained, and I venture to suggest that he should be paid a fixed salary. Secretaries chosen from places other than those I mention, are necessarily busily occupied with their own affairs to too great an extent to admit of their giving adequate attention to the work of promoting and building up the Maritime Board. The demand for a secretary resident in the same place as the president for the time being is a valid one, but it can be met by the appointment of a corresponding or assistant secretary, and I shall invite your attention to such a change in our constitution as will provide for that proposed officer.

REVISION OF THE CONSTITUTION.

As under the constitution the order of last session for a revision of the constitution and by-laws and printing of the same could not be carried out, we have under the 20 days' notice provision, prepared such revisory matter as we think may meet your approval, and the same will be laid before you. I have had the by-laws, as they originally stood, printed in sheet form to place before members at this session, so that they may be the better enabled to assist in the revision.

My account of receipts and expenditures is duly prepared up to the opening of the meeting, and it can be closed and the balance struck as soon as desired. It is perhaps best, however, to defer closing it until after the time matures for the payment of the per capita dues of the local boards at this meeting.

I have had the subjects so far proposed for consideration during the session just opened printed for the convenience of delegates, and have arrangements perfected for issuing similar sheets at minimum cost of the arrangements of these and any others that may be proposed when the same are dealt with by the list of subjects committee.

I have also procured a book in which the names of all delegates are to be entered (by themselves preferably) as they arrive, and beg to request that they will make a point of recording themselves therein, together with their boards and post office addresses in the columns designated for the purpose.

The Sydney Board again presses its invitation to this Board to hold its next annual meeting in that town.

On motion of Mr. W. M. Jarvis, the report of the secretary-treasurer was referred to the auditing committee.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe said that he was ready, on behalf of the committee appointed the previous evening to draw up a resolution regarding fire insurance rates, to report. He then submitted the following resolution :

Whereas, the cities and incorporated towns of the Maritime Provinces have spent, and are further spending, large sums of money to provide the best fire-fighting appliances and to improve and extend the water services for fire purposes. And, whereas, the members of the Maritime Board of Trade, an organization representing some 40 local boards of trade, scattered over the three Maritime Provinces, have heard with great concern a proposed increase of fire insurance rates;

Mr. W. S. Loggie, the retiring President.

Therefore, resolved, that this Board enters a very strong protest against such proposed increase, and would urge upon the local boards the importance of their members resisting to the utmost this unfair and unjust proposition, and, that in the event of such increase coming into effect, united efforts be made to induce American or other companies to come in and do the business where applicable.

And, be it further resolved, that this Board request the fire insurance companies to separate the Maritime Provinces in their insurance calculations from the rest of the Canadian business, referring them to statistics of premiums earned and losses sustained in the Maritime Provinces in recent years in comparison with the other sections of Canada.

And, furthermore resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent at once to the insurance authorities in Great Britain and in the United States.

Mr. W. H. Aitken, in seconding the resolution, said : "As Mr. Jarvis has said, the premiums depended largely on the losses incurred. When I was in the insurance business I found that a certain class of our risks did not pay. I consulted our office and suggested that we drop it. The result was that in about ten years we had and quite a little money was left in the company's hands, whereas before there was a deficit. The rates could be kept down to a proper basis by judicious management. We must not expect our insurance companies to do our business for nothing. The rates have to be in proportion to the losses."

Mr. Frank C. Allison : "According to that resolution do we pledge ourselves to cancel our insurance if the rates are increased? The reason I ask that question is that I represent a number of concerns whose insurance I would not feel at liberty to cancel in the event of an increase in the rates."

OBJECT OF THE RESOLUTION.

"What we want," explained Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, "is that the delegates here shall go back to their respective boards and take the matter up. It was proposed to cancel the policies only when practicable. It was next proposed to make it a hard and fast rule."

The resolution, as introduced by Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, was carried unanimously.

MARINE INSURANCE RATES.

"I understand," said President Loggie, when the subject of "Marine Insurance Rates" was reached on the order paper, "that the matter has been practically settled."

Mr. Jarvis : "I seconded the motion last year that brought this subject before this Board. Since then I have been investigating the matter, and, as far as I can understand it, the position is practically this : There is no doubt that there has been an increase in the rates on vessels on the St. Lawrence route. Against them there has been on account of the heavy losses, but not against the vessels for the Maritime Provinces. I may say that while Lloyds is the centre of the marine insurance system, the companies have practically the right to fix their own rates. Of course the companies are greatly influenced by the judgment of Lloyds."

A FURTHER DIFFERENTIAL

MR. BLACK'S EXPERIENCE AT LLOYDS.

Mr. W. A. Black : "I have been looking into the resolution of last year, and I really do not see that we can pass another one that would help us to obtain what we in the Maritime Provinces seek. I happened to be in London two years ago, and was one of those who waited on Lloyds. But I cannot say that any great progress has been made since then. The gentlemen whom we met practically told us that we were in the position of buyers and they of sellers, and that if we did not care to buy we need not. After the conference I met, on the floor of Lloyds, the gentleman who had made this statement, and he told me that, personally, he ## BELIEVED THE RATES TO BE UNFAIR.

'But,' said he, 'we have to draw the line somewhere north of Portland, and it is unfortunate that the Maritime Provinces are north of that line.' And then he added, 'If you continue your agitation you may finally succeed.' "The Maritime Provinces," continued Mr. Black, "are more favorably situated than they were a year ago, perhaps on account of the losses on the St. Lawrence, or perhaps on account of the efforts of this Board. Perhaps it is both. But I cannot see what we are to gain by another resolution.

"I would simply ask that the various boards and take advantage of every opportunity of advancing their claim for justice."

KEEP AGITATING,

INTERESTS OF SHIPPERS AS WELL AS OF HULLS.

In closing Mr. Black urged the boards of trade to remember the merchants who shipped goods as well as the owners of the hulls. "The high rates are a drawback to the people who own the cargoes as well as to those who own the hulls," he said. "We should not forget that."

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe : "I would like to ask the secretary, Mr. President, if he has had any acknowledgment from the communication he sent to Lloyds according to instructions from this Board?"

Secretary Smith : "No."

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe : "Then I claim that it is the same in regard to marine insurance rates as it is in regard to fire insurance rates, the Maritime Provinces have got to make up for the losses incurred elsewhere.

CONFIRMATION OF MR. BLACK'S STATEMENT.

Mr. W. S. Fisher : "I would like to confirm what Mr. Black has said. Four years ago, when in London attending the convention of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, I saw the Lloyds people, and the answer I got was practically the same as that related by Mr. Black. They did, however, say that if any injustice was being done to us they would be very glad to consider it, if we would present our case to them. I have since, however, been told that the marine insurance rates do not cover the whole of the Maritime Provinces as a blanket. There are exceptions."

Mr. Black : "Yes ; that is so."

The subject was then allowed to drop.

FOREST PRESERVATION.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe in introducing the subject of "Forest Preservation," said the resolution he had to offer was practically the same as that passed by the Annapolis Board. His resolution read as follows :

Whereas, the subject of forestry is a most important one, and there is no question, but that it has been too long neglected in Canada, and,

Whereas, the manufacture of lumber has been one of the most important industries in the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and it is now anticipated that pulp mills will consume a very large quantity of standing timber, and,

Whereas, it is apparent to everyone that the deletion of the standing timber of all kinds of wood by forest fires and the axe is fast denuding our forest lands and rendering them of no value ; and,

Whereas, it is believed that with the prevention of fires, protection to the rapidly-growing timber and the systematic cutting of trees for lumber, our forests will be of value for many years to come ; therefore,

Resolved, that in the opinion of this Board of Trade, the Government should take immediate steps to see that suitable overseers or inspectors be put in charge of the timber districts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, as an incentive to owners of private lands to guard and protect all Government timber lands, and reforest any suitable areas that may be found fit for the purpose.

Dr. Muir, vice-president for Nova Scotia, said : "This is a very important subject and I have great pleasure in seconding the resolution."

Without further debate the resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AFRICA.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis, St. John, submitted the following resolution :

That the attention of the local boards of trade be directed to the importance of the further development of trade between the Maritime Provinces and South Africa.

"I am not," said Mr. Jarvis, "engaged in business with South Africa, but it struck me that this question will be an important one in the near future. If you will look at the map you will find that there is a large part of Africa which is becoming British which was not British before. And that part of Africa, it seems to me, is for the products of these Maritime Provinces. Take hay ; 13,000 to 14,000 tons are exported from our ports. On account of the improved machinery which has lately been brought into use, hay can now be pressed into one-third its former size. The machinery which we have in St. John, and we would be very glad to show it to anyone who cares to see it,

THE NATURAL MARKET

TEARS UP THE HAY

and removes from it sticks and foreign substances. Hay is a large product of the Maritime Provinces, and there is no reason why our farmers should not take even greater advantage than they have of the South-African trade in this fodder. Hay is now no longer shipped as deckloads, as was the case formerly, on account of its bulk, but, being pressed into such relatively small bales, it is placed in the hold, and arrives at its destination sweet and clean.

THE DEMAND FOR LUMBER.

"It also seems to me that, in view of the present condition of affairs in South Africa, where there has been such an enormous destruction of buildings, etc., that there must before long be a large demand for lumber and other material. I regret to say that I cannot find that our merchants are taking much interest in the matter."

Mr. F. C. Simson seconded the motion.

HOW TO GET SOUTH-AFRICAN TRADE.

Mr. W. S. Fisher said he had had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Solomon, a gentleman from South Africa, who had spoken encouragingly of the prospects of trade with South Africa, "But," said Mr. Fisher, "he did not think there was a possibility of trade being done in South Africa by Canada until manufacturers and others sent men down there to investigate and learn what were the requirements of the country."

On the suggestion of Mr. W. S. Fisher, St. John, the president requested the managing editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER, to speak to the motion. In response to this request the latter referred to the report of the Canadian Trade Commissioner, Mr. James Cummings, who had recently visited a number of towns in Natal for the purpose of ascertaining what openings there were for Canadian products. In his report Mr. Cummings had said that there was a general demand for many lines which Canada was in a position to supply, and that he had also found Canadian goods being sold as the products of the United States. The editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER also pointed out the necessity for a

DIRECT LINE OF STEAMERS

between Canada and South Africa, and cited the experience of a Toronto firm whose consignment of goods for South Africa was allowed to be on the wharf in

New York for four or five weeks before being shipped, the preference being given to United States goods.

Mr. Jarvis' motion was finally adopted by a unanimous vote.

THE PREFERENTIAL REBATE ON BRITISH GOODS.

In introducing the subject of "The Preferential Rebate on Goods from Great Britain Imported Direct to Canada," Mr. J. A. Chipman said that he did not purpose making a speech, as the resolution he proposed offering fully explained the matter. The resolution read :

Resolved, that in the opinion of the Board the preferential Customs tariff, as applied to imports from Great Britain, should only apply to goods imported directly through Canadian ports, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Dominion Government and boards of trade in these and the Western Provinces.

Mr. W. A. Black seconded the motion.

Mr. W. S. Fisher : "It seems to me that it is wise for us to make a motion of this kind. At the same time I have very little hope that it will do any good. The opposition from the C.P.R. and the G.T.R. will be too strong. I believe, however, in agitating the matter." (Hear, hear.)

The motion was carried without further debate.

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE.

Mr. J. A. Chipman, Halifax, in introducing the subject of "Fast Atlantic Service," said it was as old as Confederation itself ; in fact, it had been a question of anxiety to Boards of Trade of Halifax and St. John for the past half-century, while successive Governments had attempted to solve it. The trade of the country, which was increasing rapidly, demanded such a service.

He believed, with Sir Wm. Van Horne, that we would never have a firm foundation for

A PROGRESSIVE FREIGHT SERVICE

until we have established a fast Atlantic passenger and mail service. "Sir Wm. Van Horne," continued Mr. Chipman, "says the freight service follows the passenger service. Now, I want to know if you are all filled with the spirit to support this question, and that if this resolution passes here you will not allow it to lie dormant. I hope that the SHADES OF THIS FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE will so rise up before the Government of Canada that they will be compelled to go on with this great undertaking. I beg to move the following resolution :

Whereas, the construction of the Intercolonial and Canadian Pacific railways was considered in the light of great national undertakings for the development of the foreign and international trade of Canada, and

Whereas, the vast and rapidly-growing development of the trade and resources of our country under these great transport facilities confirms the wisdom of Parliament in pledging the revenues of the country in aid of their construction, therefore

Resolved, that in the opinion of this Board our national pride is affected and our commercial progress retarded in consequence of the delay in our Federal Government in establishing this fast Atlantic service, and further

Resolved, that in the opinion of this Board there is a sufficient guarantee in the magnificent results which have followed the construction of our railways to warrant the Government in carrying out the completion of our national transportation facilities by pledging the revenues of our country to an extent sufficient to carry out without further delay the establishment of the fast Atlantic service, and further

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Federal Government, the several boards of trade in Toronto, Montreal and Quebec ; also to the members of Parliament from the Maritime Provinces.

STILL A LIVE QUESTION.

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville, N. S., in seconding the motion, quoted extracts

Mr. D. G. Smith, the retiring Secretary.

from his annual address of last year in favor of the proposed Atlantic service. In spite of that it had been allowed to drop. He was glad, however, to see the matter again being brought to the attention of the Board. It showed that the question was still a live one.

COULD NOT AGREE WITH THE RESOLUTION.

Mr. W. S. Fisher : "I am sorry to say that as a Maritime Province man I cannot agree with the resolution. As I understand it, the resolution calls for a fast Atlantic service. Now, what we want most of all is a fast freight service. We know that New York has the very acme of passenger service, and yet we know that New York is not holding the freight. It is losing it.

IN FAVOR OF FAST FREIGHT BOATS.

"We cannot put on and maintain a line of steamers, equal in speed, to compete successfully with those running to New York. We are a comparatively poor country, and would, I fear, be undertaking something we could not carry out. The boats that will be our keenest competitors will not be the fastest steamers, but the big, roomy steamers, such as the Oceanic. These steamers are capturing a large percentage of the ocean passenger travel as well as that of ocean freight. They are big and roomy, and being well loaded, are steady and comfortable. These boats do not require large subsidies. What does a day or two matter when comfort and safety are insured. I am ready to confess that at one time I was in favor of a fast Atlantic passenger service, but I have learned it is not the thing that Canada most requires."

MR. CHIPMAN REPLIES.

Mr. Chipman : "I wish to criticize a little the remarks of my friend Mr. Fisher. I should have said that the largest ships that cross the Atlantic to-day are the ships that carry the greatest quantity of freight. Mr. Fisher cannot build up a trade with second-class boats. We want the best. New York was in passenger and freight. There at one time passed through her ports 55 per cent. of the total exports and imports of the United States. But New York is a very expensive port, and it has been impossible for her to provide accommodation for the large foreign trade that has developed in the United States. The railways, in consequence, have found it better to carry freight 400 to 500 miles farther to other ports, thus decreasing New York's relative proportion."

THE PIONEER

Mr. Fisher : "What is her percentage now compared with the trade to all ports?"

Mr. Chipman : "It is less than 40 per cent. I think it is only 38 per cent."

The discussion finally closed and then the motion was carried.

PERMANENT MATERIAL FOR PUBLIC WHARVES.

Secretary Smith introduced the subject of "More Permanent Material for Public Wharves and Breakwaters." In doing so he explained that owing to the attacks of a worm called teredon on the piles and other timber on the wharves and breakwaters of Northern New Brunswick, and of the limnoria on the wharves and breakwaters along the Atlantic coast, these wharves and breakwaters frequently had to be replaced after being in use but three or four years. This meant a heavy loss to the country. The teredon worm bored its way into the exterior of the wood and destroyed it in that way, while the limnoria worm ate the piles and lumber away from the outside, something like a beaver would do. By creosoting the lumber it would be PRESERVED AGAINST THE DEPREDACTIONS of the worms in question. At present the creosoted wood that had been used had been imported from Virginia. He contended that by creosoting in Canada the piles and other lumber used in the construction of wharves and breakers, the Government would not only be saving money, but would be establishing a Canadian industry as well. He submitted the following resolution :

Whereas, the natural timber which is mainly used in the construction of Government wharves and breakwaters on the waters of the Straits of Northumberland and parts of the Atlantic Coast of Nova Scotia is rendered very perishable owing to the ravages of the teredo and limnoria worms, and,

Whereas, the creosoting of such timber is the only discovered method of preserving it from the operation of those destructive agencies, and,

Whereas, there are no creosoting works nearer to the Maritime Provinces than New York and Norfolk, Virginia, therefore,

Resolved, that this Board begs respectfully to suggest to the Dominion Government the desirability of aiding in the establishment of such works at some point in the Maritime Provinces where suitable timber is convenient and may be obtained and creosoted economically.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, in seconding the motion, testified to the damage that was being done at Halifax by the limnoria worm, and said that the creosoted lumber that was being imported from Virginia was not equal in quality to Canadian lumber used, as a rule, in the wharves and breakwaters, but, of course, it was creosoted, while the Canadian was not.

Mr. W. A. Black said that, while he did not think it would be wise for the Government to establish creosoting works, he favored its lending assistance.

ST. JOHN - DIGBY STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

When the question of recommending an increase in the steamship service across the Bay of Fundy, between St. John and Digby, was broached, Mr. J. E. De Wolfe said that, as he had opposed the idea a year ago at the Kentville convention, he would oppose it now.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis explained that the St. John delegates were absent when the subject came up at the convention a year ago. Had they been present they would have supported the motion which was brought up, although their own local board had not been able to arrive at an agreement in regard to the matter. "The position is this," explained Mr. Jarvis : "During the summer months the service is a daily one, but during the winter the steamer only runs three days a week. The service is a growing one, but the only way in which it can be made a daily one all the year around is by increasing the subsidy."

The subsidy at present is $12,500 a year.

No motion was offered, and the subject was allowed to drop.

COMPLIMENTS FOR THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Mr. W. M. Jarvis, St. John, referred to the excellent report THE CANADIAN GROCER had given of the previous year's convention, and he would, therefore, move that a sum not exceeding $20 be spent in securing copies of that paper containing a report of the present meeting, the said copies to be distributed among the different members of the Boards of Trade in the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. W. A. Black, Halifax : "It is very gratifying to think that the editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER has come all the way from Toronto to report the proceedings of this Board. His REPORTS ARE FULL AND INTERESTING, and of very great assistance in distributing information throughout the Maritime Provinces and the west as well as in regard to the subjects which are brought up for discussion here. I have much pleasure in seconding the motion."

The motion was carried unanimously.

The convention adjourned at 1 p.m. to meet again at 8 p.m.

Before President Loggie left the chair he reminded the delegates of the excursion down the Miramichi River, and hoped that every delegate would be on hand.

At 8 p.m. sharp a sufficient number of delegates to form a quorum had re-assembled in the hall ready for the closing business of the convention, having come direct from the steamer.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, on behalf of the auditors, presented the following report :

Your auditors beg respectfully to report that they have examined the accounts as presented to us by your secretary and treasurer, and have found same correct, and that there is a balance now to the credit of your board of $139.75.

Your auditors beg further to call the attention of the Board to the fact that but 10 of the affiliated boards have paid their dues for the year. Some of them are several years in arrears, and we recommend that the secretary-elect be requested to communicate immediately with all delinquent boards, reminding them that they are in arrears, and requesting payment of amount due.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

RECOGNITION OF SECRETARY SMITH'S SERVICES.

On motion of Messrs. W. M. Jarvis and M. G. De Wolfe a vote of thanks was tendered to Secretary Smith for the valuable services rendered by him, and an honorarium of $50 was ordered to be paid him.

"I am much obliged, indeed, to the Board," said Secretary Smith, "but I think a great deal more could be done than I have done if you had a permanent secretary, or such a man of leisure as Mr. M. G. De Wolfe, of Kentville."

RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Mayor Morrison, Newcastle, proposed the following resolution :

Whereas the section of the railway owned by the Canada Eastern Company, and extending from the western end of the Indiantown branch of the I. C. R. to Blackville, 8 miles, is not operated, and

Whereas its operation would give that Government branch road advantage of the object for which it was subsidized by and constructed under Dominion control, viz., direct connection with Blackville and the Canada Eastern Railway at that point, and,

Whereas, such extension of the Indiantown branch would be of great advantage to Newcastle and the important lumbering centres between that town and Blackville, therefore

Resolved that the Dominion Government be asked to take such steps as will lead to the section between Indiantown and Blackville being operated in connection with said Indiantown branch.

In speaking to his motion, Mayor Morrison furnished concrete evidences of the inconveniences caused by the non-operation of the road in question.

Secretary Smith seconded the motion.

"I am thoroughly in accord with the people of Newcastle, for the link referred to in the resolution was one the Government compelled me to build," said Senator Snowball. "In the link, there is a bridge that cost $11,000, and it is being allowed to rot away. The Government should buy the road and the whole Canada Eastern Railway as well."

The motion was adopted.

COLD STORAGE STEAMSHIPS FOR P. E. I.

Senator Snowball introduced the following resolution :

That in the opinion of this Board the Dominion Government should follow up promptly the action it has already commenced with a view of providing adequate steam communication with cold storage for the Province of Prince Edward Island, and that, in any arrangements so entered into, the east coast ports of New Brunswick should have full consideration, and their requirements for cargo accommodation as well as cold storage be met.

Senator Snowball, in speaking to the motion, said the Minister of Agriculture had decided to give no steamship a subsidy that did not possess a system of chemical cold storage, ice being too uncertain. It was only a few of the regular steamship lines that could afford to put in chemical cold storage. Tramp steamers could not afford it at all. Most of the steamships wanting subsidies for carrying products from Prince Edward Island did not want to comply with the conditions laid down by the Minister of Agriculture. "I understand," said the Senator, "that when the Micmac comes back from South Africa that she will be fitted up with the chemical cold-storage system, and in the meantime it is well for us to agitate.

INFLUENCE OF THE MARITIME BOARD.

"I find that the influence of the Maritime Board of Trade is very great, and with that in mind I would urge the adoption of the resolution which has been placed in my hands. If a steamer cannot complete her cargo on the Island, let provision be made for her coming to any port on the mainland, except Halifax. Halifax and St. John already have subsidized lines. We have not. No port is mentioned in the resolution, for the simple reason that most likely to be selected on account of her commercial importance and shipping interests."

Mr. W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown: "I have very much pleasure in seconding the resolution. It has been a matter which we have had before us many times, and we have about

GIVEN UP IN DESPAIR.

Sir Louis Davies is doing all he can to give us a steamer."

The resolution was then carried.

DISTRIBUTION OF CONSTITUTION AND BY LAWS.

On motion of Messrs. N. A. Black and M. G. De Wolfe, the president and secretary were authorized to have printed 500 copies of the constitution and by-laws and a portion of the same distributed, at their discretion, among the local boards of trade.

THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. J. E. De Wolfe, Halifax, moved a vote of thanks to President Loggie during a little lull in the proceedings. "I am sure," said Mr. De Wolfe, "that a great deal of the success which has attended this convention has been due to his untiring efforts."

Mr. W. H. Aitken seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

"I have much pleasure," remarked Vice-President Muir, who had in the meantime taken the chair, "of extending to you, Mr. President, the vote of thanks of this convention. I heartily endorse all that has been said."

President Loggie: "I can hardly find words to express my thanks to you for this hearty vote of thanks. While I feel I have given some time to the work of the office, I feel that I have not given it all the time it demanded. When I took the chair last year, as you will see by the report of THE CANADIAN GROCER, I said I was a man who would have very little to say. I have had very little to say, as you know. I trust that our gathering together has for the common interests of the Maritime Provinces, and with all my heart I thank you for your kind vote of thanks. Your presence has imparted enthusiasm, and I congratulate you that the meeting has been a success. We have had a delightful meeting." (Applause.)

RESULTED IN GOOD

NOMINATING COMMITTEE.

A committee to nominate officers for the ensuing term was appointed. It consisted of:

Mr. M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville, N. S.
Mr. W. M. Jarvis, St. John, N. B.
Mr. J. A. Chipman, Halifax.
Mr. W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown, P. E. I.
Mr. J. H. Harris, Moncton, N. B.
Mr. H. P. Robinson, Sussex, N. B.
Mr. W. B. Snowball, Chatham, N. B.
Mr. E. C. Hanrahan, Sydney, N. S.
Mr. D. Morrison, Newcastle, N. B.

On motion of Mr. N. A. Black and Senator Snowball, votes of thanks were tendered to the Mayor and Council of Chatham and to the press.

Mr. Geo. E. Calkin moved a vote of thanks to the local Board of Trade. This was seconded by Mr. W. S. Fisher and carried by a standing vote.

REPORT OF THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE.

The report of the nominating committee was received and adopted, and the officers for the ensuing year are as follows:

THE NEW OFFICERS,

President—Mr. W. A. Black, Halifax.
Vice-President for New Brunswick—Mr. W. S. Fisher, St. John.
Vice-President for P.E.I.—Mr. Geo. D. Longworth, Charlottetown.
Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Chas. M. Creed, Halifax.
Auditor—Mr. Frank O. Allison, St. John.

On being called on for a speech Mr. Black remarked: "I thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me, and only hope that my efforts may be as successful as those of my predecessors." (Applause.)

NEXT PLACE OF MEETING.

It was unanimously decided, on motion, to hold the next annual meeting at Sydney, N.S., the council being empowered to name some other place should occasion arise.

It was shortly after 10 p.m. when, on motion of Dr. Muir, the proceedings were brought to a close, and the seventh annual convention of the Maritime Board of Trade was concluded.

DOWN THE PRETTY MIRAMICHI.

THE DELEGATES HAVE A DELIGHTFUL TRIP TO THE MOUTH OF THE RIVER.

Successful as the business part of the convention of the Maritime Board of Trade was, the entertainment was none the less so. The Town Council, the local Board of Trade and Senator Snowball concentrated their energies in making the stay of the delegates pleasant, just as the officers of the Maritime Board concentrated their efforts in making their stay profitable to the commercial interests of the three Provinces.

Accordingly, at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, a party of about fifty, all of the male gender, assembled on board the steamer St. George, which had kindly been placed at the disposal of the local board by Senator Snowball for the entertainment of the visitors. The Senator was on hand to see that everything was in order, and his estimable wife, with other lady members of the family, drove down to the wharf with a basket of pretty button-hole bouquets for the visitors. Just as the boat got out from the wharf Secretary Smith levied a camera at her, and the result of his snap shot is the cut which is printed elsewhere in this issue.

The destination of the steamer was Burnt Church, so called because of a church which was destroyed by a British ship, the one, by the way, which was conveying the remains of General Wolfe to England, in retaliation for the murdering of a part of her crew by Indians, in which deed, it was claimed, some French soldiers had participated.

A FUTURE POPULAR SUMMER RESORT.

Burnt Church is a healthy-looking village on the north bank of the Miramichi, and where the river is about nine miles wide. It is delightfully situated, and some day it should become a famous resort for tourists, for not only is the air most bracing, dry and invigorating, but there are plenty of good fish to be caught in the vicinity. A fine, substantial wharf 1,100 feet long is being built at Burnt Church by the Federal Government, and in a week or so will be completed. The delegates, after a delightful sail down the river, were landed on the wharf, and were given a short time in which to visit the village.

The return journey was begun shortly after 6 o'clock, and when the St. George was well on her way the visitors were invited to take seats at two long tables which had been set under the awning in the stern of the boat. The MENU WAS BOTH AMPLE AND GOOD, and the guests were soon satisfying an appetite which had been made keen by the bracing breezes of the Miramichi. The menu disposed of speech-making was in order, with President Loggie in the chair.

Senator Snowball, in proposing the toast of the "Maritime Board of Trade," said: "I have sat in many a deliberative body—in the House of Commons and in the Senate—but I have never sat with a more able body of men than those of the Maritime Board of Trade." (Applause.)

President Loggie, in responding, thanked the local board and Senator Snowball, on behalf of the Board, for the pleasant entertainment which had been provided. "We have enjoyed ourselves immensely," he said. And everyone applauded.

DR. MUIR CONFESSES.

Vice-President Muir was in a penitent mood. "I felt last year," he said, "that we had made a mistake in deciding to hold our next convention in Chatham. I confess to you I made a very great mistake, particularly since we came down this delightful river." (Applause.)

HE WILL ADVERTISE THE MIRAMICHI.

Ex-President De Wolfe, after thanking the local board for the excellent reception which had been tendered the visitors, remarked: "You have a magnificent river here. What you want to do is to advertise it. That is what I am going to do and that is what I hope every delegate will do. (Applause.) When I come down here again I hope the Canada Eastern Railway, which runs into your town, will be system. And that you will have no discriminating rates against you." (Hear, hear.)

A PART OF THE INTERCOLONIAL

WILL COME AGAIN.

Ex President Jarvis: "We shall never forget your hospitality. I am glad to say that I can speak of myself as being one of those who advocated the holding of the convention in Chatham. Many here have visited the Miramichi for the first time. I am sure it will not be their last." (Applause.)

Before taking his seat Mr. Jarvis proposed the toast of the "Town Council of Chatham."

INDUSTRIES ON THE MIRAMICHI.

Mayor Snowball, in response to the toast, expressed the hope that the visitors would go away from Chatham having a better idea of its importance than they had when they arrived there. He referred to the industries on the Miramichi, and showed that the export trade in lumber aggregated over $1,000,000 annually, the fisheries about $200,000, and among others there was the blueberry picking industry.

WISHED FOR MORE SUCH MEETINGS.

"The Government of New Brunswick" brought the Hon. J. F. Burchell to his feet. "I wish these meetings could be held more often," he said. "I claim that business men do not get enough into touch with each other. It would have been better, it seems to me, if at the time of the Confederation of the Dominion there had been a

CONFEDERATION OF THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

Such a commercial force as the Maritime Board of Trade is, however, drawing these Provinces closer together."

Mr. J. A. Chipman, in proposing the health of the Mayor of Newcastle, declared that he was filled with admiration of the surroundings of the Miramichi district.

Mayor Morrison, of Newcastle, spoke of the pleasure he felt in meeting with the business men of the Maritime Provinces. He, too, felt that it would have been better had there been a confederation of the Maritime Provinces instead of that of the Dominion, for he feared that there was little sympathy with them in the western Provinces.

The managing editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER, being called upon, declared that the two speakers who had expressed regret that there had not been a confederation of the Maritime Provinces instead of the Dominion had based their premise on a wrong conclusion. The was growing and growing with the development of the natural resources and trade of the country. Naturally, the development of the national sentiment increased the interest and concern of the different Provinces with each other. The trade between the western Provinces and the Maritime Provinces was, he was glad to say, mutually growing. The more the business men of these Maritime and western Provinces were brought into contact with each other the more would not only trade but good-fellowship and sympathy develop, just as had been the case in the Maritime Provinces since the formation of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Before the wharf was reached speeches had been demanded from Senator Snowball, Mr. C. E. Hanrahan, Ald. Murray and Ald. Hocken. And then like dutiable business men the delegates hurried away to the town hall to complete the business of the convention.

CHATHAM'S TIME.

The watches and clocks in Chatham are set to time 30 minutes ahead of eastern standard time. At one time it was 36 minutes and a fraction ahead of standard time, while Newcastle, up the river a few miles, was one hour ahead of standard time. Finally the two towns got their heads together and agreed upon a uniform local time of 30 minutes ahead of standard time.

The Moncton delegates travelled in Manager Russell's private car.

It was announced before the convention adjourned that a board of trade had been formed at Glace Bay.

FRASER RIVER SALMON PACK.

The salmon run this year has been one of the largest in the history of the canning industry and will result in a pack, which, while it may not be the highest on record, will be of very considerable dimensions. The total pack of the Fraser river canneries this year will be between 700,000 and 800,000 cases, as there are 48 cans in each case, a little multiplication will show just what that number of cases means. The last time that the pack was as large as that of this year was in 1897, which was a record year, and was characterized by a run of salmon which has not been equalled since. Then the total number of cases was 860,459. Some people are sanguine enough to think that before this season is ended even that figure may be passed.

The output of the other years since 1894 has been comparatively small, and that of last year, 316,522, is the lowest of any except that of 1898, when only 256,101 cases were put up. The figures for the other years were: 1899, 506,383; 1896, 356,948; 1895, 400,368; 1894, 363,967. These figures are for Fraser river only and are greatly augmented by the product of the other canneries on the Coast. In 1897, which was the last run of the four-year cycle, the total pack of salmon was over one million cases, and it is expected that this season also the output will be over the million mark.

WHY ARE GOOD CLERKS SCARCE?

FROM my remarks on this subject last week there has come to me a wonderful lot of different opinions. If you remember I said this: The clerk was not taking the interest he should in his employer's business because his employer neglected to so instruct the clerk in his duties toward that business. Therefore the fault is equally divided. I always hold to the old saying, "Confidence begets confidence," and no salesman is worthy of a place behind the counter whom his employer cannot trust. In the very large stores where salesmen are constantly being changed and where they are continually kept under surveillance, one cannot expect that pride in the store and in the position they hold, as in a smaller store where the head of the establishment can be constantly in touch with his salesmen. This is an important point that the small store can always beat the larger. A man who has in his employment say two or three clerks can come into closer touch with them than can the man who employs twenty. When a clerk cannot feel his employer's interest in his welfare how can he give him his best effort? It's not natural. Human nature is the same the world over. I asked some well-known merchants their opinions on this subject. Said one: "It has always been our constant aim to give our patrons the best clerk service obtainable and we set a very high value on our reputation in this respect. We consider discourteousness the worst fault for a clerk to have, and we would discharge a salesman quicker for that than most other faults. We consider we owe much of our success in business to this fact—our customers are served by pleasant, well-dressed salesmen."

Another grocer said: "I don't have trouble with my clerks because I pick the 'good ones.'" He evidently has a high opinion of his men. Another merchant says: "The trouble with most men is, they hire cheap 'help' and then grumble at what they get for their money. I pay a good salary and can generally get good men who can earn their pay. With me it's a case of 'pay the price and you get the goods.'" There is one truth in this man's saying, and, as a rule, in the grocery business it is the "cheap ones" that give the most trouble. Profits are small and it's hard to find a merchant who does not try to economize by keeping down the wages of his clerks. Poorly paid clerks have no ambition and are unable to spend the money they should on their clothing. Here, to my mind, is what is keeping the best young men from going behind the counter—the smallness of the wages that are paid in the ordinary store. This is being remedied somewhat and wages are increased in a number of places, but there is yet room for improvement. May the efficiency of the clerks continue to outstrip by far the monetary remuneration they receive!

MY MISTAKE.

In my last number I said in reference to the early-closing by-law. "Municipalities may pass a by-law when a petition is presented signed by two-thirds vote of those engaged in the business." This should read "Municipalities 'must' pass a by-law when petitioned by a two-thirds vote of those engaged in the business" and they "may" pass this by-law without the two-thirds vote. This correction you will readily understand.

VINEGAR AND PICKLING SPICE.

The grocery store windows are now announcing the pickling season at hand with vinegar barrels and pickling spice arranged therein. This is all right, and I think more vinegar and pickling spice are sold thereby. It is correct to bring seasonable goods to the front—when people see them it reminds them of their need of the goods.

THE MAN WHO IS HIS OWN CLERK.

Here is what my friend says on this subject:—"A man who is his own clerk has the advantage of coming into direct contact with his trade, of knowing them better, becoming more familiar with their whims and preferences; and can detect and adjust difficulties more readily than can the larger store. These are the things that permit him to exist. Were it not for these, the big store would have crushed him out long ago. As it is now, they never can, and it will always be the little man's privilege to live." I agree with my friend. It is wonderful how things like these adjust themselves, the man who is his own clerk is all right for all time to come. May he live long and prosper is all the harm I wish him.

GEM JARS.

"S.W." asks if it would not be wise to cut the price now as he has a big stock and they are not selling.

There is not a large amount of money in these goods at the best of times. If you think you are likely to carry them over, you had better try and get them sold even if you do not make a profit. My idea is to make cost if possible. This season has been a very poor one for fruit, thus causing a large number of jars to be still unsold on the dealers' hands. Remember, too, that selling goods at cost means adding to the purchase price sufficient margin to cover the expense of the service. Every article in a store must bear a proportion of the expense incurred for freight, cartage, rent, insurance, taxes, light, fuel, clerk hire, loss of handling. All this has a right to be added on the purchasing price, if not, you are selling below cost, and thus depleting your capital to the extent of which you ignore the above items. I never liked this "at cost" business and we hear so much of it these days, yet, on the other hand, we must all watch our stocks and see the goods are properly turned over each season.

THE POTATO MARKET.

From a section that usually grows a large quantity of potatoes for export has come to me a report of the failure of the crop.

We are threatened with a potato famine this season according to all reports. From what I have heard there appears to be a very great shortage in this section. If we cannot get potatoes we'll have to eat turnips or some other vegetables, although nothing after all takes the place of potatoes on the table. The price will rule high this season. I wonder if Ireland will be able to supply us when our crop is exhausted. I will ask my good friend from Dublin, "P. O'C.," who is my most eminent authority on subjects of this description, including "Home Rule."

"R.K." is starting business and wants to know what percentage he should have on his goods.

Now, how in the world can anyone answer satisfactorily a question like the above! No hard and fast rule can ever be laid down by one unfamiliar with local conditions. This matter must be determined by the nature of the opposition, character of the goods in demand, whether the business is cash or credit, and numerous other conditions. These are matters of study and will have to be gained by experience. You are in the business for all the profits you can get out of it. Arranging and adjusting will all come in due time. I wish you every success and if I am able to assist you in any way, write me. I regret, owing to above reasons, I am unable to help you in the above questions.

"M.W." is the youngest clerk in the store and feels that he is imposed upon by the older

This is a common experience in all stores, the weakest has to suffer but the training is all right for you. Don't complain. Be obliging—never discourteous—and you will find this trouble will soon pass away. So many young boys think it is smart to be saucy to those older than they. This is a very bad fault and I hope you will not fall into it. The best plan is to work away and try to forget your little troubles. Be cheerful, and do your duty in a willing way and you will soon get over feeling hard towards anyone. Don't magnify these little wrongs by continually thinking about them. Let your mind be upon your work and don't give occasion for anyone to be mean to you, and see how soon it will all end.

Mr. C. Beacham, who met an untimely end at Newcastle, Ont., in company with two sons of Canon Farncomb, was one of the successful sons of Ontario who have made names for themselves in New York. He had resided there for the past 13 or 14 years. He commenced his grocery experience as a clerk for Messrs. Jackson & McTavish in Lindsay, then he went to New York and entered the employ of Messrs. Park & Telford, and by his honesty, industry and executive ability rose in their employ until for the last few years he had the management of the 72nd Street and Columbia Avenue store. He was a man of fine appearance and sterling character, a friend to all in need; one whose life was an example of morality and integrity. He has been removed just as life appeared to be broadening out for him, and his many friends in Ontario will deeply regret the sad circumstances.

THE AMERICAN AND CANADIAN TEA MARKET.

(From The Home and Colonial Mail, London, Eng.)

MR. P. C. LARKIN, of Toronto, who is in London, was interviewed by us, and frankly spoke his mind on the subject of the American and Canadian markets for Indian and Ceylon tea, and the course to be adopted if business is to be rapidly developed.

Mr. Larkin, who is evidently enterprising to his finger-tips, related briefly his experiences in introducing Indian and Ceylon teas to the notice of the American and Canadian consumers, who are reached through the branches of The "Salada" Tea Co., which he controls in both countries. He told how the work was slow at first, but he quickened it by giving publicity in all kinds of ways to the merits of these teas. How the sales increased, and how he caused them to increase more rapidly by spending more and more on advertising. Having built up a business in "black," Mr. Larkin tried his hand with "greens," and, partly at his suggestion, planters have manufactured green teas, which, in his opinion and that of all experts, entirely eclipse the Chinese and Japanese makes, and bid fair, if planters will only maintain the standard of excellence, to hold the market and entirely rout the enemy. "But it is slow work this capturing a market," and here Mr. Larkin was most emphatic; "it means enterprise and the expenditure of money. The money will all come back many times over though the enhanced price of tea in London if planters and their representatives will set about the work of securing and developing trade on the North-American continent, not by mild spurts, but by quick, systematic, and sustained effort, which will achieve lasting results and open up a large, steady, and continuous demand." Of Indian and Ceylon greens Mr. Larkin spoke enthusiastically. "They are simply splendid, and nothing can stand against them, but how on earth are people to learn of their merits unless they are informed by newspaper and other forms of advertisement? Publicity is the requirement. India and Ceylon have, since the introduction of green tea, the very article that is wanted to suit the consumer, but rapid development is necessary, and that rapid development can only take place if planters recognize the difficulties those who are pushing their teas have to contend with, and the only effective way of overcoming them." We asked Mr. Larkin, apropos of the statement of the United States Secretary of Agriculture that the Gulf States would soon supply the entire American market, what he thought of the home-grown tea. He smiled a sarcastic sort of smile which expressed much, but then said quickly, "All the more reason for speed in pushing the trade in Indian and Ceylon teas, so that immediate and tangible results follow. Do the work thoroughly, speedily, and cleverly, and there is a sure and safe market." And Mr. Larkin took his leave.

TO MAKE GOOD COCOA.

1. Start with a pure cocoa of undoubted quality and excellence of manufacture, and which bears the name of a respectable firm. This point is important, for there are many cocoas on the market which have been doctored, either by the addition of alkali, starch, malt, kola, hops, etc. The treatment of kola with alkali is to render it more miscible with water; and, therefore, a cocoa which seems to dissolve very freely in water should be regarded with suspicion. If the cocoa thickens very much in the cup, even though a small quantity is used, it probably points to an addition of starch, which lowers the nutritive value of the beverage. The addition of other constituents is unnecessary and have no good effect, but, on the contrary, may be positively harmful.

2. With a little warm water or milk, thoroughly reduce the powder to a fine, thin batter, carefully crushing down all lumps.

3. Pour on boiling water as quickly as possible, stirring rapidly. It is necessary that the water should be really boiling; if just below the boiling point a perfect mixture is not obtainable. If milk be employed, it should also be at a boiling point.

Cocoa prepared in this way forms, with water or milk, a perfect mixture, and leaves no sediment in the cup. It is a good plan to stir the contents of the cup now and again between the intervals of drinking.

If cocoa is to be prepared in large quantities for catering, the best plan is to bring the water to the boil, and then gradually add the powder to the boiling water, constantly stirring. — Caterers' Gazette, London.

A UNIQUE ADVERTISEMENT.

Slowly, quietly, soberly a procession of six of the strangest looking folk that have been seen in Toronto for many a day, walked up Yonge street. The people on the street were immediately interested. Curiosity was aroused, for not only were each of the six of a dark, nut-brown complexion, and garbed in the fancy costume of the Cingalese from their broad turban to their long-toed shoes, but each bore a tea-tray, kettle and cup, as if serving some of the finest of pure Ceylon teas.

The coloring of the costumes was bright and attractive, and the procession so quiet and stately that everyone stopped to have a look, and heads appeared, as if by magic, in doors and windows.

"Who are they?" was the frequent query.

Sometimes the answer was not forthcoming, but more often it was: "Why, don't you recognize them? They're the men whose pictures are in the Ross Tea Company's advertisement, and on the packages of Ross's Tea. That's the way they dress in Ceylon where that tea comes from."

The advertisement was unique, and proved a hit—in fact, one of the best hits that have been made in Toronto for some time. It was, too, one of the hits that have to be seen to be fully appreciated.

THE UNITED FACTORIES, LIMITED.

One of the most important announcements published by The Canada Gazette last week was the incorporation of Boeckh Bros. & Co., of Toronto; The Wm. Cane & Sons Manufacturing Co., of Newmarket, Limited; and The London Brush Factory, of London, Ont., which was previously owned by Thomas Bryan, under the style of The United Factories, Limited. The organization of the new company, of whom Emil C. Boeckh, A. M. Wills, accountant, L. W. McKeown, barrister, Toronto, are the provisional directors, and which has a capital stock of $1,500,000, is as yet in its early stages.

"You understand," said Mr. Boeckh to THE CANADIAN GROCER, "the Boeckh and Cane companies have been working in conjunction for some time. So we are merely taking in the London concern and perfecting our organization. The different factories will probably continue under the same management as at present, as the owners of the three concerns are all shareholders in The United Factories, Limited. We will be able to effect economies, but it is too early to go into details."

DO IT NOW.

Such is the terse advice given on one side of a folder which Boeckh Bros. & Co., Toronto, are sending out. On the other side further details are given. The argument maintained is that the time to order fall stocks of brushes, brooms and woodenware is "now." The suggestion is a good one and should be made use of by many business men.

THE HOOD RIVER STRAWBERRY CROP.

The principal source from which Winnipeg, and, in fact, a great portion of Manitoba and the Northwest, get their supply of strawberries is the Hood River district, Oregon.

There are certain peculiar merits connected with the berry from that district and the locality where raised which make it unlike any other variety, so exceedingly difficult of imitation or of competition that it constitutes a chapter in horticulture very remarkable. This variety is called the Clark's Seedling. It carries for distances of 2,000 miles or more, and holds firm and keeps its flavor to the end. Several shipments of them were made to the Klondyke, where it is said they sold at $5 per pound box.

Over 40,000 crates of these berries were grown this season. There were shipped 33 straight carloads under refrigeration and between 15 and 20 cars by express, or about 50 cars all told. The cash returns to the growers for their 40,000 crates amounted to about $85,000.

For I know all about it;
I am the final court
Beyond which there is no appeal.
Each day we go over the mail together—
The "old man" and I.
He picks out the one-centers
And the fishy-looking two-centers,
Keeps the actual cheques and letters
And gives me the residue.
All of it—absolutely all;
Even to the envelopes.
Advertising! Humph!
I ought to know!
For I get all the tailors' samples
And life insurance blotters
And summer resort booklets
And "lost manhood" pamphlets
And folders and circulars
And literature offering many things (Mostly on very reasonable terms).
I get them all,
And that is how I happen to know.
I swallow nine-tenths of all the advertising
That reaches him.
All of it except a little tenth
That is printed in the "old man's" trade paper.
I never get hold of that, for some reason,
Though I've tried hard enough, too.
Never managed to get a taste of that,
Except once, when a new office boy
Very kindly threw me one,
And then, before I had time to Swallow it, the "old man" rescued it
And cursed and howled and danced
And scared Tilly the typewriter
And put the paper in his coat pocket.
And now, that I come to think of it,
I haven't seen that boy since.

RETAILERS AND THE FALL FAIRS.

IN a few weeks the annual district, county and township fall fairs will be held in practically every section of Canada, and for from one day to two weeks the town or city where they are held will be the scene of unusual activity.

To the live merchant, no matter what line he sells, a crowd always means opportunity—if not to sell, to advertise. What opportunity is presented to the grocers by the annual fall fairs? The answer depends so largely on the bent of a grocer's method that to attempt to sum it all up in a few words would be useless.

To the majority of grocers the local fall "show" is merely a time when more buyers are in town than usual, causing a natural increase in their business.

Many of these argue that as the people are in town they are bound to get their share of increase in trade done during the day. They, therefore, believe that it would be unwise to make any special effort to advertise, either in local press, by circulars, or by extra care in window dressing.

Others recognize in these days an opportunity for attracting new customers by advertising, but do not think it worth while to spend much time or thought on the matter.

The most enterprising, however, look upon "fair week" as one of the golden opportunities of grocery retailing. They argue that as many buyers will be in town, many heads of families, who have not been in for months, and some of whom come from a distance, that the week presents to the grocer a fine opening for energetic, up-to-date advertising.

The first consideration is what plan of campaign to follow, for advertising to an end like this is a campaign in the same sense that a general makes a campaign against the enemy, and should be well reasoned out in advance. Frequently, the advertising space in the local papers is increased, in any case, it is filled with matter referring to the inducements offered customers during "fair week." Circulars are sometimes used, but they are not nearly as useful to the grocer as is the newspaper "ad."

Of late years there has been a great development in window dressing and store decoration. One result of this is that there is in almost every town some grocer who prepares his windows especially to attract visitors to the fair.

Quite a number of grocers have "demonstrated" at the fair. They have taken a stand, and, in addition to showing the lines they want to introduce, and selling goods which are in immediate demand, such as fruits, nuts, candies, etc., they prepare "for the ladies" enticing cups of coffee, cocoa or tea. If the cups used be small and only one, or, at the most, two persons be serving, great numbers can be served at little expense. One enterprising merchant gave his "demonstrators" small cheques, which were given to each drinker, offering "5 per cent. discount, for this week only," on the blend of coffee or tea as they were drinking. He remained in his store and awaited results, which proved abundantly satisfactory to him.

In many ways the annual fall fair provides an opportunity for the display of a grocer's energy. What are you going to do about it?

THE EARLY-CLOSING MOVEMENT.

IN many towns throughout Canada the merchants are adhering to a voluntary agreement to close their stores at specified hours during July and August. In some towns the agreement is to close three nights a week at 6 p.m.; in others to close five nights a week at 7 or 8 p.m. There is considerable diversity in the agreements, but the aim in all is the same: To secure shorter hours for both employer and employee.

In quite a number of cases, unless active energy is displayed by some of those interested during the next few days, the close of this week will see the end of these agreements, for this year at least.

Has the scheme been a success? Has it been as satisfactory to the employers as it has been pleasant for the clerks? It is safe to presume that in practically every case general satisfaction has been the result.

Then why not extend the scope of the agreement? Why should not grocers and other retailers have at least three nights a week free from the duties and cares of the shop? It has been demonstrated that customers are well able to make their purchases at some other time, so why not persuade them to do so?

BUSINESS MEN AS LAWMAKERS.

It is because their makers were lawyers that so many of our laws are difficult of interpretation. What we want among our lawmakers is more business men and fewer lawyers.

The difference between the lawyer and the intelligent business man is that the forte of the one is to score for technicalities, while that of the other is to avoid them and to make the laws of the land plain and business-like, in order that he who runs may be able to understand them.

AN IDEAL PARLIAMENT.

The Maritime Board of Trade makes one dream of what an ideal Parliament we would have if the membership of the House of Commons was made up entirely of such practical, commonsense business men.

THE MARITIME PROVINCES AND WESTERN CANADA.

EVER since Confederation there has been a feeling between the people of Western Canada and the Maritime Provinces that the one was little concerned in the welfare of the other. Happily, this feeling does not obtain to the extent it formerly did. And one of the evidences of this is the diminishing frequency with which acrimonious remarks regarding the matter are made by the press of the respective parts of the country. But, while this regrettable feeling is dying, it is not yet dead, either in Western Canada or in the Maritime Provinces. Occasionally we are reminded of this.

At one of the social functions in connection with the annual convention of the Maritime Board of Trade at Chatham, N.B., two of the speakers, while referring to the good work being done by the Maritime Board in drawing the business men of the three Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island closer together, expressed the opinion that it would have, perhaps, been better for the Maritime Provinces if they, instead of the Dominion, had been confederated. One of them, also, expressed the opinion that the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario had little sympathy with them (the Maritime Provinces) in the questions they were trying to solve. Both the gentlemen referred to are more or less in the public eye; but it is worthy of note that their sentiments were not applauded. It cannot be said that the wish was father to the thought, for they spoke as though they regretted that such a state of affairs appeared to them to exist.

From a careful study of the question during the last three years, we are firmly persuaded that while some such feelings as those referred to do exist a Canadian spirit far more broad abounds.

The vast majority of at least the business people of the Maritime Provinces—for it is of more certainty that we can speak of them—are Canadians in spirit as well as in name. And after all, if we get the business men right on this or any other public question we need not fear a great deal for the rest.

One of the gratifying signs of the times is the increasing interprovincial trade between the upper and the lower Provinces of the Dominion. We learn this from an official high in authority on the Intercolonial railway.

While commerce may follow the flag it is equally certain that the development of trade, interprovincial as well as that of any other kind is a concomitant of closer personal intercourse of mercantile men with each other.

The people in the Maritime Provinces have a fairly good case against their fellow countrymen in Ontario and Quebec in regard to summer tourist travel.

There is no part of this continent that affords more natural advantages to the summer holiday-seeker than the Maritime Provinces. The scenery is rich and varied and the climate is delightful, being cool, dry and invigorating, while in fishing and hunting it is a paradise beyond peradventure. Yet people in the west will hie themselves in the summer time to places outside the Dominion, where expenses are greater and where the advantages so essential to the rest and recreation of the tired and overworked business man are far poorer in many instances.

There is no finer class of men in the world than the business men of the Maritime Provinces, and the more the business men of Ontario and Quebec cultivate their acquaintance and sympathize with them in their difficulties, the better will it be for the unity of the Dominion, to say nothing of the satisfaction that naturally accrues from such intercourse to those who participate in it.

IMPORTANCE OF TOURIST TRAVEL.

THE attention which was given to tourist travel in the deliberations of the Maritime Board of Trade in convention at Chatham, N.B., last week, shows how the importance of the subject is growing upon the minds of the business people of that part of the Dominion.

The glorious climate, the magnificent scenery and the abundant opportunities for fishing and hunting have always been with the people of the Maritime Provinces, but it is only within the last few years that the business men down there seemed to realize the extent to which these attractions could be made to contribute to their own material advantage.

Now, they have tourists' associations and boards of trade devoting no small energy to devising ways and means of attracting tourists, and of providing accommodation for them when they come. And yet the movement is only in its initiary state.

Mr. Fisher pointed out in his address that during the six months of summer something like $60,000 per day was expended by tourists in the State of Maine. And Maine is no better situated for tourist travel than the Maritime Provinces. But, at any rate, the experience of Maine should stimulate business men in all parts of Canada to take ways and means of attracting tourist travel to their respective localities.

UP-TO-DATE ADVERTISING.

THERE is no question about it—advertising is an art! During the last 20 years or more so much attention has been devoted to the study of the best methods of attracting, interesting and convincing the great public; so many keen business men and shrewd writers have devoted time and thought to this phase of commercial life, that it has become an important, if not an essential, factor in business success to day.

At first, freak advertising was "the fashion," and every ingenuity that could be devised was employed, but, as time went by, experience proved to the most successful advertisers that judiciousness and persistency were necessary in advertising. The result is that to day practically every advertiser of standing makes the foundation of his advertising his space in legitimate publications.

While, however, the continuous advertisement is the great factor in advertising, many advertisers add to its effectiveness by some "special" advertising at more or less frequent intervals. Some of the work of this class, such as cards, hangers, etc., placed in stores, is of very little value.

The desirable feature of such advertising is originality. To catch attention to-day one must devise something not only attractive but new. The man who keeps his regular advertising fresh and interesting is bound to reap a good harvest if his goods be up to the mark.

THE LATE LEANDER CHAPUT.

MR. LEANDER CHAPUT, founder of the large wholesale grocery house of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, De Bresoles street, Montreal, after a two months' illness, succumbed at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, August 22, at his residence, Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal. Although he had reached the ripe old age of 84 years, he had been enjoying comparatively good health previous to the past two months. The news of his death was received with deep regret, not only throughout the city of Montreal, but, in fact, the entire Province, where he was well known and respected by a host of friends.

Mr. Chaput was born in L'Assomption, Que., on November 4, 1817. When he was but four years of age his mother passed away, and, a few months afterwards, his father also died. He was the only boy of a family of seven. From his earliest boyhood he always displayed a talent for business, and in everything he undertook he exhibited a courageous and confident spirit. At the age of 15 he came to Montreal and entered the employ of W. S. Phillips, then a leading merchant, and at that time located at the corner of McGill and College streets. Here he bent his whole energy to the acquiring of a thorough knowledge of the business, and proved himself to be an apt and willing worker in a manner characteristic of his determination to succeed. On April 15, 1839, he married Mlle. Helene Saint Denis, who is yet living. Eleven children were born to them, seven of whom survive, namely, M. Charles Chaput, Mme. J. Alfred Laramee, Mlle. Eugenie Chaput, Mme. Telesphore Descarries, Mme. Antoine Hudon, Sister Helene de Jesus (Antoinette) Monastere du Precieux Sang, de Notre Dame de Grace, and Madame Albert Gauthier.

In May, 1842, he started in business for himself, and for 33 years he labored continuously, and his efforts were crowned with success, for the growth and progress of his business was phenomenal from the beginning. Those who were engaged in his warehouse were always very much attached to him, for he was a most considerate—in fact, a model—employer, and a father to them all. In 1875, he retired from the commercial arena to take a well-merited rest, and was succeeded by his son, Mr. Charles Chaput, with whom are associated Mr. L. E. Geoffrion, president of Le Chambre de Commerce, Mr. A. Prudhomme, and Mr. Armand Chaput, his grandson. When one considers the magnitude of the house of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, he can form a good idea of the wonderful skill and business ability of its organizer, for their trade now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the establishment is one of the largest of its kind in the Dominion.

The Late Mr. Leander Chaput.

Mr. Chaput was of a reserved nature and most charitable. He was the founder and principal supporter of the large convent of the Sisters of the Precious Blood, Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal, and not only will this college lament his death, but also many other large institutions throughout that city. It is said, and the fact can well be appreciated by all who have ever come in contact with him, that during the whole period of the sickness which proved fatal he displayed that wonderful courage and confidence that marked his entire life. Although death has claimed this much respected and beloved man, his sterling integrity, his ability as a business man and his unselfish disposition will long live in the memories of those whom he so loyally served.

The funeral took place on Monday morning last, and the large attendance testified to the high esteem in which the late gentleman was held. The most prominent men in the religious, political and commercial circles of the Province of Quebec followed the remains to the grave. Among those noticed at the funeral were: The Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works; Senator MacKay; Robert Bickerdike, M.P.; Dr. Guerin, M.L.A.; Mayor Descarries; F. D. Monk, M.P.; Dr. L. O. Lachapelle, Messrs. J. R. Bourdeaut, P. Hurtubise, Henri Hurtubise, L. O. Taillon, R. Forest, Arthur Roussel, O. L. Bourgue, F. Deslauriers, J. A. Dufresne, Chas. Gervais and many others. The celebrant of the requiem mass was Mgr. Racitot, Vicar-General of the Archdiocese of Montreal. Mgr. Racitot also officiated at the Absolute. Among the mourners were: Charles Chaput, son of deceased; Edward St. Denis, Armand Chaput, Emile Chaput, Albert Laramee, Arthur Laramee, A. Descarries, L. Descarries, C. Descarries and Antoine Hudon. THE CANADIAN GROCER extends to the family and relatives its sincere sympathy in the great loss they have sustained.

EARLY CLOSING IN FREDERICTON.

The grocers' early-closing movement has evidently the stamp of approval of the people, and the idea of allowing the hard-worked merchants and their employes the benefit of the evenings for recreation and pleasure is firmly entrenched in this town, as in other cities.

All stores in the city, except the book-stores, are now closed at 6 o'clock or a little later, and no person, now that they have become used to it, experiences any inconvenience or would think of asking the merchants to go back to the old order of things. Trade is not curtailed or interfered with in any way, just as much business being done from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. as before, when the stores were open three or four hours longer. The grocers were somewhat doubtful as to whether or not their customers would approve of the early-closing idea, but none of them have any doubts now as to the approval of the people. — Fredericton Gleaner, August 22.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

If any reader wishes to know where any article can be purchased in Canada or abroad, a letter to the Editor will probably place him in communication with the seller.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, August 29, 1901.
GROCERIES.

WHILE prices, with the exception of an advance of 15c. in canned apples, are without change, there is a general steadiness of tone which, combined with a general improvement of business, causes a most satisfactory feeling throughout the trade. Sugars have steadied since the decline noted last week, and further declines are not looked for. Canned goods are stiff throughout. Canned vegetables and fruits are firmly held on account of reports of crop shortage, while the heavy salmon run is not likely to cause any material reduction in this line. The Patras currant market, which was reported 2s. higher last week, is declining, and is now even lower than it was before the late advance. Walnuts and Tarragona almonds are likely to be a big crop, and will likely be offered at prices below last week's quotations. There is practically no change in teas since last report. The advance on low and medium grade Ceylon and Indian teas noted last week is well maintained.

CANNED GOODS.

The stiffening of values continues to be a feature of the canned goods market. The only advance noted, though, is in gallon apples, which are 15c. dearer. Peas are steady at last week's advance, which brought prices to 82½c. It is still too early to say much about tomato futures, but spot goods are firm at about 80c., though in some cases, 85c. is asked. Butter and string beans are scarce, and will likely bring good prices before the season is over. On account of the short crop of white beans, canned pork and beans, and beans in tomato sauce are firm. Corn is also reported to be a small pack, and prices are steady at 80 to 85c.

All canned fruits are steady with no new feature except the advance in apples, which brings the quotations to $2.40 to $2.50.

The canned salmon market is firm, notwithstanding the big run of sockeye salmon on the Fraser. "The market opened at a reasonable figure," explained a local wholesale dealer, "and, as English buyers would snap up all offerings at lower prices, there is neither disposition nor necessity for a reduction here. We expect to have our orders filled this season, but we would have great difficulty in getting further deliveries." Sardines keep firm, as the pack is considered to be under the average. Haddies and herrings are both scarce, and difficulty has been experienced in getting orders filled. There is a fair sorting demand for canned lobsters, which are unchanged in price.

COFFEE.

There is practically nothing new to report. The outside markets continue easy, and there is a fairly active demand in a local way, especially in green coffee. Quotations are unchanged: Green Rio, No. 7, 7¾c.; No. 6, 8¼c.; No. 5, 8¾c., and No. 4, 9½c.

See pages 47 and 48 for Toronto, Montreal, and St.
John prices current.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is little doing, but the indications point to a healthy demand as soon as the weather becomes cooler. Prices are steady throughout.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Orders for rice are not large, but the aggregate volume of business being done is satisfactory. Reports from the primary markets are conflicting, but there does not seem to be much chance of a material change in values on this market. B rice is still quoted at 3½c. per lb., Japan and Java at 5½ to 6c. Tapioca is in fair request at 4¼ to 4½c.

SPICES.

Primary markets are strong, but there is practically no change in quotations. There is a good demand, particularly for pickling spices.

SUGAR.

While the local market has steadied since last week's decline of 10c., the primary markets are still easy. The raw sugar market in New York is decidedly dull. Willett & Gray's Sugar Trade Journal of August 22 says: "The nominal quotation for centrifugals has been 4c. for 96° test throughout the week, but business on this basis has been impracticable during most of the week, and importers having sugars arrived unsold have been forced to put them into warehouses and wait for a market. An offer to reduce price below 4c. in order to effect sales made no impression on buyers, who prefer to remain entirely out of the market for the present and until a better demand for the refined product exists. At present the production continues ahead of the consumption, notwithstanding that some refineries have been closed for an indefinite period. Raw sugar has now reached a point where it becomes a serious question with producers to cover cost of production, and at present value or a little less only the most modern plantations in Cuba will be able to make the coming crop without actual loss. Beet sugars have also approached the low level mark of 8s., below which there is little, if any, profit in cultivation. When prices touch these low points for sugar, the situation generally corrects itself after a while by diminution in production, but just now there are no signs of such correction and low prices must continue to rule for some time longer, though when at this low level there remains but little margin for further reductions in prices without absolute ruin to sugar-raisers everywhere in the foreign countries."

TEAS.

The activity of Ceylon and Indian teas is not so noticeable as a week ago, but the advance of 1 to 2c., noted in our last report, is well maintained. The cables from London show that the market is firm there, but that buying there has not been materially stimulated in consequence. Japan tea is steady and is moving a little more freely.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRENTS — The primary market has again moderated in tone and the advance of 2s., noted last week, has been more than lost. The first direct boat is due to leave Patras on September 4, but it may not move before the end of the week. There is a fair sorting trade doing. Ruling quotations for good, sound fruit are 10c. for Filatras, 11c. for Patras, 12 to 14c. for Vostizzas, for two and five crown respectively.

VALENCIA RAISINS — First prices, which have been received this week, are considered reasonable. They are 4s. lower than the first quotations last year. The demand, however, is small, as the market is well stocked with last year's fruit. The local quotations are steady at  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. for fine off-stalks, and 6 to  $6\frac{3}{4}$ c. for selected.

MALAGA RAISINS—Some prices have been received, but they are not considered reliable.

SULTANA RAISINS—Late advices show the market a trifle easier. Prices have, in fact, slowly declined since the first quotations were received.

FIGS—Some orders for Comadre tapnets have been taken at rather low figures, and the market may be said to be rather easy.

PRUNES—There is little doing. Prices are steady. Californian prunes are quoted at the following: 30-40's, 8 to  $8\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 40-50's,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c.; 50-60's, 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 60-70's,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7c.; 70-80's, 6 to  $6\frac{1}{2}$ c.; 80-90's,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6c.; 90-100's, 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ c. French prunes,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4c.

NUTS.

There is not much trade doing, but buyers are beginning to take an interest in this season's goods. Valencia almonds are firm, having gone up 2s. in this last week or so. Walnuts, both Grenobles and Marbots, are easier reported to be a good crop, and are quoted lower than last season. Tarragona almonds will also be cheaper than last year on account of large crops. Filberts are without change.

GREEN FRUITS.

The market is exceedingly active. The large arrivals of Canadian tomatoes, peaches, plums, pears and apples combine with the big receipts of watermelons, bananas, muskmelons, etc., to tax the capacity of both jobbers and retailers. In fact, bananas have come to hand in such quantities that they could not be sold before they became over-ripe, and prices were forced down 50c. Grapes are steadily becoming more plentiful. We quote as follows: Pears, 25 to 45c. per basket; peaches, 35 to 50c. for white and 60c. to $1 for red; plums, 25 to 50c.; apples, 25 to 40c.; blueberries, 75 to 90c.; tomatoes, 10 to 15c.; cucumbers, 10 to 15c.; gherkins, 50c.; peppers, 25 to 50c.; grapes, in 10 lb. baskets, 20 to 25c. for Champions and 35 to 40c. for Moore's Early and Moyer's; muskmelons, 50 to 75c. per crate of 12; watermelons, 15 to 25c. each; bananas, $1.75 for 1st and 75c. to $1 for eight-hands. New Verdilli lemons are offering at $3.75 to $4.25 per box, and late Valencia oranges are steady at $5 to $6.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Receipts have been unusually large. "In fact, said one large shipper, we accumulated a surplus of strictly-fresh eggs one day last week, and shipped it to Montreal, where the market seems to be a little stronger than this." Some quotations of  $11\frac{1}{2}$ c. have been heard, but 12c. is the general figure.

BEANS—The stiffness noted last week is still apparent, and from $2.25 to $2.40 is asked for prime beans.

LIVE CHICKENS—The Canadian Produce Co., 36 and 38 Esplanade east, Toronto, will pay until September 11, for spring chickens, not less than two lb. each, 6c. per lb. For ducklings, not less than four lb. each, 4c. per lb. For hens (including last year's birds) 4c. per lb. These prices are for live weight on arrival. Crates shipped free and express paid up to 50c. per 100 lb. of chickens.

HONEY—The market is firm at last week's advance. We quote:  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to  $8\frac{1}{2}$ c. for extracted clover and \$1.35 to \$1.50 for No. 1 clover comb.

DRIED APPLES—There is practically nothing doing in dried apples. Evaporated apples are stiff, but there is little doing. From  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8c. is a fair range, nominally.

POTATOES—The market is still easier, a decline of 5 to 10c. being reported. We quote 55 to 65c. per bush.

DRESSED POULTRY.—There is a fair trade at steady prices. We quote: Chickens, 45 to 50c. per pair; hens, 45 to 50c. per pair; ducks, 60 to 70c. per pair.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The market for dairy butter is weak, as there are large accumulations and no export demand. There is a fair inquiry for creamery for export, as it exhibits more strength than is shown in dairy. We quote as follows: Dairy prints, 17 to 18c.; best tubs, 16 to  $16\frac{1}{2}$ c.; seconds, 11 to 13c.; creamery prints, 21 to 22c.; boxes, 20c.

CHEESE—The market is dragging. The production this year has been fully up to the average, but the export has been about 375,000 boxes less than last year. The consequence is that there are great quantities held in storage on this side of the Atlantic. This condition and the excellent condition of pasturage throughout the Province has resulted in a weak feeling that is making many buyers cautious. Prices are unchanged, however, at  $9\frac{1}{2}$  to 10c.

VEGETABLES.

Celery is 15 to 25c. lower. Cauliflower has dropped 50c. from its top figures. We quote: Carrots, beets and turnips, 15c.; lettuce and radishes, 25 to 30c.; watercress, 25c.; mint and parsley, 20c.; cauliflower, 75c. to $1.50; celery, 55 to 75c.; cabbage, 40 to 60c.; corn, 8 to 15c.; cucumbers, short, 10 to 15c.; tomatoes, 10 to 15c. per basket; butter beans, 75c. to $1 per bushel; green onions, 15 to 35c.; dry onions, $1.25 per bush.; new potatoes, 25c. per basket; gherkins, 50 to 60c. per basket; egg plant, 30 to 35c. per basket.

FISH.
